is given to a school in the conference which has the most outstanding all-around athletic department.

"I was fortunate to win it every year — I had a knack for getting good people to coach,"

Davenport said.

He recently received a call from current athletic director, Tom Kirinovic, informing him that the award's name had been changed to the Dean Davenport Bulldog of the Year award.

Kirinovic said that since its inception the award has recognized the efforts of male and female cream of the crop student-athletes. Coaches make their selection based on athletic achievement, academic success, leadership and contributions to the campus and community.

"It has always gone to prestigious athletes. It is the top award in the athletic department," Davenport said. "It's important to recognize students who have made major accomplishments in athletics and academics and brought prestige to the university. Winners have gone on to play professional sports, be coaches or outstanding leaders in their communities."

Kirinovic said while the award recognizes student achievement, the name change will recognize Davenport's contributions to the campus well into the future.

Aside from his role as athletic director, Davenport, 70, was also a professor and coach at the school bringing his total number of years there to 23. He created a recreation and leisure major at the school, coached basketball there for eight years and headed up the football program for a year.

For the past three years Davenport has acted as consultant for basketball coach Bill Sall. During this time, the team has taken the conference two years in a row. He also remains a member of the Hall of Fame selection committee at Ferris.

In Charlevoix, Davenport, who is a native, is a former city recreation director and current Junior Golf director as well as commissioner of the Venetian Festival games program.

"I take pride in my home town," he said.

The new era for the Bulldog award will be marked with a display at the school including pictures of this year's recipients and name plates for former winners.

Official recognition of 2004-2005 school year winners as well as Davenport's inclusion in the award name will take place at a football game this fall.

"I think any time you are recognized by your colleagues and peers it is a great honor but we all know it takes many to turn anything into a success — I owe gratitude to a lot of people," Davenport said.

Football takes two in a row defeating Benzie

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

After a tense first quarter, the Rayders managed to maintain a slight but effective 9-6 lead for the duration of Friday's game against the Huskies.

"I knew it would be a low scoring game because we're dealing with two good defensive teams," said Don Jess, varsity head football coach for the Charlevoix Rayders.

Charlevoix couldn't have asked for more than this, the team's second win in a row. However, the night didn't begin in Charlevoix's favor.

Benzie managed to keep a score of 0-6 until the beginning of the second quarter when Charlevoix's Patrick Russell pulled out a two-point conversion.

With about 21 seconds left on the clock in the first half, Eddie Waldron scored a touchdown to make the score 8-6 with an extra point the score was 9-6 where it would remain for the rest of the game.

Quarterback Matt Kautz was 10 for 15 for 100 yards and threw one touchdown. Kautz was also the leading rusher with 53 yards. Eddie Waldron had six catches for 75 yards and one touchdown.

Drew Klooster had 14 tackles and one interception while Jeff Golovich had 10 tackles.

Next the Rayders plan to face the Red Devils of East Jordan at 7 p.m. Friday Sept. 9 in East Jordan.

The Rayders narrowly defeated the Red Devils by three points last season. And, according to Jess, it's shaping up to be a tough game.

He added, "We are going to work on line blocking."

Number 16, Kyle Jones, ran approximately 40 yards during Friday night's game against Benzie Central.

Fuel prices soar in wake of Katrina

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

With gas prices averaging $3.40 a gallon on Thursday in Charlevoix, Charlevoix Public Schools will once again be feeling the financial squeeze.

According to Terry Franel, American Farm Bureau Federation senior economist, crude oil derived from the Gulf accounts for 30 percent of domestic production and when hurricane Katrina hit the Gulf Coast earlier this week it forced much of the oil production in the United States to close down in addition to as many as nine oil refineries. This is one reason Franel said gasoline prices increased to over $3.25 a gallon throughout Northern Michigan.

With school starting this week and school budgets having already been established Charlevoix Public Schools are looking at absorbing yet another cost.

"It's just one of those things we have to absorb," said Superintendent of Charlevoix Schools, Dr. John Sturock. "We have trips to make."

Despite the increase in fuel costs, the school's transportation will go on as planned.

Sturock said the schools' cut transportation for field trips out of the budget so the school could maintain other programs, so there isn't much else which can be cut from the transportation budget.

"As long as we're running the program we're going to have to absorb the higher cost of transportation," he said.

Places with fleets of vehicles, such as the public schools, will be some of the hardest hit since driving is such a large part of what they do.

According to Charlevoix Schools Transportation Supervisor, Gordon Russell, school busses use a large amount of fuel.

"Some of them run for a week on a tank, some have to be fueled every other day," he said. "On average they probably get 7 miles to the gallon. There again it depends upon the bus, the route and weather."

Russell said his staff is trying to trim back as much as possible while still being able to pick up the kids.

"We're feeling it like anybody is," he said.

At the state and federal levels officials are making efforts to curb the impact of gas prices.

According to Governor Jennifer Granholm's Press Secretary, Liz Boyd, because gasoline is on the free market, the governor's office can't do anything to cap wholesale or retail prices.

But, she said, "We're monitoring the gasoline prices and we have taken steps to ensure the availability of gasoline. Just last week the governor paved the way for gasoline inspectors to make sure customers are getting the quality and quantity of gas they need."

"The governor's office has received over 1,200 calls on the issue of gas," Boyd said.

Anyone with concerns of quality, quantity or the price of gasoline they purchase should call (800) MDA-FUEL, she said.

Boyd said the governor released funds to double the number of fuel inspectors to ensure accuracy at the gas pumps.

According to an Aug. 31, press release from Congressman Bart Stupak, President George W. Bush plans to release barrels of crude oil from the Strategic Petroleum Reserve to ease the burden.

"I'm glad to see that President Bush has heeded my advice to tap into the Strategic Petroleum Reserve in order to ease the pain we're feeling at the pump," he said.

"I attempted a number of tactics in the legislative process to release oil from the SPR and help relieve gas prices. This was a focus when we were looking at a record breaking $50 per barrel price," Stupak said. "Now that we're fast approaching a devastating $80 per barrel, the president is finally taking action — it's certainly better late than never."

Stupak said the oil released from the Strategic Petroleum Reserve should help stabilize the market thus allowing some financial drop at the pump.

The aftermath of Hurricane Katrina included rising fuel costs. (Above) As fuel prices hit their peak last Wednesday, customers lined up to top off their fuel tanks at the Shell station on Bridge Street where the price of gas was the lowest in the city. Prices have since settled at an average of $3.15 per gallon in town.

Two new teachers join Northwest Academy

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The teaching staff at Northwest Academy welcomes two new additions.

Karl Redmer

Art, social studies and history teacher Karl Redmer, 28, who grew up in East Jordan joins the charter school staff this year.

He earned his teaching degree in art, history and social studies from the University of Michigan Flint, completed his student teaching as well as two years of substitute teaching in East Jordan schools and looks forward to the new school year at Northwest Academy.

"I love it. I love the atmosphere, I really enjoy the student body and I'm excited about the new programs," he said.

And, he added, "I'm excited about establishing a more in-depth art department."

Redmer said he wants to teach kids more about art than just the basics.

"Instead of just teaching kids to draw (I'll) focus more on specifics like tools, techniques and media, things kids haven't been exposed to until now," he said.

Redmer's wife teaches in East Jordan and they have three sons: Garrett, Brady and Isaac.

As far as social studies and history classes are concerned, Redmer said he plans to, "Focus on hands-on experiences."

Redmer said he became interested in teaching while he was coaching football and basketball and he hopes to go beyond the typical textbook lessons.

The other new educator who signed on with Northwest Academy is Kris Rasmussen, who will be teaching English.

Rasmussen, who grew up in Petoskey is delighted to be teaching in Northern Michigan.

"I've been trying to stay in the area to teach," she said. "This is a great opportunity that came up."

She added, "I've been teaching as an adjunct instructor at North Central Michigan College for the last year and I've been (substitute teaching) in the district for two-and-a-half years."

Rasmussen said she worked in the business world for a while, some of that time spent working with teens, and that's when she decided she wanted to be a teacher.

She said she is excited because she feels there are many possibilities with her curriculum.

"I think we're just going to have a lot of fun with creative projects," she said.

Northwest Academy started the 2005-2006 school year today, Sept. 7. The school is located at 115 West Hurlbut Street in Charlevoix.

Rotary Club heads up fund-raising effort

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

Charlevoix residents are reaching out in the wake of what President George W. Bush has called "one of the worst natural disasters" in our country's history.

The morning of Thursday, Sept. 1 Americans awoke to news of gunfire, looting and small fires in Louisiana where Category 4 Hurricane Katrina tore through New Orleans Monday, Aug. 29.

"It was hard to believe it was actual footage — I couldn't believe this country had been victimized like that," Rotarian and Charlevoix City Police Chief Dennis Halverson said.

That same morning Halverson attended the local Rotary Club's weekly breakfast meeting at the Flap Jack Shack Family Restaurant. He said the footage was the main topic of conversation.

Talk of the devastation quickly turned to discussion of outreach.

Club members decided to donate $500 and a club member quickly matched that with a personal contribution that brought the total to $1,000.

The club is now coordinating local contribution efforts. Those who wish to donate can drop off or send checks payable to Charlevoix Rotary Club with "hurricane relief" written in the memo, to the city police department off Mason Street, the Clothing Company and the Bridge Street Book Shop off Bridge Street.

Local preschooler heads up toy drive

Kiley Mann, a Charlevoix preschooler, is collecting funds to be turned into toys and books that will be delivered to the children affected by Hurricane Katrina.

The tiny activist is one of many in the U.S. participating in the Kids Helping Kids of Katrina's Fund-raiser.

The recent natural disaster destroyed many families' homes. So many of them have nothing left.

Kiley's mom, Tonya Mann, is helping her daughter lead this effort.

"Children need toys and books to open their world. No matter how big or how small, you can help," Tonya said.

ing a wall of water over the city's levees.

On Aug. 31 President George W. Bush announced that the powerful hurricane damaged tens of thousands of homes and businesses beyond repair and left more than 78,000 people in emergency shelters.

Earlier that day, New Orleans Mayor Ray Nagin said the storm probably killed thousands of people in New Orleans.

"This recovery will take years," Bush said in his address that day from the White House.

New Orleans residents were warned to expect prolonged displacement.

In spite of the looting and violence that was splashed across the news Sept. 1 Guthrie and Gennett said they're not afraid.

"It's put up or shut up time," Guthrie said. "It's like a war zone but I believe God goes before and clears the way."

In the 24 hours that passed between the two making the decision to go and starting their 1,100 mile trip Guthrie said there was an outpouring of community support.

Community members donated just under $5,000, socks, blankets, pillows, underwear and small stuffed animals for children.

"It's been really remarkable," Guthrie said.

Council members call for firing

By JULIE WITTHOFT

Two members of Charlevoix City Council feel Charlevoix city manager Mike Wiesner's role in a check mishap that cost the city just over $220,000 is grounds for his dismissal.

Wiesner at council's Sept. 6 meeting.

Campbell's comments were based on an investigative report delivered to the manager's office Sept. 2.

The report was authored by Michael Neihardt, a detective with Michael Neihardt Investigations in Kalkaska. He was hired by city council in mid-July to look into what went wrong at city hall to have resulted in the city paying over $220,000 to the wrong recipient.

Dick Devos, candidate for governor, tours town

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Republican candidate for Governor, Grand Rapids resident Dick DeVos, stopped in Charlevoix this week to discuss his qualifications.

"I'm running because I think I can make a difference in this state. Michigan is in need of jobs. We need to invest in this state. We have the highest unemployment in the United States," he said. "Michigan has the worst climate for small business and in my view it's time to get a business person in charge or we're going to end up with young people who are unable to make it here."

DeVos, 49, the son of cofounder of Amway Corp. and one of the largest Republican campaign contributors in America recently announced his gubernatorial ambitions for Michigan in 2006.

He is a husband and father of four, with a résumé which includes holding the vice president's seat at multilevel marketing giant Amway, president of

Council split on who is at fault for CCMS check

Unfortunately, we were dealing with a contractor that didn't have any integrity. That's where our focus should be," Chamberlain said.

Mayor Norman Carlson agrees.

"If there's anyone to blame, it's the contractor," he said.

This mistake resulted in United Fire and Casualty suing the city. In December of 2004 the city agreed to end the suit by paying United Fire the over $220,000 it already paid CCMS.

At city council's July 18 meeting, council members voted unanimously to hire Bob DeJong, an attorney with Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone, P.L.C. DeJong will take the lead in the case the city plans to pursue against Michigan Municipal League Insurance, its insurance carrier, for not covering a check.

City attorney Jim Young said he is currently reviewing a draft of the complaint which should be filed by Sept. 18.

At the same meeting when DeJong was hired council decided the internal conclusion that the problem of miscommunication led to the debacle wasn't enough. And first ward councilman Bob Timms led the effort to hire Neihardt to investigate the entire scope of the problem.

Timms said in interpreting the results, like Campbell and Gibson, he feels Wiesner is to blame.

"I would say it points at Mike more than anyone else. With Rick (Brandt) on vacation it fell to Mike to take care of that and he didn't. I guess that's where the buck should stop. Its malleusance — whether it's a fireable offense, I'm not too sure right at this moment," Timms said.

Neihardt started interviewing members of city staff in early August — conducting interviews with Brandt, Brown, Wiesner and city engineer Don Swem, who handled most of the project's details.

Campbell said his opinion that Wiesner should be fired is grounded in part in information uncovered by Neihardt that showed memos were written to Wiesner by Swem, highlighting the need for a two party check to CCMS and United Fire to be written.

Third ward council member Shirley Gibson, who supports Campbell's call for firing Wiesner, said, "This is going to end up costing the city over half a million dollars. He should have paid closer attention to the memo he received from Don Swem."

Wiesner's outlook on the costly mistake follows suit with both Mayor Carlson and councilman Chamberlain.

"It's unfortunate it happened. And I don't think we'll ever know entirely what happened. But the really unfortunate case is the person who broke the law and didn't note his mistake. It would have been corrected right away," he said.

While this issue will lead to a lawsuit and possible firing of Wiesner, it may also result in criminal charges against CCMS.

Because the check was cashed in St. Ignace city police chief Dennis Halverson has been working with detective Robin Sexton from the Michigan State Police post there to investigate the matter.

Reminder: The post office has relocated

Julie Witthoef
'Just a thought'

At least five times a summer I'm asked the same question from drivers slowly passing by the Courier's Mason Street door with an unfailing bewildered look on their faces. "Where's the post office," they ask.

At the beginning of the summer my typical response includes a smile and directions to the stop light at M-66 and U.S. 31, followed by routing to the "new" office off M-66 adjacent to the Kmart plaza.

I wait and listen to their nostalgic tale of shipping a package or mailing a letter at the former stone faced office across the street from the Courier, next to city hall, where the city police and fire departments currently operate out of.

But by this time of year, my patience is waning and my smile has faded as directions to the facility, which opened in April of 1998, roll off my tongue.

As I point down Mason Street, squinting under the reflection from their shiny car doors, my silent giggle thunders a little louder as thoughts of leading the innocent visitor to the scenic Bell's Bay Road turnaround, spin my gears.

On Monday my unspoken giggle turned to an all out roar when a package from the United States Post Office in Washington D.C. was delivered to our office.

The outside envelope was simply labeled to "Charlevoix." Without first looking at the physical address, the Courier's classified ad manager, Val Pederson tore open the paper in typical office mail fashion, to find a letter addressed to the Charlevoix Postmaster Station Manager.

The misdirected mail included a poster and supporting materials for the United States Postal Service Accuracy of Delivery Campaign.

The campaign punch line reads, "Mail. It's nobody else's business."

It's in your hands. Deliver it right the first time."

A quick check of the envelope label found 109 Mason Street, the address of the former post office, not the Courier office at 112 Mason Street.

I gathered the materials and made a run to the post office assuming headquarters should be notified to update its address database before something really important is missed.

From this amusing case of misdirected mail I've learned that in spite of all our attempts to cut ties and let the newer, improved post office take over the reins, the Courier and that old post office are intended to have a symbiotic relationship for life.

So, if we are answering questions and even accepting mail why not open a mini post office location here. It would save confusion and may even improve weekly paper delivery to subscribers.

Letters to the editor

Community thanks

Editor:

The Evans family wishes to express our deepest and sincerest thank you to our friends, neighbors and co-workers who have made donations toward helping our family in Gulfport, Miss. The huge response of money, food, thoughts, prayers, clothing and inquiries was incredible.

Peggy Evans was born and raised in Gulfport where she met her husband Jim while he was stationed at the See Bee base there. Peggy has extensive family who live along the coast including her mother, three siblings, aunts, uncles, cousins and long time friends. As many families in northern Michigan did after Katrina made landfall, we watched the television almost around the clock. Unable to make phone calls to family, many sleepless nights were spent praying for their safety.

Finally the call came through, they were safe. As expected, they were in need of supplies after losing much of what they considered "home." On Friday, Sept. 2, Jim and Peggy made the decision to head south. A car load of supplies was delivered to Peggy's sisters and their families. With empty gas stations and closing highways, Jim and Peggy were relieved to be able to make the trip and return home with Peggy's mother, Eugenia Kates.

After seeing the devastation first hand, the family would also like to comment on the relief efforts. As much of the media is busy fingerprinting and dishonoring the help that has been sent, we feel a tremendous appreciation and respect for the hard work that many, many Americans are providing. With the overwhelming amount of people and areas in need and the tremendous amount of debris and damage, our current lifestyles of getting what we want and getting it now simply weren't possible. Military, law enforcement, medical personnel, church groups and volunteer civilians are currently on the coast or are on their way from all over our great country. So many people are offering their time and assistance in a stressful and sometimes thankless position. The generosity of total strangers in our community as well as from those helping out in Mississippi has not gone unnoticed or unappreciated.

We urge people to thank those in our towns that help us, rather than wasting our emotions on things that might have went wrong. Not all the neighborhoods in the south are full of ungrateful looters. Neighbors and strangers of all ages and race are helping each other — you just might not see that on TV.

Again we extend our most gracious thanks to all the many people who've donated to, prayed for and asked about our families.

The June Simmons family of Gulfport, Miss.

The Linda Hughes family of Gulfport, Miss.

The Eugenia Kates family of Mississippi

P.A. fund-raising success

Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the community for its ongoing support of the Charlevoix High School Performing Arts Program. Over the summer, students, parents and community volunteers have been raising funds and building enthusiasm. Our never-ending bottle/can drive is successful with your support. The bottled water sale and Ferry Beach Garage Sale were successful — look for us next year.

Thank you to the Charlevoix Council for the Arts for your generous donation. Thank you to the artists that tipped parent and student volunteers during the Charlevoix Waterfront Art

Craft show response

Editor:

I am writing in support of Mr. Nowicki's view (letter to the editor published Sept. 7, 2005) that the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce is misrepresenting the nature of the July Craft Show to prospective artists and craftsmen.

Last year, I was the "rookie" who was duped out of my entry fee. Though I sold some of my art it was clear that many attendees were looking for bargain merchandise rather than art or finely crafted goods. To add insult to injury, I was forced to endure two days of close proximity to two individuals hawking cheap manufactured goods right across the aisle from my booth. I toured the fair and found numerous booths selling manufactured goods some clearly labeled "made in China."

I wrote to the chamber expressing my distaste for decline of this once nice fair. In return I received a half piece of paper with a similar if not identical, message that Ms. Merta supplied to the Courier this week (letter to the editor from chamber director Jacqueline Merta published Sept. 7.) I suspect the chamber receives so many artist complaints that they print a form letter two to a page to save on paper.

This year I walked through the show and was dismayed that it seemed even more of a flea market than last year. Ms. Merta claims they are trying to improve it, yet they allow the non-compliant sellers to remain in business even though the contract gives the chamber the right to compel them to dismantle their displays and leave.

The chamber needs to decide what type of an event they are hosting. If it is to be a flea market, then promote it to sellers and buyers as such. If it is to remain a juried show of hand-made art and crafts, then the chamber needs to inspect the booths prior to the show opening and enforce the contract by shutting down any exhibitors selling any manufactured products.

I suspect that the current criteria for acceptance into this show is the entry fee check clearing the bank.

Experiencing the disaster

Editor:

We have returned from our 2,800 mile round trip to work in the River Center evacuee shelter in Baton Rouge, La., and wanted to take this opportunity to thank the Charlevoix community for their generous outpouring of cash and goods to aid in the response to Katrina.

Our original idea was that we'd let a few people know we were going in the hopes of raising a couple hundred dollars to buy the socks, underwear, blankets and pillows we were told were in short supply there. Instead, we were blessed with $11,250 in cash and $2,150 in checks made out directly to the American Red Cross. Most of this money was raised within one day, and while most of it came from the people of Charlevoix we also received donations from the surrounding communities and from donors as far away as Florida and Maine.

In addition, we crammed so many donated pillows, blankets, and stuffed toys into our car and trailer that it took six people a half hour to unload it all in Baton Rouge. Although we did not use your money to purchase underwear and socks as we'd originally planned, we believe we used your money wisely.

A few hours after our arrival on Saturday, Sept. 3, we were discussing our shelter assignment with local Red Cross management. The manager was telling us that the previous day her husband was working the help desk at the River Center shelter, the shelter often featured on news reports, when a man arrived covered in filth from the waters of New Orleans. He had lost six members of his family — they had literally drowned before his eyes and floated away — and more than anything else he just wanted a shower. A simple request, but one the shelter couldn't grant. Never before had the Red Cross received evacuees who had spent days partially immersed in filthy and contaminated water, and there were no showers or towels at the shelters.

Just then our meeting was interrupted to deal with an urgent problem with the evacuees, who were just beginning to arrive at the shelters in large numbers. The problem of showers had been partially addressed through the erection of some emergency hazmat decontamination showers on the sidewalk outside the shelter, but the towels were still a problem.

There was no emergency funding in the Red Cross budget for towels. Using $3,000 of your money we were able to buy up every towel at every Wal-Mart and Target for miles around. On the strength of your donation, the next day local Red Cross managers contracted with Dollar General to buy towels in case lots at cost, and the remainder of your donation went toward that purchase. All told, you purchased nearly 4,000 towels and wash cloths. We can't express to you how much they were

Our trip to Baton Rouge — which we came to refer to as "Lyle and Steve's excellent adventure" — was physically demanding, spiritually exhausting, and mentally frustrating. It also ranks right up there among the most important things we have ever done in our lives. We have a new benchmark for what it means to have trouble in life, and we quickly realized we don't have any real trouble in ours.

We quickly found a new level of appreciation for the ways God has blessed us, and felt guilty for ever complaining about our so-called difficulties. We think it's fair to say we received more than we gave. We heard horrific tales of destruction, of families separated, homes destroyed and lost pets. And underlying every tale of woe was an expression of the human instinct for survival, of hope and faith in the goodness of God.

We heard tales of man's inhumanity to man even in the darkest of times, but these were offset by other stories of kindness and sharing. Like any tragedy, Katrina pulled some people toward God while others pulled away.

We were grateful for the opportunity to go and serve, and offer our heartfelt appreciation for your support. You distinguished yourself with your generosity.

Adopt-a-Beach cleanup to take place on Sept. 17

Thousands of volunteers are expected to pitch in during the Alliance for the Great Lakes annual September Adopt-a-Beach event from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, Sept. 17.

Daniel Mann, a family practitioner with Pine River Medical Associates, is coordinating Adopt-a-Beach efforts in Charlevoix County for the third year.

Mann encouraged volunteers to attend this Saturday's event, but suggested those interested in participating contact him as soon as possible to ensure sufficient supplies are available.

The group will meet at 9 a.m. at the Lake Michigan Beach pavilion near the lighthouse in Charlevoix. Mann can be reached at (231) 547-6554.

Volunteer efforts are critical to the health of the lakes, as the information they collect from the cleanup will be used in a pollution prevention education campaigns.

"The cleanup is successful every year because it's a way that people can play a hands-on role in ensuring our shorelines and waterways are safe and clean for people and for the wildlife of the Great Lakes," said Jamie Morton, alliance staff member and state coordinator for the annual event.

The 2004 regional cleanup in Michigan resulted in 2,394 enthusiastic volunteers hauling away 10,247 pounds of garbage from 174 miles of shoreline. The Michigan cleanup is supported by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality's Coastal Management Program, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and the L.C. and Margaret Walker Foundation.

Paul Robert "Bob" Mousseau: Died Sept. 5, 2005

Bob Mousseau

Funeral Home in Charlevoix, the Rev. Harold E. Kruse officiated and burial was in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Bob was born near Uby, the son of Paul and Anna (McHarge) Mousseau. He served in the U.S. Army during W.W.II. The following article was published in the Charlevoix Courier while Bob was serving in the army.

T/S Paul R. Mousseau is now serving with the U.S. Constabulary, the new, all mobile security striking force which will soon be policing the entire American zones in Germany and Austria.

T/S Mousseau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mousseau, now wears the distinctive uniform of the Constabulary which is an integral part of the Third Army, the only remaining major field command in Europe. His new dress consists of smooth-surfaced combat boots, an olive drab long blouse with matching trousers, a Sam Browne leather belt, a golden scarf and a helmet liner bearing insignia and alternating bands of blue and gold. Off duty T/S Mousseau replaces his helmet liner with a sharp service cap with visor and removes his leather shoulder strap and pistol which every man, except the medics and bandmen, carry in the Constabulary.

T/S Mousseau is one of 39,000 officers and men, all volunteers or carefully screened reinforcements, who will carry out the missions with light tanks, armored cars and jeeps, motorcycles, horses and liaison-type aircraft.

As a member of this rapidly forming crack corps, led by major General Ernest W. Harmon, veteran combat commander, this soldier meets high standards of physique and ability and receives specialized training for his dual duty of soldier and special policeman.

On Oct. 11, 1947, he married the former Shirley Jane Williams in Ironton. Bob owned and operated Charlevoix Gravel and Dirt excavating for over 20 years, and he served on the Charlevoix County Road Commission. He enjoyed working, whether it was building, investing in property, or farming. When he wasn't working, he enjoyed playing cards and dice. Bob loved people and especially his family. Every spring he would take his grandchildren on a "picnic," followed by a trip to the Dairy Queen.

Bob is survived by his wife, Shirley of Charlevoix; daughters, Patricia (Jimmy) Mousseau of Paisley, Fla., Peggy (Jodie) Givens of Charlevoix, Jane (Walt) Holm of Ellsworth; grandchildren, Jakki (Joe) Goodenough, and Cindy (Chad) Stockman of Alba, Missy (Bob) Givens, Bobby Joe (Christi) Givens, Ryan (Jen) Pittman, Roger (Kaylee) Pittman, and Amy (Roger) Vanniman all of Charlevoix; 14 grandchildren; brother, Bernard R. "Bud" Mousseau of Charlevoix, sisters-in-law, Lynda (Maurice) Gardner and Jean Williams of Charlevoix; brother-in-law, Jack Lambdin of Port Charlotte, Fla. Bob's sisters, Phyllis Loucks and Helen Joles preceded him in death.

Constance "Connie" Snider: Sept. 6, 1919 - Sept. 7, 2005

Constance M. "Connie" Snider, 86, of Bradenton, Fla. and Charlevoix died Wednesday, Sept. 7, 2005, at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Glenn and Mary Snider.

Connie was born Sept. 6, 1919, in Traverse City, the daughter of Floyd Dean and Joyce (Millard) Dean Drake. She grew up in Williamsburg where she was valedictorian of her high school graduation class.

On Feb. 28, 1941, she married Glenn B. Snider. They made their home in Charlevoix where she taught school for a number of years, retiring in 1975.

In retirement Connie enjoyed traveling, quilting, reading, the Tigers baseball team and playing cards with her wonderful Florida friends. She will be remembered for her delightful sense of humor, her loving support and her delicious lemon pie.

Connie is survived by her son, Glenn R. (Mary J.) Snider of Charlevoix; her daughter Nancy A. (James) Labiak of Kirkland, Wash.; her granddaughter Kate Labiak (Mark Adamo) of Edmonds, Wash.; and her sister, Virginia Watson of Sun City Center, Fla. She is also survived by several nieces and nephews and many, many dear friends.

She was preceded in death by her husband, her parents, her brother, Richard Dean and her half-brother, Clinton E. Drake.

Friends wishing to make a contribution in Connie's memory are asked to consider Northwest Michigan Community Health-Hospice, 220 W. Garfield Avenue, Charlevoix, MI 49720. The family requests no flowers.

A memorial graveside service will take place at 11 a.m. Friday, Sept. 23, at the Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix. The Rev. Nancy Rhode will officiate, and an Order of the Eastern Star memorial service will be conducted under the auspices of the OES Chapter #72, Charlevoix.

Charlevoix County Sheriff warns of disaster scams

As the victims of Hurricane Katrina in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama cope with the aftermath of last week's devastation, millions of Americans are opening their hearts and wallets.

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lusater warns local citizens to be cautious with their charity.

"Millions of Americans have shown us what is best about our nation in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina — volunteering their time and resources to aid the victims," Sheriff Lusater said. "Sadly, a large number of phony charities are attempting to profit at the expense of these victims."

Sheriff Lusater offers the following tips for those who wish to help the victims of Hurricane Katrina:

- Do not open e-mail requests for donations from unfamiliar sources. The best rule of thumb is for you to contact the charity directly, preferably by telephone.
- If you are uncertain whether a charity is legitimate, contact the Attorney General's Office at (517) 373-1152 or the local office of the Better Business Bureau.
- Donate to charities that have a proven track record such as the American Red Cross, United Way of America and the Salvation Army.

- Phone solicitors frequently are not a part of the organization they claim to represent. These telemarketers may not have the authorization to call on behalf of recognized charities and, in fact, may only be trying to obtain your personal financial information. Don't give it to them.
- If you have received a fraudulent e-mail, you should file a complaint with the FBI's Internet Fraud Complaint Center (www.IC3.gov).
- If you have information about a scam or have been victimized, contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division toll-free at (877) 765-8388.

County-wide smoking ban may be tweaked

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The Board of Health invites community members to a public hearing regarding the "Public Health Clean Indoor Air Regulation of 2005."

The hearing will take place at 10 a.m. on Friday, Sept. 30 at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office located at 1000 Grant Street in Charlevoix where the Board of Health will consider rescinding a similar regulation adopted in 2004 for the 2005 version.

"The response to the work site smoking ban has been overwhelmingly positive," said Gerald Chase, Health Officer for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency.

According to Chase, the lawsuit filed against the county this summer is not the cause of the proposed changes to the regulation.

The lawsuit was filed in July against Charlevoix County and the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency by three residents served by the agency. Kent McNeil of Bellaire, and Franklin Fisher and Roger Griffin of East Jordan are calling for Charlevoix County 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas to overturn the Public Health Clean Indoor Air Regulation.

"We believe that most of the issues raised in the lawsuit were neither true in fact or law," Chase said. "In our total research we learned of a technical error (in the regulation) ourselves which wasn't raised in the lawsuit and we felt that it was important to be technically correct."

If adopted, it will become effective 60 days after the last of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties' boards of commissioners approve the regulation.

According to Chase, this regulation is an improved version of one that went into effect in July after being adopted by the board of health and approved by the four county boards of commissioners.

Chase said the new regulation will be less strict than the original since it will allow companies with one employee to smoke in vehicles operated by only one person.

"Our only concern is to protect the health of non-smoking employees. Obviously, if a business is a one-person operation, then that employee is not exposing anyone but himself of herself to cancer-causing chemicals," he said. "This regulation is not about stopping anyone from smoking. It's about protecting employees who don't smoke cigarettes from the over 50 carcinogens in tobacco smoke."

According to Michigan Department of Community Health, about 24 non-smokers die each year in the health district from the effects of secondhand smoke.

The "Public Health Clean Indoor Air Regulation of 2005" assures smoke-free air for most employees in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties by eliminating secondhand smoke from most work sites.

The proposed 2005 regulation does not apply to restaurants, bars and other food service establishments and certain gambling and casino operations since other laws already affect those establishments. Businesses operated out of private residences will also be exempt, except for those used for childcare, health care, or adult day care businesses.

A balloon ride to remember for St. Mary readers

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Teachers stress that reading can take their students to new heights and on Aug. 19, studies swept some local students off their feet.

As the result of a reading competition at St. Mary School last spring, six-year-old kindergartner, Julia Doskoch, was the youngest of five children to ride in a hot air balloon provided by ReMax of Charlevoix.

"It was very funny because I was the youngest person on there and you could barely see the tip of my head over the basket," Julia said. Julia said she read many joke books and baby-sitter books, among others, to become the top reader in her class. And, she said, despite all the floating and fire involved, it was all worth it.

"It was a little scary because they shot flames up into the hot air balloon to make it fly," she said. "I could feel the heat coming down."

According to Julia's father, John Doskoch, this year's reading competition, called Round The World was judged on minutes read over a six-week period.

"We do the reading program every year, but this is the first time we did the balloon ride," John said.

In addition to the balloon ride the kids had their annual luncheon with the principal.

John said he hopes the winners of next year's reading contest will also be able to ride in the hot air balloon.

"They were super excited without a doubt. I don't think any of them had ever been up in a balloon," he said. "And they actually got to be there and see the whole thing inflated and the basket attached."

While the balloon didn't free float, it did rise about 100 feet, well above tree level according to John.

He added, "It was an incentive to get the kids excited about reading."

According to St. Mary's librarian, Danielle Baier, "We had a challenge to the children which started with March is Reading Month. We carried it through March and April."

Each grade set a goal and every time the kids grades K-2 read 100 minutes in a week and grades three through six read 150 minutes they took their hot air balloon to the next continent.

The school-wide goal was to reach 70,000 minutes. The students ended up with 71,948 minutes.

"Then we took each child who was the top reader from each grade on the hot air balloon," Baier said.

She added that the children were motivated by the idea of riding in the balloon.

"Children who didn't read as much were encouraged to read more and I think we had more reading as a school while this promotion was going on," she said.

Sepsis claims the life of Charlevoix's Zoie Johnson

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

In the recent death of one of Charlevoix's youngest residents, typical symptoms of a sick toddler were masking a fatal case of sepsis.

Zoie Johnson

Zoie Johnson, was just two-and-a-half when her time on earth was cut short Aug. 23 by sepsis, a blood infection.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, symptoms characteristic of sepsis patients include changes in temperature, heart rate, respiratory function and white blood cell count.

Sepsis is defined by the presence of pathogens or their toxins in the blood, bacteria in the blood or disseminated fungal infection.

According to information from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, "although the pathway to sepsis begins with an identifiable infection, when patients become septic their immune systems are intensely activated, setting off a cascade of events that may result in uncontrolled inflammation throughout the body. Sepsis also activates the coagulation system by promoting thrombosis and inhibiting fibrinolysis, which is how the body breaks up clots. These changes may contribute to multiple organ failure, which is a major cause of mortality from sepsis."

According to Zoie's mom, Nicole, on Aug. 22 her baby was ill, but she wasn't running a fever and like most sick toddlers, was mildly lethargic. She said in the past she has brought her children into the doctor with these symptoms and was told, "They're kids — they're germ magnets."

This time, Nicole made the decision to keep her baby home and treat her symptoms.

The next morning, the little girl was lifeless.

Now, Nicole, an employee of Boulder Park Terrace Nursing and Rehabilitation Center and her husband of six years, Ron who works at the Belvedere Golf Club are left with empty hearts and arms.

"We are trying to keep ourselves busy. We are taking it day by day. But no matter what, from now on, if Renée has any symptoms I'm taking her in," Nicole said.

Renée, 5, is Zoie's older sister, who started Kindergarten last week. Her new school clothes and supplies are complimented by a permanent gold locket that hangs around her neck harnessing the picture and spirit of her best friend and sister, Zoie.

Nicole said she would send the Zoie and Renée upstairs to bed at their Charlevoix home and for an hour, every night, would listen as they chatted themselves to sleep.

"Renée could understand everything Zoie would say," Nicole said.

Her adorable toddler vocabulary was starting to take shape for the adults in her life as well.

Ron said his outgoing daughter was starting to say her own name.

The family members said they will miss watching Zoie, their little shadow and snuggle bug, toddle around with her chubby hands outstretched wanting to assist with laundry, dishes or whatever project her family tackled that day.

Renée Johnson wears this locket around her neck at all times. It holds a picture of her sister, Zoie, who died recently from a rare blood infection called sepsis.

Pajtas sentences Baker to prison for meth operation

Charles H. Baker, Jr., was sentenced to prison by Charlevoix County Circuit Court Judge Richard M. Pajtas on Sept. 2.

He received a sentence of 18 to 120 months in prison for two counts of possession of methamphetamine and for maintaining a house used for the possession or sale of controlled substances.

Baker had been running a methamphetamine operation from a residence on Burnett Road, in Hayes Township, and was arrested in June, following an investigation by Detective Charles Vondra and Deputy William Church of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office.

Baker was convicted on July 19. Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema commends these officers for their help in stopping the distribution of dangerous drugs in Charlevoix County.

Library offers seniors on-line health information resource Finding health information on the Internet can be overwhelming.

That's why the staff at the Charlevoix Public Library has compiled a list of reliable health resources that can be easily searched. It will help patients, family and friends research diseases and treatments. It has a medical dictionary and encyclopedia. The e-library offers links to drug and supplement information and will help patrons find out about clinical trials and support groups. The e-library can be found by going to the library's Web site www.charlevoixlibrary.org and clicking on Health Resources.

An award from the National Network of Libraries of Medicine has made it possible for the Charlevoix Public Library to offer health outreach education to seniors in Charlevoix. The library will soon take its list of online health resources to seniors and young retirees. Linda Adams, librarian, will offer demonstrations of the online resources and help seniors find the information they need.

Six free training sessions will be held from 10 a.m. to noon on Mondays starting Sept. 19 and running through Oct. 24 at the Charlevoix Senior Center located off Norwood Road.

Sessions will also be held from 1-3 p.m. Oct. 12 and 19 at the library located at 109 Clinton Street.

The purpose of these sessions is to help patrons find the health information they need. Basics of Internet searching will be covered as needed. The sessions will explain how to find health information online and introduce the many support resources available. All are welcome to attend these sessions.

This demonstration is also available free of charge to community organizations that have seniors in their membership.

To schedule a session, call the library at (231) 547-2651.

Township residents to benefit from leaf vacuum service

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Charlevoix Township residents will see a new piece of machinery and be able to enjoy a new service this fall.

This summer the township purchased a dumptruck size, bright yellow leaf vacuum for about $23,000 in order to better rid the area of piles of unsightly and often smelly leaves.

"We're trying to make Charlevoix Township a better place," said Charlevoix Township Department of Public Works Supervisor, Randy Holecheck.

Holecheck said, previously, residents were forced to burn the leaves or pay to have them hauled away.

"What we're going to do is dump them at Swansons K&D. And, in about three years we'll have compost for township residents," he said.

According to Holecheck, both the removal service as well as the resultant compost will be available to Charlevoix Township residents free of charge.

"Put them right on the edge of the road on the grass," he said. "We'll start picking them up as soon as they start dropping."

While grass clippings and brush may not be placed in the leaf piles, Holecheck said, there is no limit to how many leaves the township will pick up.

"The piles should be no more than two feet high and as long as you want," he said.

The service will be available throughout the fall.

Charlevoix Township bought a $23,000 industrial size leaf vacuum this summer which they will use this fall when the leaves begin to drop.

Mediation group receives foundation grant

Through the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, J.D. Boydston and Cynthia Johnson made a grant contribution to Northern Community Mediation in memory of their father Gordon Boydston.

As a result of that grant, the local mediation provider was able to have their office computers networked, purchase software that took advantage of that interconnectivity and update the state-required data-reporting system. The mediation staff is now able to access, enter and analyze data more efficiently and productively.

Northern Community Mediation is a non-profit organization that provides an alternative means of resolving conflict. Trained mediators, who meet with the parties involved in a dispute, facilitate so that the individuals themselves can resolve the conflict.

Anyone interested in learning more about Northern Community Mediation should contact Dr. Jane Millar at (231) 487-1771.

Emerald Ash Borer check points in place

The Michigan Department of Agriculture is performing targeted firewood inspections and seizing hardwood firewood being transported out of Emerald Ash Borer quarantined areas or into the Upper Peninsula with the goal of halting the artificial spread of the invasive beetle.

Movement of hardwood firewood is the primary means of artificially spreading this exotic, highly destructive pest.

The bug's larvae live and feed undetected beneath the bark of ash trees, making any piece of ash firewood a potential vehicle for the accidental transport of the insect. Even firewood appearing sound could be carrying the larvae under the bark and wreak havoc on an area.

Regulatory teams monitoring random rest areas and roadways around the quarantined area are performing targeted inspections.

Individuals violating the state's quarantine are subject to fines ranging from $1,000 to $250,000 and jail time of up to five years for moving regulated ash materials, including hardwood firewood.

"The Michigan Department of Agriculture is intercepting potentially infested firewood and halting the spread of the Emerald Ash Borer into other areas of the state," said Patricia Lockwood, Emerald Ash Borer policy director for Governor Jennifer Granholm.

"These unannounced blitzes offer greater assurance that Michigan travelers are adhering to the state's Emerald Ash Borer quarantine and preserving our natural heritage."

The Emerald Ash Borer is an exotic, aggressive beetle native to Asia and discovered in Southeast Michigan in 2002.

To date, it has been responsible for the death or damage of approximately 15 million of the state's ash trees.

For more information about the Emerald Ash Borer, visit one of these Web sites: www.michigan.gov/cab or www.emeraldashborer.info.

Charlevoix minister starts new church in Gaylord

By BENJAMIN GOHIS
Staff writer

After 10 years serving the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix, Pastor Jonathon Mays has moved on to start a new church.

Jonathon Mays

"I've been in ministry, in one form or another, for most of my adult career," he said of his more than 25 years in service to God. "I think even way back in high school I found some higher purpose than just making a buck."

Mays did his seminary work at Bethel Seminary in St. Paul, Minn.

"At the time it was the only accredited distance based masters of Divinity program," he said.

The Northern Michigan Classis, which governs the reformed churches in the area completed some demographic research and determined there was a need for a Community Reformed Church in the Gaylord area and Mays was asked to start it.

"We already miss Charlevoix but it's nice that it's still 40 miles away so it's easy to connect with friends and family," he said.

But, he added, "I feel that it's a partnership with the Charlevoix church. I have a sense of being, that I'm sent out as an acting partner. It was a very positive relationship with the Charlevoix church, but it was just time for me to be out on my own."

That is why Mays, his wife and two children entered into the whole process. Mays said this new church, Jacob's Will, is for people who may feel disenfranchised with churches as a whole.

"We're trying to develop a church for people who don't go to church," he said. "We want to develop a Christian community for people who have had a negative experience with church or maybe none at all."

According to Mays, he decided to use the name Jacob's Will because it comes from the story of the woman at the well where Jesus crosses almost every social barrier to have a relationship with someone.

"This is what we're doing going into a new community," he said. "We're going to let them know the love of God and Christ is accessible to them."

According to Mays, he is currently building relationships with the locals in Gaylord, but as of yet the church has no physical location.

"People get a little suspicious when you say, 'I'm new in town and starting a new church', but when you say it's for people who hate church they say, 'Ah,'" Mays said.

To those who might say Mays is trying to connect with the postmodern culture, he responds, "We'll stay true to the scripture, but look for any way to connect with people."

The church will be hosting some of what Mays calls, "Taste and See" events designed to give potential parishioners a taste of what his church will be like.

"The first one will feature the Uganda trip," Mays said. "The next big step for us is to develop an indigenous care group which will set the direction for Jacob's Will."

He added, "There is still a need for encouragement for prayer and financial support for the church."

If anyone wants to help they can contact Mays at jonmays7@yahoo.com or call the church at (989) 370-1379.

Hurricane victims find hope in Charlevoix

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

As many people recently found, you need not be in the path of a disaster in order to suffer its effects.

In a way Vera Milligan and her husband Devon were fortunate to be in Charlevoix, Devon's hometown, taking care of an ailing relative while their home in Ocean Springs, Miss. was being destroyed by Hurricane Katrina. But as blessed as they are to be alive, they are hurting.

"We've lost everything. My son and his wife and three little daughters — their home isn't even standing, it's totally destroyed," she said. "We had a canal that ran right by our house and that's why our home was completely destroyed."

Milligan added, "There are still people missing in the neighborhood — it's really bad. No funds, no water, no lights and the police officers are communicating with two-way radios."

"My son is Jackson County Deputy Sheriff. He can't leave and he is so overwhelmed with stress he can't explain it," she said. "He said, 'Mom, it's like trying to describe colors to a blind man. There are no homes to rent, no places to go and there is a very devastating depression and anxiety that is starting to build-up in people.'"

She added, "He said, 'Mom you're going to be so overwhelmed. You can watch it on TV but there is just no comparison to walking around in it seeing dead bodies or dead animals or people standing in their yards and they have nothing.'"

Milligan said, according to her son, looting is still rampant in much of the affected area and the people there are beginning to feel the aftermath of the situation.

Despite being safe and dry in northern Michigan, the Milligan's headed south Tuesday morning with a truckload of supplies.

"We're going to Ocean Springs, Miss — that's where our home is and that's where our children are," Milligan said.

With all the chaos, pain and anguish in the parts of America hardest hit by Katrina, Milligan said she simply couldn't stay in Charlevoix.

The Milligan's left yesterday with a truckload of supplies which they will take to the sheriff's department where her son works.

Local residents Bill Schuiling and Patricia Dillon, owner of My Sister's Closet in Charlevoix, donated items such as shoes, socks, dog food, cat food toys and soap to the Milligan cause.

And, Milligan said, Schuiling donated water, food and many other items including the use of a large truck.

"Mr. Bill Schuiling has very graciously gotten us a truck and many supplies like water, staple foods and personal hygiene products," she said.

Milligan said Christel and Jim Gibbons of Charlevoix collected sheets, pillow cases and other supplies which the Milligans will take with them.

"We're going to bring the truck directly to the sheriff's department and they will direct us which way to go," she said. "Our immediate response will be hopefully to go to our neighborhood first."

She added, "We're just hoping to get people some necessities — my son said there is just a tremendous shortage of blankets baby food and personal cleaning products."

According to Milligan, she has only been able to speak with her son for a few minutes at a time since communication is still shaky at best in the region.

Milligan said her husband also worked for the Jackson County Sheriff's Department and the "Grand Casino which is not there anymore."

"We have been very blessed that we haven't lost family members," Milligan said.

The Milligan's will stay with family in an area a safe distance from the affected area.

"We're going to be down there from seven to nine days at my nephew's who lives about 35 miles off the coast of I-10," she said. "There has been some wind damage there but no flooding. He's got 28 people in his house so we'll make a round number of 30."

Milligan said the majority of people living with her nephew are family, but he did take in a family who had nowhere else to go.

"We're just going to help anyone we can because that is my family and my friends and they've lost everything," she said.

Though Milligan's husband was born and raised in Charlevoix, she spent most of her life in Mississippi. But, she said, she feels right at home in Charlevoix.

"The residents of Charlevoix County have been overwhelmingly responsive. I think it's just great that this community is so caring and giving. God bless them all," she said.

Milligan added, "I'm praying that everyone will redefine their lives over this tragedy and (I) hope that some goodness comes from this."

Bite of Beaver Island food festival on tap for Oct. 1

The fourth annual "Bite of Beaver Island" food festival brings together a unique weekend destination, fine cuisine and fun-filled activities.

Beaver Island, the largest inhabited island in Lake Michigan, will host the festival Oct. 1.

Transportation to the island is provided by ferry service or charter air service. The Beaver Island Boat Company and Island Airways are both located in Charlevoix.

Starting at 10 a.m. on Saturday, the Island Boodle, a 5K Run/Walk will take place along the beautiful harbor of Paradise Bay. Medals for first through third place for assorted age categories will be given out at the Shamrock at the conclusion of the Boodle, along with T-shirts for all participants. Advance registration forms may be downloaded from the Chamber of Commerce Web site at www.beaverisland.org.

From 1 to 5 p.m., Holy Cross Church Hall will be the site of the food festival, where professional and amateur chefs sell small portions of their favorite fare. Last year's sellouts included rack of lamb, grilled shrimp, escargot, and a wide variety of scrumptious desserts. Beer, wine and soft drinks are also available at the festival — as will music.

The Island's Youth Consortium will oversee autumn crafts for younger participants along with showing them how to use an old-fashioned cider press.

There will also be an apple pie contest, with prizes for the top two bakers and an auction of their pies, with proceeds to benefit their favorite island charity.

A "Bite of Beaver Island" poster contest is also in the works, and prints of the winning entry will be available for purchase. For information about entering the poster contest, download the rules from the Chamber of Commerce Web site at www.beaverisland.org.

Later in the evening, head to the island's favorite watering hole, The Shamrock. Live music is planned.

Also in the evening Irish music and dancing is slated for Holy Cross Hall.

For more information about Beaver Island, the "Bite of Beaver Island" food festival or the Island Boodle 5K run/walk, contact the Chamber of Commerce at (231) 448-2505 or visit www.beaverisland.org.

Race for governor's seat brings DeVos to town

Winquest Group a private investment company founded in 1989 and now running against Governor Jennifer Granholm in 2006.

So far, DeVos' competition for the Republican running slot includes State Representative Joe Hoogendyk of Kalamazoo.

According to DeVos, Michigan trails the nation in job creation. He said if something isn't done to pull the state out of its fiscal rut, even more people, especially young people will be forced to move to other states to make a living.

"Unfortunately, the hurricane (Katrina) may take us out of first place as the state with the highest unemployment figures," DeVos said.

DeVos Worked for Amway Corp. starting in 1974 before becoming the vice president in 1984. He has a bachelor of business administration from Northwood University in Midland and honorary doctorate degrees from both Grove City College and Central Michigan University.

DeVos said not only would he make for a business savvy governor, he has the confidence and ability to lead since he once lead an organization with over 10,000 employees. DeVos also cited his efforts which helped Grand Rapids make a financial comeback in recent years.

While the current governor presides over a state which long ago fell below the mark of financial despair, DeVos said, no matter how bad things get leadership at the state level should remain resolute.

"Leaders don't blame — real leaders anyway. They find solutions," he said. "Blaming doesn't get to the solution side of things. One can focus on the problem or the solution, this governor (Granholm) seems to have a problem with the solution side of things."

While DeVos admits there is no formula for calculating exactly how long it might take for Michigan's economy to turn around, he said, with the right leader making the correct decisions, "We could see substantial improvement in one to two years in areas such as unemployment and creating an environment which is attractive to businesses."

He added, "The competition for jobs isn't as much from India as it is from Indiana. Other states are all competing for the jobs."

To make these improvements, DeVos said, there needs to be a more even keel when it comes to governmental involvement in regulation of business.

"I think it's a bad idea when the government favors one industry over another. It (business) should be guided with an even hand so the environment is conducive to all industries in both up times and down."

But, he said, "Economic theory is that the government doesn't create jobs, private industry does. The state can create an environment attractive to business, but the crux is convincing investors that Michigan has great things to offer."

DeVos is no stranger to the financial side of politics as, according to a report put out by the Associated Press, DeVos was the third largest contributor to the Republican party in 2004 after giving nearly $1.5 million to the GOP.

DeVos also lead a ballot initiative in 2000 which would have allowed public school funds to go directly to private school students. The initiative lost at the polls with about a 30 percent favorable to 70 percent unfavorable response from voters.

Football takes East Jordan to go 3-0 for the season

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Charlevoix's undefeated varsity football team won its first conference game of the season 24-6.

Eddie Waldron

"The kids really worked hard this summer," said Charlevoix head coach Don Jess. "This is a talented group of kids."

East Jordan put themselves on the board first with a touchdown in the second quarter. The Red Devils score must have been the impetus the Rayders needed because they scored not once, but twice in the second quarter to make it 13-6. After that, Charlevoix never looked back.

Just a week before East Jordan met Charlevoix, the Red Devils pounded the Onekama Pötagers in a 28-8 victory. But they were unable to fend off the brutal Rayder offense.

Russell Williams

down run.

Quarterback Matt Kautz was 8 for 14 with 88 yards. Eddie Waldron had four receptions for 34 yards and he caught a 15 yard touchdown pass from Kautz.

Jeff Golovich had seven tackles and Dan Swenor had one interception.

Charlevoix needs to win three of its remaining six games to get to the playoffs this year and according to Jess, while the kids continue to come out strong each game, there are some things to work on.

"We had too many penalties last Friday," he said. "We need to cut down on the penalties."

Charlevoix faces the Boyne City Ramblers, whom the Rayders beat when the two met last year, and Jess hopes to repeat the outcome.

"They've got a real tough defense and they mix it up real good on offense," Jess said. "We're just going to work on eliminating penalties and working on being aggressive on defense."

The Rayders meet the Boyne City Ramblers for game two of the Lake Michigan Conference at 7 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 16 in Boyne City.

Girls basketball: Ups and downs in start of season

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

A brutal early season schedule and cold shooting conspired to start the Charlevoix Lady Rayders basketball squad to a 1-2 start.

Charlevoix went 27-1 last season, losing only in the Class C state finals to Detroit DePorres, 61-56.

The Rayders lost their opener to Frankfort, 64-44. They bounced back with a 64-26 trouncing of Gaylord but fell in their first nail biter of the year to Cheboygan, 57-53.

"Frankfort was 20-0 in the regular season last year and ranked number one in Class D all year long," Rayder coach Keith Haske said. "They have all except one of their players back from last season. They are probably the best team up north in all classes."

"There is no shame in losing to them," Haske continued. "But I wish we'd played better. We didn't play well."

Especially glaring was Charlevoix's 0 for 15 shooting from three-point range.

Madison Ramsey

Laura Nitchman led the Rayders with 19 points and five steals. Madison Ramsey scored eight points.

Bethany Pearson pulled down six rebounds. Charlevoix bounced back against Gaylord, racing out to a 28-6 first quarter lead and never looking back.

"I thought we picked it up a bit and played a little harder

Sept. 7 the Charlevoix Rayders girls and boys track teams headed to the East Jordan Invitational.

"The team had a great race, placing fifth out of 14 schools while resting four varsity runners," said boys track coach Ken Plude. "On top of that the junior varsity team would have placed 7th in the varsity race as well."

Jacob Wimmer lead Charlevoix's varsity team in 11th place with a time of 17:23. Wimmer was followed by Nick Wimmer in 22nd with 18:09; Dustin Arp in 24th with 18:18; Alex Buday in 31st with 18:41; Nate Sotuyo in 37th with 19:09; Chuck Mason in 39th with 19:15 and Nate Gilmore in 45th with 19:34.

Jacob Hunt lead the junior varsity race with a time of 18:13. He was followed by Sam Balasz with 19:21; Ryan Graham with 19:23; Logan Stachler with 20:37; Logan Nuttall with 20:49; Rob Shuter with 21:18; Ted Dilworth with 22:26; Steve Gelderblom with 22:28; Mike McDonough with 24:41 and Logan Smith with 19:23.

On Sept. 10 Charlevoix held the annual Classic Mud Run Invitational. "We had a solid team performance today," said coach Mary. "Lindi and Brittney ran strong and smart races."

She added, "For the eleventh and twelfth pack to be only 26 seconds apart is excellent. Now we can work on picking up the tempo." The eleventh and twelfth grade race was lead by Lindi Edger in 3rd place with a time of 21:46 and

The boys team also met at the East Jordan Invitational.

Brittney Lamb in 5th place with a time of 22:05. They were followed by Caitlin Taylor in 24th with 24:02; Bradley in 25th with 24:08; Mia Matchett in 26th with 24:09; Emily Westenbrock in 29th with 24:20; Kuebler in 31st with 24:28; Jennifer Rich in 74th with 28:28; Dupuis in 76th with 28:35; Michelle Lemond in 85th with 31:04 and Shull in 86th with 31:11.

Top finishers in the 9th and 10th grade race were: Novotny in 28th place with a time of 25:15; Goss in 33rd with 25:27; Kristina Alden in 47th with 26:57; Nuttall in 62nd with 29:28.

Overall team standings were: Gaylord with a time of 1:48:46; Troy Athens with 1:49:02; East Jordan with 1:52:44; Charlevoix with 1:56:10 who came in 4th out of 16 teams.

The boys ninth through twelfth grades also raced the Mud Run. "Last year our team ran a combined time of 1:34:15 with everybody running. This year we ran faster as a team without our number two and three runners running. This year's time was 1:34:13," said coach Ken.

Ken said his team will keep working hard and following their plan as they head into Ludington.

Eleventh and twelfth grade race was lead by Brandon Stevens in 6th place with a time of 18:17. He was followed by Zach Scharenbrach in 11th with 18:55; Isaac Matchett in 14th with 19:02; Sotuyo in 16th with 19:09; Arp in 18th with 19:27; Mason in 23rd with 19:35; Joe Graham in 32nd with 20:32; Gilmore in 33rd with 20:36; Shuter in 55th with 22:47 and Dilworth in 62nd with 23:28.

The ninth and tenth grade race was lead by Wimmer in 5th place with a time of 18:51. He was followed by Buday in 8th place with a time of 19:08; Hunt in 9th with a time of 19:29; Balasz in 15th with 20:17; Stachler in 48th with 22:43; Nuttall in 55th with 23:36; Calvin Towsley in 59th with 23:59; Gelderblom in 65th with 25:13; McDonough in 76th with 27:52 and Smith in 77th with 37:37.

Coach Ken said, "The boy's team had an outstanding week of running considering our injuries."

"We've had as many as five junior varsity runners contribute their best performances while filling in for our injured varsity members," he added.

The teams' next meet will take place at 9:45 a.m. Sept. 17 at the Ludington Invitational.

Rayder golf place second at Belvedere

Charlevoix's varsity and junior varsity golf teams improved their overall scores at recent matches.

The junior varsity golf match took place Sept. 6 on the Moor course at Boyne Highlands.

The Rayders junior varsity took second place with a score of 176 behind Traverse City, St. Francis, Zack Lake tied for medalist with a score of 39.

"The team played very well," said Rayders' golf coach Jim Glynn.

The varsity golf team played Sept. 7 at the Belvedere Golf Club. Eight teams competed in a Lake Michigan Conference match under cloudy skies.

Traverse City St. Francis shot a 159 while the Rayders came in second with a score of 169.

According to Glynn, this was his team's best showing yet this season.

"The hard work is paying off," he said.

Marilyn Boss
'Days gone by'

When I wrote my August article, I inadvertently omitted several people that I had written about. I remember writing the stories, but somehow, they were erased. That portion is as follows:

Edna and Grace Meggison were teachers who lived at 202 Mason Street. Hattie Meggison was a widow (James E.) and lived at 217 Antrim Street. Clarence Meggison and his wife, Sadie, lived at 207 Stover Road. He was a representative, along with Herbert Wilson, for the Oldsmobile Motor Car Sales located at 107 Antrim Street. He was also supervisor for the third ward. In later years, he was elected State Representative for our area. I remember him well, as he came to my grandparents home in the Charlevoix County Jail, when my grandfather was sheriff. Many of the courthouse fellows came there regularly for coffee. Clarence was a go-getter, and an excellent representative for us. Their children were Frances, Donald, Eleanor, Beth and Nancy Faye.

Lowell Merica and wife, Julia, lived at 218 Bridge Street. She was the daughter of George and Mary Maud Glados, who owned the Sugar Bowl Cafe. Their children were triplets, Judy, Jana and Jara.

Frank Metcalf and wife Annie lived at 221 Park Avenue, where the "House on the Hill" was located. Annie ran the bed and breakfast. George Metcalf and Susannah Metcalf also lived there.

William and Ethel Meyers lived at 103 Antrim Street. He owned Meyers Service, a Buick and Pontiac Sales and Service located at 107 Antrim Street. Billie, their daughter, a clerk, also lived there. She later married Ira (Perry) Smith.

Lois Meyers was a nurse at Charlevoix Hospital, and lived at 311 West Hurlbut. There was a restaurant called The Midget, at 307 Bridge Street, and Mary J. Snyder was the manager. The above was the part eliminated from my August article.

Miley Miller and his wife, Laura, lived at 218 Antrim Street. He was a painter. Their children were David, Willis and Marilyn. Robert, another son, was a lineman for Michigan Bell Telephone Company, and also lived at 218 Antrim Street.

Earl E. Miller and wife, Margaret, lived at 306 Clinton Street. He was a rural mail carrier. Their daughter, Marjorie, a student, also lived there.

Theodore LeRoy Miller and wife, Mary, lived at 202 West Lincoln. He was a potato chip manufacturer. Mary Miller was a widow, (John C.), and also lived there.

Floranz Milner was a junior high school teacher. Frances M. Milner was a second grade teacher. They lived at 300 Clinton Street with their mother, Susan, a widow (Thomas). I had both Floranz and Frances as teachers. Floranz was the librarian at the Charlevoix Public Library in later years. Frances was a good friend of my Aunt Dorothy McRae, who was a kindergarten teacher at the time.

Frank Mindel and wife, Arlene, lived at 209 Ferry Avenue. Their children were William and Joyce.

Robert Mitchell and his wife, Myrtle, lived at 809 State Street. He sold sand and gravel, and loaded thousands of wagon loads of sand by hand with a hand shovel. Dale remembers, as a boy, that Bob would take his horse and wagon down over the hill on Park Avenue to get the sand from the beach. This was across the street from Jack and June Cross' home at 700 Park Avenue. Bob would go down to Lake Michigan Beach through a ravine, and load sand into the horse drawn wagon by hand. There was a 24-inch tile in the ground there, with a beautiful spring bubbling out of the earth. Dale remembers Bob laying on his stomach near the shore, and drinking directly out of the spring. Dale said you could see the spring when you went down the hill by the hospital, if you looked to the right. It's gone now. Bob would load sand onto the wagon, a shovel at a time. The wagon had 2 by 4's on the bottom of it, so that when he had to unload the sand at someone's home, he would tip the 2 by 4's at the back edge, and the sand would fall into a pile. The neighbor kids would jump on the back of his wagon and ride to wherever he delivered it. Bob and Myrtle's daughter, Arletta, later worked at Central Drug Store. I worked with her in 1950 and 1951. She was married to Bill Bergmann.

John Mol and wife, Emma, lived at 1214 State Street. He worked for R.R. Bonthron Heating, located at 104 Bridge Street. In later years, John owned his own plumbing business. Their children were Jack R. and J. Gordon.

Elizabeth Moon owned the Palace Theatre at 220-222 Bridge Street. She lived in Petoskey. Allie Moore and wife, Elva, lived at 302 Alice. He was a world champion skater, and performed for the King of England. He performed here many times, jumping barrels on the gym floor. He had a big sail boat, which Earl Young later pulled up on shore at Boulder Park. It was parked opposite the first stone gate, for many years. The kids of Charlevoix played on it and carved their initials all over it.

Joseph and Louise Moore lived at 402 Antrim Street. He was a court attendant, and their son was, Herbert. I remember when Herb came home from World War II. He ran a bakery delivery service around town. We kids were thrilled when he came by in his truck, loaded with scrumptious baked goods. My favorite was chocolate upside down cupcakes filled with luscious white cream.

I am grateful to the man who compiled the wonderful 1940 Charlevoix Directory. I have gone through it many times since I was a small girl, and trust you, too, are enjoying reminiscing about old friend and relatives living here at that time.

Arthur Kirk jailed, bond set at $100,000

the rabbit off.

The pet was dropped off at around 3 p.m. at which time Kirk said the unexpected trip would take him to Denmark.

"I realized right away who this person is and thought it was strange that he would be leaving the country when he has charges pending," Whitley wrote in her statement for the sheriff's office.

In between Kirk's call and drop off that day Whitley contacted lieutenant Donald Sproul with the Charlevoix County Sheriff's office and Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney, John Jarema.

The agencies were called again once Kirk arrived at around 3 p.m. He and Whitley discussed the trip to Europe he said he was planning.

"He seemed very genuine in his conversation," Whitley wrote.

After he left the shelter, law enforcement was called again.

Jarema said the information Tate and Whitley shared with him is of interest to local law enforcement agencies as Kirk's bond conditions stipulate that he is not to leave the country.

Lieutenant Sproul contacted Kirk's bonding company at which time his bond was revoked and he lunked back in jail.

In the meantime, Jarema called an emergency bond hearing which took place before Charlevoix County District Court Judge Richard May. Bond was reset at $100,000.

Kirk was scheduled to attend a preliminary hearing at 2:45 p.m. Sept. 13 in Charlevoix County District Court. Kirk, 70, of Charlevoix Township, was arrested in early August and is now facing charges that include making a false statement on a pistol permit, felony possession of a weapon and three counts of perjury.

It was discovered that Kirk had been using an alias and has a criminal history, including several criminal sexual conduct convictions from 1978 and 1981, under the name Arthur Heilberg Kirkeby.

Fingerprints determined that Kirk is Kirkeby.

At the time of his arrest he was a contract worker coordinating volunteer operations for AmeriCorps through the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District.

In 2000 and 2001 he was an AmeriCorps volunteer at Charlevoix Middle School and in 2002 and 2003 was a counselor at Camp Daggett. Investigations are underway at the school and camp to review any interaction he may have had with students.

Results from the preliminary hearing were not available by press time.

Hopsy was adopted on Saturday, Sept. 10.

The score was tied 48-48 with a minute and a half to go and the Rayders had their opportunities to win but couldn't capitalize.

Nitchman showed why she was an honorable mention all-stater last season with an excellent all-around game, tallying 15 points, five rebounds, six assists and seven steals.

Haske said Nitchman did all of that "playing one-handed" as she injured her left hand in a fall during practice.

Dibble scored 11 points, including three three-pointers in the fourth quarter to keep Charlevoix in the game. Pearson had eight points and nine rebounds. Ashley Bradley had six rebounds.

Charlevoix (1-2) played at Ellsworth on Tuesday, Sept. 13. Results were unavailable at press time. The Rayders open Lake Michigan Conference play at East Jordan on Thursday, Sept. 15.

Ushering out one of hottest summers

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

This year's average temperatures marked the second hottest summer in Charlevoix in the 114 years weather has been recorded in this area.

According to James Keysor, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Gaylord, Charlevoix had its ninth hottest summer as far as high temperatures go, but the county ranks number two when the highs and lows are averaged together.

"Number nine is pretty impressive when you're dealing with a record that old," he said. "That number places it in some elite company."

But, Keysor added, the number two ranking is more accurate.

"That's the most comprehensive way to look at it. It demonstrates how extreme things were in regard to heat," Keysor said. "Sometimes nighttime lows are warmer than normal and when you look at averages for both high and low it might better show how the summer felt for people."

According to information compiled by representatives of the National Weather Service, summer 2005 was among the top 10 hottest on record across northern Michigan with nearly two-thirds of the days from June 1 to Aug. 31 recording above normal temperatures.

Charlevoix has a good database of precipitation and temperatures dating back to 1891, Keysor

Surprise visitor graces Rotary Club meeting

Louisiana governor, Dr. Fortino attends

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

A name on the political who's who list and a Hurricane Katrina refugee unexpectedly attended the local Rotary Club's regularly scheduled Thursday morning meeting.

District Governor Elect for 2006-2007, Dr. James Michael Fortino, attended the club's Sept. 16 meeting at Flap Jack Family Restaurant in Charlevoix.

While the politically savvy typically are part of the membership of non-profit clubs like Rotary, Fortino is anything but local.

He is the district governor elect for district 6840, which covers southern Louisiana, including New Orleans, and the State of Mississippi.

According to his son, John Fortino of Houston, Texas, his father is staying in the Charlevoix area pending the all-clear at his Mississippi home which he evacuated in late August as Hurricane Katrina bowled over the area.

"It looks like a war zone here," John said.

Dr. Fortino, a devout Rotarian who keeps his promise of attending weekly meetings, looked up the local chapter and joined the Charlevoix crew for breakfast.

"It was pretty neat. I never know who will show up for a meeting," Charlevoix Rotary Club president, John Jarema, said.

Jarema added that the club's weekly speaker, Bill Blackburn, the service delivery coordinator from the Northern Lower Michigan Chapter of the American Red Cross, was a perfect fit for Dr. Fortino's token visit.

Blackburn attended the meeting to wrap up a week-long fundraising drive for Hurricane Katrina victims. Dr. Fortino, along with Blackburn, accepted a check for $3,950 to be directed to victims of the hurricane. The money was collected by Rotarians and community members.

At this time Don Strand, an Oregon based inspector with FEMA, is staying at Dr. Fortino's Mississippi home.

"The house is centrally located. It has electricity and phone lines. It's a typical mess out there. I'll be inspecting homes for damage," Strand said.

Dr. Fortino could not be reached for further comment.

Summer: Second for heat in past 114 years said. This year's ranking is for the months of June, July and August.

This season's weather patterns were not the result of an El Nino or El Nina.

"Right now we have neutral conditions in the Pacific (Ocean) meaning water temperatures are normal," he said. "This year was just a result of the pattern that developed across the Great Lakes."

Keyser said the pattern that caused the cooler than average summer last year and the hotter than average summer this year is dictated mainly by the jet stream.

"It's really the position of the jet stream, which is the dividing line that sends cooler air to north and warmer air to the south. Last year it dipped south of the Great Lakes so we got frequent cool air pushes out of Canada and this year it was farther north and the cooler Canadian air didn't come down as much as it did last year."

While last year was on the extreme side as far as temperatures go, Keyser said, "These things tend to even out over the years."

Northern Michigan wasn't the only area hit hard by the warmer weather.

"It was a hotter summer than usual for a large portion of the country," Keyser said.

He added, "But specifically the upper Midwest and into the Great Lakes where things are usually more mild."

The hottest summer on record in Michigan was in 1919 with an average of 70.3 degrees for June, July and August.

Keyser added, "The average this year was 69.4 degrees."

Keyser said the jet stream in combination with a high pressure system controlled temperatures across the Great Lakes region this summer which acted like a barrier to cold fronts resulting in higher humidity and higher temperatures.

And, as many people may have witnessed this summer, more humidity doesn't necessarily mean more rain.

Keyser said, "It's just one of those patterns that isn't certainly out of the normal. There are just some times where it's humid and dryer with regard to rainfall."

The severe humidity present this year was responsible for making already warm temperatures feel even warmer with heat indices in the upper 90s and even 100 degrees on several occasions.

According to Keyser, representatives of the National Weather Service has already begun to forecast some general temperature outlooks for next season.

"The accuracy of this forecast that far out would not be much better than flipping a coin," Keyser said. "But they do actually create forecasts that go out that far."

The projections are more for the weather service to get an idea of possible high and low temperatures as opposed to people planning events around them.

"These are just above normal and below normal projections," Keyser said. "It looks like they are keeping the above normal temperatures in the southwestern states."

He added, "So based on that, it seems that temperatures might be returning to normal."

The warmer than average temperatures should continue through the fall, which has been the trend for the last few autumns on record, Keyser said.

"Then, things are looking to get back to normal for December and January," he added.

Keyser said the jet stream in combination with a high pressure system controlled temperatures across the Great Lakes region this summer which acted like a barrier to cold fronts resulting in higher humidity and higher temperatures.

Call for Wiesner's firing is lacking needed meat

EDITORIAL

Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner inadvertently wrote a check to contractor CCMS when it should have gone to the contractor's insurance company United Fire and Casualty. Now some are calling for Wiesner's job.

We understand defending the loss of nearly a quarter of a million dollars is tantamount to social suicide, but even the private investigator in the Wiesner whoopsy daisy found miscommunication to be the fault.

We think Wiesner should be fired for a malfeasance, not a mistake. This was a mistake. To do so would be less about hegemony and more about punishment.

Before the torches are lit for a modern day witch hunt, we think the blame should be placed on the culpable — CCMS owner, William Montgomery. We would like to think most companies wouldn't cash a $220,000 which didn't belong to them, but Montgomery did.

We don't have a business degree — but common sense dictates that the check was written while city treasurer Rick Brandt was on vacation. Even Brandt admits he didn't realize United was the party to be paid.

Those calling for Wiesner's job might first take a good long look at whether doing so would rid Charlevoix of a city manager who doesn't have the city's best interest in mind or if Wiesner simply makes for a convenient scapegoat.

The check was cashed nearly 18 months ago and the prosecutor in Mackinaw County has yet to file charges against Montgomery. If anything, the city should apply immense and relentless pressure on the Mackinaw County prosecutor — something which should have begun shortly after they realized the check was cashed. Montgomery's assets could be frozen in order to prevent him from liquidating his business and fleeing for Liechtenstein.

If people have issues with Wiesner's job performance they need to review it and, if necessary, take appropriate action. We're not saying he shouldn't be reprimanded, that's up to city council. But, regardless of whether the city's insurance carrier does or does not reimburse Charlevoix for the slip-up or the prosecutor in Mackinaw finds Montgomery liable, we're pretty sure deposing Wiesner will not provide cent one to the city's coffers.

Mistakes were made. The taxpayers of Charlevoix were bumed by an unscrupulous businessman — and it hurts. But, if someone wants to round up a posse for a theoretical lynching, they ought to head on up to Canada instead of city hall. C'mon, if a president can prosecute a war based on imaginary threats and get away with it, the least we can do is give our city manager of nearly 21 years a second chance.

Making sense of the economic bubble theory

Roger Knutson
'Ear to the ground'

I will confess at the beginning that I do not understand the science of economics.

This would trouble me more if I believed anyone else understood it. Anything that has been called the Dismal Science for a century probably does not invite understanding. Even the operation of supply and demand often seem more like an excuse for price changes than a reason for them. Maybe that operation is mostly the expectation of supply and demand. But human expectation is hard or impossible to measure, and if it can't be measured how can it be called a part of science?

For a while I thought I understood the idea of an economic bubble, where people bid up the price of some economic good until it exceeds all reason. At which point the price plummets and those entering the market late lose their shirts or their retirement or their property.

We had an agricultural land price bubble in Iowa in the 1980's. The per-acre price of farm land rose rapidly, doubled and then doubled again over a few years. People said by way of explanation, "They aren't making any more land." Which statement seemed completely true to many investors. People brought farmland at prices that could not possibly be paid by farming it, but would result in handsome profits as long as the price continued to go up. Of course prices finally dropped dramatically and those who had purchased at high prices paid for their greed and folly.

Economic bubbles are identified frequently. We had the famous dot com bubble which lost a lot of people a lot of money, and we are currently warned of a housing price bubble. When economic bubbles will burst seems to be almost completely unpredictable. That bubbles will burst seems a certainty.

I am waiting for the bubble to burst on excessively high corporate executive compensation. It clearly cannot be sustained. Or can it?

I read recently of the CEO who had been compensated to the tune of nearly $1 billion dollars over the past 10 years. He had received as little as $13 million in a bad year and as much as $250 million in a good one. His compensation becomes a benchmark for other corporations looking to hire new executives and so the bubble grows.

Is there a serious shortage of potential executives who would be willing to accept as little as $13 million a year? Aren't they making any more CEO's? It seems to me a classic economic bubble. When might we suppose that a corporate hoard will find a bright, energetic manager willing to head up the corporation for as little as $1 million per year? I am sure there is an abundance of such managers. Meanwhile, I do believe this bubble is an unnecessary cost to the whole economy.

But then, I don't understand economics. I continue to hope that someone does.

Mayors' photos

Editor:

The recent Courier article regarding Charlevoix's first mayor Harvey Iddings peaked the interest of a couple local natives. Arlene Staley, who was a city clerk for 7 years talked to several people who shared the same interest and curiosity. She began to gather past mayors names and pictures. I joined her and together we decided the project had great merit. Arlene knew that during her service there were outstanding mayors. I, having served the city for 18 years as the summer recreation director, echoed her sentiments. Serving under mayors Jim Hiller, Pat Hawley, Bill Fitchman, Ed Hansen and Andy Essenberg, I realized that each served several terms and local controversies seemed to be at a minimum.

City manager, Mike Wiesner, endorsed the project and has pledged the records at city hall be available as the project moves along. With the new city hall, there is hope that there will be an appropriate place to display the names and pictures of past mayors. The Charlevoix Historical Society was contacted and director David Miles has offered their files for search and review. So the project is off to a good start.

Arlene is searching for a couple more volunteers to help in the project and will talk to people who may know of where pictures can be found or stories of Charlevoix's past mayors. She can be reached at (231) 547-2985.

I would like to thank, in particular the two young ladies who worked for me all summer, Amy Waldron generously donated all of her tips throughout the fund-raiser and Lisa Russell donated all of her wages.

Special Thanks also to Ryan Celaschi for his donation of time, Ed and Jamie Bogart, Deb Nuttall, Judy Russell and family and most of all, Jack Russell.

Students care

Editor:

Let me tell you about all the smiling faces in our parking lot today: Thursday Sept. 15. Thanks to our Charlevoix High School students participating in the Second Annual Day of Caring, who volunteered to wash and clean cars of residents at Pine River Place.

The nice, young ladies and gentlemen came to Pine River Place and washed the inside and outside of the cars. They did a thorough job and were smiling too.

Others received various kind deeds all over Charlevoix.

We thank you kindly.

Hospice update

Editor:

Hospice of Little Traverse Bay has embarked on our biggest community project yet with the development of a new hospice house. We have been working on this project for quite some time and finally have a chance to make this dream a reality. This is a project that relies heavily on community support for it's success and we are fortunate to be over halfway to our goal.

I am particularly aware, during this time of fund-raising, of the businesses and individuals in our communities who consistently come to the forefront of almost every nonprofit donor list. Almost daily these wonderful people are asked for cash or in-kind contributions of one kind or another and willingly oblige as many groups as their budgets will allow. From the community foundations, to school groups, the arts center, hospital and women's center, and other civic organizations, our community has been behind us. It is hard to know just what to say and/or do to thank my fellow community members for their confidence, trust and support — because it is with your help that we all succeed in caring for the needs of our friends and neighbors.

So, this is my public thanks. To those who support our auctions, dinners, mailings and special requests. To those who give of their time and professional support to make our events happen. To those who attend our events and share your passion for our mission.

Thank you for making this a great community in which to live and work.

Toys for children

Editor:

I have a plan to help the children who are victims of the hurricane and are now calling a shelter their temporary home.

I want to send teddy bears, beanie babies and stuffed animals to the children residing in these shelters. Money can buy them food and clothing, but it really doesn't mean anything to young children. Teddy bears do mean a lot to children — they give them comfort, warmth, softness to cuddle and something to make them feel safe.

I want to give these feelings of comfort and hope to these children. Collecting them will be the easiest part. I will sit with boxes at the home games of both the boys' football team and the girls' basketball team. There may also be boxes sitting in the offices at Charlevoix high, middle and elementary schools as well as Concord and St. Mary's.

People can bring teddy bears, beanie babies or stuffed animals, in good shape and clean, to donate to the children. Then comes the hardest part. I don't really know how to get these items down to a shelter, and I can't pay for all the shipping cost. Do you know anyone I can contact that can help me with getting the bears down to the children? If at all possible, I would really appreciate your help and the community help with my quest. You can contact me at (231) 487-1832.

Thank you for your time and I would really be thankful to hear back from you and anyone else that can help me.

Club cares

Editor:

I wanted to write and let people know how much of a blessing the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club has been to the young people at our church.

In May of this year we held a small rifle and archery competition between several churches across northern and upper Michigan. The Rod and Gun Club graciously allowed us to use their facilities and many of their staff were on hand to help host the competition. The staff was extremely helpful, kind and patient in dealing with the many children that were present. The ranges were very good and from all the young people and adults that I talked to they had a great time and are looking forward to the competition this year.

I would like to really encourage people in the community to support the club because it is a great way for our young people to enjoy the outdoors and teach them respect and responsibility.

I would also like to thank our preacher Pastor James Green for caring so much for the young people in our community. I would also like to thank Steve Fuller and Aaron Kilmer for all the time and energy they put into a great competition.

Once again, "thank you" Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club for your kindness and caring for our young people.

Circle of Strength hosts fall fashion show and luncheon

In recognition of September being Childhood Cancer Awareness month, and October Breast Cancer Awareness month, the cancer resource group "Circle of Strength" at Charlevoix Area Hospital will present the 2nd Annual Circle Of Strength Fashion Show.

Come see the fall fashions from some of our local clothing merchants at the Oct. 8 luncheon and fashion show.

The event will begin at 10 a.m. with mini workshops and will run until 2 p.m. at the Charlevoix Community Reformed Church. Participant cost is $18. Lunch will be served at noon.

One of the workshops will be led by Kayla Eggers, an 11-year-old girl, who teaches participants ages 5 to 90 how to make "friendship bracelets." Funds raised at this event will go to the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation and the Charlevoix Public Library.

Circle of Strength provides assistance to individuals and families coping with a cancer diagnosis providing resources, education, support and computer research training among other services.

Tickets are available by calling

Local 22nd Annual CROP Walk to take place Oct. 1

On Saturday morning, Oct. 1, CROP Walkers will gather in Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan and set out on the 22nd Annual Charlevoix County CROP Walk.

Last year's walk raised $14,614. Walkers receive an official sponsor record envelope and fill it with donations from sponsors and then participate in about a six mile walk from town to the Ironton Congregational Church.

This year the East Jordan Rotary Club is serving the post-walk light lunch of hot dog, apple and beverage to walkers.

The event is aimed at fighting hunger in Charlevoix County and around the world. Twenty-five percent of the funds raised by the walkers is returned to be divided evenly among the food pantries in the three cities.

The other 75 percent, less administrative and promotion costs, goes to Church World Service hunger fighting projects worldwide.

Individual sponsors can designate their donations to one of at least 15 Church World Service approved religious or humanitarian hunger fighting agencies.

The Church World Service group also assisted in the recent disaster relief effort following Hurricane Katrina.

According to representatives of Church World Service, "The reason Church World Service is able to make such a swift and effective response to this disaster (within hours) is in large part because of the on-going support raised by communities across this nation through CROP Walk."

For more information, or to register, call John Young at (231) 547-2042. To donate, send a check payable to CWS/CROP to Rex Judkins, c/o Linda's Real Estate Service, 112 S. Park, Boyne City, 49712.

CHS grad named 2005 Fullbright scholar

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Nancy Davis

Scholarship to study ecology in Peru in 2005.

Prior to this school year, Dammann Davis attended Columbia University in New York City, N.Y. and while she is on a short personal break from her studies in Peru, she will be heading back soon.

"Obviously it's an amazing honor," she said.

Between 1996 and 2001, Dammann Davis spent over 2-and-a-half years in Peru studying and working.

"This July was the first time we'd been back since 2001. I was really nervous and my Spanish wasn't as good, but in another way it was like going home," she said.

Many things inspired Dammann Davis' interest in environmental studies, but northern Michigan was a major factor.

"Obviously growing up in Charlevoix you're surrounded by beautiful landscape," she said.

The particular Ph.D. Dammann Davis is working toward is in community based conservation.

"Basically I look at small towns like Charlevoix or Petoskey, or anywhere in the world, and look at what decisions people make when they decide to cut down trees, use their water and then I see how those decisions will affect the environment," she said.

"For example, if Charlevoix wanted to protect Lake Charlevoix you would have to find out if it would really help considering it is attached to a larger body of water," she added.

Dammann Davis also studies the social and economic impact of small rural community decisions when it comes to natural resources.

Peruvian Amazon is where she is completing her field work which includes observing what people do in their villages in terms of natural resources measuring rainfall, monitoring water quality, observing diversity of trees plant life.

Dammann Davis is one of over 1,000 students from America who will travel during the 2005-2006 school year under the Fullbright Scholarship Program.

The J. William Fullbright Foreign Scholarship Board was founded in 1946 by Senator William J. Fullbright of Arkansas with the purpose of teaching understanding among people of America and other nations.

Dammann Davis said she would like to live in an area similar to Charlevoix when she completes her studies.

Ideally, Dammann Davis said, "I'd like to be teaching part-time, not in the college atmosphere, but maybe as a guest teacher at a high school."

Her goal, she said, is some combination of research and work.

"I'm really anxious to get done with my studies and get to work," she added.

Dammann Davis said there are many Charlevoix students who might want to apply for the Fullbright Scholarship.

"There is a pretty long application. It's not horrible compared to some grant applications, but you have to write essays about what project you want to do and what you can contribute to another country," she said.

"There are also letters of recommendation and the grants are chosen by a commission in the U.S. and the country you are going to."

Dammann Davis said she would be happy to assist anyone looking into applying for the grant.

"The Fullbright is a great program, there are a lot of students from Charlevoix who should be applying for these grants and scholarships," she said. "It's always helpful to find someone who's done it before and I'm always willing to help someone especially someone from here."

She added, "There are a lot of Charlevoix graduates who have done amazing things."

Jarema named president of local Rotary Club

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

As they begin their 101 year, outgoing Rotary Club of Charlevoix President, Christopher Turkelson, was replaced by Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema.

For nearly five years Turkelson has been a member of the club, helping with charities both local and abroad, but the previous year went faster than most.

"I just wanted to get involved with the community in some fashion," he said. "I enjoyed it very much and it went a lot quicker than I thought it would."

He added, "You're nervous and dread being president for a year and then it just flies by."

According to Turkelson, incoming president Jarema, who took the post July 1, will do an excellent job.

"He's energized and motivated," he said.

Jarema joined Rotary because he felt it was a valuable organization.

"The club has the values and does the community service projects that I think are valuable so I joined in 2002," he said.

He added, "Service over self" is their (Rotary Club's) actual motto.

The club works to eradicate Polio worldwide and to bring clean water to people in need.

"Last year we raised $87,000 for clean water for Biosand filters for homes in Haiti, Honduras and the Dominican Republic," he said.

Rotary is also responsible for such charitable acts as donating wheelchairs to people in third-world countries and the club sponsors a mentorship program.

"We have a program where we pair mentors with high school kids and work on their grades," he said. "We give scholarships at the end of the year to eighth graders and for high school students as well."

Jarema said he enjoys the interaction with the other members as well as doing community service projects.

Don Neidert joins the staff at St. Mary School

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

While he is not necessarily a new face at St. Mary School in Charlevoix, Don Neidert is the new music teacher.

Neidert, 55, has 27 years of music education experience in Michigan public schools, with the last 17 years of his teaching career spent in East Jordan.

"I reevaluated my life after a few years of retirement and I found that I was spending all my time with children anyway so it was a natural fit," he said.

Neidert retired in 1992, but said he spent so much time showing children the gift of music, he decided to go back to work full-time.

He said, "Oh I'm excited about it." Neidert said he spent most of his retirement giving private music lessons and teaching children the songs for several musicals including, "In The Woods," "The Sound of Music" and "Godspell."

Neidert said he spent the earlier part of his life in the Flint area, but he fell in love with northern Michigan many years ago.

"I just really enjoy northern Michigan. I've enjoyed it since I've been up here," he said. "After I retired, people asked me if I was ever going to move back to Flint, I asked them if they can spell, 'Never.'"

Neidert, who has a wife Sue and a daughter, Juliann, who attends Charlevoix High School, said he just loves working with the kids more than anything.

"I love to see their smiles and their responses when they catch on to something new," he said.

Brookside Chapel to undergo major work

By JULIE WITTHOEF
Editor

Brookside Chapel, located at 98 Stover Road in Charlevoix's Brookside Cemetery, will keep its place in the community.

The building was proposed for demolition in 2002 but members of the community quickly stepped forward and said the building has historic value and should be saved.

On Monday night, Sept. 19, Charlevoix City council voted unanimously to take immediate steps to stabilize the building and committed to spending the next three years renovating its interior and exterior.

Cost estimates for the major overhaul have come in at $208,900.

The $208,900 figure is for rework of walls and stabilization, and roofing the building as well as renovating the interior and exterior. This estimate does not include use of wooden shakes as were part of the original design.

At this week's council meeting, Mayor Norman Carlson said annual maintenance expenditures would make the wooden roof cost prohibitive. But second ward councilman Gabe Campbell requested a second estimate be provided with costs included for mimicking the original roof.

Possible uses of the building without the costly niche remain space that was originally discussed include a computer system outlining grave sites and genealogy information, a sanctuary and a historical reference point.

Its former use as a facility where bodies were stored in the winter for spring burial is no longer relevant as the city now performs burials year-round and has a separate facility at the cemetery for storage when necessary.

Immediate chapel needs of wall stabilization and roofing will happen as soon as possible and both the city chapel committee and council want to see more action taken after this initial step.

About two decades ago, council took this patch approach and Mayor Carlson would rather see a long-term plan enacted.

Mary Adams, a member of the chapel committee and city preservation group agrees.

"The Band-Aid approach may not be the best approach," she said.

Chapel committee member John Haggard was happy to see council move in this direction to permanently preserve the chapel.

"It's a landmark within the city. If we don't save our historical buildings we'll leave nothing for the next generation to see what past generations have given us," he said.

After proposed demolition, Charlevoix City Council voted to renovate and preserve the chapel pictured at left, Brookside Chapel, located in Charlevoix's Brookside Cemetery. Community researchers have said the local historic landmark dates back to the early 1900's.

PUBLIC NOTICE

If it's not in the newspaper, how will the public notice?

Zoning changes. Tax increases. Legislative proposals. These are just a few topics where government actions can affect your life and community. Imagine if government no longer had the legal obligation to publish this information in your newspaper. How would public notices get noticed? In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. It should not be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, when to look or even to know what you're looking for to be informed. It is government's responsibility to publish and deliver public notice information as it becomes available. So take notice. Your right to know is being served... right here in your newspaper.

Armchair Auction to benefit prevention programs

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Planned Parenthood Northern Michigan's annual Armchair Auction to benefit Prevention Education began at noon Monday, Sept. 19.

Those interested in bidding on the auction items can view them online by visiting www.ppauction.com. From there, supporters are able to go directly to the Web site, view all items, and place their bids. If bidders are outbid, they are automatically notified via e-mail.

In its eighth year, the Armchair Auction is a web-based, silent auction. Bidding lasts from Sept. 19 until 7 p.m. Sept. 29. At the end of the auction, those with the highest bid will receive their items through the mail.

Businesses and individual donors donated nearly 300 items and packages, including everything from eclectic dining, to jewelry, items for the home, travel and entertainment.

"We have an amazing selection of items this year," said Emily Robbins, Armchair Auction Coordinator. "It's so easy to participate and you can bid on items from the comfort of your own home."

The fundraising goal of this year's Armchair Auction is $30,000. All of the funds benefit Planned Parenthood's prevention education programs, which give teens, young adults and families information and skills to make responsible choices on issues such as sexuality, abstinence, substance use, date rape and other issues of community concern.

To receive this year's list of items or to learn more about Planned Parenthood's prevention education programs, call Lori O'Neill at (231) 347-9692.

Housing commission receives grant

Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, September 21, 2005 - PAGE 13

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Nearly $4.2 millions dollars in Capitol Fund Grants will be allocated to first district housing commissions, including the Charlevoix County Housing Commission, this fall.

According to U.S. Congressman, Bart Stupak (D-Menominee), 38 public housing authorities will receive aid under the dispersal.

"Housing commissions are a critical function of local governments. Having the authority to regulate housing in a community helps keep area residents healthy and safe while also ensuring the home aids in the development of a community, not the demise," Stupak said.

The Charlevoix Housing Commission will receive $71,851 in federal funds to assist in efforts including modernization, development, financing and management improvements and the replacement of things such as boilers and roofs at Pine River Place apartments.

According to Rob Harrison, director of the Charlevoix Housing Commission, the funds released once a year from HUD are important to the local housing commission.

"The amount is less than last year and the last year was less than the year before," he said.

"But, we're in better shape than some housing commissions. It (funding) certainly makes a difference," he added.

The funds are needed since there is such a demand for affordable housing in the Charlevoix area.

"We've got a waiting list," Harrison said.

The $4,186,354 in funds come from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The following is a preview of the upcoming fall hunting season from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

The hunting season for cottontail rabbits and snowshoe hare is from Sept. 15 through March 31, statewide. Hunters may take a limit of five per day and 10 in combined possession.

At this time, cottontail populations are good throughout their range. The annual harvest is about 500,000 rabbits each year. Hunters typically harvest about 17,000 to 19,000 snowshoe hare per year. Snowshoe hare populations are down due to cyclic population fluctuations and declining habitat in some portions of their range in Michigan.

The hunting season for squirrels is from Sept. 15 through March 1. Hunters can bag up to five per day and have 10 in combined possession.

Currently squirrels are at moderate to high levels throughout their range.

The ruffed grouse hunting season is from Sept. 15 through Nov. 14. After the firearm deer season ends, the grouse season will reopen from Dec. 1 through Jan. 1 in the Lower Peninsula.

The outlook for the upcoming season is not as promising as when Michigan was at the peak of the grouse population cycle between 1998 and 2000. The population is at the low end of its cycle and this year may be the bottom of the trough. Areas of good habitat will continue to provide the best grouse hunting opportunities. Grouse are most abundant in the Upper Peninsula, followed by the northern Lower Peninsula. The best counties in the northern Lower Peninsula are Crawford, Kalkaska and Oscoda.

The woodcock hunting season is from Sept. 24 through Nov. 8. The bag limit will be three woodcock per day and six in combined possession.

Woodcock hunters may expect a season similar to last year. Hunters could take up to 140,000 woodcock this fall. Although good numbers of grouse and woodcock can be found in all parts of Michigan, the highest densities are located in the northern two-thirds of the state. The best spots may be in thicker, younger cover along streams and the edges of swampland.

Woodcock are a migratory game bird, so hunters are reminded to have the Harvest Information Program (HIP) endorsement printed on their small game license.

Grouse and woodcock hunters are asked to assist the DNR in monitoring. See HUNTING, page 17

DNR preview of the fall hunting season

grouse and woodcock populations by providing information about their hunts. The cooperator form can be found on the DNR Web site at www.michigan.gov/dnr.

The pheasant hunting season is from Oct. 20 through Nov. 14. The bag limit is two male pheasants per day and four in combined possession.

The pheasant population is expected to be up slightly this year. Winter survival was improved from last year, thanks to our mild winter and warm dry spring weather. Just picked bean fields may be good spots during the early season. Also, look for fields of warm-season grasses and farm fields that have been idle for a few years. Late season hunters should concentrate their efforts in cattail and shrub wetlands near picked corn and bean fields.

The hunting season for wild turkey begins Oct. 3 and runs through Nov. 14. The bag limit is one bird.

Turkey numbers should be excellent in areas open for fall hunting. Mild winter weather resulted in good survival and spring nesting conditions and should produce a good crop of young birds.

Duck hunting season in the northern Lower Peninsula begins Oct. 1. Consult the 2005 Michigan Waterfowl Hunting Guide for exact dates and daily limits.

A youth waterfowl hunting weekend will be Sept. 17-18 statewide for licensed youths 12 to 15.

Duck populations remain 10 percent below the long-term average. Mallard, wood duck, black duck and green-winged teal populations have been stable over the past several years except Michigan mallards, which are declining. Hunters should make a pre-season check of local ponds and marshes for waterfowl concentrations. The best time to hunt ringnecks, scaup, redheads and canvasbacks is between Oct. 15 and

Nov. 20.

An early hunting season, from Sept. 1-15 has been established for geese.

The regular goose season in the Lower Peninsula is Oct. 1-16 and Nov. 24 through Dec. 5. Some bag limits have changed, so consult the 2005 Michigan Waterfowl Hunting Guide for details.

The early September hunts and the 30-day late season help control these local flocks through recreational hunting.

Car wash opens on Charlevoix's south side

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

After ironing out most of its issues with sewer and water service, CW's Auto Wash, a car wash off M-66 on Charlevoix's south side, has opened.

"We've been working on this for a long time," said Bob Werth, a Harbor Springs resident and co-owner of CW's Auto Wash.

Car washing services at the site officially began last Friday, Sept. 16 and are now available around the clock.

The facility offers two touchless bays and three self-serve wash units as well as on-site interior vacuums and cleaning supplies.

Water and sewer service provisions for the site were hashed out last week with the City of Charlevoix coming forward as the primary provider for the Charlevoix Township business.

However, final sewer permits from the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality have not been issued. At this time, Werth said the sewer collection system is being manually pumped daily.

According to Charlevoix city manager, Mike Wiesner, the eventual system is expected to lead from the car wash site, across M-66 to the ACE Hardware property. He added that construction of the line will take place via directional bore, which means work will happen underground and the highway should not be closed during construction.

Werth said he is expecting to hook up to the city's system next week.

But according to Brian Jankowski, environmental engineer with the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality, dirt won't move until his department approves Werth's permit request.

Jankowski received the sewer construction permit request this Monday, Sept. 19 and said he plans to expedite its review but issuance could take up to 45 days.

The car wash facility, which has been under construction since early spring, opened later than anticipated because of unforeseen sewer hook-up issues.

An easement request to run through the post office property and hook into the city sewer system was unexpectedly denied which meant owners Werth and Doug Chroninger had to revert to plan B. The alternate plan is more time consuming and requires the sewer construction approval from the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality.

However, during the time that permit review and eventual construction take place the facility will offer its car wash service.

CW's Auto Wash located off M-66 opened its doors Sept. 16 following delays due to sewer and water service to the site.

Township residents fight Way development

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The land use dispute in Eveline Township between intervening defendants and Dawson and Barney Way is now in the hands of Judge Richard M. Pajtas.

Closing arguments were made the afternoon of Monday, Sept. 19, in the case where township residents are asking Pajtas to overturn a settlement between the Ways and the Eveline Township Board which made way for a major housing development.

The Ways' attorney, Steve Winter said, "(Dawson and Barney) originally filed suit against the township and we reached a settlement agreement with the township (board).

But then the neighbors of the property intervened because they were opposed to the settlement."

The dispute is over two parcels of land which total 150 plus acres bordered by Brock, Ferry and Roberts roads as well as M-66 Highway.

"In the settlement with the township it was agreed there would be mixed use phased in over 16 years which would include some site built homes and some mobile homes phased in over time," Winter said. "A settlement was reached that says Dawson can go ahead with this, but they (intervening defendants) argue that it's inconsistent with the master plan."

He added, "The primary legal theory is exclusionary against affordable housing."

According to attorney for the intervening defendants, Jim Pagels, the defendants filed to intervene because they didn't feel the settlement between the Eveline Township Board and the Ways was in the best interest of property owners who neighbor the proposed development.

Pagels said his clients bought their property in a rural area because they wanted to live in a rural, not urban setting.

The intervening defendants originally filed a request for intervention on March 19, 2004. Since then they have argued there is not a need for affordable housing in the township and the area is unable to support such a high density development.

Pagels said, the Ways wish to build a total of 425 units on the two parcels of land. The plan would consist of a 275 unit mobile home park on the southern half of the land and 150 homes and condominiums on the northern half.

"The existing zoning is what is called farm/forest. Under existing zoning you could divide that land into 19 parcels," Pagels said. "My clients say divide it into 19 parcels — the Ways say 425."

Judge Pajtas could have the final brief by as early as the middle of November, but there is no certainty a decision will be made then.

"We're looking forward to the conclusion of this case and the Ways are very committed to providing affordable housing to the area," Winter said.

Beaver Island food fest to take place Oct. 1

The fourth annual "Bite of Beaver Island" food festival brings together a unique weekend destination, fine cuisine and fun-filled activities.

Beaver Island, the largest inhabited island in Lake Michigan, will host the festival Oct. 1.

Transportation to the island is provided by ferry service or charter air service. The Beaver Island Boat Company and Island Airways are both located in Charlevoix.

Starting at 10 a.m. on Saturday, the Island Boodle, a 5K Run/Walk will take place along the beautiful harbor of Paradise Bay. Medals for first through third place for assorted age categories will be given out at the Shamrock at the conclusion of the Boodle, along with T-shirts for all participants. Advance registration forms may be downloaded from the Chamber of Commerce Web site at www.beaverisland.org.

From 1 to 5 p.m., Holy Cross Church Hall will be the site of the food festival, where professional and amateur chefs sell small portions of their favorite fare. Last year's sellouts included rack of lamb, grilled shrimp, escargot, and a wide variety of scrumptious desserts. Beer, wine and soft drinks are also available at the festival — as will music.

The Island's Youth Consortium will oversee autumn crafts for younger participants along with showing them how to use an old-fashioned cider press.

There will also be an apple pie contest, with prizes for the top two bakers and an auction of their pies, with proceeds to benefit their favorite island charity.

A "Bite of Beaver Island" poster contest is also in the works, and prints of the winning entry will be available for purchase. For information about entering the poster contest, download the rules from the Chamber of Commerce Web site at www.beaverisland.org.

Later in the evening, head to the island's favorite watering hole, The Shamrock. Live music is planned. Also in the evening Irish music and dancing is slated for Holy Cross Hall.

For more information about Beaver Island, the "Bite of Beaver Island" food festival or the Island Boodle 5K run/walk, contact the Chamber of Commerce at (231) 448-2505 or visit www.beaverisland.org.

Block said the miraculous turnaround he is looking forward to is rooted in less stiff competition from teams like Glen Lake and Grayling as well as the appearance of key defender Peter Londgren on the field.

Londgren transferred from the local charter school, Northwest Academy, to Charlevoix High School this year. Transfer students, like Londgren, are required to sit out the first five games of the season.

Of the four defenders that kicked the season off, Block said three are new this year to varsity level soccer play.

Block said one benefit to the shaky start is it has given all the team's players needed playing time allowing each to try out different positions.

"The team as a whole is doing well — the kids are working hard and are getting more motivated as the season goes on. They know where we are at and where we are going. We are going to do well," he said.

The team is looking toward what Block said will likely be their first win of the season, against Glen Lake Sept. 17 in Rayder territory at Kipke Field. Results from this game were not submitted by press time.

Women's Resource Center earns accreditation

The Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan, Inc. is proud to announce that it has once again been awarded a three-year accreditation by the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities.

New motorcycle road TV show to film at Whitneys

Storytelling Pictures, a Grand Rapids based film production company, is currently developing a 30-minute television pilot entitled 2 Wheels Good, an engaging Motorcycle Travelogue.

The group will be filming in the Charlevoix area on Wednesday, Sept. 28 and is scheduled to be filming at Whitney's Oyster Bar from 4:45 p.m. until 6:15 p.m., weather permitting.

Created by friends and business partners John Evans and Corey Emerson, 2 Wheels Good explores the scenic side of Michigan from the perspective of a motorcyclist, exposing the viewer to the simplicity and hospitality of hometown America along the way.

"Our purpose is to not only portray the people and places of a given state from a unique point of view, but also address some of motorcyclists challenges — where to meet, where to ride, where to stop along the way and why. Our goal is for others to try the routes from the show and experience Michigan for themselves," Evans said.

Once scheduled to air, a Web site will be launched to support the show, highlighting downloadable maps, additional information, stops and detours, as well as recent road-law changes and updates, upcoming events, safety tips and sponsor information.

Combined, the motorcycle travels of Evans and Emerson have included such terrain as Death Valley, the Great Lakes, the Rockies, Blue Ridge and Smokey Mountains, the Hawaiian Islands, and up-state New York.

Evans currently lives in Jenison with his 2 children. Emerson lives in Byron Center with his wife and three children.

Programs. The latest accreditation is the fourth consecutive three-year accreditation outcome that the international accrediting commission has awarded to the Women's Resource Center.

This accreditation outcome represents the highest level of accreditation that can be awarded to an organization and shows the organization's substantial conformance to the standards established by the commission.

An organization receiving a Three-year Accreditation Outcome has put itself through a rigorous peer review process and has demonstrated to a team of surveyors during a three-day on-site visit that its programs and services are of the highest quality, measurable and accountable.

"The amount of time and additional work that goes into an accreditation review is monumental, and I credit all of our staff for the positive outcome of this process," reports Jan Mancinelli, Women's Resource Center Executive Director.

The Women's Resource Center is a non-profit organization that has administrative offices in Petoskey and satellite offices in Cheboygan, Gaylord and Manistota.

The center has been providing services throughout the five county service area, which includes Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet and Otsego counties for 28 years.

For additional information on the accreditation and/or services provided by the Women's Resource Center, contact Deb Smith at (231) 347-0067.

Sheriff shares tales of Louisiana

Lasater and three officers return from aftermath assistance

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Charlevoix County's law enforcement contingent is back following two weeks in the heart of the Katrina calamity.

Charlevoix County Sheriff, George T. Lasater was one of four men from Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office to offer services as a peace officer for search and rescue missions in areas of Louisiana ruined by wind, rain and, most of all, broken levees.

"We were stationed in Baton Rouge, La. but we drove about an hour-and-a-half to New Orleans everyday," Lasater said. "Our particular mission was search and rescue and patrol."

He added, "To get to that area we had to drive through downtown New Orleans. It was like a ghost town. We saw no civilians, just military and police. There was just debris everywhere."

Due to logistical complications such as how to feed and house EMS, firemen and police, help which arrived was turned away unless working under the authority of a larger agency.

"We went down under the umbrella of FEMA (who) paid for all the expenses including lodging, food and our salaries while we were down there," Lasater said. "Once we got down there we had to have some authority so we were commissioned by the Gov. of Louisiana as special officers for the Louisiana State Police."

The three other members from Charlevoix were Lt. Mike Wheat, Marine Officer

Newly appointed State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Mike Flanagan, was in Charlevoix this week pitching a plan that will likely mean big changes for education in Michigan.

On Sept. 26 Flanagan informed a group of superintendents in the Char-Em Intermediate School District that the future for schools in the State of Michigan will likely include expanded basic, state mandated curriculum requirements.

"If we don't do it now, we'll be left in the dust," Flanagan said. "It's in the state's best interest."

Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools, Dr. John Sturock, was one of the superintendents in attendance.

Flanagan's plan to introduce this legislation to the State Board of Education follows the nation-wide trend of increasing math, science and language arts requirements at the high school level for all public schools across the state.

He said the current requirement of high school level civics isn't enough for Michigan students to compete in the tough global economy.

"We've got 100 years of tradition of nothing but civics," Flanagan said. "The whole game has changed. This will position Michigan to be more competitive in the national and global economy."

The model Flanagan, in conjunction with a group of experts, is developing will be pitched to the eight-member state board on Nov. 15. He said the board is expected to act on the proposal in December.

Flanagan said if the state board opts to mandate curriculum this winter, the policy will not be implemented immediately. Changes will come in 2009 or 2010 when current sixth graders are in the ninth grade as the transformation infers adjustments at the elementary and middle school levels as well.

At this time, Flanagan and the expert group are reviewing requirements of districts across the state as well as looking at failure and success stories of similar legislation introduced in Indiana, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Oregon and Kansas to formulate the Michigan model.

"We expect to learn a lot from those other states," he said.

Flanagan said this approach will likely begin with a straightforward mandate and will evolve over time to include concepts in the math, science and language arts, which can be applied in classes outside of strict parameters. "Rigor without relevance is nothing," Flanagan said.

Flanagan said an opt out provision will likely be included in any legislation that is adopted to accommodate special needs, impaired and learning disabled students.

He said beyond what he feels with create stronger education, the mandated program will also help address transient students who move from one district to another.

"Now, districts are inheriting kids that aren't prepared. Under this program they will have taken the same basic courses," he said.

While Flanagan recognizes the potential failure of state mandated curriculum, which could increase the drop-out rate at Michigan schools, he said failure is imminent if the skill level of Michigan graduates doesn't start to climb.

While this will mean major changes for many state high schools, Sturock said it doesn't mean huge change for Charlevoix schools where three English classes, two science classes and two math classes are already required to graduate.

"It might mean some changes but our requirements are pretty much in line with what they are talking about," Sturock said.

Superintendent of the Char-Em Intermediate School District, Mark Eckhardt, said Charlevoix's preparedness for possible legislation like what Flanagan plans to push is comparable across the district's 11 school systems.

"I can guarantee the schools that are here are meeting or exceeding those requirements right now," Eckhardt said.

Sturock said a potential downfall of Lasater: Looting and devastation plague Katrina's path

SGT. David Beyer and Deputy Sheriff Clyde Payton. They lodged at the state police headquarters in Baton Rouge, La. usually waking at 4 a.m. to be on the road by 5:30 a.m.

"Usually we arrived in New Orleans at about 7 a.m. where we would receive our assignment," Lasater said. "90 percent of the time our assignment was to go to various areas door-to-door to see if people were in their homes."

He added, "Our goal was to try to talk them into leaving. And, by our presence, hopefully deter looters."

Lasater said, when people refused to leave, he and his team made sure the people had food and water.

Missions included patrolling areas of every economic background, Lasater said.

"Most of our challenges were in the lower income levels right where the levee broke," he said.

According to Lasater, the people who refused to leave fell into various categories.

"Some people didn't want to leave their pets behind," he said. "The second category were senior citizens who had lived in that house all their life and weren't about to leave."

He added, "And what really surprised me was how many of the people had prepared for this. Many of them had a generator, were stocked up on food and water and were ready to wait out the storm."

While he didn't see looters heading out of stores with goods, Lasater said the signs of lawlessness were ever-present.

"Looters were a big, big problem," Lasater said. "I was surprised by some of the signs on four by eight sheets of plywood on homes such as, 'LOOTERS WILL BE SHOT.' 'A LOOTER I HAVE SHOT HERE.' 'I'M INSIDE I HAVE A GUN,' and 'THIS HOUSE IS BEING WATCHED DON'T EVEN THINK ABOUT IT YOU WILL BE KILLED.'"

The platoon of peace officers in which Lasater traveled found a man shot to death while trying to protect his home from a looter.

Aside from looters, the other main danger was the level of toxins in the floodwater.

"The one area we were in where it (levee) was breached, the EPA (Environmental Protection Agency) said the contamination level was so high it was 100 times worse than when (they) close a beach due to contaminants," he said. "And the stench was terrible. We had to be decontaminated every time we came back."

The endless sacrifices and dedication made by people from all over, including Charlevoix, are evident by the fact that one deputy missed his bachelor party to go down to help and Lasater, who hasn't had a vacation in two-and-a-half years, used his vacation time to help the disaster victims.

Lasater said, "It was long days with no days off, but no one complained. The attitude was, 'This is our mission. We've traveled 1,200 miles to help these folks. Let's get it done.'"

He added, "Charlevoix County should be proud of the deputies that went down. They were professional, they gave 110 percent and they never complained."

In addition to helping the people of Louisiana, Lasater said, he thought the experience was invaluable as a training exercise for he and his men in the event a disaster strikes Charlevoix.

In turn, Louisiana offered all the hospitality it could muster for Lasater and his men.

Aside from a dry bed, shower and good southern food, Lasater said, "People down there were very glad to see us. They were waving and saying thanks and pulling up the caravan to let us know how happy they were we were there."

In the days following his return, Lasater said he received several comments from community members thanking him for his efforts to aid the victims of the hurricane.

The sign at left was one of many attached to homes all over the areas affected by the hurricane.

OPINIONS

A minister's perspective on married life

Gayle Gennett
'A look at life'

As a licensed professional counselor and ordained non-denominational minister I have had the pleasure of meeting many wonderful couples.

Our time spent in pre-marital counseling discussing commitment, parenting, and finance, has been a learning experience that has taught me as well. By guiding couples entering this chapter of their life, I've learned some lessons worth sharing.

Are you living together first before marriage? Statistics tell us that this isn't a quotient as to whether a couple will weather the ups and downs of married life, but I see more couples choosing this lifestyle due to financial reasons rather than seeing if "we're a good match." It oftentimes gets the couple discussing some of the important aspects of a successful marriage before tying the knot.

Finances play a major role in today's lifestyles. Whether you're working part-time or making more money than your spouse, be ready to openly discuss your finances hash out who will pay for what and agree on a budget. No secrets should be kept in this situation as it may come back and haunt you.

A shared household budget seems to adapt to most couples and having a little extra for each of you to have as "mad money" is a good thing. It gives you the freedom to buy things you may want without the concern of it affecting the payment of bills that will arise. More marriages appear to end due to financial spending or lack of spending of a spouse.

Some other common needs that couples identify as important in marriage include: conversation, affection, and personal space. Something I hear over and over again is a woman madly in love because she has found someone she can communicate with.

Women generally discuss how they feel or will question their spouse about what they are thinking or feeling. Keep this in mind when choosing a mate. If your beloved is quiet and non-communicative, this aspect of their personality may not change and chances are won't change unless there is some type of intervention. Some couples work on this with a therapist or minister before getting married. Learning to understand each others communication styles is important. Just because one of you is always quiet doesn't mean they are not in agreement with you.

Are you someone who likes to hold hands in public, or openly show affection? When we are madly in love we can't seem to keep our hands off of each other. When some time has passed this may change. There are times you may wonder if you will ever feel those butterfly feelings again. Let me assure you that you can re-ignite those feelings. Simple things like a love note placed in their book or left on a bedroom pillow and showing an interest in their latest project may bring out those feelings that brought you together in the first place.

Personal space was listed as a concern for some couples. It comes into play when one of you may feel that you need some let down time when you get home or it may mean some quiet time when you first awaken. As you live together you'll soon be able to figure this one out. It's important to be respectful of each others needs. Just because you are married to your soul mate does not mean you need to do everything together. It can add to your conversations when you share with your spouse the activities that you did and things you learned from others.

In the days before your wedding and in your marriage it is important to focus on and remember the reasons why you are marrying or are married to your spouse. What were those wonderful things that attracted you to them in the first place? Sometimes in our busy lives we forget to look at the positive things that we love about our mate. If you truly believe that things are not going well, then share your thoughts with your future mate/spouse. Letting things dwell or waiting for time to pass thinking things will get better does not bring about change. Marriage is a commitment and hard work but there is nothing better than sharing your life with someone you love.

Truly being in love and loved by someone gives us the courage to be the best we can be.

The battle with the mower is over, for now

Benjamin Gohs
'Staff writer'

Summer is officially over. Single-cylinder flora munchers all over northern Michigan will soon issue one last puff of blue smoke.

Hyperactive use of hyperbole aside, fall doesn't seem like a popular time to invest in landscaping implements. The last thing I wanted to do with only a few weeks left in the lawn care season was make an investment, but I'm getting ahead of myself.

Discovery of the machine's state of disrepair occurred early this summer with a pull of the rusty starter rope. The blade on the ancient weed eater spun, but the engine did not start. It seems the air filter cover went missing the previous season allowing snow and water to infiltrate regions of the engine they should not have.

On the second or third pull I was treated to, as the Beverly Hillsbillies theme song said, "A bubblin' crude" when the poor old machine gagged up about a pint of gasoline, oil and green water soup from the spot where the air filter once was located.

In spite of the machine's gurgling death rattle, the real crudities displayed were the barbaric sentence fragments I uttered while watching the mower self-destruct on the sidewalk.

I caught a glimpse of the wife's lips and hands moving in silence, but chose to disregard her pantomimed pleas for me to end my troglodytic display. With unparalleled rage I mercilessly rained fist and boot down on the contraption's metal frame and plastic wheels — it never had a chance. In hindsight I may have overreacted.

Enough was enough. It was time to call a professional. What could be the harm? I reasoned my pain and suffering was now the few extra bucks spent on lawn care service.

Now, as a sufferer of male pattern baldness or as my grandfather called it, "Nature's barber," I have much empathy for the random clumps of weeds inhabiting the dirt patch in front of my house. The blades were so sparse I once considered the equivalent of an agricultural comb over. "Grow the healthy sections of the lawn to ridiculous lengths and rake them over the bare patches," I thought.

Okay, maybe it was a cry for help on my part. Regardless of my idiosyncrasies, I figured the lawn service would need only drop by twice a month for a trim. Hey, two weeks may sound like an eternity in the world of lawn maintenance, but last summer the lifeless two-inch strands of brown tinsel held on for dear purgatory in some sort of brown and crunchy suspended animation. They weren't getting any taller.

Once the lawn service took over I began to relax. Come to find out, the loss of grass was not hereditary and, with time, it would regenerate. Everything was fine until about six weeks ago when simultaneously the rain came and the lawnmower man disappeared.

The grass had a sudden and uncharacteristic growth spurt which I assumed resulted from an introduction of large amounts of gamma radiation or the application of authentic voodoo magic. Either way I was in trouble.

Week one without a cut and the lawn was two hands high. Week two, the kids lost their soccer ball in the deep end. Week three, I caught a couple hippies making crop circles in the backyard at 2 a.m. As much as I didn't want to give in, suffering a massive stress induced stroke at age 30 was even less appealing.

Whipped dogs have been known to possess more moxie than yours truly when I finally conceded, I drove to town and recanted the sordid tale to a salesman at the nearest lawn and garden store.

Slowly, anxiety gave way to excitement, as this would be the first new mower I ever owned. All preceding machines in my care consisted of archaic hand-me-downs and rummage sale finds including two gas powered, one electric and a rusty manual with dull blades which didn't cut the grass so much as smack it around a bit, while emitting the most vile squeaking noise.

The salesman sold me a gray and red, four cycle, walk behind model. He didn't laugh when I jokingly inquired as to the machine's level of water resistance. He merely winced and suggested I either park it in a shed or keep it covered when not in use.

The mower has been used twice since its purchase. If anyone wants to horrow it they can find it in my backyard under a blue tarp, mocking me.

Letters to the editor

Bay Harbor addressed CKD Editor:

In the Sept. 7 story on the St. Mary's Cement Plant, the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ) incorrectly stated that the problems at Bay Harbor arose when buried cement kiln dust was disturbed by developers.

Bay Harbor was developed following a precedent-setting agreement with the MDEQ to contain and monitor the cement kiln dust. Until that time, the cement dust was exposed to wind, rain and other elements, and was open to dispersal across the area.

The system was working as planned until technical issues led to the shutdown of the collection system. The system has since been restarted and CMS Energy, which is responsible for environmental compliance at Bay Harbor, is installing a new and improved collection system that will be operational shortly.

Bay Harbor takes great pride in the beauty and environmental health of Bay Harbor. We will continue to work with MDEQ and CMS Energy to meet and exceed all environmental requirements and measures.

Remember Sept. 22

Editor:

In my opinion Sept. 22 should be remembered. Why? Because on Sept. 22, 1862 Abraham Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation, which is what set the slaves free. Lincoln was born on Feb. 12, 1809 in Kentucky. Lincoln moved a lot in his life; from Kentucky to Indiana, to Illinois, to Washington D.C. He was shot at the Ford's Theater, in D.C., and died the next day on April 15, 1865. So, the dates April 15 and Sept. 22 should be remembered.

Seniors: "Thank you" Day of Caring participants

Editor:
On Sept. 15, our Charlevoix Senior Center was the recipient of much loving labor by employees of Bay Wells Federal Credit Union, Huntington Bank and the crew from Harbor Industries. Other Charlevoix company employees worked at various other non-profit organizations in Charlevoix.

The original "Community Day of Caring" was organized last year by Harbor Industries. Those in charge of organizing the program this year were mainly Mike Hurchick, Eric Thompson, Jennifer Archambault and Dee Vincent. Our hats are off to you and all of your crews.

People like these are everyday heroes. By choosing to care, and to give their best, they enhance the lives of many as they pass on their way. Not only do they touch all of us through their dedication and thoughtfulness, they inspire others to care as well. Their attitude of compassion and commitment bring so much to our community. Their loyal service is a great gift to our community and it is a gift that does not go unnoticed.

To say that they "got involved" and "cared" is putting it mildly. The volunteer crews took over the whole Charlevoix Senior Center and cleaned it from top to bottom. They had a lot of fun doing it, and we enjoyed every bit of having them with us. We greatly appreciate their hard work and are proud to be able to count on them. Refreshments and a free lunch were furnished by our senior center to all of the workers. We can't express enough appreciation for all they did.

Thanks to them for making a difference.

VPN golf benefits city rec department

Editor:

I would like to thank Mitts Lee, John Murray and the entire staff at Vacation Properties Network for their generous donation to the Charlevoix Recreation Department. Funds were raised through VPN's annual golf scramble which netted a $3,370 donation to the City of Charlevoix Recreation Department.

These funds will be used for Camp McSaba scholarships as well as for scholarships to attend Mt. McSaba's "Learn to Ski" program for children in the Charlevoix area who need assistance with the fees associated with these programs.

With community involvement and hard work from people such as the staff at Vacation Properties Network, Charlevoix remains a great area to live and raise your children.

Misguided editorial

Editor:

Your editorial in the September 21, 2005 (Call for Wiesner's firing is lacking needed meat, page 4), misses the mark. Dr. Boss leaves practice to pursue sleep fellowship

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Craig Boss

Dr. Craig Boss of Charlevoix left his practice Wednesday, Sept. 7 to complete a sleep medicine fellowship at the University of Michigan School of Medicine.

fellowship Monday through Friday and I take on-call every six weeks or so for a week at a time."

According to Boss, there are many reasons he chose to study sleep medicine but the biggest was, "Being involved with sleep patients at Charlevoix hospital sleep center."

"We're just learning more and more about the connection between sleep and chronic disease," he added.

Boss said he finds it fascinating how sleep disorders can contribute to things people often take for granted.

We're finding out sleep disorders exacerbate or contribute to diagnosis of heart disease, stroke, obesity and other diseases.

As many as 10 percent of American adults may be affected by a clinical sleep disorder.

"My main goal is to heighten the awareness about sleep disorders and their contribution to other medical issues," he said.

He added, "But really, it's about how much better people feel when problems are addressed, they have more energy, they're not as irritable and they are more stable. That's one of the biggest issues — people feel so much better when they get enough sleep."

Boss attended undergrad at Hope College and received his medical degree from Michigan State University in 1990. He completed his internship and residency at Womack Army Medical Center in Fort Bragg, N.C. and has been in practice for eight years.

For the last year Boss worked under David Walker, D.O. at Charlevoix Area Hospital's Sleep Center, in addition to maintaining a large client base at his family practice.

Born and raised in Charlevoix, Boss said he plans to come back and continue to practice at the Charlevoix Area Hospital Sleep Center.

"I think the sleep center is a wonderful complement to Charlevoix hospital and their existing services," he said.

Four physicals: Pamela Knysz, M.D.; Catherine Wonski, M.D.; Michael Harmeling, M.D. and Andrea Wendling are now treating Boss' patients.

Churches work to relocate some Katrina victims to Charlevoix

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

Since late August, when Hurricane Katrina barreled through Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama, Charlevoix residents have engaged in outreach efforts. Recently these efforts have evolved from reaching out with hands, hearts and open wallets to opening the town's doors.

Members of multiple congregations joined together Sept. 15 at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix to brainstorm the ins and outs of bringing a family displaced by the hurricane to Charlevoix. Discussing everything from living accommodations and professional opportunities to clothing and food.

Meanwhile, on Charlevoix's south side, a Charlevoix resident of 20 years, Vicki Moses-McWatters, was spearheading an effort to do just that.

Days after watching coverage of Katrina's devastation McWatters started the process of bringing a Louisiana refugee family here where six months of provisions, lodging and transportation would be provided.

"I don't have the resources to go there and help but I have time and friends," Moses-McWatters said. "They need to get the people out of there. If every city were to adopt one family, they could get out of there. My goal is to provide resources to them to get them on their feet here."

With her mission in mind Moses-McWatters contacted Captain DeGeorge with the Salvation Army in Petoskey.

DeGeorge suggested that she partner with her church, Safe Harbor Baptist Church, located off Old U.S. 31 South in Charlevoix.

A quick pitch of the idea to pastor Pete Aronson and Moses-McWatters' said he and the congregation were on board.

"This has united a community, it gives everyone a chance to make a difference," Aronson said.

While the effort has evolved into a church outreach project their aim is not limited to Christian hurricane victims or constrained in any way.

"Whatever family comes to us first we will take in," Moses-McWatters said.

At this time a family has not been assigned to Safe Harbor's Katrina Adopt-A-Family Effort.

According to John Alexandrowski, senior pastor at Word of Life Community Church in Petoskey, who is coordinating efforts to place displaced families, bringing people here now isn't as simple as it may seem.

Alexandrowski has been working in conjunction with the Little Traverse Ministerial Association and the Salvation Army and has

Sheriff warns of new jury duty identity theft scam

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater would like to warn citizens of a new identity theft scam.

The scammer calls claiming to work for the local court and claims you failed to report for jury duty. And then tells you that a warrant has been issued for your arrest. When you state that you never received the jury notification the scammer then asks for confidential information for "verification" purposes.

Specifically, the scammer will ask for the victim's social security number, birth date and sometimes even for credit card numbers and other private information.

This jury duty scam is the latest in a series of identity theft cons where the scammers use the phone to try to get people to reveal their personal information. Protecting yourself is simple. Never give your personal, confidential information over the telephone.

If you or someone you know has been a victim of identity fraud, contact local law enforcement or call the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Office at (517) 373-1140.

already placed five families, four in the Petoskey area and the fifth in East Jordan.

"People need to be patient with the churches and the search process. They (those displaced) are hesitant to leave, they want to go back to their homes to retrieve their belongings if there is anything left and they are hesitant of the cold and snow," he said.

He estimated that it could take up to two months for a family to be placed with the Safe Harbor program or the effort being lead by the Charlevoix church group.

When the Safe Harbor family is ready for Charlevoix Moses-McWatters and her fellow supporters will be ready for them.

A fund-raiser that took place this Monday, Sept. 26, raised a substantial amount of funding.

The event took place at the Flap Jack Family Restaurant where Moses-McWatters, the former owner of the craft show Family Affair, is a server.

The staff helped coordinate a pancake dinner where their time and tips went to the adopt-a-family effort and a silent auction with $3,000 in items including everything from lunch with Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater to a pontoon boat rental and trees were claimed by high bidders.

About 100 hungry supporters arrived for the dinner where they feasted for the bargain price of $7 for adults and $5 for children.

Lodging for six months at Pine Cove Apartments has also been secured. The chosen family will be given free rent as well as electrical and heat at no charge.

A car was also donated by Safe Harbor attendee Shaun Curtis of Traverse City which will be serviced free-of-charge by Randy Moyer of Integrity Auto.

While these two groups await placement of a family they continue to collect donations to purchase necessities.

A Safe Harbor Hurricane Fund has been established at Bay Winds Federal Credit Union in Charlevoix to accommodate donations.

For more information call Moses-McWatters at (231) 547-9795.

Legislators lead fight to maintain USCG cutter

Charlevoix Mayor Norman Carlson joined state Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer and Sen. Jason Allen on Thursday, Sept. 22 in Lansing to give testimony to gain House support for keeping a Coast Guard cutter stationed in Charlevoix.

House Resolution 86, sponsored by Elsenheimer, urges the United States Coast Guard to continue to operate a cutter ship out of Charlevoix when the Acacia is decommissioned in 2006.

The measure was approved by the House Natural Resources, Great Lakes, Land Use and Environment Committee, as was Allen's Concurrent Resolution 24.

"It's sad to see the Acacia retired because it's been part of the community for so long, but it's served admirably, and it's time," said Elsenheimer, R-Bellaire. "While the Acacia is leaving, the necessity and usefulness of having a Coast Guard cutter stationed in Charlevoix has not. The health and safety of people on and around Lake Michigan requires the Guard to maintain this post."

Copies of the resolutions will be sent to the United States Coast Guard 9th District Headquarters in Cleveland, Ohio, the United States Secretary of Transportation, the Commandant of the United States Coast Guard, and members of the Michigan Congressional Delegation upon full House approval.

Federal grants available to local businesses

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Potential or existing Charlevoix businesses may benefit from some of the over $980,000 in funds recently awarded to the Northern Economic Initiatives Corporation (NEIC) of Marquette.

The $984,560 which came in the form of two grants was awarded by the United State Department of Treasury Community Development Financial Institutions (CDFI) fund. The fund was developed to aid the economic development of local businesses.

"Last year we expanded into northern lower rural Michigan, so we're offering services in the way of small business loans to the extent that we can find opportunities to lend in Charlevoix," said Dennis West, president of the initiatives corporation. "We'd be glad to support business startups in that (Charlevoix) county."

He added, "We've done 350 loans in the last 10 years. That's about $16 million worth of lending that we've done."

The Northern Economic

Initiatives Corporation is a certified United State Department of Treasury Community Development Financial Institution. It is also a private, not-for-profit organization which was created as a partnership between Northern Michigan University and ShoreBank out Chicago, Ill. in 1985 after seeing unemployment numbers in the Upper Peninsula reach as high as 20 percent.

Northern Economic Initiatives Corporation provides loans to businesses, both small and large, for development and other services to 51 counties in northern-lower Michigan as well as the Upper Peninsula.

"Generally we find ourselves involved with a small business startup or someone buys existing business, but they might have equity limitations or other factors that may make a community bank not as enthused about lending to them," West said.

As a result, West said, his company wanted an opportunity to support economic development.

"Over the years we've looked at a lot of issues and last year we decided to go below the bridge because many of the characteristics below the bridge are similar to what we see in the Upper Peninsula," he said.

West said the significance of these funds will be felt in rural areas such as Charlevoix County and areas where the economy is in transition from domination by one or two industries which must now become more diverse and resilient.

Corporation have gone to manufacturing businesses, but they have invested in a little bit of everything.

"Everything from working with a guy who's business was to recover road kill — that was a really small one but we really liked what he was trying to do so that was a few thousand dollars," West said. "Up to the $1.3 million was invested in a high-tech startup sawmill."

According to West, his company receives many referrals from community banks about startups and existing businesses when banks have limitations on what they can do. West's company then will work to find a way to help the company.

"We can step in if there are issues such as insufficient collateral," he said. "Our business has been to take people and support them in the growth and development of their business."

According to U.S. Congressman, Bart Stupak, the grant for the amount of $950,000 will be used for things like sustainability and strengthening financing and capacity of organizations to address business development needs in northern Michigan and Upper Peninsula communities.

"Northern Economic Initiatives Corporation has been successfully

The event will take place from 4 to 9 p.m. Oct. 18 with gourmet dinner served at 5:30 p.m. at The Inn at Bay Harbor. Participant cost is $25 per person.

Deborah Perryman, a Petoskey High School graduate and the Illinois Teacher of the Year, will be the featured presenter. Participants will also receive the new National Pollution Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) hook by author Ellen Kohler.

Part of the program will feature "Edens Lost and Found," a PBS documentary of how ordinary citizens are restoring great American cities.

assisting small businesses and community development in northern Michigan for well over a decade." U.S. Congressman Bart Stupak said. "These grants will enable them to offer the tools small businesses need to get ahead in today's economy."

The second grant amount is for $34,560. It will be used for strategy development, market research, business plan and preparation and product development among other things, Stupak added.

West said Northern Economic Initiatives Corporation would also like to get into some long-term loans.

"Most of our lending has been short-term mainly five to seven years mainly as working capital and equipment financing," West said. "What we'd like to be able to do is work with local banks and do some real-estate financing and things of that nature."

West said there is a certification process involved to apply for grants from the United State Department of Treasury Community Development Financial Institutions fund, as well as the need to find matching grants and loans from other lending institutions.

Anyone interested in applying for a loan with the Northern Economic Initiatives Corporation should call toll free (800) 254-2156 or visit www.niupnorth.org.

McDonough named health ed coordinator

Jean McDonough, RN, has been chosen to serve as Charlevoix Area Hospital's new community health education coordinator.

McDonough, who is currently a staff nurse in the emergency department, has been with the hospital for four years. Prior to that, she worked for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency.

"Jean brings a wealth of experience in public health and patient outreach," says Joy Klooster, vice president for nursing services. "We're pleased she's going to take on this assignment. Our community is certain to benefit."

The health education coordinator position is a new one, created to help the hospital serve as a community resource on a broad variety of health-related issues. McDonough will be the "go-to" person for health fairs, blood drives, school-based health programs like Fit Kids, and requests for speakers on topics ranging from diabetes and cancer, to weight control and fitness.

McDonough, who begins the job this week, says the hospital has always been a good source of health information and educational programs, but bringing all its offerings under one coordinator will give community residents easier access.

"We want to plan events and deliver programs that respond to community needs," she said. "I'm excited about getting started."

For more information, McDonough can be reached at (231) 547-8906.

Born Learning campaign kicks off to increase early education

The Traverse Bay Area Intermediate School District and Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, along with local United Ways, are working on a new program to help people in northern Michigan understand how children learn.

A new early learning public engagement campaign called "Born Learning" was introduced at a jointly sponsored press conference last week.

Born Learning is part of the national United Way's effort to help parents and other caregivers create learning opportunities in their day-to-day activities.

The campaign includes educational materials and tools geared toward development at specific ages from birth to five-years old. Additionally, some resources include valuable interactive guides specifically developed to assist fathers and grandparents.

Designed to support parents and other caregivers in their critical role as a child's first teacher, Born Learning materials are made available through the efforts of United Way of America, Civitas, the Intermediate School Districts, and the United Ways of Northwest Michigan and Charlevoix-Emmet County.

All materials are posted on the Web site, www.bornlearning.org.

"We are excited to see a national program of this magnitude brought to our local level," said Karen Szcodronski, Director of Instructional Services for the Traverse Bay Area Intermediate School District.

"With studies showing that critical brain development in children takes place between the years of birth to three, the positive day-to-day interaction we have with our children is so very important," she added.

Born Learning will strengthen the Traverse Bay Area Intermediate School District's "Way to Grow" and the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District's "Stepping Stones to School" current early childhood programs and networks in local communities.

Locally, parents can call (231) 922-6437 for Way to Grow, or toll-free (877) 866-3714 for Stepping Stones to School.

Michigan Saves offers home ownership savings

Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency (NMHSA) is accepting applications for nine accounts for its matched savings program in Emmet, Charlevoix, and Antrim counties.

The program, called Michigan Saves, offers people the opportunity to save for the purchase of a first time home. Each dollar the participant saves is matched at a 3:1 ratio for home ownership. The maximum amount that can be matched is $1,000.

Michigan Saves is an Individual Development Account (IDA) program. These programs are a new concept and offer the matched savings as part of a financial literacy-training program. The program is very structured, according to Karen Emerson, program coordinator.

"Participants must attend the minimum of 10 hours of financial literacy training and an additional 4-6 hours of training on the specific asset they are purchasing before receiving the matched funds," she said. "Each account holder will make a commitment to attend these classes and individual budget counseling, as well as make monthly deposits into a savings account to reach the desired goal. These requirements must be fulfilled before he or she will receive the match funds."

Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency has received funding for up to nine accounts in this program through a grant from the Assets for Independence Program, and Petoskey/Harbor Springs Community Foundation, and Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

The funding source determines the eligibility requirements for the program. To be eligible, an applicant must be able to receive Temporary Assistance to Needy Families, and his or her income must be within 200 percent of poverty. To be Temporary Assistance to Needy Families eligible, a person must have dependent children living in the home or be pregnant. Participants must have a source of earned income.

When participants complete the application process and are accepted into the program, they must select their asset. A savings plan is then developed, and the participant signs a program agreement. Savings must come from earned income and be deposited into a special savings account on a monthly basis. Missing deposits can cause dismissal from the program and forfeiture of match funds.

Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency has partnered with Fifth Third Bank, Michigan State Cooperative Extension, and others, and the program is strengthened by partnerships with other community agencies. The collaborative effort brings with it a level of experience that offers insight into the challenges that account holders will face in achieving their goals.

Register for the next prepurchase workshop from 6-9 p.m. Oct. 4, and learn more about first time home ownership opportunities. For more information, contact Keith Greenwald at (800) 443-5518 or (231) 347-9070.

Auditions set for theater's The Christmas Schooner

Auditions for cast members to heard The Christmas Schooner will start at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, Oct. 4-6, at the Ross Stokes Theatre in the Crooked Tree Arts Center, Petoskey.

Roles available, for this year's production include spots for 8-9 men; one 10-12 year old boy; one 14-15 year old young man; 5-6 men ages 20-40 and one man 55-65.

On the women's side there are roles available for one 11-13 year old girl and 4-5 women ranging in age from early 20's to late 30's and early 40's.

This critically acclaimed holiday treat tells the story of a Michigan shipping captain who braves the deadly winter weather to bring the Tannenbaum to homesick German-American families in turn-of-the-century Chicago, Ill. His voyages become a yearly tradition despite his wife's misgivings. The musical is based upon actual events in Michigan maritime history.

For the audition, prepare a song of your choice. Actors will also be asked to read a scene from the script.

Performance dates are December 8-11 and 15-18 and rehearsals will begin on October 10 and continue three - four nights per week until the production.

If you have any questions, contact the Little Traverse Civic Theater office at (231) 348-1850.

BUSINESS

C2 now offers custom framing and classes

By JULIE WITTHOEF
Editor

C2 Gallery, one of Charlevoix's newest art galleries, has expanded its offerings to include custom framing and on-site art classes.

Charlevoix residents and roommates, Cheryl and Mike Carey and Amy Cook purchased the former Koucky Gallery and opened C2 early this summer.

Cheryl, 35, worked for Koucky Gallery owners Chuck and Nancy Koucky in the summer of 2004. When she found out they were interested in selling the business, she jumped at the chance to live her dream — owning and operating an art gallery.

Ultimately, the gallery moved next door to 327 Bridge Street and the Rocking Horse Toy Company moved to the old Koucky Gallery location.

About 30 percent of the current inventory is from new artists. Koucky's staple artists that are part of the new C2 Gallery include Deborah Hoover, Luke Buck, Matthew Keiser and of course potter Chuck Koucky and jeweler Nancy Koucky.

Since opening they have been working on converting the basement into a custom framing workshop.

ing and his focus is on preservation framing of primarily small to large format flat work.

Frames available include plain and ornate wood and metal materials supplied by Traverse City's Nelson's Frame Shop. Samples are available in the workshop. Mattes and glass are cut on-site.

C2 is offering a 10 percent framing discount on work bought at the gallery.

Workshops offered there this winter will include silk dying and jewelry making.

For more information about C2 Gallery, call (231) 547-2228 or e-mail c2gallery@yahoo.com. The gallery's hours are from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily.

In fact, it's law.

In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Shop of the Gulls opens kitchen section

By NICOLE GRAZIANO
Special to the Courier

The nearly 50-year-old Shop of the Gulls on Bridge Street will unveil its new kitchenware section on Saturday.

Inside the former Bahnhof Sport, which sits at 207 Bridge Street, to the left of the shop, a mixture of kitchen gadgets, utensils, appliances, cooking ware and bake ware will be made available to the public.

Shop of the Gulls owner Patricia Blanchard said she had long wanted to incorporate a kitchen section amid the shelves of Vera Bradley handbags and Lady Primrose lotions.

When the neighboring 1,200-square-foot site was made available for purchase in June, the opportunity to expand became visible, quite literally.

With the acquisition of the Bahnhof Sport site, Shop of the Gulls will boast a total 3,600 square feet.

Although the two sites haven't physically joined into one, the dividing wall between them will be torn down in mid-winter, said Blanchard, adding that the kitchenware section will not assume another name.

So far, Blanchard's husband Clint has lead the remodeling effort. Dressing rooms have been torn down and flooring has been laid, leaving just the assembly of shelves and electrical work to be completed before the new shop's grand opening.

With the exception of ceiling painting, all work has been done by Blanchard, her husband and her staff. Construction should be completed by March or April.

"We're going to keep adding to our inventory as we go," she said.

Blanchard, who hasn't made any significant line changes in the shop since assuming ownership two years ago, added that Shop of the Gulls will be fully stocked with selected kitchenware brands by spring.

Such brand name items include Chantal tea kettles and pans, J. A. Henckles knives and pans, Gen-Au mixers and blenders, Oxo utensils, Oster small appliances and various kitchen gadgets including pepper-mills, silicon utensils and bamboo cutting boards.

Blanchard's decision to carry the brands came from either previous use or reputation. The selected merchandise, she said, also reflects fair pricing, good quality and distinctive character.

"I've always had an interest in kitchens, cooking and cookware," she said. "I wanted to dabble in something I really enjoy."

Blanchard, who works alongside her daughter, Nicole, the shop's manager — and three part-time employees, does not foresee a need for new employees until the spring. She said her next endeavor will be the development of an official Web site for Shop of the Gulls.

Full store hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday.

Rayder football take the Elks by a score of 39-13

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The Charlevoix Rayder Football team's Lake Michigan Conference win last Friday brings the team's record to 4-1 overall on the season.

After a loss to Boyne City which ended a three-game winning streak for the Rayders two weeks ago, Charlevoix made steak out of the Elks of Elk Rapids for a final score of 39-13.

"The kids played good. It was nice to see us get off to a good start," said head coach Don Jess. "The last couple games, we didn't get off to a good start (but) it was nice to see that on Friday."

He added, "I think maybe that Boyne game was a little bit of a wake-up call for them."

The Rayders' first touchdown of the game was off an interception by quarterback Matt Kautz for a 47-yard pass return. The second touchdown was a one-yard run by Russell Williams. Their third touchdown was a 15-yard run by Matt Kanine with Williams kicking the extra point. The fourth touchdown of the game was a 30-yard reception by Darren Munson with Williams kicking the extra point. The fifth touchdown of the game was a two-yard run by Kautz with Williams once again polishing off the play with the extra point.

In passing, Kautz was six of 10 for 135 yards thrown. In receiving, Eddie Waldron had two catches for 62 yards.

Williams lead rushing with 11 carries for 81 yards. Jeff Golovich, Drew Klooster and Chris Aepelhaeher lead the maroon and white defense with seven tackles.

At 7 p.m. Sept. 30 the Rayders will meet the Blue Blazers of Kalkaska at Kalkaska, whom Charlevoix defeated last year.

"They are a good physical team. They have some tough kids," Jess said. "We're going to have to play well over there and work on defensive assignments."

Varsity and JV golf post strong scores at recent outings

The Charlevoix Varsity Golf team played in the Gaylord Invitational Sept. 16 at the Classic Course Otsego Club and following up with its best outing for the year at Boyne USA.

The Rayders shot a 349 on a short course with very fast greens. Top shooters for the Rayders were Kris Bartling and Kyle DeYoung who both shot an 85. Chase Beatty with a 96, J.D. Speigl with a 90 and Stephen Parker with an 89.

The Gaylord Invitational for the junior varsity teams was held at Wilderness Valley Golf Club.

On Sept. 20, the Rayders' varsity team played at Boyne USA.

"Charlevoix had it's best outing of the year so far," said coach Jim Glynn. "Shooting a 161 at a Lake Michigan Conference match at the Moor, Charlevoix came in second out of eight teams."

He added, "Kyle DeYoung's breakout round of 36 was super. Kris Bartling's 41 could lead to better things."

Charlevoix was second to Traverse City St. Francis who ended the day with a 159.

According to Glynn, sophomores Chase Beatty and J.D. Speigl are playing very well.

"The team is getting four solid scores. Coming into conference championship time, that could mean good things," Glynn said.

On Sept. 22 at the Indian River Golf Club's, Puppy Invitational, the Charlevoix junior varsity team met for competition where they finished in first place by 27 strokes.

"(They) had a super meet taking first place and winning four medals," Glynn said. "A great finish for a fine season for the junior varsity."

Top finishers for the junior varsity were Woody Nitchman and Nic Williams who both shot an 86, RJ Moore who shot an 89, Kyle Smith with a 92 and Alex Molter with a 97.

The Rayder varsity team also played that day in a Lake Michigan Conference match.

"(They) shot a 170 in the eight team event placing fifth overall," Glynn said. "Heavy rain pounded the first five holes."

Kyle DeYoung had the best score for Charlevoix shooting a 41.

Charlevoix hosted the LMC, Championship match at Antrim Dells Sept. 27. Results from this championship were not available by press time.

Cross country teams come out on top in recent meets

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Charlevoix High School runners have competed in a busy event schedule over the last week.

The Charlevoix Varsity Cross Country Teams competed Sept. 17 at the Ludington Invitational where the lady Rayders showed improvement in their performances over past meets.

"As a team we made great strides forward towards closing gaps between runners," said coach Mary Plude. "The team is starting to come together."

She added, "We have learned a lot this first part of the season and we have set a good foundation for a stronger second half."

Varsity was led by Brittney Lanh in 7th place with a time of 21 minutes and 54 seconds.

The junior varsity team was led by Kristina Alden in 13th place with 25:24.

Lady Rayder team standings were 4th out of 7 teams in Division III and 6th out of 19 teams in all Divisions

I, II, III, IV.

The boys also had a positive showing Sept. 17 at the Ludington Briggs True Value Invitational finishing 2nd in Division III and 5th overall. A total of 25 schools competed in the race.

Coach Ken Plude said, "The boys would have placed even higher if not for a bit of bad luck. Isaac Matchett collapsed from hyperventilation with less than 400 meters to go in the race. At the time, Isaac was in 21st place out of 150 runners."

The varsity team was led by Jacob Wimmer in 4th place with a time of 17:51.

The junior varsity team won all divisions taking 1st out of 25 schools and 177 racers.

The junior varsity team was led by Jacob Hunt in 6th with 19:23.

On Sept. 23 the junior and senior runners met at the Petoskey Invitational.

"The eleventh and twelfth grade race was a good race for us as we had a gap of less than one minute between our one and five runners and 1:06 between our one and seven (runners)."

Ken said, "If we can lower our gap to less than 50 seconds and move the whole varsity team down to 25 to 30 seconds we should reach our goal of contending for the regional and conference championships."

The top finisher for Charlevoix was Stevens in 6th place with a time of 17:10.

"This team shows a lot of depth. Every varsity member (won medals) and then some — 11 total," Ken said.

On Sept. 24 the lady Rayders ran in the girls Petoskey Invitational.

"This was a great team day for us," Mary said. "Seven medalists and two plaques was a great reward for the team. The time gap between the top four runners is closing. As is the one between four and five. We are under one minute now."

In the eleventh and twelfth grade race Lindi Edger was in 3rd place with a time of 20:07.

In the eleventh and twelfth grade team standings, Harbor Springs had a 72 and Charlevoix had a 74 taking a 2nd place plaque.

that word? I had to look it up. The dictionary says that "malefaction" is a "crime or something of an evil intent." No one is claiming that the city manager intentionally did what he did. That begs the issue, however.

At the very least he was negligent in the performance of this job as city manager. As the expression goes, "the devil is in the details." We pay the city manager a nice salary to do what he does. Part of what he does involves the details. As citizens of this community we expect the city manager to follow through and part of that follow through involves details.

Your editorial implies that no one, including the city manager, should be fired simply because he made a mistake. Well, anyone in the real world knows that folks are fired all the time due to mistakes made on the job. It's called competency or lack of competency. For the city manager, his actions are more akin to misfeasance on the job.

"Thank you" supporters

Editor:

Where do I start? First, I would like to thank Community Reformed Church, Charlevoix Middle School, Charlevoix High School, Crown Motors, the coffee gang and all others who so generously contributed supplies and money to the Katrina relief effort.

We left Charlevoix on Thursday (Sept. 29) and proceeded to Elkhart, Ind. and picked up a 33-foot FEMA travel trailer to be used by an evacuee family. After about 1,300 miles we arrived at the Florida Blvd. Baptist Church in Baton Rouge and met John, Kevin, Will, Mary and others who assisted us in unloading the Charlevoix cargo.

They have established two distribution warehouses that they use to organize and send supplies to areas of need. They have currently distributed over 18 semi truck loads throughout Mississippi and Louisiana. They received these goods from 27 different states. They were very aware of the local needs and have an on-going list of who needs what. They especially liked the school supplies.

Over the last four weeks an organization that can feed thousands of meals a day has been using the church facilities to organize their effort. About 30 people from an Oklahoma relief project provided this service and lived in the church gym. They just moved to Texas to help with the Rita relief effort. After they left, two nursing homes that were in the path of Rita asked if they could use the church gym. There are now 80 nursing home patients there with hopes of returning home on Tuesday. The members of the Baptist church who are volunteering with this relief effort have worked relentlessly since Katrina hit and their efforts are commendable. Words can not describe them.

We then dropped off the trailer at FEMA trailer staging grounds where there were thousands and thousands and thousands of trailers. They indicated that FEMA had purchased 70,000 trailers from throughout the U.S. and were receiving and distributing them from this site in Purvis, Miss. On to New Orleans. Much of the city is inaccessible if you don't carry a badge, can repair utilities, can clean up debris or are repairing damaged buildings.

The residential areas that we did see had been flooded. Homeowners are beginning to start the cleanup process. They have pulled everything out from the first floor of their homes and all have huge piles of junk in their front yards. The junk includes furniture, appliances, carpeting, kitchen cabinets, hardwood flooring, drywall and doors. The cars they left in their yards all have water marks at about five feet. All the grass, flowers and bushes around the homes are brown and appear to be dead. There are only a few businesses open which also have their big pile of junk. They really could use waste haulers there to get rid of the junk. Many of the houses appeared to still be empty, but those that have returned are working hard to clean up and start over. What lies beyond the police barricades is probably a lot worse.

We saw police officers from Chicago, Ill. tree cutters from North Carolina and utility trucks from all over the U.S. There are convoys of men with their various trucks cruising the expressways in every direction. All hotel rooms seem to be occupied by these guys.

This is our observation of what we saw. Thanks again for your help.

Every little bit of help adds up to a lot when so many are willing to assist.

Beach cleanup success

Editor:

Thousands of volunteers gathered along shorelines and tributaries of Lake Michigan for the September Adopt-a-Beach Cleanup Saturday, Sept. 17. The Alliance for the Great Lakes has coordinated volunteer efforts in Michigan and Illinois since 1991 as part of the annual International Coastal Cleanup, which is coordinated by the Ocean Conservancy in Washington, D.C. This year is the 15th anniversary of the Alliance for the Great Lakes' annual beach cleanup.

Charlevoix County is one of approximately 120 cleanup areas in Michigan. This year, Charlevoix had 70 volunteers clean 10 sites from Norwood to Bayshore, collecting 300 pounds of trash along 15 miles of shoreline. In 2004, Michigan had 2,245 volunteers remove 8,773 pounds of garbage from 162 miles of shoreline. Each year, there is an increasing number of volunteers and clean up sites. Beaver Island joined the alliance this year as a cleanup site.

The importance of the Great Lakes to those who live and work in the region is evident in the range of volunteers who participate in the cleanup. Families, individuals, schools and community groups work collectively to protect this vital resource. The alliance would like to thank all the volunteers who participated in this year's cleanup. Their efforts are critical to the health of the lakes. The generous food donations from Don's IGA and Glen's of Charlevoix are greatly appreciated, as well as the dumpster donation from Waste Management.

Please mark Sept. 16, 2006 on your calendar for next year's cleanup. Information can be found at www.greatlakes.org or by calling (616) 850-0745 or the Charlevoix cleanup coordinator, Daniel Mann.

Fire prevention reminder

Editor:

As the time change approaches (Sunday, Oct. 30), the City of Charlevoix Fire Department wants to remind residents to make another change that could save their lives, by changing the batteries in their smoke alarms.

Communities nationwide witness tragic home fire deaths each year. An average of three children per day die in-home fires. And 80 percent of those occur in homes without working smoke alarms. Non-working smoke alarms rob residents of the protective benefits smoke alarms were designed to provide. The most commonly cited cause of non-working smoke alarms is worn or missing batteries.

Changing smoke alarm batteries at least once a year is one of the simplest, most effective ways to reduce these tragic deaths and injuries. In fact, working smoke alarms cut nearly in half the risk of dying in a home fire. Additionally, the International Association of Fire Chiefs recommends replacing your smoke alarms every 10 years.

Over the last decade, candle fires have more than tripled, (from the 5,500 reported in 1990 to an estimated 18,000 during 2001). As the official sponsor of Fire Prevention Week, NFPA (National Fire Protective Association) has chosen "Use Candles with Care" as the 2005 Fire Prevention theme, to encourage people to observe simple safety precautions when using candles.

The City of Charlevoix Fire Department will be visiting the elementary schools in Charlevoix during Fire Prevention Week to reinforce this year's message. The City of Charlevoix also has scheduled a Fire Prevention Open House, at 9 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 15 at the fire station for anyone who was unable to participate at the schools, or just wants to show their parents what they learned.

In addition, the City of Charlevoix Fire Department recommends residents use the "extra" hour they save from the time change to test smoke alarms by pushing the test button, planning "two ways out" and practicing escape routes with the entire family. Families should also prepare a fire safety kit that includes working flashlights and fresh batteries.

Recognize domestic abuse awareness month

October is designated as Domestic Violence Awareness Month.

As advocates who work with victims/survivors of domestic abuse the Women's Resource Center would like to provide information to help raise awareness of this atrocity that befalls many women's lives and disrupts countless families in our community, throughout the country and the world.

Domestic abuse does not mean only physical or sexual abuse.

There are several other forms of domestic abuse, such as: Psychological and emotional abuse, use of manipulation and threats, intimidation, economic abuse and isolation.

Domestic abuse is a community problem.

In our community we have free and confidential services provided by the Women's Resource Center.

A variety of services have been developed that can assist the victim/survivor and their children in achieving a life, free of abuse and control.

However, the women's center and the victim/survivors can not do it alone.

Stopping domestic abuse requires community involvement.

It may affect your neighbor, your sister, your daughter, your mother, your co-worker or the person who sits in front of you at church.

As a member of the community you can help a domestic abuse victim/survivor by doing any of the following:

Call the police if you believe you see or hear domestic abuse.

Hold the abuser accountable and don't blame the victim/survivor.

Know that it is common for some of the victims/survivors to return to the abuser multiple times.

Understand that it may be safer for the victim/survivor to stay than to leave until she gets adequate help and support.

Let the victim know that you are willing to help in any way you can.

Remember that domestic abuse victims/survivors have generally been isolated and may need help expanding their support system.

Refer the victim to the Women's Resource Center at 1-800-275-1995 or to the National Domestic Violence Hotline at 1-800-799-SAFE.

Arts center's strings program begins new season

It's back to school time for the Crooked Tree Arts Center's Beginning and Intermediate String Program.

Robert Dudd, Dorothy Gerber Chair for Children and Music will be visiting area schools starting this week.

Crooked Tree Arts Center's objective is to go into the schools and give every public and private school child the opportunity to learn string instruments in their own classroom, with instruction provided by Dudd.

Musical instruments are rented to families at a very low cost.

In cases where families are not able to provide for the instrument rental fee, Crooked Tree Arts Center insures that the child has an instrument provided at reduced cost through scholarship funds.

Charlevoix student named achievement semifinalist

Charlevoix High School student Joseph R. Graham was recently named one of approximately 1,600 semifinalists in the National Achievement Scholarship Program's 42nd annual academic competition for Black American high school students.

These scholastically talented young men and women now have an opportunity to continue in the competition for approximately 800 Achievement Scholarship awards, worth some $2.5 million, that will be offered next spring for college undergraduate study.

The National Achievement Program was initiated in 1964 to honor academically able black youth throughout the nation and provide scholarships to a substantial number of the most outstanding participants in each annual competition. The program is conducted by National Merit Scholarship Corporation, a not-for-profit organization that operates without government assistance.

In the 41 annual competitions completed to date, more than 26,000 black American students have received Achievement Scholarship awards worth about $83.5 million.

To now continue in the competition, Graham must advance to the finalist level by fulfilling several additional requirements. Some 800 of the current semifinalists will become Achievement Scholar designees. All winners will be selected on the basis of their abilities, accomplishments, and potential for academic success in college.

What began as an exploratory effort in the fall of 2000 has blossomed to involve over 300 students from Charlevoix, Emmet and Antrim counties. Area home school students have embraced the program as well and play together on a weekly basis.

The Crooked Tree Arts Center's Beginning Strings Program is a community effort; as it requires the cooperation of the Arts Center, school districts, educators and parents.

Support of the Beginning Strings Program is provided generously through the Dorothy Gerber Chair for Children and Music and the Gerber Music Education Program.

This anonymous gift enhances the Arts Center's efforts to bring music education to the young people of Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

The Crooked Tree Youth Orchestra and the Beginning Strings Program directly benefit from the gift, named in memory of the work of Gerber.

The Crooked Tree Arts Center is located downtown Petoskey at 461 E. Mitchell Street.

For more information regarding the strings program, please call the Arts Center at (231) 347-4337 or visit www.crookedtree.org.

Each spring the Crooked Tree Arts Center's Beginning Strings students perform a concert at John M. Hall Auditorium in Bay View. Area students are provided an introduction to the Beginning Strings program over the next two weeks from school visits by Robert Dudd, Dorothy Gerber Chair for Children and Music at the Crooked Tree Arts Center.

Preserve dedication

Dr. John Sturock: Enough legislation in education

of this for Charlevoix is the possible elimination of some of the district's art, music, vocational and performing arts offerings, which round out its approach to education.

Mark Eckhardt

While Sturock is concerned with not having enough programs like the arts, Flanagan said other possible mandate fallout could include a supply and demand issue of math teachers in the state.

With these possible struggles looming on the horizon of education change in the state, Sturock welcomes Flanagan's decades of experience in education and commends his aim to move the state forward.

However, Sturock isn't an advocate of legislation in education and will likely not support a strict approach.

"The constitution talks about local control but local control is being shredded away inch by inch," he said. "We are getting down to tests and legislation. But every school district is unique. To try to mandate education with legislation doesn't take into account local needs so important elements are lost."

The federal No Child Left Behind Act brought with it adequate yearly progress requirements for schools to meet as well as the Michigan Education Assessment Program, also known as MEAP testing.

Flanagan said this program is meaningless when some students aren't being given the tools, or courses, to make it.

While recommending that mandated curriculum be adopted Flanagan blames failing school districts on curriculum, Sturock said this problem won't be solved with legislation.

"The problem is major urban areas where people are struggling with unemployment, poverty and other issues that we aren't dealing with here," he said.

Police chief resigns after 19 years

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

Following almost two decades of dedicated service, Charlevoix City Police Chief, Dennis Halverson, will retire his badge.

Halverson, 50, submitted his letter of resignation to Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner on Friday, Sept. 30.

"I hate to lose him — Dennis was a real professional. He did a fine job serving the community," Wiesner said.

Halverson, the longest serving Charlevoix Chief of Police, has accepted the "Safe Schools Coordinator" position with the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District.

While the transition from the law enforcement environment to school halls may seem a stretch, he said it's a natural fit.

Halverson earned a masters degree in education in 2002 from Grand Valley State University and is a former school liaison for the Grand Traverse County Sheriff's Department.

"I'm going back to my roots to some extent," he said.

He plans to leave the department at the end of this month and take the slot with the intermediate school district in early November.

"It's a great opportunity in an area

I have strong interest. I couldn't pass it up. I'm leaving one great community for another," he said.

This position includes duties once held by Arthur Kirk, 70, of Charlevoix Township, who was arrested in early August and is being held on charges for being a felon in possession of a firearm and falsifying a gun permit application.

Dennis Halverson

At the time of Kirk's arrest he was a contract worker, coordinating volunteer operations for AmeriCorps through the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District.

Kirk had been using an alias and has a criminal history, including criminal sexual conduct convictions from 1978 and 1981, under the name Arthur Heilberg Kirkeby. Fingerprints determined that Kirk is Kirkeby.

Halverson's position has been broadened to include administration of the AmeriCorps program as well as that of the Drug/Violence Free Schools program. He said he

Charities feel the wrath of Katrina

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

In the wake of disasters such as recent hurricanes Katrina and Rita, the immense outpouring of national support is often to the detriment of local charities.

According to directors of some local charities, there has definitely been an impact on local agencies by those directing their donations to the needy in the south.

"Actually it affected us last year as well," said Dianne Clifford DuPont executive director of Charlevoix-Emmet United Way. "Yes, we had a few donors last year that didn't come through because of the tsunami."

She added, "I know the tsunami took about a $100,000 out of the two counties."

According to Clifford DuPont, there's just so much money to go around and much of the money is going outside the community.

"Everything we do at United Way stays in the community," she said.

Charlevoix resident arrested on Union County Georgia warrant

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office has arrested a 46-year old Charlevoix man on a criminal bench warrant from Union County Georgia.

The original incident involved "Theft by Conversion" charges, which were originally filed in the Superior Court of Union County Georgia in 2003.

The Union County Sheriff's Office requested the assistance of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office after they learned that the suspect might own a local business.

The suspect was arrested at his residence in the City of Charlevoix without incident on Sept. 30.

He has been released on a $10,000 surety bond pending his arraignment in the 90th District Court on a Fugitive from Justice warrant to take place Oct. 4 while awaiting an extradition hearing.

The outcome of the arraignment was not available by press time.

also plans to assist with emergency planning at each of the 11 school districts in the intermediate school district which includes over 15,000 students.

"To make those schools better places to learn means a lot to me," he said.

Halverson, president of the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education of which he has been a member for six years, plans to continue to serve on the local school board.

In spite of the exciting changes just around the bend, after 19 years with the city, Halverson will struggle to leave his post.

On Monday, Oct. 3 he looked around his office and peered at the newly remodeled city hall which will be ready for the police and fire departments to occupy in the next few weeks and said he is pleased to have served here.

He commended Wiesner for having given him opportunities to participate in city planning.

"When I started the position was cut and dry law enforcement but I leave with a wide variety of experience and background," he said.

Projects he participated in that he remembers with pride include planning the Regional Dispatch Center in Petoskey which services 56 agencies and relocating Marion Center Road which opened the doors for expansion of Harbor Industries and relocation of the entrance to the Charlevoix Municipal Airport.

While he leaves a legacy of successful projects, Halverson's greatest source of pride is the department he built.

"I'm a firm believer in enforcing the law with the community,

"From going to the Olympics and meeting ambassadors to helping old ladies shovel — I've enjoyed it all."

Dennis Halverson,
City of Charlevoix Chief of Police

not on the community," he said. "This police department is part of the community — we're approachable, consistent and fair."

Having been part of building a successful department also had its low times and Halverson remembers vividly the worst night of his life — July 27, 1997, when a Venetian Festival fireworks accident claimed the life of Charlevoix resident Mark Yager and injured many others.

His high moment came when in his uniform he walked his daughter, Jessica, to the band shell stage in East Park for the Venetian Festival queen's coronation.

He said other great days came and went with little fanfare.

"You have a best day when your guys do well. I've always enjoyed seeing my officers get the bad guy — all of those little victories," Halverson said.

This is the same group of officers Halverson had the opportunity to hire, mentor and work with. He said walking out of his office, saying good-bye and stepping out onto the street — a civilian, will be hard.

"The opportunities I've had, the people I've met — it's once in a lifetime. From going to the Olympics and meeting ambassadors to helping old ladies shovel — I've enjoyed it all," he said.

City council received Halverson's resignation letter at its meeting Oct. 3. Council will have the final say in the rehiring process. In the interim, deputy police chief, Scott Hankins will fill in.

Halverson's advice to his replacement, "Keep your eye on the ball."

"You have to be able to state your position, gather input and keep your eye on the ball — maintain a consistent, fair, honest, respected police department," he said.

Recycling committee needs to lose distasteful warnings

Engaging kids in recycling in our consumerist society is as important as teaching them to tie their shoes.

We have found that teaching the tools of recycling instills in children the principle of responsibility. A fundamental they learn as they assist at home with loading bins, peeling labels and crushing cans. And then further execute by going to the station and sorting the materials that would otherwise be landfill fodder.

In the end these tiny recycling soldiers come away with an understanding of the symbiotic relationship between man and Mother Nature.

The Courier office recently fielded a call from a Charlevoix Township mother of five who manages to squeeze recycling with the fam into her busy schedule.

This summer when she took her 9-year-old to Charlevoix's recycling drop off center at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, the young girl read a sign plastered to one of the green bins. She said aloud, "Litter and the kitty from hell will eat you as road kill."

She asked, just as we are, "Why?"

Since then, the sign has been changed to an elderly woman stretching for a run with the tagline, "If you litter, don't expect to run from 'kitty.'"

A second forewarning, taped to the inside of the plastic and paper depository, reads, "If you with litter would disgrace and spoil the beauty of this place, may indigestion wrack your chest and ants invade your pants and vest."

Maybe we are pointing out the obvious, but both the litter bugs and Charlevoix County Recycling Committee that approved these signs, should grow up and show a little class.

Lose the riddles. A more enlightened way to drive home the anti-litter message would be something Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater shared. He told us litter bugs face a misdemeanor charge and can be fined up to $100 for their first offense.

Seeing as how recyclers are sitting in the heart of deputy central, just outside Lasater's office, it would seem information like this would prove a stronger deterrent to trash tossers.

And those recycling, this is a privilege, leave the colored glass at home and when you see the well-intentioned recycler dropping items not fit for our program, inform them. Education is the missing link here and community cohesion is the key to making it all happen.

When ignorance is chosen, let's see the littering rabble rousers ticked, a hit to the pocketbook is a sure fire way to show us American consumerists that inappropriate behavior won't be tolerated.

We would also like to see the recycling committee be proactive and use its $282,110.44 surplus to nip the colored glass issue in the bud by adding this service to the list.

Recycling committee member Shelly Roloff has said the Emmet County Transfer Station isn't interested in accepting more colored glass. But if you can direct energy to posting of the bizarre Kitty signs, you can certainly campaign for colored glass recycling in Charlevoix.

Family camping can be a fun learning tool for all

Gayle Gennett

'A look at life'

I can feel the fresh crispness in the air. Leaves are quickly changing their color and a sweater or light jacket becomes the uniform of the day.

Fall is the season when nature shares its beauty with all of us and we realize even more so how lucky we are to live in northern Michigan. The clear blue skies are matched only by the hues of the great Lake Michigan.

Now is the time for families to share the outdoor experiences of walks in the woods, collect colorful fallen leaves and rake the yard if only to fall in the pile of leaves we worked so hard to gather.

Apple Fest is just around the corner, and we'll soon take in the smell of almonds roasting in a shiny copper kettle. I can already taste fresh baked pies and apple cider which are abundantly displayed before us.

Ahhh...it's Fall and it's never too late or too early to start your kids on the experience of survival in the outdoors. Time spent together as a family can quickly educate you on who has the survival instincts. A trip to the Upper Peninsula will give your family the chance to view beautiful color and give you some bonding time as well.

One of our favorite outdoor pastimes this time of year is camping. Many years ago I let someone borrow our tent and didn't take the time to check it before the next family camping excursion. Things weren't too bad, only one major pole was missing. Fortunately, I found a branch nearby that made a great fit. Really, I did find it on the ground and not still attached to the tree.

On another one of our camping excursions we had the good luck to meet some wonderful Native Americans who entertained us with a dance, later that evening a violent storm blew in. Too exhausted from building fires and telling stories, we decided to tough out the storm and try and get some sleep. We slept on air mattresses for extra comfort, it didn't take long to realize that we were floating on what appeared to be a small stream. We noticed it in time before we went over the cliff. My husband likes to remind me that it was I who said, "What a perfect spot for us to put up a tent."

Camping teaches you how to move fast on your feet and improve your decision making skills, like pick a motel if you see clouds over the moon. I remembered that from an earth science class. See, it is an educational experience as well.

Activities children can learn from camping include: Gathering small sticks for the campfire, flashlight tag, looking for worms, fishing, making s'mores, cooking hot dogs over a fire and the stories you'll tell your kids about your lives when you were their age. OK forget the last one.

Responsibilities for the kids are a good thing too. Finding the bathrooms and shower for mom is an important one. Giving your children undivided attention without a phone or TV to distract is a wonderful gift of quality time.

Now, 20 years later, our one daughter loves to camp but packs just what she needs into her backpack and goes deep into the woods. She'd rather deal with an angry animal than an unhappy camper. She must have met others who lost a part of their tent too. Our other daughter, well her idea of camping is bad room service.

All in all camping has left lasting memories with our family, at least that's what the therapist said. Heck, we even encouraged other family members to do the same. Camping and enjoying the beautiful outdoors can be a good thing. Remember the sunscreen, repellent, lantern, and flashlight and by the way count your tent poles first.

Hamburger Helper a new tradition and a special event that has happened in Charlevoix.

When I came to town some 13 years ago, I learned about three or four things that happened every year in our little town that made it so special. Dale Boss and his wonderful idea of planting flowers every year along Bridge Street in Charlevoix. The Venetian Festival, thanks to Dan Barron, John Winn and others, a seven day extravaganza that nobody in this country can match. Our wonderful Waterfront Art Fair where we get some of the best artisans in the Midwest to come and display their wares and let's not forget our Apple Fest that brings the fall in with a bang.

This of course is not a complete list of all of the great things that go on yearly in our city, but they certainly are highlights. Another unsponsored highlight is when Dairy Queen opens up in the spring and a new season begins in our little town, and we all stop by for our ritual olive burger, French fries and a milkshake.

For the last two years I came up with the idea of having Dairy Queen on their last open day of the season serve all the residents of Charlevoix at my expense. I am happy to tell you that last Sunday we had over 800 Charlevoix residents stop by and get a free meal. Since I feel it's a nice way to end the summer, I have decided to make this a tradition for the city and call it, "Thanks for the Memories."

I will sponsor "Thanks for the Memories" for as long as I live in town, and hopefully, that's going to be a long, long time.

I always ask these questions, how did the flower planting start? How did the Venetian Festival begin? So, now you know how the special closing day at our Dairy Queen became a day for everyone in Charlevoix.

Thanks for the memories.

Bob Mol and 'Days gone by'

Editor:

I subscribe to the Courier because I grew up in Charlevoix in the late 1940s, 1950s and early 1960s. I am always looking for links to the past in the form of names, stories, etc.

Even though Marilyn Boss' articles deal with life in the 1940s I enjoy her writing because I do remember a lot of the people, places and things she mentions. In her most recent article she mentioned John Mol and how he started his own plumbing and heating business. She went on to mention his two sons, Jack and Gordie.

She left off son number three, Robert Lee, "Squally," "Spider," Bob or whatever name you remember him by. By the way Bob is alive and well, retired now and living in Manlius, N.Y., with my sister, the former Mary Schuchard.

Born into this world March 13, 1940 he has certainly made a difference to a lot of people and is well respected by all those who have had the privilege to know him. My sister has Multiple Sclerosis, the kind that does not go into remission, and Bob has dedicated himself to helping Mary as she battles this unfair disease.

Bob and Mary are two of my favorite people and the way the two of them go about their lives always putting others before themselves and never complaining but rather just playing out the hand they have been dealt. I am proud to say that Mary is my sister and Bob is my brother-in-law.

I am kind of glad now that Marilyn left Bob off of the Mol family tree and in a sense it is poetic justice, Bob has always been one to shy away from the limelight never wanting to bring attention to himself, but just going about his business day to day in his own unassuming way. He would probably not want me to say those things about him, but that is how it goes.

But anyway, thanks Marilyn for the coops, it gave me an opportunity to share with those of you who do remember Robert Lee Mol.

Regarding the Letter to the Editor dated Sept. 26, headed "Misguided editorial" by Bill Dupont.

I am not informed as to the situation with the Charlevoix City Manager and, therefore, have no comment to make on that aspect of the letter sent by Mr. Dupont.

I would like to comment on Mr. Dupont's belittling of the editorial he refers to. It would behoove Mr. Dupont to get his lexicology correct.

First of all, perhaps he has been able to find the word "misfeasance" in his dictionary but I can find no such word. Second, "malfeasance" and "malefaction," as defined in the dictionary, have, to all intents and purposes, the same meaning. The meaning being, evil-doing.

Pam Picou-Chenevert of the American Red Cross submitted a letter to the editor thanking the community and Gennett and Guthrie for their assistance.

So now, help me. Is the Charlevoix City Manager really guilty of "evil-doing?"

Red Cross 'Thank you'

Editor:

The Louisiana Capital Area Chapter of the Red Cross in Baton Rouge, La. can't thank you enough for your generosity and kindness to all the victims of Hurricane Katrina. These people have benefited immensely from the basic necessities that you provided. The towels were a precious commodity that these people will never forget.

Steve Guthrie and Lyle Gennett gave hands-on care to the victims at the River Center here in Baton Rouge. These men were true heroes that would make any community proud. I'm sure the compassion given by these two gentlemen was a testimony to your community.

We truly appreciate you raising the funds in such a short time and allowing these stewards of Charlevoix to personally deliver them.

Apple Fest to bring fall harvest to town Oct. 14-16

Charlevoix invites you to experience the magic of Autumn in northern Michigan at the 26th Annual Apple Festival and Craft Show.

This three-day event, sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, is held yearly to honor local orchards and growers who, in the spirit of the season, line Bridge Street to bring the Fall harvest directly to you.

The festival's focal point is the apple, proven to be the most popular fruit in North America.

Northern Michigan's cool temperatures are said to produce tastier and more colorful fruit than those grown in warmer climates. More than 30 types of apples, including the hard to find "antique varieties," will be on hand as well as other fall harvest items such as pumpkins, squash, jam, honey and cider.

Charlevoix's waterfront parks will provide adults and children alike with fun and exciting activities including a craft show featuring 100 crafters ready to show their wares.

There will be face painting, apple bobbing, a petting zoo and more all day Saturday and Sunday. Hand-led pony rides will be available from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday only.

So, bundle up and join Charlevoix's fall harvest bonanza and show your support for local orchards, farm markets, and nonprofit organizations while celebrating the season in scenic downtown Charlevoix this Oct. 14-16.

Show hours are from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Oct. 14 and 15. And from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 16.

For more information contact the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce at (231) 547-2101 or, by e-mail at info@charlevoix.org.

County Democratic party to host 'Family Values' forum

"Family Values," one of the issues that drove the last presidential campaign, will be the subject of a public non-partisan, forum Oct. 6 at Charlevoix's Giuseppe's Restaurant.

The discussion will begin at 7 p.m. and will be preceded by a Dutch treat dinner at 6 p.m., to which the public is also invited.

"Family Values is a concept that does not belong to one political party or one particular philosophy," observed Bill Lovett, Chair of the Charlevoix County Democratic Party.

Leading the discussion will be retired Episcopal minister, Ruth Clausen, and Petoskey attorney, Jill Ryan.

Each will offer her perspective on the issues based on differing life, professional, and generational experiences.

"Family values are the concern of every American regardless of political party or religious affiliation. The purpose of this open meeting is to discuss the real issues that concern our families and this country," Lovett said.

"During the last presidential campaign, the public was exposed to a lot of sound bites and other commercials about 'family values.' For the most part, there were no definitions, no real discussion. These are serious issues, that need to be addressed," Lovett said.

As with their other educational forums sponsored by Charlevoix County Democrats, this is a non-partisan issue and members of the public and clergy are encouraged to attend.

Resolutions pass for USCG vessel in town

On Sept. 29, the Michigan House of Representatives urged the U.S. Coast Guard to maintain cutter ship service in Charlevoix by unanimously approving two resolutions sponsored by Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer and State Senator Jason Allen.

House Resolution 86 urges the Coast Guard to continue to operate a cutter ship out of Charlevoix when the Acacia is decommissioned in 2006.

"A similar measure sponsored by Sen. Allen, Concurrent Resolution 24, also gained House approval.

"It's important that Charlevoix remain part of the Coast Guard presence in the Great Lakes," said Allen, R-Traverse City.

"Given the current situation with homeland security and the need for maintaining reliable, efficient navigation, the local station should remain a viable site for providing Coast Guard services to the region," added Elsenheimer.

The U.S. Coast Guard has announced plans to scale back the number of ships serving the Great Lakes upon decommissioning the Acacia in 2006.

The ship in Charlevoix has been responsible for tending to nearly 200 navigation aids, keeping channels open by breaking ice and responding in emergency situations.

Charlevoix Mayor Norman Carlson traveled to Lansing on Thursday, Sept. 22 to join both Allen and Elsenheimer in testimony before the House Natural Resources, Great Lakes, Land Use and Environment Committee.

The measure was approved by the House Natural Resources, Great Lakes, Land Use and Environment Committee, as was Allen's Concurrent Resolution 24.

With full House approval now in hand, copies of the resolutions will be sent to the United States Coast Guard 9th District Headquarters in Cleveland, Ohio, the United States Secretary of Transportation, the Commandant of the United States Coast Guard, and members of the Michigan Congressional Delegation.

Facts and treatments for fall respiratory viruses

Roderic Timney
'Kids Corner'

Summer is over, the germ factories are open, a.k.a. schools and daycares, and a new season has arrived, not football but respiratory virus season.

Viruses like sports have seasons and about October is opening day for the respiratory viruses. Viruses are often referred to by their route of acquisition. A respiratory virus is acquired through the respiratory tract; nose, throat or lungs as opposed to our summertime friend the enterovirus that is acquired through the digestive tract, or the papillomavirus, which causes warts and is acquired through the skin.

Often the site of acquisition is where we experience the worst symptoms, certainly true for the respiratory viruses with those coughs and runny noses. Within the larger group of respiratory viruses there are a number of different virus families with their individual seasons. Most people are intimately familiar with flu or influenza season for example that typically starts after the holidays with coughs and runny noses. Within the larger group of respiratory viruses there are a number of different virus families with their individual season.

Most people are intimately familiar with flu or influenza season for example that typically starts after the holidays with its coughs, sore throats, and body aches. While there is certainly a lot of overlap of symptoms certain "symptom syndromes" are associated with individual virus types.

Fall is parainfluenza virus season and its common symptom syndrome is croup. Most children with croup are between three months and five years of age. With croup, children experience the often-sudden onset of a "barky" cough and stridor, which like so many things, that stress us out as parents occur at night, when our defense mechanism are at their lowest, and the pediatrician's office is closed.

Stridor refers to the wheezy noise children make as they struggle to inhale. This is in contrast to the usual asthmatic wheeze, which occurs with exhalation. With croup the virus infection causes inflammation, swelling, and often spasm in the upper airway (vocal cords and trachea or windpipe). The children are often very hoarse and can be quite distressed and frightened as are the child's parents. Often the child will be driven urgently to the E.R. only to seem fine when he/she arrives having been made much better by the cool night air.

Younger children with their smaller airways or any child who has a congenital airway problem are more apt to be prone to croup, but it also seems that some otherwise healthy children are more predisposed to croup and may have it frequently. Interestingly, there is often a family history of croup in a parent who was prone to it as a child. Even though croup is most often associated with parainfluenza (75 percent of cases) other viruses such as influenza or RSV may also cause croup.

We used to see a serious form of croup, called epiglottitis, caused by the bacteria Haemophilus influenza that we have nearly wiped out with Hib vaccines. Children who are not adequately vaccinated however are still at risk for epiglottitis. Any parent who has witnessed a case of epiglottitis would never even consider withholding vaccine from their child. Croup from viruses however is pretty hard to prevent. Children at risk should get their flu shot but there is no vaccine for the most common cause parainfluenza.

Croup usually can be treated at home. The child should as much as possible be kept calm, and cool moist air does help. Taking the child outside or into the bathroom with the shower running may have a dramatic effect to "break" the stridor. A child who is drooling or is unable to speak or cry or if they continue to have a lot of difficulty breathing in spite of the cool air should be seen urgently by a physician.

Therapies for the sicker child seen in the hospital or physician's office include breathing treatments with epinephrine, which may have a dramatic effect, steroid medication either inhaled, orally, or by injection to decrease the inflammation, and "croup tents" which surround the child in a fog of moist cool air. Only rarely will a child with viral croup need to be incubated or have a tracheotomy done.

Steroids if used are generally given for a short course so side effects are minimal and they are effective to decrease symptoms. Because croup like most respiratory illnesses is viral antibiotics are not indicated except in rare instances when a bacterial cause is suspected. Children will often seem better during the day to only get croupy again at night. It is good to run a vaporizer and cool their sleeping room down before the child is put to bed if they have croup. Any fever or discomfort may be treated with acetaminophen or ibuprofen. Generally symptoms will resolve within one week and the restful nights will return.

Dr. Roderic Timney is a pediatrician for Pine River Medical Center located at 14734 Park Avenue in Charlevoix. He can be contacted at (231) 547-6554.

* Bolt's Farm is the place to be in October for harvest family fun.

The farm, located off C-48 between Ellsworth and Atwood, 10 miles south of Charlevoix, is home to a premier corn maze carved into about 15 acres of stalks.

This year's theme, "Lost in space," takes maze mania to a scientific level where participants can learn about the planets while navigating the challenging trail.

According to farm owner, Russ Bolt, this celestial adventure is ideal for children over 5 years old.

Those who do not wish to test their maze skills can peruse the bountiful harvest including squash and pumpkins as well as fruits, vegetables, gourds, acorns and other Fall decor.

The farm is open from 10 a.m. to dark seven days a week. Cost to venture into the maze is $5 for adults and $3.50 for children over 6. Those under 6 are admitted free of charge.

So pack a lunch, pack up the kids and get lost at Bolt's Farm. For more information call (231) 588-6384.

'Must reads' from library director Valerie Meyerson

The following is a list of age specific books selected by Charlevoix Public Library director Valerie Meyerson for October reading.

Ruth Krauss, "Bears," Ages 2-6

Maurice Sendak, author of "Where the wild things are," reinterprets Krauss' original 27-word rhyming text from 1948 as a joyous romp by a group of delightful bears. The visual story begins on the title page with the all too familiar "Max" taking his teddy bear from his dog, only to have the dog snatch it away and begin a chase around the house and through the bears. It is in the chase after his teddy bear that Max encounters many of the bears that are "everywhere." At the end of the chase, the dog is tucked contentedly in bed, replacing the teddy bear. Sendak's colored drawings are irresistible. The rhyming text flows beautifully within Sendak's visual interpretation. Kids will love the re-birth of Max on another fun romp through their imagination.

Simon Puttock, "Big bad wolf is good," Ages 4-8

The Big Bad Wolf, feeling lonely, vows to change his image and make friends by being useful, good, and noble. But no one believes he's reformed. The slight, silly narrative, accompanied by textured illustrations, follows the wolf as he's first rejected by Mrs. Goose, Mrs. Chicken, and Mrs. Duck and then welcomed when he finds and returns (instead of eats) Mrs. Duck's lost duckling. Young children, who are familiar with the Big Bad Wolf, will delight in his new found persistence in being a better wolf.

Patricia Reilly Giff, "Willow Run," Ages 9-12

During World War II, after moving with her parents to Willow Run when her father gets a job in the B-24 bomber-building factory, 11-year-old Meggie learns about different kinds of bravery from all of the people around her. Meggie was first introduced in Giff's Newberry Honor book, "Lily's Crossing." This tough and tender book is an excellent selection for the historical fiction assignment.

Leslie A. Dendy, "Guinea pig scientists," Ages 10-16

This fascinating investigation of how, when, and why scientists have experimented on themselves deepens the reader's understanding of a passion for knowledge in spite of inherent risks. The individual stories, told in clear, vivid language, often laced with the scientist's own words; will live on in memory as both examples and warnings. While this book does not address the ethical issues of self-experimentation, it is loaded with factual knowledge. It includes a "Now We Know" supplement to each chapter, showing how human science has been extended since the time of the experiment, an excellent selection of resources, and an explanation of how the writers chose the stories they told. Kids will be fascinated with what science can be and how it affects our everyday lives.

All of these books are available at Charlevoix Public Library located at 109 Clinton Street in Charlevoix. For more information contact Meyerson at (231) 547-2651.

FBO agreement at airport raises eyebrows

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

A debate that divided Charlevoix City Council in 2003 has resurfaced.

Negotiations are underway to establish a fixed base operator agreement between the City of Charlevoix and Island Airways. This seemingly simple process has produced the same wrangle that came up during the last round of contract discussion in 2003.

"We're breaking the law by not bidding this out. The city code states that all contracts over $20,000 must be bid out," Shirley Gibson, a third ward Charlevoix City Council member, said.

At the heart of the debate are members of council, the governing body that enacts the agreement, who are split as to whether the operator's function is a contractual agreement which by law must be bid out.

However, city attorney Jim Young has said it is within the city's right to enter an operator's agreement with Island Airways without entertaining bids.

Young has maintained the FBO agreement is a lease agreement under which the city is giving Island Airways license to operate on city owned property. In return the city takes in some money for fees the airline collects and they perform various services. Young said this type of agreement is not subject to a bid requirement.

The airport committee, which was formed about two years ago, has agreed to request a second opinion on this issue. At this time an attorney has not been selected for the review.

On Monday, Sept. 26 the airport committee, of which Gibson is a member, met to discuss the issue and review figures compiled by airport manager Jim Shull.

The figures showed that under the current agreement with Island Airways, the city makes about $26,000. On the flip side, Shull's figures in a scenario with the city operating the airport calculate a loss of over $45,000.

Further calculations of what another operator could produce at the airport, acting in the same capacity as Island Airways, show a loss to that fictitious operator to come in at about $120,000.

"I don't think any company, or professional carrier would present a bid when it's obvious that there's no way to make a profit," Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner said.

City mayor, Norman Carlson, said that setting the airport up for failure isn't in the city's best interest.

"The city is uncomfortable setting someone up to fail. We would have to go back to the former FBO and say, 'Save us.' That would cost us a lot more money. Why should we put ourselves in the position to hurt the taxpayers in the long-run," Carlson said.

There has been debate between members of Charlevoix City Council who feel the Fixed Base Operator agreement between the City of Charlevoix and Island Airways is a contract over $20,000 that should be bid out, and those that don't feel bids are necessary.

Based on this information, the committee recommended that council stick with Island Airways.

The details of the agreement are still being hammered out. But the gist of the five-year agreement to take effect in April of 2006 requires Island Airways to perform maintenance functions at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport as well as provide plane service to Beaver Island in exchange for use of the city's terminal, runways and facilities.

The committee further recommended that council add the following terms to the agreement — Island Airways pays half the utilities for the snow removal equipment building currently under construction and that fuel sale prices remain the same for self and full service fuel.

Through the contract, Island Airways is given exclusive lease of the city's fuel farm system in exchange for year-round maintenance and operating services at the airport. These services include mowing, snow and ice removal, grounds work, maintenance at the terminal building and of the radio system and payment of most utilities.

Under the current contract the city pays Island Airways $7,000 a year to provide all operating services it requests including maintaining the Unicom radio, issuing advisories and answering questions about airport and weather conditions, providing guidance and assistance in parking, filing notices to airmen, enforcing city rules pertaining to airport operations, maintaining a record of commercial landings, issuing parking permits and collecting tie down fees.

While Wiesner said Island Airways is the most cost effective direction to take with airport operations, Gibson says that isn't for the city to decide and bids should be taken.

"It's a cozy relationship," she said of the agreement with Island Airways.

VFW Post 1153 to host grand opening of hall

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The members of Veteran's of Foreign Wars Post 1153, whose building was vandalized on several occasions and finally burned beyond repair at around 2 a.m. Dec. 10, will soon open their new building.

According to Veterans Affairs Administrator, Bob Drebenstedt, the VFW Post 1153 is more than just a place for people to hold weddings. He said it's a home away from home for veterans and a place for fellowship between those who have served their country and their relatives.

"In just about any family you have a relative who was in the service so no one goes untouched from wanting to see the things we will put up."

"They will see some history inside the building that will hopefully spark them back to grandpa's day when he was in World War II, so it's a nostalgic journey for some when they come back into the new building," Drebenstedt said. "Hopefully we'll educate people that come and see the open house."

According to Drebenstedt, the VFW hall will offer more space than the American Legion hall.

The official opening of the new building on the grounds of the original VFW Post 1153 will take place at 2 p.m. Oct. 15 at the site of the VFW's previous building located at 12735 U.S. 31 North, right next door to Brady's Carpet Cleaning during an open house ceremony where the public will be welcome.

VFW 1153 post commander, Charlie Butcher, said the hall will be available for rental shortly after the ceremony in mid-October.

"We already have some advanced bookings into next year," he said.

While bingo was one of the big events at the post previously, the members of post 1153 haven't decided on whether to bring it back, although things like a fish fry, weddings, receptions and reunions will occur there.

Charlie Butcher, commander of the VFW Post 1153 added, "We do not plan to start bingo in the near future."

With all the negativity and speculation concerning the fire and later the murder of one of its members by another member which surrounded the old VFW building, Drebenstedt said, hopefully the new building will symbolize a new beginning.

"We want a healing process to take place," he said.

The VFW post also helps veterans and their family members in times of need when a military member is called up for duty or overseas for great lengths of time.

"When the reserve and guard people are being called up to active duty and the wife has no other place to turn they'll call me as a last resort and the VFW will get more in the niche of helping those left behind," Drebenstedt said.

He added, "This is just like anything else brand new, we hope to start brand-new with more opportunities to use that facility than the way it was used in the past."

According to Drebenstedt, aside from offering a place to host functions, the VFW hall is also a place where people can work off community service when necessary.

The home of VFW Post 1153 was formally dedicated in 1953 during the 13th District Rally. Before that time, the post and its auxiliary functioned out of the second floor of a building in downtown Charlevoix.

VFW Post 1153 received its charter on June 16, 1937 and has continuously served the community. The building that became the post's home in 1953 took two years to build and was constructed almost entirely by volunteer labor, including the plumbing and wiring. And, a second addition was added in the 1970s followed by the addition of a garage in the 1990s.

Various dignitaries including U.S. Congressman Bart Stupak, State Sen. Jason Allen and State Rep. and Kevin A. Elsenheimer have been invited to the open house and the public is welcome.

For information on booking the hall or donating equipment call Butcher at (231) 547-4724. Or mail donations to VFW Post 1153 P.O. Box 753, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720.

Survey shows another ferry needed to service island

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

The future of passenger ferry service from Charlevoix to Beaver Island may include a new boat.

A study called the Beaver Island Transportation Coordination Study, undertaken this summer by the Beaver Island Transportation Authority in conjunction with the Detroit consulting firm, The Corradino Group, reviews the symbiotic relationship between Charlevoix and Beaver Island.

"The consultant believes acquiring a new or used vessel with capacity similar to the Emerald Isle is critical to ensuring the integrity of the economic well-being of Charlevoix," the study's authors state.

The research included open forum discussion, a survey and data analysis estimates. Its authors conclude that transportation to and from the island with a mainland hub on Round Lake in downtown Charlevoix, brings nearly $2 million a year to Charlevoix County's economy.

Chairman of the authority, Richard Gillespie, said the Emerald Isle, a boat launched in 1997 and funded with grant writing assistance from Northern Lakes Economic Alliance, is integral to the economic vitality of the island and Charlevoix.

The Emerald Isle stretches 130 feet in length, travels 13.5 knots and holds 295 passengers, 20 cars and light trucks and one heavy truck with bus capacity.

Passenger use of the Emerald Isle almost doubled in the eight years between 1995 and 2003 while the number of vehicles it carries fell from 2000 to 2003.

With fast paced development of the island and increased tourist activity the study suggests a second ferry would decrease the likelihood of a major economic hit were the Emerald Isle to require major repair.

"A breakdown of the Emerald Isle would be disastrous for the island if it were out for any length of time," authors of the study state.

The authors explain that the Beaver Islander has limited storage and chronic engine trouble and is not an ample replacement vessel for the Emerald Isle. The Beaver Islander is 98-feet long, travels at 13 knots and holds 200 passengers and 12 automobiles or light trucks. It has no space for a heavy truck.

The Beaver Islander is currently used on days when more than two round trips are required.

The study also suggests that growth patterns will result in the need for additional vehicular capacity by 2008.

"These data indicate that planning for additional ferry capacity for vehicles should begin now," the authors state.

Cost and operational factors were accounted for in looking at desirable features of a new vessel. In looking to future, the authors suggest a monohull vessel, similar to the Emerald Isle or an open deck ferry.

"There does not appear to be justification for the expense of a highly sophisticated vessel such as a hovercraft that may be able to operate year-round or a catamaran that can travel twice as fast as the Emerald Isle," the authors state.

Passenger boat service between Charlevoix and Beaver Island is currently offered from mid-April through early December.

While the study presents a case for purchasing a new boat, it also points at insufficient parking in the area of the Beaver Island Boat Company in Charlevoix.

It goes on to suggest that if the United States Coast Guard does not replace the cutter ACACIA after the buoy tender is decommissioned in 2006 the parking lot spaces currently reserved for the ACACIA crew could be used for freight and temporary parking of ferry patrons.

Off-site parking, is currently provided at the Charlevoix Middle School and the Charlevoix Municipal Airport.

The study also suggests the authority partner with the City of Charlevoix to evaluate a long-term plan for the boat company's wharfage in Charlevoix.

"It's obvious we need more wharf space," Gillespie said. "If the space comes available I hope we can work together to accommodate the needs of private boaters in the marina and the Beaver Island Transportation Authority."

At this time, Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner is not willing to pursue such a study. He said any planning for the space might deter Coast Guard representatives from relocating a vessel to Charlevoix.

Funding for the study was provided by the authority as well as the Michigan Department of Transportation.

Motorcycle travelogue films in Charlevoix

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The production company, Storytelling Pictures from Grand Rapids recently visited Charlevoix to shoot a segment for an upcoming 30-minute motorcycle travelogue entitled, "Two Wheels Good."

Company owners, Corey Niemchick and John Evans, journeyed hundreds of miles across the state to tape at Whitney's Oyster Bar Sept. 27. They chose Whitney's because, according to Niemchick, they have vacationed in Charlevoix and always loved dining there.

"I think it's (Charlevoix) my favorite northern Michigan town and Whitney's is excellent because it has that New England harbor town feel," Niemchick said.

This may be the first episode of "Two Wheels Good," but Niemchick and Evans are no novice riders having sojournd through the brutal heat of Death Valley, Calif. the beauty of Colorado's Rocky Mountains and the exotic haunts of the Hawaiian Islands.

And, despite having traveled all over the globe working with their film and video production company, Evans and Niemchick decided to start their new program in their home state, Michigan.

"We're filming a television pilot that is a motorcycle travelogue called 'Two Wheels Good' about two guys on bikes exploring the scenic side of a given state," Niemchick said. "Half of the show is to experience the unique people, places and points of interest that dot the map along the way."

"The other half of the show is to give people a slice of hometown America," he added.

The episode Niemchick and Evans are working on will cover points of interest including the Mackinac Bridge, the oldest operational fire hall in Michigan, Sleeping Bear Dunes and, of course, Charlevoix among others.

As one of eight points of interest in the pilot episode, the segment shot at Whitney's will be about a minute to a minute-and-a-half in the approximately 24-minute show.

Niemchick said the taping of the show takes three to four days of riding around the state, while the pre-production took two to three months to complete.

Niemchick and Evans began riding for the show on Sunday evening, Sept. 25, in a "literal torrential downpour," Niemchick said.

Evans has been riding the roads on motorcycle for between 15-20 years while Niemchick said he has been riding for 10-15 years. For the first episode of "Two Wheels Good," Niemchick drives a shiny, rumbling, blue, 2005 Harley-Davidson Heritage Soft Tail and Evans, right by his side rides the 2005 bright red, Harley-Davidson Road King.

Niemchick said, he and his partner plan to air the program in cities across Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and Chicago. And, once the show is finished, "Two Wheels Good" will have a Web site wherefrom people can download the route from a particular program.

"People can follow the same route, take the same journey," visit the same places," he said.

According to Niemchick, he hopes to have discounts at the various destinations highlighted for those who wish to make the trip.

In addition to highlighting local bed and breakfasts, restaurants, breweries, hotels and historical landmarks, Evans and Niemchick will employ music from bands native to Michigan for the show's soundtrack in an effort to utilize Michigan's assets.

Once the Web site www.twowheelsgood.net is complete, fans of the show will be able to download maps, order DVDs of the show, merchandise, submit suggestions for show locations as well as music samples from local bands hoping to have their songs used on the show.

Lady Rayder basketball team take five straight

By ALLEN TELGENHOF

The Charlevoix Rayders continued their winning ways with a 73-48 win over Grayling.

Charlevoix has now won five straight, including a 3-0 start in the Lake Michigan Conference, still coach Keith Haske wasn't entirely satisfied with the Rayders' effort.

"I thought we struggled on defense at times," Haske said. "We need to do a better job communicating on the floor and creating ball pressure. We have a big week of league games coming up and we need to do a better job in those areas."

Charlevoix (6-2) led at each of the quarter breaks, 26-16, 42-29 and 58-42.

Laura Nitchman pulled off a rare triple-double with 14 points, 14 assists and 11 steals.

Stevie Murray led the Rayders in scoring with 19 points and pulled down 12 rebounds. Shannon Dible added 12 points on four three-point shots.

The Rayders traveled to Traverse City St. Francis on Tuesday, Oct. 4 to play the 10th ranked Gladiators. Kalkaska travels to Charlevoix to take on the Rayders on Thursday, Oct. 6.

Rayder Golf team to tee off at regional tourney Oct. 6

It's on to the regionals for the Charlevoix High School golf team.

The Rayders shot 338 to place third in the Division III district tournament at Champion Hill in Honor last week to claim a spot in the regional tournament on Thursday, Oct. 6, at Manistee National.

The Rayders will join 11 other teams at the regional, and the top three teams there advance to the state tournament Oct. 14-15 at The Meadows on the campus of Grand Valley State University in Allendale. The players who record the low six scores who are not on state-qualifying teams also advance to the state tournament from the regional.

Dan Murphy shot 74 to capture medalist honors and lead Roscommon to the team title in the district tournament at Champion Hill. The Bucks finished with a 317 team score, while Grayling was second, 335; and the Rayders finished with 338.

Kalkaska was fourth, 342; followed by host Benzie Central, 345; Elk Rapids, 349; and Lake City, 369. All six advance to the regional along with the top six teams from District Tournament No. 22, which was played at Katke Golf Club in Big Rapids.

Big Rapids shot 335 to win that district, followed by Montague, 342; Mason County Central, 343; Newaygo, 350; Stanton Central Montcalm, 352; and Shelby, 362.

Senior Kyle DeYoung overcame a double-bogey and a triple-bogey to shoot 81 and lead Charlevoix in its district tournament.

"He's come on real strong and he's focused and has a good positive attitude going into regionals," Charlevoix coach Jim Glynn said.

Also for the Rayders, junior Kris Bartling shot 83, Chase Beatty shot 86, Stephen Parker shot 88, and J.D. Speigl shot 92.

"We played well," Glynn said. "It was super windy, we didn't get any rain, but the wind was, I'm going to say, three clubs and it would magnify any mistakes that you made. You had to play the wind, even when you were putting."

Football team one win away from making the playoffs

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Despite 14 penalties and a scoreless second half, the Charlevoix Rayders managed to beat the Kalkaska Blue Blazers Sept. 30.

With a score of 7-6 it was not the most decisive of victories, but a win is a win, and this win puts the Rayders just one game from playoff territory.

"We played pretty well defensively and overall we played really well, but our middle linebacker got hurt so we had to pick that up," said head coach Don Jess.

Chris Aepelbaeher spent the entire 2004 season on the sidelines due the same separated shoulder which put him out of Friday's game.

"It was a tough break," Jess said. Charlevoix scored on their second play of the game with a 73-yard touchdown run by quarterback Matt Kautz. Russell Williams scored the extra point making it 7-0 Charlevoix.

The Blue Blazers threw a touchdown pass in the second quarter but missed the extra point putting things at 7-6 for the rest of the evening.

Kautz had 11 carries for 86 yards, Williams had 16 carries for 95 yards and Eddie Waldron had five receptions for 52 yards.

On defense, Jeff Golovich had 17 tackles and a sack and Evan Keller had 10 tackles and a sack.

"Jeff Golovich had an outstanding game," Jess said. Currently, Traverse City St. Francis is in first place in the Lake Michigan Conference while Charlevoix is in a three-way tie with Grayling and Boyne City.

The Rayders are 3-1 in the league and 5-1 overall. "We only have to win one to make the playoffs," Jess said.

According to Jess, the biggest concern heading in to homecoming Oct. 7 against Harbor Springs is keeping the kids focused on the opposition.

"We've got some filling in to do with our middle linebacker and we have to go over some things to make sure we're ready to go for Friday," he said. "They (Harbor Springs) have been down for a while. They haven't won a game this year but the kids will still have to go out and execute."

Jess added, "We've got a chance. As long as we take care of business on Friday we'll be in the playoffs."

The Rayders hope to tame the Rams of Harbor Springs at 7 p.m. Oct. 7 on Kipke Field for Charlevoix's Homecoming.

The Charlevoix boys' cross country team met Saturday, Oct. 1 in Carson City for the Carson City Crystal Invitational.

"The best teams in the state were there and now we know what we need to do to compete with them," said coach Ken Plude. "The boys proved this weekend that they deserve to be ranked in the top 20 by beating four of the teams ranked ahead of them."

Jacob Wimmer finished in 30th place for a time of 17 minutes and 23 seconds. He was followed by Brandon Stevens in 40th with 17:37; Nick Wimmer in 48th with 17:47; Scott Plude in 49th with 17:48; Isaac Matchett in 53rd with 17:49 and Dustin Arp in 56th with 17:53.

The junior varsity team was led by Jacob Hunt in 6th place with a time of 18:06. He was followed by Alex Buday in 7th with 18:14; Zach Scharenbrach in 21st with 18:29; Nate Sotuyo with 18:30; Sam Balasz with 18:43; Joe Graham with 18:59;

Nate Gilmore with 19:30 and Chuck Mason with 19:41.

Charlevoix placed 8th out of 27 teams. Plude said, "Nick Wimmer, Dustin Arp, Jacob Hunt and Sam Balasz had exceptional races this weekend and deserve special recognition."

The Charlevoix girls cross country team also competed in the Carson City Crystal Invitational.

Top runner for Charlevoix's varsity team was Lindi Edger who placed 8th with a time of 20:02. She was followed by Britney Lamb in 25th with 20:57; KC McCarty in 63rd with 22:10; Emily Westbrock in 73rd with 22:25; Caitlin Taylor in 82nd with 22:46; Lauren Bradley in 83rd with 22:48 and Mia Matchett in 87th with 22:54.

The junior varsity was led by Chantel Novotny with 23:39. She was followed by Lisa Kuebler with 23:44; Kristina Alden with 24:09 and Shelby Goss with 24:14.

Charlevoix took 10th place overall out of 27 large class C and small class B teams.

CMS football defeats Kalkaska

On Tuesday, Sept. 20, the Charlevoix Middle School Rayder Football team defeated the Kalkaska Blazers 7-6. Charlevoix scored first on a 5 yard touchdown pass from J.T. Lawrence to Gunner Whitley in the second quarter. Justin Williams kicked the extra point.

Quarterback Clayton Mitchell was five for seven for 12 yards passing and Lawrence led the Rayders with six tackles. Johnstone, Mitchell and Ian Gauthier also had fumble recoveries for the defense.

Charlevoix is 1-0 and hosted Harbor Springs Tuesday, Sept. 27. Results from this game were not available by press time.

Fall color hikes from the townships to the city

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

A drive through the countryside in autumn can be nice, but there are other ways to see the annual arboreal color change — while getting exercise and saving on gas — take a hike.

Instead of spending a day in a cramped car, grab a camera, put on your favorite flannel, pack a picnic lunch and get a hikers-eye-view of the fantastic foliage all around Charlevoix.

From the Web site www.michiganranger.com the northern Lower Peninsula is at "five percent to 35 percent color reported. Peak colors are still one to two weeks away."

Three top notch destinations for beginner hiking and fantastic viewing are the Ransom Nature Preserve, Mt. McSaubia and Fisherman's Island State Park. The terrain ranges from flat to hilly.

If you're looking for a shorter hike, you might want to try the trails at Mt. McSaubia. McSaubia offers both hilly and flat trails suitable for novice hikers and kids.

If you're looking for a longer walk, the Ransom Nature Preserve at the end of Maple Grove Road in Hayes Township has 80 acres of land and about a mile-and-a-half of trail to tackle. The trails are well groomed and hilly. And, if you're not up for a walk, the Ransom Preserve has a scenic overlook at which you can view much of western Charlevoix.

If the long haul is what you are about, Fisherman's Island campground off Bell's Bay Road offers three miles of hiking trails which include both dense forest and open meadows. If you walk the distance and back you can easily turn this hike into an afternoon of fun.

The nice thing about this trail system is you don't have to drive into the park to fit the trail as there is a trail head approximately a few hundred yards before the entrance of the campground on the south side of the road. Fisherman's Island trail system is also good for anyone who enjoys a walk through nature.

While the Ransom area has probably the best viewing, all three destinations have a place to park and check out the brilliant colors. And, all three locations have nice views of trees guaranteed to dazzle onlookers with oranges, reds and yellows.

The different colors of the leaves are a result of the temperature, water content and sunlight but also from chlorophyll which makes leaves green, anthocyanins which makes them red and carotenoid which accounts for yellow, orange and brown.

The colder fall weather tends to cutoff the production of chlorophyll and this is when the bold red, yellow, orange, purple etc. begin to appear. When it becomes cold enough to freeze, the trees cease to turn their beautiful colors and begin turning black.

While you are out peeping the leaves, you may also spy turkey, white tail deer, chipmunks, squirrels, porcupine, skunk and many other species of wildlife Michigan has to offer.

As with any type of trip through the woods there are some things you can do to ensure the highest level of fun, comfort and safety.

Dress appropriately — anyone from Michigan knows how fast the weather can change. Bring plenty of water and a snack. There are many things you could bring with you on a hike and plenty of Web sites out there to help you put together a hiking kit such as www.redercross.org/services/hss/tips/hiking.html. But, if you avoid straying from the trail, you should be just fine.

Week-long homecoming festivities underway

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Move over Charles and Camilla, the royalty of Charlevoix will soon be in the spotlight.

For Rayder seniors, the 2005 school year will likely be one filled with bittersweet feelings and thoughts of leaving an institution they have known for so many years. But the upcoming ceremony and festivity of homecoming is a time of excitement and jubilation.

With 10 candidates for homecoming king and queen comprised of athletes, scholars and artists, these renaissance men and women will soon know their fate. Will they be wearing a crown or a frown?

The homecoming parade is at 5:30 p.m., Oct. 7. The parade route begins at the former Charlevoix Middle School building off Grant Street, heads down State Street ending at Kipke Field where the football game against Harbor Springs will kickoff at 7:30 p.m.

The crowning ceremony for king and queen of the homecoming court is scheduled for half-time and the homecoming dance will be from 8:30 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 8 in the Charlevoix Elementary School gym.

This celebration will bring with it the crowning of two seniors who will forever be Charlevoix High School's 2005 homecoming court royalty.

Thursday was the 2005 Gigantic Service Auction wherein homecoming court members and class presidents and vice-presidents were auctioned to help raise money for homecoming festivities.

Floats for the homecoming parade were constructed on Sunday, Oct. 2 at various locations around Charlevoix County.

Candidate for queen, 18-year-old Christine Bradley, is the daughter of Buck and Linda Bradley. She has participated in four years of track and field, two years of basketball and cross country and plans to attend college Grand Valley State University.

Candidate for king, 18-year-old Travis Burke, is the son of Kenny and Cindy Burke. He has played football for the Rayders for four years. Burke plans to attend a trade school for mechanics.

Candidate for queen, 17-year-old Shannon Dibble, is the daughter of Dave and Maria Dibble. She is the current president of the National Honor Society, is in her second year as yearbook editor and has played four years of basketball and three years of track and field. Dibble plans to attend college at an undecided location.

Candidate for king, 17-year-old Kyle DeYoung, is the son of Randy and Renee DeYoung. Kyle is a golfer, baseball player and enjoys squash and water polo. DeYoung plans to pursue a business degree at an undecided location.

Candidate for queen, 17-year-old Liz Jadwin, is the daughter of Chuck and Nora Jadwin. She has been a member of the basketball team for four years, tennis team for two years and volleyball team for three years. Jadwin is also treasurer for both student council and the National Honor Society. She plans to attend the University of Michigan or Michigan State University.

Candidate for king, 16-year-old Michael Greyerbiehl, is the son of Mark and Vicki Greyerbiehl. He is a member of student council, class co-president for his third year, a tennis player, a football player and a volunteer for junior achievement. He enjoys Ping-Pong, croquet and putt-putt golf. Greyerbiehl plans to attend Michigan State University or Grand Valley State University.

Candidate for queen, 17-year-old Lisa Kuebler, is the daughter of Doug Kuebler. She has spent four years on the cross country team and three years on the soccer team. She has been on student council as class officer for three years and plans to attend Northern Michigan University.

Local non-profits feel the squeeze of Katrina donors

The United Way funds about 25 different agencies in the area which range from the American Red Cross to the Alamo Club, Clifford DuPont said. "But to local stuff, not the national the agencies."

As a result of the large-scale emergency which occurred in the south, Clifford DuPont said, "We had some things planned which we delayed about a month to let the whole Katrina thing settle down a bit."

Clifford DuPont said, she understands the need in other places, but there are still people at the local level who need assistance.

"We still need their money here at home," she added.

According to Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation executive director, Lyn Jenks, it is difficult to say how much of an impact the hurricane disasters in the south have made so far.

"At this point in time it's hard to say. We seem to be about the same as last year but we might be a little behind usual support," she said.

Jenks said she expects support to drop some when there is an increased pressure by so many charities for gifts.

"At times like this where all charities have to accept that there is a greater good, and there is a finite pool of philanthropic dollars, we all need to dig a little deeper and help out where the need is the greatest," she explained.

The foundation has many programs and services to which people can donate their dollars.

"They can help local people in the area not only with health care services at the hospital but with staying well with health education and health promotion activities," Jenks said.

According to Pastor Ryp Hankins of the Charlevoix Assembly of God, the church's food pantry is keeping pace with need but donations of nonperishable food items as well as health and beauty aids are always welcome.

"What we are seeing is an immediate increase of applicants coming in," he said. "There is a sharp increase and I feel that's directly attributed to the rise in fuel prices and the anticipated sharp increase in winter fuel."

Hankins added, "I think food pantries across the immediate north country will see a sharp increase in usage."

Anyone interested in donating to the CharEm United Way can send checks to P.O. Box 22, Charlevoix, MI 49720 or call (231) 237-9551. Anyone wishing to help the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation can call (231) 547-8502. Those wishing to donate food pantry items can call (231) 547-6430.

City files suit against insurance carrier

Charges to be filed in Mackinaw County

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

The City of Charlevoix is aggressively pursuing reclamation of over $220,000 it lost in a check mishap that happened over a year ago.

On Oct. 6 city attorney Jim Young received word that the city's insurance carrier, Michigan Municipal League Liability and Property Pool, had been served with the city's lawsuit.

The suit, which is on file in Charlevoix County Circuit Court, claims the city's insurer should have compensated the city for its losses and defended it in a lawsuit filed by United Fire and Casualty.

The lawsuit the city feels should have been covered, stemmed from a check that was written on April 2, 2004 to CCMS and Associates, a contractor out of Sault Ste. Marie hired by the city in 2001 to work on roads and sidewalks.

However, the check was supposed to be written to CCMS insurer, United Fire and Casualty. United was then to pay subcontractors hired by CCMS for those projects.

A report given to council in February, outlining why the mistake was made pointed to miscommunication.

Charlevoix City Treasurer Rick Brandi, who was on vacation when the check was issued, claims he was not aware United Fire was supposed to be paid instead of CCMS. United Fire claims they sent a letter to Brandi with check writing instructions, prior to his vacation, but Brandi says he never received it.

Brandi's stamped signature as well as that of deputy city clerk Stephanie Brown, appeared on the check. At that time, Brown was sitting in for former clerk Liz Gooch, who had resigned.

When Brandi realized the check was issued in error, he called the city's bank and tried to stop payment but it was too late. CCMS owner William Montgomery had cashed the check.

This mistake resulted in United Fire and Casualty suing the city. In December of 2004 the city agreed to end the suit by paying United Fire the over $220,000 it already

BASES loses contract with the Char-Em ISD

Financial loss to result in reduction of full-time staff

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

BASES, the local drug counseling services organization, plans to cut its staff in the wake of a loss of $28,500.

BASES executive director, Scott Kelly said, as a result of the lost contract with the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District and other issues, he will be forced to let go one of his four full-time staff members.

"We're looking at laying off a full-time counselor. The ISD has had a contract with BASES since the 1992-1993 school year," Kelly said. "The contract was to coordinate the Safe and Drug Free Schools program."

Until now, BASES worked with all 11 schools in the district helping them utilize federal funds for violence and drug prevention.

Kelly said formation of the Coordinator of School Safety Programs position at the intermediate school district which will be filled by current City of Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson in November, eliminated the need for BASES to continue writing grants for them.

According to Kelly, he expected a cut to the program because the $64,000 in federal money received last year was reduced to $57,000.

"January 2005 this whole federal program was on the chopping block according to president Bush but in late spring there were some maneuvers to continue it at lesser amount," he said.

But, Kelly said, it wasn't until the end of summer that he found out BASES would be losing the funds altogether.

"We learned in late August that they had pulled the contracts," he said. "It's a huge decline from the $64,000 it was last year."

"The bulk of that was writing the grant, doing the report and the mid-term report," he said. "The moneys received by each school are relatively small compared to the amount of moneys received in the grant so it worked out better to have a consortium of schools."

Kelly added, "Another big part of the project was to consult with all the school administrators and staff and help provide them with resources and materials for drug and violence prevention programs."

BASES cuts staff after losing contract for $28,500 with ISD

The $28,500 which BASES will not receive, constitutes just over 10 percent of their budget. Kelly said the program will definitely feel the pinch.

"This contract was initially one of the contracts that got BASES off the ground," he said.

According to Kelly, he isn't certain whether BASES will be working with the intermediate school district in the future.

"We're not sure. Nothing has been talked about at this point," he said.

In the past, BASES worked with 11 public schools and at least five private schools in the district.

Kelly said BASES will, "No longer, be coordinator for those schools but will work with those schools independently."

"We've been through a couple of these types of funding changes through the years," he said. "We'll play it cautious right now, but I would say in six to 12 months we'll be up and running as good as ever — not and we want to maintain that service for schools and students."

He added, "It's kind of an important life lesson, when one door closes, three or four more open."

But, Kelly said, regardless of what happens, he is proud of the work BASES did under the former contract.

"I think the progress in the local area for drug prevention and those types of things is a significant change for the good," he said. "It's been a great opportunity for BASES to work with the school districts for the last 13 or 14 years."

According to Rick Diebold, deputy superintendent of the Charlevoix-Emmet ISD, as far as he knows the district and BASES will continue to work together in other capacities.

"We're still going to continue to keep a relationship with BASES, the only thing they won't be doing is applying for the grant for us," Diebold said. "But all other services they provided they will continue to provide. They're a valuable asset in the region."

He added, "They definitely provide services that are of benefit to schools and we want to maintain that service for schools and students."

According to Diebold, at least 25 people applied for the new Coordinator of School Safety Programs position at the intermediate school district. Halverson's new role is a result of the consolidation of several preexisting positions.

"We took a variety of services we provide in a variety of different ways (grant writing, supervision of AmeriCorps) and we consolidated them into a single position," Diebold said.

He added, Halverson's work in law enforcement and as a school liaison officer, as well as his grant writing experience and master's in educational administration made him the right choice for the job.

"He has all the qualities we were looking for," Diebold said. "He has proven himself (to be) a high quality individual."

Diebold said Halverson is expected to begin the new job in early November at a salary of $51,700. This constitutes a reduction in pay from the $53,500 he is currently making as City of Charlevoix Chief of Police.

paid CCMS.

Bob DeLong, an attorney with Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone, P.L.C. out of Grand Rapids is representing the city in its claim against the Michigan Municipal League.

In DeLong's claim he is requesting reimbursement for the check and attorney fees.

The incident will also likely lead to criminal charges against Montgomery.

Because the check was cashed in St. Ignace city police chief Dennis Halverson has been working with detective sergeant Robin Sexton with the Michigan State Police post there to investigate the matter.

Sexton said a request for charges will be issued with Mackinaw County Prosecuting Attorney Clayton Graham.

Graham said that at this time he has not received Sexton's request. Sexton said he could not confirm when he will issue the request.

Death in perspective: The circle of life

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

Formally, biology is the study of life, but no one gets very far into biology without confronting the end of lives.

At a season of the year when we are confronted daily with the cessation of life in many organisms — plant and animal — it is worthwhile to consider the place of death in the biological world. We are generally so conflicted about death that it is difficult to examine it. It is hard to confront the idea without getting tangled in personal considerations.

For now, we are going to look at death as a part of life, as a part of biology.

It is only necessary to visit the creek alongside St. Mary's Cement Plant to draw the connection of life to death. Forget for the moment that the salmon swimming up the creek are destined for eat food rather than reproduction.

The free-swimming salmon kill and feed on thousands of living creatures in the course of their two or three-year life. In the ordinary circumstances of salmon migration, the fish are converting any substance and energy they have accumulated into a chance at reproduction, and their death is a necessary part of that equation. Having spawned and died, the decaying bodies of the salmon provide energy to the bottom of the stream's food chain and ultimately feed small creatures that nourish the hatchling salmon in the same stream.

More than that, salmon are pulled from the stream and eaten by bear and other smaller carnivores. These animals in turn grow, defecate and finally die, all of which nourishes the surrounding trees and shrubs and herbs and thus help to keep the stream clear and unimpeded by erosion. It is a lovely system, with death at its center. No death,

I like to think that I participate appropriately in that process by killing and preserving for later use some small number of those salmon. This is a thoughtful process, for it is impossible to terminate the life of any creature without contemplating its death and the meaning of that. And, of course, whatever biologically necessary elements are in those salmon do eventually find their way back into Lake Michigan, where they help to grow more salmon or anything else the lake contains. Death as a necessary part of life.

The death of tree leaves and all of our annual plants accomplishes the same life-giving end. Even if burned, such plant "mate" rial contributes its substance to the atmosphere and to the soil. And composting those dead leaves and plants certainly contributes to the life abundant of all the minute creatures involved in decay and decomposition. Again, the dance of life has death at its center.

Fall is my favorite season of the year, possibly because the combination of life and death most clearly reveals the pattern of life on earth. I fully expect to eventually provide for continuing life in Lake Michigan — as close to immortality as I ever hope to achieve.

A solution to the transplant, native battle

Julie Witthoef

'Just a thought'

"So, where are you from," she asked.

"Charlevoix," I said. "Well how long have you lived here," she responded.

"About six years," I said. "So, you don't know anything about Charlevoix," she said.

As much as I enjoy a good insult, I've had it with this snug conversation. I've encountered the same exchange on at least 10 instances in my time here and I've come to the conclusion that there is no number of years of residency or amount of Courier Scrapbook article reading that brings you to, "In the know" status.

I know, I know — once a transplant, always a transplant. It's not even the question, "Where are you from?" which fuels my lividity, it's the condescending tone and gleeful posturing which too often accompanies it.

These exchanges contain a biting tone about my ineptness as it pertains to the area and a deaf ear from the offenders who could care less that, prior to moving here, I spent a decade of summers playing softball on the local rec league, working at local stores and even coming up on wintry weekends to play in the snow.

In my 27 years on earth I've lived in Redford, Brighton, Berkeley, Calif. (for a summer, hold all Berkeley comments), Ann Arbor and Charlevoix. And, after discussing this topic with another transplant, we concluded this is the only place we've lived where it doesn't matter what you've done in life or where you are going. If you weren't born and raised here you aren't worth a pile of pennies.

In my experience this verbal vilification seems to be used as a segue into conversation. And, is generally followed by a tidbit or 12 of knowledge about Charlevoix, past and present.

I welcome this type of information, but I say lead with it. Don't put your gab partner on the defensive before delivering a story by belittling them for geographic reasons. It simply isn't polite.

Perhaps this overzealous behavior is simply a sign of strong community pride. After all, many current and former Charlevoixians proudly share their native status whenever they are away from the area. It could also be the warning signs of some deep-seated anti transplant behavior. Either way this issue must be solved if natives and transplants are to exist harmoniously.

Since I'm not the proverbial queen of quaintness, I called on the big gun of politeness, local etiquette guru Edith Gilbert, for her take on the whole deal. She said, "Instead of asking a direct question which may evoke a defensive response, try an anecdote, that will get the reminiscing ball rolling and it never stops."

Maybe the answer to alleviating the transplant/native tensions would be "Charlevoix immigration standards." Much as immigrants to the United States must learn about America, prospective Charlevoix residents too would be subject to a test before officially becoming "locals."

These transplants-in-training could undergo intensive reeducation at the Historical Society, fudge identification classes and petunia pruning seminars before taking a combination multiple choice and essay examination. Oh, and they would all have to take driving tests because we all know out-of-towners can't drive.

It could be the rite of passage that would finally lay to rest the, "Well let me teach you a thing or two," speech.

Community pride is a positive thing, but I don't necessarily believe a resident of one year has any less pride than a resident of 80 or vice versa. So instead of asking, "Where are you from?" try asking, "How are you today?" At the close of conversation I bet both parties will walk away better for it.

Letter response

Editor:
The letter printed in the Courier concerning the actions of the city manager in the recent check writing fiasco deserves comment and it's hoped you received more than this one.

Dr. Marshall H. Cossman found fault with the use of the words malfeasance and malefaction and provided only one definition of them found in dictionaries. That being "evil doing."

Having a crossword puzzle door in the house leads to all kinds of reference material to accomplish that hobby available. But to satisfy my own curiosity I looked up the two words listed above. Since the matter discussed is headed for legal action it appears what better source is there for clarification than Blacks Law Dictionary.

There was no listing of malefaction but malfeasance and misfeasance did appear. Malfeasance: "Evil doing; unlawful act; Comprehensive term including any wrongful conduct that effects, interrupts or interferes with performance of official duties. Misfeasance a substitute word."

Webster Dictionary: "Malfeasance: Wrong doing or misconduct, especially by a public official."

The word misfeasance appears in the World Book Dictionary as well as the above sources.

Misfeasance: "Wrongful performance of a lawful act; Wrongful and injurious exercise of legal authority."

It appears that Dr. Cossman feels that complete clarification of the original word usage is superfluous (exceeding what is sufficient or necessary).

Regardless of what words are used the word manager means to direct, control, go further and other definitions are charge of and responsible for.

Truman said it best, "If you can't take the heat, get the hell out of the kitchen."

Flip flop fund

Editor:
We are indeed blessed by God in order that we may bless others.

I never really understood that until I went to Uganda, and struggled with the unfairness of the wealth we have in the USA compared to the poverty I saw in Uganda.

Most villagers and all prisoners were without even a pair of flip flops, and I saw many people with wounds on their feet that would probably never heal because they could not protect their feet. We think of shoes as a fashion statement, and forget that they are first and foremost a means to protect our feet.

When I got home from Africa, I looked at my closet floor differently. It occurred to me that a pair of flip-flop sandals in Uganda cost $1. I realized, that if I had a dollar for every pair of shoes I own, I could buy 21 people a pair of shoes in Uganda. Yes, I am not afraid to admit that I have 21 pairs of shoes. Other brave souls at this church will be sharing "their number" with you, too.

This is an example of "blessed to be a blessing." So I challenge you to ask yourself, "What is your number?"

Will you donate $1 for every pair of shoes you own?

Look for the blue Uganda basket in the back of the Charlevoix Community Reformed Church and add to the "Flip Flop Fund." If you wish to write a check, make it out to Charlevoix Community Reformed Church and write "Flip Flops" in the memo line.

I will be sending the money to those who hosted us in Africa, and they have promised to make sure that those who need shoes will receive them.

Thank you on behalf of those who need our help.

Marina project faces another permit setback

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

The United States Army Corps of Engineers permit evaluation of the City of Charlevoix's marina renovation project has faced another setback.

In early August, Patricia Borden, project manager with the regulatory division of the United States Army Corps of Engineers, said the corps' decision whether or not to issue a permit for the project would be ready in mid-August.

At the end of September, Borden retired and a new staffer assigned to the project, Corps project manager Pat O'Connor, is now playing catch-up.

The information was in O'Connor's hands Oct. 4 but as of Oct. 6 he said he hadn't looked at the material. He said Charlevoix can expect some delay due to the change in review command.

"I have to read the history of the file and get up to speed," he said.

The focus of the permit from the corps is environmental. In a recent interview, Borden said in assessing the project and preparing the decision packet they will look at both existing environmental conditions as well as the project's possible environmental impact.

According to city mayor Norman Carlson, this permit which the city expected to be approved in the summer of 2004 is the last piece in the puzzle before the project can be let out for construction bids.

He said no matter what, a dock system whether it be the existing or the new one, will be in the water by June of 2006.

"They can work through the winter. As soon as we get the permit we are going to bid and we'll get it moving. Our intention is fully to get it done before next spring," he said.

While mayor Carlson is optimistic that the project will get done, John Winn, a Charlevoix resident and chairman of the project's major funding agency, the Michigan Waterways Commission, is fed up.

"This is total ineptness. It's mind boggling they've had this for a year. The state (Michigan Department of Environmental Quality) approved it a long time ago and it's rare for the Corps to make changes once the DEQ gives their permit," Winn said.

The other permit required prior to construction was issued by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ) on Feb. 24, 2005 and expires on Dec. 31, 2006.

According to Roxanne Ramirez, an environmental quality analyst with the MDEQ, Charlevoix's initial proposal did not meet the state's permit guidelines. The city issued a modified project plan that was reviewed and accepted.

The marina planning process, which was finalized in September of 2002, proposed replacement of the sea wall, removal of the existing 17 docks which at the furthest point extend 75 feet into Round Lake and replacement of those docks with a 67-slip floating dock system that extends 220 feet into Round Lake at the furthest point.

Ramirez said the city's use of space was a major MDEQ concern in evaluating this initial proposal. MDEQ officials told city management the plan did not stay within the city's riparian interest area.

The newest design keeps boaters from impeding on Ward Brothers operations on the marina's south end and on the Coast Guard area on the north end.

Pier width was also reduced. The initial proposal for the northernmost pier extends 12 feet wide 186 feet into the lake with a 30 foot wide viewing pier running perpendicular to it.

Plans for the viewing pier were scaled back to 16 feet wide. This 12 foot docking pier was the only one whose width was not reduced. The other three piers, which extend 195 feet, 220 feet and 175 feet were all reduced from 12 feet to 8 feet wide.

The plan to run a new sea wall in front of the existing wall to minimize disruption of contaminated soil was nixed as it would require a substantial amount of back filling, disrupting habitat.

Ramirez said this new plan will likely cost the city more as construction crews will have to properly dispose of the contaminated soil but will result in less lake fill.

In December of 2003, 75 percent of this $4.8 million project was secured from the Michigan Waterways Commission and it was announced that Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority would pay for the rest.

Winn explained that in spite of the delays, the 75 percent funding the commission dedicated to the project is not in jeopardy.

"I'm a local citizen looking to get this done before we lose it," he said. "This town is looking so tired. If we can get the park and marina done, people will drive in from the north and south and say, 'This community is on the go.'"

Revised smoking ban approved by health department

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency approved changes in a unanimous vote to the Public Health Clean Air Act of 2005.

The board of health heard comments from the public concerning the act on Sept. 30, but the required number of health board members were not present to vote until Oct. 5.

"This is exactly the way the process is supposed to work," said Gerald Chase, Health Officer for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, who presented the recommended revisions at both meetings. "The Board of Health listened to the community and have addressed many of their concerns with a workplace smoking regulation that makes sense in northwest Michigan."

In response to the concerns some citizens had, the board of health made changes to the original wording of the act which now allows smoking in businesses which employ one person as well as smoking for businesses with vehicles used by one person at a time.

The new wording also allows smoking break rooms as long as they are sufficiently ventilated.

According to Chase, the clean air act was never about forcing smokers to quit.

He said, "Smoking is a personal choice. We take our responsibility to protect public health very seriously and secondhand smoke is a major cause of preventable disease in northern Michigan."

He added, "This regulation will save lives."

The act will soon be presented to boards of commissioners in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties and will become effective within 60 days after the last county board has approved it.

At the public hearing on Sept. 30, Chase said, even in parts of Kentucky, where the tobacco industry is the primary source of jobs and revenue, smoking regulation exists.

"Even where tobacco is king, the smoking bans are stronger than the one we're proposing," he said.

Several board members cited the ill effects of cigarette smoke both direct as well as secondhand and said secondhand smoke is the third leading cause of preventable death in the United States.

Josh Meyerson, Medical Director for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, said, "Cigarette smoke is an acute cause of heart disease and kills 50,000 nonsmokers each year."

Meyerson said children get chronic respiratory illness from secondhand smoke and it increases cancers not just lung cancer.

Chase, who was once quoted as saying, "The response to the worksite smoking ban has been overwhelmingly positive," listened as the majority of the people in attendance to the public hearing spoke out against the ban.

Charlevoix resident Robert Taylor said he is the father of a child with asthma and while he sympathizes with the plight of nonsmokers, he doesn't support the ban.

"I have one problem with this ban and it's something I'm more scared of than dying by other people's cigarette smoke — that's losing our rights," Taylor said. "I don't want to see a small board make a decision for many people. I want it put to a vote of the people."

Taylor's comments brought an eruption of applause from most of the public in attendance.

But, spokesperson for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, Jane Sundmacher said, "The board of health is authorized to make public health regulations according to the public health code of Michigan. So it's not going to go to a (public) vote at this time."

Lynda Page said, "I'm against the smoking ban. My father passed away from cancer and my mother is dying from cancer and she is a nonsmoker but it's the right of anyone to choose whether or not they want to smoke."

Boh Christensen, supervisor of South Arm Township, said Northwest Community Health Agency is superseding the authority of the townships it covers.

Chase responded that this smoking ban is a regulation, not an ordinance.

Apple Festival

October 14 - 16

Apple lovers flock to town for annual festival

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

While they may keep the doctor away, the celebrated fruits won't stop thousands of visitors to the 26th Annual Charlevoix Apple Fest this weekend.

East Park will be transformed into a harvest farm market and craft fair as both locals and out of town visitors flood the area to capture the flavor and character of autumn in northern Michigan, as they sip golden apple cider and bite into 30 varieties of crunchy apples.

"I think it's going to be a fantastic festival. We've had lots and lots of phone calls from people checking dates," Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce President, Jacqueline Merta, said.

This year's event will take place from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Oct. 14 and 15 and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 16.

The first festival, hosted by current sponsors, the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, occurred in 1979. The aim of this fall-based festival was and is to familiarize residents and visitors with the many commodities provided by thriving area orchards and farms.

Northern Michigan is known for its bountiful crop production and three area orchards, Kings Orchard of Central Lake, Friske Orchards of Charlevoix and Cherryview Orchards of Kewadin will be showing off this year's crunchy, sweet products in bright reds, yellows and greens.

According to Judy Friske-Kehr, Director of Retail at Friske's Orchard, in spite of the unusual heat this summer which sped the crop's maturation process, she promises to have plenty of perfect apples in more than 14 varieties of the 27 grown at the orchard.

"It's a good harvest. It's not above average, but it's a good harvest," she said. "With the hot weather all the apples are ripe at once — that's the dilemma — we had to get them off the trees. Having cooler nights slows it down, but we haven't had them."

"We're still harvesting." It usually takes us the month of October to get the crop off," she added.

Some of the apple types you will see at the festival include: Honey Crisp, Macintosh, Red and Golden delicious, Spartan, Empire, Gala, Spy, Jonagold, Crispin and Jonamae.

Friske Orchard reps sell an estimated couple hundred bushels of apples every year at the festival.

But, Friske-Kehr, said, "Our biggest draw is our homemade apple cider cinnamon doughnuts that we fry on site.

Who: Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce

What: Apple Fest

When: Oct. 14-16

Where: East Park

And we're known for our apple cider, caramel apples, pies, cookies and we make a special apple sticky bun."

She added, "Just about as much as we can cram into that tent, we bring."

Aside from the many varieties of fresh apples that will be on-site, other commodities will also be for sale including: Apple cake and pie, cider, honey and jams, fresh donuts, plants and bulbs, hydroponic tomatoes, squash, pumpkins, gourds, Indian corn and more.

In all, 13 food vendors will be ready to tantalize customers with delectable harvest treats.

After shopping for fresh produce and baked goods, festival participants can travel through the craft courtyard filled with 130 vendors showcasing multiple handmade goods.

Or, take a walk back in time and check out the farm machinery that once ruled the fields. The Northern Michigan Antique Flywheelers will exhibit in Bridge Park.

Drive.

Now through Oct. 15, people can donate new blankets to the Bergmann Center and at the AKtion Club's booth next to the Chamber of Commerce during the festival. For more information call Kim Brock at (231) 547-2979.

While families keep busy having fun in the park, merchants are also expecting an influx of shoppers. Merta said Apple Fest popularity plays an important economic role in the community bringing in high volumes of shoppers.

"I think we'll have a great attendance for the festival — it will be a good boost for the economy," she said.

Bone health program coming to Charlevoix Public Library

"Fit to a T," an educational one-hour program will be presented at 6:30 p.m. Oct. 20 at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Varsity basketball beat Kalkaska in OT

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders had a successful homecoming week, defeating conference co-leader Traverse City St. Francis, 60-38, and beating Kalkaska in overtime, 88-75.

"It was a good week for us," coach Keith Haske said. "Those were two good wins."

The win over Traverse City St. Francis was especially big with the Gladiators ranked number eight in the state and having only one non-conference loss coming in.

Adding to the sweetness of the victory was the fact it occurred on St. Francis's own court and came on a night when Rayder star Laura Nitchman was in foul trouble all night.

"We faced a bit of adversity and the kids responded well," Haske commented. "We had a lot of things going against us down there."

Charlevoix jumped out to a 17-10 first quarter lead to take the Gladiators out of the game somewhat. The lead was extended to 28-17 at the half and 45-26 after three quarters.

Juniors Bethany Pearson and Ashley Bradley stepped up with two of their best games of the year. They each scored 17 points. Pearson grabbed 12 rebounds and Bradley pulled down eight.

Nitchman was held to eight points.

Against Kalkaska, the Rayders came back to put on one of the best displays of girls basketball in Charlevoix history.

Nitchman tallied 41 points, 10 assists, 10 steals, seven rebounds and four blocks.

"That's a career for some people," Haske joked. "That was pretty cool."

The triple-double was Nitchman's third of the season.

Shannon Dibble scored 14 points, including four three-point baskets.

"Kalkaska played an excellent game," Haske said. "They shot very well, including 29 for 32 on free throws which is tremendous."

The Rayders led 13-7 after the first quarter, 33-30 at the half and 51-48 headed into the fourth quarter. The game was tied 66-66 at the end of regulation.

"In overtime, the key was Kalkaska got in foul trouble," Haske observed. "They had three girls foul out in overtime. There were a lot of fouls called all night. We finished with four girls with four fouls each and one fouled out."

The Rayders are now 8-2 overall, 6-0 in the conference.

Charlevoix completes the first half of league play, playing at Boyne City on Tuesday and at Elk Rapids on Thursday.

Results from both games will appear in next week's Courier.

Rayder football takes Rams for playoff position

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Not about to spend another Friday night mired in scoreboard ambiguity, the Charlevoix Rayders corralled the Rams of Harbor Springs for a win of 28-6.

By the middle of the second quarter it was obvious the Rayders had no intention of waiting until next week to solidify a playoff berth.

"The kids came out ready to play," said head coach Don Jess. "They executed on offense and on defense and everyone got a chance later on in the game to play."

He added, "It was a good team win — everyone did well."

Entering the playoffs is even more impressive because Charlevoix hasn't done it often in the past.

"This will be the third time in (our) history that we made it," Jess said. "The kids really earned it. They worked hard in the summertime lifting weights and putting in the time it takes to be a playoff team."

When the Rams finally rallied for a fourth quarter touchdown it was too late.

The first touchdown of the game was a one-yard run by Russell Williams, the second was a two-yard run by Quarterback Matt Kautz, the third was a 47-yard run by Kautz and the final touchdown was a pass from Kautz to Darren Munson.

There was also a two point conversion from Kautz to Matt Kanine.

Williams kicked two extra points and had 23 rushes for 89 yards.

Kautz completed seven of 10 passes for 91 yards and he rushed the ball 12 times for 120 yards.

On defense Jeff Golovich had nine tackles, Drew Klooster had eight tackles and Evan Kellar had seven tackles and a fumble recovery.

The Rayders travel to Grayling next. Despite Grayling's loss to Boyne City on Friday, Jess said it should be a tough game.

"They beat us the last couple years. They're going to be tough," he said. "They've got some outstanding athletes — a good wide receiver, a good quarterback — they have some good athletes in skilled positions."

According to Jess, even though his boys made the playoffs, there will be no resting in next week's game.

"We're going to have a couple position changes to work," he said. "We'll work on our passing game, run game and stopping the run on defense."

He added, "They like to throw deep, so we have to work on stopping the deep ball as well."

The Rayders travel to Grayling for the second to last game of the Lake Michigan Conference at 7 p.m. Friday, Oct. 14.

Halfway through the second quarter of the Charlevoix High School homecoming game, the Rayders racked had up a score of 21-0 over the Rams of Harbor Springs. The final score was 28-6.

Rayder golf miss state finals by a single stroke

Stephen Parker

If losing is bad, then losing by one point is torturous. The Charlevoix Rayders golf team ended their season at the regional championship at Manistee National Golf Course with a score of 343.

"The Rayder's finished 5th out of 12 teams, one shot out of third place and a chance to go to the state finals," said coach Jim Glynn.

"Stephen Parker was low shooter for the team with an 84." He added, "The team had a good season. (They) should have a solid chance for next year."

Parker was followed by Chase Beatty and JD Speigl each with an 86 and Kyle DeYoung and Kris Bartling each with an 87.

Cross country teams place in top slots at Oct. 8 invitational

The Charlevoix Rayder cross country teams ran away with top spots at the Northern Lower Peninsula Invitational Saturday, Oct. 8.

According to lady Rayder coach, Mary M. Plude, this was a great race because all the girls ran together with no junior varsity or varsity separations and the medals are given by grade.

"Kristina Alden ran a terrific race very gutsy and it earned her a varsity-position and medal," Mary said. "This was a wonderful race for the team. The time gaps are tightening down from one to five."

She added, "The whole team is keeping closer contact to one another."

Lindi Edger finished in 4th place with a time of 20 minutes and 34 seconds. She was followed by Alina Dhaseleer in 9th with 21:13; Brittney Lamb in 12th with 21:29; KC McCarty in 19th with 22:07; Mia Matchett in 27th with 22:45; Emily Westenhoeck in 30th with 23:01; Kristina Alden in 32nd with 23:07; Caitlin Taylor in 33rd with 23:09; Lauren Bradley in 34th with 23:10; Lisa Kuebler in 40th with 23:28;

Chantel Novotny in 41st with 23:43; Shelby Goss in 45th with 23:56; Christine Bradley in 57th with 25:18; Rachael Nuttall in 66th with 26:20; Lauren Dupuis in 67th with 26:28; Jennifer Rich in 71st with 27:26 and Samantha Shull in 72nd with 27:26.

In team standings Charlevoix was 1st out of twelve teams with 58 points followed by Ogemaw Heights with 68 points; Rogers City with 77 points and Petoskey with 79 points.

According to boys' coach, Ken Plude, his team finished 3rd out of 15 teams this weekend losing to Kalkaska by eight and Hemlock by 11 points.

"Again this team did a great job competing against top ranked teams without one of their best runners who had to sit out because of an injury percussion," Ken said.

Jacob Wimmer led the Rayders by finishing in 10th place with a time of 17:41. He was followed by Isaac Matchett in 17th place with 18 minutes; Nick Wimmer in 18th place with 18:01; Scott Plude in 22nd place with 18:06; Dustin Arp in 23rd place with 18:07; Alex Buday in 24th place with 18:08; Jacob Hunt in 35th with 18:50; Zach Scharenhrach in 37th with 18:57; Nate Gilmore in 39th with 19:03; Joe Graham in 40th with 19:05; Nate Sotuo in 44th with 19:10; Chuck Mason in 45th with 19:13; Sam Balasz in 52nd with 19:43; Dan Myers in 74th with 20:53; Ted Dilworth in 82nd with 21:42 and Roh Shuter in 87th with 22:07.

Looking back at the 'slower life' of 1940

Marilyn Boss
'Days gone by'

It was a slower time of life in 1940, and townspeople knew each other, enjoying times of just stopping what they were doing and chatting together. I certainly enjoyed those times.

Walter Moore lived at Carpenter Avenue and State Street. His daughter Helen, lived with him. She was a little younger than me.

Joseph Moran was a U.S. Coast Guardsman at the Charlevoix station. Nora Moran was a widow (Percy J.), and lived at 217 Clinton St. Her son, Patrick, also lived there and was a clerk at the post office. He later became a mailman with a city route.

Sherman Morse and wife, Araminta, lived at 303 W. Lincoln.

Louis N. Mosier and wife, Carrie, lived at 114 Palmer. He was in the U.S. Coast Guard. His children were Jane and Bill. Mary Louise also lived there.

Charles Munyon and wife, Sharazada, lived at Stover Road and State Street. He was a building mover. Sharazada was a button collector. Ralph Bacot told Dale that Mr. Munyon was busy constantly, moving houses in Charlevoix. When the 1927 school was built on the corner of Mason and Grant, he moved the house that Lola Lewis and family lived in which was located there. He placed it at 306 Mason Street, and they lived there for years. Another house moved by him was pulled up the Grant Street hill and relocated on the southeast corner of Grant and West Hurlbut. That had to be quite a feat, as the hill is steep. Harold and Lucille Byers and family lived there. According to Mr. Bacot, Mr. Munyon had a full-time occupation in town, moving houses.

Alonzo Murray and his wife, Elizabeth lived at 308 Antrim Street. Their children were Helen and William.

Mussallem A. Salem and wife Olga sold antiques at 101 Bridge St. They lived at 106 Park Ave. at the Alhambra Hotel.

Fred Myers and wife Alpha, lived at 104 Park Ave. He was a news dealer and sold cigars and confections at 106 Bridge. He usually had a cigar in his mouth or hand. He also was Vice President of the Charlevoix Savings Bank.

Nellie Myers (John) lived at 704 State St.

John Nasson and wife, Anna, lived at 208 Antrim.

Lance Neff and wife, Esther, lived at 216 W. Upright. He was a painter. Their son was Robert, who in later years owned and operated the Neff Brothers Grocery Store on Bridge Street with his brother, Gordon.

Trine Nelson lived at 1210 State Street. Her daughter Joan lived there, and still does.

Arthur Nettleton was a musician. He lived at 202 Burns.

Douglas Nettleton and wife, Hilda, lived at 604 Bridge. He was a dentist. I can remember him rolling a mercury ball in his bare hands to make filling material for holds in teeth. I often thought in later years, of how he exposed himself to the mercury, as it was such a dangerous metallic chemical element. Doug also was an excellent singer, and he and my dad, Glenroy Ikens, Charlie Hamlin and Frank Poole sang together in a quartet. Doug's dentist shop was at 215 1/2 Bridge Street in 1940. He later moved to Clinton Street.

Rosa Nettleton was a widow (David C.) She was an artist and her works are on display at the Harsha House Museum.

Rev. Fr. Edward F. Neubecker was pastor at St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church. He lived at 102 W. Garfield.

Victoria Neubert was a widow (Charles) and she lived at 401 Park Avenue.

Edward Newman and wife, Nita lived at Division and Meech. He was a veterinary surgeon. Their children Jean V. and Bruce L. Harold and Warren Newman also lived there.

Dent Newville and wife Esther, lived at 208 E. Hurlbut. He was the manager of the A and P Food Store on Bridge Street.

Such were some of the people I knew as a child. I enjoy remembering them, and they all contributed to making Charlevoix what it is today.

Marilyn Boss is a columnist for the Charlevoix Courier. She can be contacted by calling (231) 547-6558 or by e-mail at news@charlevoixcourier.com.

Columnist's note: A note to Dave Schuchard who wrote a letter to the editor published Oct. 5, 2005 referencing that I didn't mention Bob Mol in my article published Sept. 14, 2005 which included information about the Mol family. The reason Bob wasn't included is he was not born in 1940 when the book I am sharing was printed. Thanks Dave for sharing about Bob, he sounds like a great guy.

Boyne City Road at U.S. 31 to reopen this week

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Road construction on Boyne City-Charlevoix Road near the U.S. 31 intersection which began at the end of this summer, on Sept. 7 is scheduled for completion Thursday, Oct. 13.

All the work on the intersection is complete except for some painting.

The construction was originally postponed from the middle of summer to early this fall for considerations of the economy and public safety after the Charlevoix County Road Commission met with residents and business owners of the affected area this July.

The construction, which lasted approximately five weeks, was necessary to repair some serious flaws on the intersection.

The section of Boyne City-Charlevoix Road now has improved drainage, new tile and ditch work and it has been widened.

It also has dedicated left turn lanes to Charlevoix as well as a right turn lane toward Petoskey which will improve the flow of traffic.

This construction project is part of the $1.7 billion dollars spent by the MDOT in fiscal year 2005 on projects which employed over 26,000 workers.

City awards skate park $24,000

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

Charlevoix City Council awarded the non-profit group Charlevoix Community Skatepark, Inc. $24,000, ending the group's wait for materials to finish the city-owned skate park.

"This organization has worked really hard. When they are through the value of the park will be about $150,000. It seems like a $24,000 contribution is a nice percentage," Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner said.

Council made its unanimous decision to fund project materials at its meeting Oct. 17. Council's motion was made contingent on the receipt of matching grants in the sum of $16,500 from the Frey Foundation and $5,000 from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

Bids for the materials can now be requested.

The group estimated costs for steel couplings and plates at $10,000, treated lumber at $25,000 and Skatelight Pro sheet material at $24,000.

The only cost that will not be bid is start-up construction guidance provided by skate park experts from Suburban Rails at what Wiesner referred to as the bargain price of $2,000.

Funding is available to pay for the materials in the city's infrastructure budget. However, first ward councilman Bob Timms would like to see it drawn from elsewhere as one of his major beefs is drawing from the infrastructure fund for projects outside the realm of infrastructure improvements and developments.

According to Vickie Duman, president of Charlevoix Community Skatepark, Inc. thus far the group has raised almost $100,000 for the park. However, she said funds are still needed to pay for its construction, which is expected to begin April 1 with completion coming by the end of May.

Jerry Zandstra, one of two running for Republican candidacy for the U.S. Senate primary on Aug. 8, 2006, recently visited Charlevoix to share his plan for pulling Michigan out of a financial tailspin.

Zandstra wants to unseat Michigan's first female and current U.S. Senator, Debbie Stabenow so he can use his knowledge of economics and business to help end Michigan's financial failing.

"I've worked all over Kenya, Zambia and Nigeria helping them understand how their structure of law affects the way that their economy is played out and how their public policy in many instances are detrimental," he said. "Nigeria, for instance, exports $32 billion worth of oil a year and yet it's one of the poorest countries on the planet."

to Zandstra, the laws in this country make manufacturing far more expensive than in America's nine closest trading partners.

"Anything we make here is 22 percent more expensive, Senator (Debbie) Stabenow supports the kind of legislation which makes manufacturing in Michigan 22 percent more expensive," he said. "She backs it up and then she turns around and blames globalization. But, she's voted against the things that would make us a more competitive state."

Many believe the culprit of Michigan's poor economy is the high cost of labor in America but, Zandstra said, "The reality is these are mostly internal problems (such as) tax problems, tort law problems, regulatory issues and health care issues."

He explained that these issues don't seem to have as big an impact on states with little manufacturing, "But if you're in a state where 75 percent of the economy is manufacturing like Michigan, it's a huge issue."

According to Zandstra, tort reform is a good start to helping Michigan's economy.

"Tort lawsuit abuse adds two percent to the cost of everything we make and she (Senator Stabenow) voted against it. The second piece that needs to be put forward is the cap on the amount of damages that a jury can award on tort law," he said.

"You've created an economic incentive for people to bring lawsuits. Now there's two sides to that, you want to avoid that, but you also want to keep an avenue of justice for people that have been hurt," he added.

The second big issue Zandstra wants to tackle is federal taxation. "It isn't a matter of higher taxes versus lower taxes, it's a matter of the structure of taxes," he said.

To compete in the global market, Zandstra said, Americans might do better to be taxed on consumption rather than income and the high cost of health care needs to be addressed.

"Administrative overhead is 31 percent of the total cost of health care, Senator Stabenow's answer to that is to nationalize it, But I would defy anyone to name any program that's been brought into the federal bureaucracy that has actually become more efficient as a result," he said.

Zandstra said the major economic pressure we're feeling is from the federal level.

"Michigan's unemployment rate is 40 percent higher than the national average. Despite the damage that (Hurricane) Katrina did in Louisiana, their unemployment rate is still lower than ours."

As an educator, education is important to Zandstra, who said only 27 percent of Michigan parents feel college is important.

"How are we going to compete with China? China's graduating somewhere between 500,000 and 750,000 engineers a year," he said. "We are going to be in direct competition with the Chinese for the foreseeable future and that's a massive issue for our economic picture."

"If we don't address those issues we're going to look like Gary, Indiana. It's not a pretty picture."

Zandstra has been a pastor and lecturer and spent five years as director of the Grand Rapids think-tank the Acton Institute. He taught at Calvin College and Calvin Theological Seminary and now teaches a course for the master's in business administration program at Cornerstone University in Grand Rapids.

Zandstra's educational background includes a doctorate in public administration from Western Michigan University, doctor of Ministry from Trinity University, master's of theology and master's of divinity from Calvin Theological Seminary and a bachelor's of arts in psychology from Calvin College.

Zandstra is a member of the Pi Alpha Alpha Honor Society, the National Association of Scholars and the American Society of Public Administrators.

Real freedom more valuable than false security

Benjamin Gohs
'Staff writer'

As a result of the ill effects tobacco fumes can have on the human body, the government, in the form of the local health department, has decided to outlaw smoking in many private businesses.

I'm not surprised cigarettes don't provide the same boost to your health as a tall glass of Florida orange juice. Any firefighter worth his hose knows more deaths occur from smoke inhalation than flames. In the interest of fairness I believe all public areas, beaches and parks included, should be smoke-free.

However, private business owners know better whether smoking on the premises of their shop is a boon or hindrance. What shocks me is knowing they lack the discretion to decide this issue for themselves. This seems to be a bad case of tyrant-see, tyrant-do on the government's behalf.

And though a popular trend, legislating people's behavior is not a step in the direction of freedom. No doubt the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency's actions are in the best interest of the common good. After all, it's their job to make you healthier — whether you like it or not. But, when government steps in to tell citizens what is good and bad, I wince. When it comes to economics, aiming for the common good is a goal best left for those who reside in communes and stand in line for bread — you know who you are.

Capitalism, rather, is based on survival of the financially fittest. Adam Smith, arguably the emcee of laissez-faire capitalism, seemed to think business should be absent of government controls, especially when it comes to interference with individual freedom and choice of action. To the chagrin of many business owners, the government doesn't always agree.

Whether unreasonable conditions placed on a merger by the Department of Justice or a smoking policy dictated by the local health department, every time the government interferes, they strengthen their sickly hybrid of capitalism and communism. While I agree a green dollar and red cent could make for quite the festive Christmas arrangement (I envision a children's book entitled "The Marx Who Stole Christmas" wherein the bourgeoisie learn the error of their ways and, in the true spirit of holiday spending, decide to give their assets to the proletariat) it's just bad business.

Those cheering this clean air act should consider the implications. Yes, you may be pleased with the outcome, but the next one commiserating the devious deeds of the elected body may be you.

What's worse than the aforementioned big-government cheerleaders, is the silent majority who seem content merely to mutter a mantra of lost freedom under their collective breath.

Nationalism is a strong drink. Overindulge and you'll likely awaken from a patriotic hangover only to realize your wallet is empty, your hands are tied and the deed to your civil liberties rests in the breast pocket of a snake oil salesman whose name badge reads: THE GREATER GOOD.

Voting with your pocketbook is a simple yet effective concept. Still, there are some who've trouble grasping it.

Nobody wants to be the one to inform the mother of an asthmatic kid to take her business elsewhere if she doesn't appreciate a business' smoking policy — and therein lies the unpleasant business. A free society is supposed to embrace the ability to choose. A free society can be a dangerous, dirty and offensive place, because freedom and security are not cohesive. And I'd rather have a real piece of freedom than a false sense of security.

Personal freedom has always been in peril from one force or another. It's up to everyone interested in true freedom to speak up or scream if necessary. The next time Big Brother says, "No smoking," just say you prefer the smooth, bold taste of freedom.

Embrace the lighter side of the Halloween holiday

Gayle Gennett
'A look at life'

Halloween soon approaches and next to Christmas it's the one time when I can get my fill of chocolate.

Legend has it that the reason we dress up is to scare away the spirits of the dead. It seems like a good idea to me, I like to dress up once in awhile and pretend to be someone else — it's a bit therapeutic.

We've come a long way from the turnips in Ireland that were first used to carve into Jack o' lanterns. I feel certain the Irish turnip was a wee bit larger than the American one.

My childhood memories would have been so different had we sat around the kitchen table carving turnips. No seeds to cook and no goo to scoop out. What fun could cleaning out a turnip be? I'm glad pumpkins were plentiful and my Irish ancestors said let's carve those orange things instead. Then again, I saw Martha Stewart adding glitter to her pumpkins so she could extend their use into Thanksgiving. I wonder what she would have done with turnips.

I save my pumpkins and actually bake them so I can make pumpkin pies. Only one goes under the knife to keep the tradition of Jack and his good old lantern alive. You know Jack, the guy who didn't make it to heaven and supposedly walks the earth with his turnip lantern. There's that turnip again.

I remember the stories my mom would share with us about her life growing up in Detroit when Halloween meant pulling pranks. Something again that started cons ago as yet another method of keeping spirits away. Mom would giggle as she recalled her memories of the night spent going door-to-door just to ring the doorbell and quickly run and hide behind a bush; that was their idea of a prank.

As pranks became more serious than turning over trash cans the parents in the 1930s came up with the idea of trick-or-treating door-to-door and asking for candy. This idea came from schools and parents with hopes of curbing the mischief that kids would create on their own. The idea of chocolate candy as a treat, was probably brought about by the Hershey Company.

Originally, Halloween in America was set as a day of pranks to ward off spirits; only here in the U.S. would we add an extra day — "devil's night" to include one night just for pranks and one night for trick-or-treating. I guess you could call it Halloween super-sized.

Now let's look at what another country does instead. During this time of year in Mexico they celebrate the return of the monarch butterfly by making altars bearing fruit and candy. Their legend tells of the spirits of their deceased relatives coming home on the wings of those pretty little creatures. The butterflies make their exit from Canada and the U.S. by fluttering home, stopping by these altars decorated with photos of deceased relatives, fruits and candy. I wonder what happens to all that candy and, more importantly, is any of it chocolate?

When Halloween arrives, the chill I feel in the air is not one of my deceased relatives touching me from the grave. In reality, harvesting is over and this is the prelude to winter. Time to check the snow blower and, yes, there's another holiday soon after in November and someone added chocolate to that one too.

Let's get back to the basics of Hallow's Eve. Honor deceased family members by saying a prayer, and include a prayer of thanks for the good harvest we have like our bumper cherry crop this year. This day marks the end of the harvest season and we should be grateful for our food, family and friends. Count your blessings that you haven't lost your homes to a flood and realize that you live in a good community of caring people. Invite friends over for apple cider and let the kids and adults dress up in costume if they want. It's a fun evening and don't take it so seriously that we are heathens for doing this.

So, dress up if you like and if you come to my house expect to get chocolate. Your children will have fun dressing up, so why not join them. We can still say prayers in thanks for our harvest and we are free to attend a church of our choice to do this. Let's not make a big deal about Pagan rituals, Satan and the like.

You can have your pumpkin and eat it too. Chocolate anyone?

Current band shell unfit

Editor:

My name is Barry Bennett and I am one of the Petoskey High School Band directors, as well as the steel drum director. I also own the Sunglass Shoppe in Charlevoix.

I am writing in support of relocating the current band shell. I have had the opportunity to perform in Charlevoix for the past eight summers as well as many other venues across the state. We have enjoyed playing in Charlevoix but the current band shell is not very acoustically friendly despite claims to the contrary. The fish pond in front is not only a visual nuisance it is also a "sound blocker."

The style of the "mushroom" may look nice but it is not designed for good acoustics. I would also encourage changing rooms, better and bigger restrooms and more storage, all of which are either inadequate or absent from the current structure.

From an audience perspective it is very difficult to see and hear the performers. The grounds are too flat and unless you're sitting very close or on the edge of the hill the visual of the stage is very poor.

I sincerely hope the residents of Charlevoix pass this proposed ordinance. This opportunity may not soon come again, especially funded by the Downtown Development Authority and not from local residential property owners. Please vote yes on Nov. 8.

Center's successful sale

Editor:

Bergmann Center, Inc. had another great garage sale fund-raising event this year in Charlevoix. We would like to thank the people who so generously came to help support the center. All items received for the garage sale were donations. We raised a little over $1,600 this year. Area communities are very generous to our organization and we would like to extend our appreciation for making a difference in the lives of those we serve.

Column response

Editor:

I read with interest your opinion in this week's Courier (A solution to the transplant, native battle, Oct. 12, 2005).

I too am a transplant (2003). My opinion however is much different than yours. I've been called, "Fudgie," "Wine Snob," "Cone Sucker," etc. I've learned to make the personal choice of how to let the statements of some others affect me. If I become angry or upset I've given control of my feelings away. I also don't like to "broad brush" a group, in this case a community, by the statements of a few.

I look at what people do rather than what they say or how they say it. My experience since moving here has been completely different. I've met so many people willing to help or tell me where to find what I need or just sit and have a pleasant conversation. Brenda, Ed, Walt, Darcy, Cindy, Gary, Nita, Brian, Spencer, Dennis, Chris, Tom, Kathy, Linda, Joe, Tommy, Dave, Debbie, are people I've grown to know and respect. The list goes on.

I've met hard working, family oriented people, interested in their community, willing to help if they can, and looking for a life we all want for ourselves and the rest of the world.

I try not to judge and change others who do not think or behave as I would like. Nor do I look for others to approve of what I think or do. Rather, I accept people for who they are, find the goodness in them, and let the imperfections they/we all have go.

I respect your opinion and experience but another perspective is just as valid. Jim Jannausch

Traffic danger

Editor:

The traffic through downtown Charlevoix is dangerous. The city or state should make alternate routes for drivers.

For instance, the people from the other cities do not know the laws of Charlevoix so they break them. The people should cross at the cross walks, not in the middle of the street so traffic can flow better. Another thing that could help traffic is no parking on Bridge Street so there's two traffic lanes through downtown. One thing that would help is if people used common sense. Thank you.

Editorial response

Editor:

In response to the latest editorial printed Oct. 5, 2005 (Recycling committee needs to lose distasteful warnings), the Recycling Committee of Charlevoix County would like to respond.

First of all, thank you for your comments. We appreciate the input from citizens to enhance the recycling program. We would welcome you to join us at any of our committee meetings so that you can understand the complexities of implementing a program such as this. We welcome comments and concerns from the public at any of our meetings. Perhaps with that said, it would have avoided hurt feelings and incorrect information.

With regard to the "distasteful" signs which were placed on many of the recycling bins, your comments were the first ones which have been negative. Ironically, we have had nothing but positive comments from many diligent recyclers who are tired of seeing trash left in and around the sites. These were designed, paid for and placed on the bins by a volunteer who thought humor was a better approach than fines for littering.

We have implemented fines in the past for abusers and we will continue that practice as well, though we feel Sheriff Lasater has more important things to do.

Colored glass has been a subject which we would love to resolve, however the fact is there are no markets for these materials at this time. We don't believe the taxpayers want to pay additional dollars to stockpile these materials for some hopeful future use. The bottom line is we will continue to accept recycled materials where there is a market. At this point in time it includes clear, uncolored glass, plastics #1, #2, newspapers, catalogs, tin, aluminum, cardboard and office paper (in some locations). We are continually upgrading and expanding the recycling services for Charlevoix County. We have had many successful Household Hazardous Waste Collections, over 48 tons removed so far. We have recycled 8.7 tons of electronics, five million pounds of newspapers, 756,300 pounds of clear glass, 336,100 pounds of tin/aluminum, 287,420 pounds of plastics #1 and #2 and 3,325,000 pounds of cardboard.

In addition, we are currently working on educational programs for school age children, and have a wonderful educational program for civic/community groups. Together we can make recycling a successful, rewarding endeavor for Charlevoix County. Let's all work towards this positive direction.

Petition confusion

Editor:

Recently I reviewed a petition I signed on July of 2005 which reads, "The calling of an election to submit Ordinance No. 1.73 to all the registered and qualified electors of Charlevoix Township for their approval. Submission of this petition is pursuant to Township Zoning Act 184 of 1943, Section 125.282, and any other relevant Michigan law. Ordinance No. 1.73 was adopted by the Charlevoix Township Board on June 13, 2005 and amends the Charlevoix Township's Zoning Ordinance."

The reason I signed this petition is because of the following. A man came to the door of my home in the township and said he had a petition he would like me to sign to keep "big box stores" out of Charlevoix Township. I read what was on the petition and did ask why he was saying this petition stood for was not stated on the petition, only Ordinance, Section and Zoning Act Numbers were listed, which I had no idea what they meant. He said that is just the way petitions are written. I believed what he was saying about the petition and agreed to sign it. At this point he wanted me to come out to his car to sign the petition, saying that he was not the person circulating it, but the person doing so was in his car. This was not a safe thing to do in my mind, and particularly where I live, as most homes in my area are second homes and not well populated, to allow my getting help. I said I would not go out to his car, so he went to the car and brought the petition back to me for my signature.

As I said, I had no idea what Ordinance 1.73 of the Township Zoning Act 184 of 1943, Section 125.282 meant until someone explained to me what it truly means. This petition was totally misrepresented to me and I am sure others feel the same, if this was represented to them, as it was to me, to get a signature. Had I known what this petition truly represented, I would never have signed it. This upsets me very much, but my reason for writing does not involve the way my signature was received, as much as the reason I never understood what I was signing for, is.

Something needs to be done to write clearly on a petition what the exact wording of a petition actually is, so citizens know exactly what they are signing. Just stating the ordinance number, zoning act number and section number does not give an individual any idea as to what they are truly signing. Citizens signing petitions are at the mercy of the individual presenting it to them for their signatures. This is wrong and needs to be corrected. Anything you or anyone else reading this can do to help in getting a solution to this situation would be a great help to all citizens.

Visitors given helping hand

We would like to acknowledge the help that officer Jim Schlappi and the three young men who helped us with our car trouble. Officer Schlappi went out of his way to assist and accommodate three stranded ladies.

We would also like to commend Jerry and Kim Wades of the Capri Motel for all they did to help and make our stay enjoyable.

They gave us a home away from home. Charlevoix can be proud of these helpful citizens.

Vote 'yes' to amend zoning

Editor:

Following numerous public hearings over the past three years, the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission and Township Board have agreed to amend our township zoning ordinance to limit the size of future retail buildings to 90,000 square feet. The 90,000 square foot cap is actually larger than the existing Charlevoix Kmart.

On June 24, 2005, the U.S. Supreme Court issued a decision that allows local governments to take private land for business development. Historically, the concept of "eminent domain" has been used by governments to take private property at fair market value for a "public use" such as schools, roads and bridges. The Supreme Court's decision clarified that local governments may seize people's private homes and businesses, even against their will, for private economic development. Since the Supreme Court's decision, the U.S. Senate has held hearings and legislatures at every level across the country are examining not only eminent domain laws, but also the lack of area zoning that may allow large retail developers to force the purchase of large amounts of private land for cheap. This could have an immediate negative impact on Charlevoix Township and surrounding areas.

A local Charlevoix Township opposition group has emerged with the belief that there should be no zoning change and do not see a need to protect local property owner rights. Their actions play directly into the hands of large, multi-billion dollar retail developers.

On Nov. 8, vote "yes" to amend the Charlevoix Township zoning ordinance that protects your private property rights and insures reasonable future area growth.

Vote 'no' on park issue

Editor:

The November election is coming up, and, once again, the residents of the City of Charlevoix will have a chance to decide what vision they want for East Park.

The present plan is very urban. Is this what we want for northern Michigan?

I think if you go down to city hall and look at the design, you will be shocked at the size of the harbor master building. It is bigger than my house with a three-stall garage. Imagine that sitting in the park. The plan calls for cooking facilities for the boaters, a laundry facility and a lounge. Wow. Will it be available for the local residents to use? Why not patronize local businesses?

I'm sure the argument will be that taxes from the boaters and the Waterways Commission are paying 75 percent of the cost, and the Downtown Development Authority the remaining portion. It is my understanding that by extending the life of the Downtown Development Authority, though, the city is losing $200,000 a year for 20 years, so, in reality, the city loses $4 million.

However, we, the taxpayers, will carry the burden of monthly expenses — cleaning, electricity, gas, garbage collection and general maintenance.

The bandshell is also another issue. Do we really need permanent seating?

The park is a beautiful God-given gift to this community. Why would we want to take away that view?

Instead of the millions of dollars being spent on all sorts of unnecessary projects all over the United States, why don't we use that money for the war effort or to help the people in the south rebuild their lives. It would make more sense.

Please consider a 'no' vote on the park issue. Let's go back to the drawing board and do it right.

East Park renovation Q & A session set for 7 p.m. Nov. 2

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

The public is invited to attend a East Park renovation discussion forum to take place at 7 p.m. Nov. 2 in the second floor council chambers at Charlevoix City Hall.

Peter Pollack, principal designer with the park design firm Pollack Design Associates of Ann Arbor, as well as city mayor Norman Carlson and representatives of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority will be on hand to field questions from those in attendance.

Park changes will go before the voters at the Nov. 8 general election. Changes voters will have to decide include removal of the current East Park band shell, construction of a new performance venue with amphitheater seating and re-configuration of the park's topography.

If the park changes are approved, construction is expected to start in the fall of 2006. This part of the project would cost the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority just under $1.5 million.

Planning underway for 13th Annual Holly Daze event Dec. 1 at the Castle

The 13th Annual Holly Daze Gala will take place Dec. 1 at Charlevoix's Castle Farms.

The benefit is being planned by a large committee to support community health education programs at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

According to event co-chairs, Liz Firebaugh and Linda Mason, this year's gala will top the charts with fun and philanthropy.

"A couple of things have been added this year," Mason said. "To start, we have a theme that goes through every room in the house with auction items ranging in value from $100 to priceless."

Firebaugh said many local businesses are sponsoring the event and have donated fabulous gifts and specialty items to be auctioned off.

"The list of items grows every day — and we will be publishing an auction booklet available to all attendees. We will also have phone lines available for call-in bidding for people who cannot be here with us that night," she added.

A new event feature is live music provided by the Up North Big Band who will take the stage after dinner and the live auction.

Free valet parking will be provided for all attendees. In addition, the medical staff of Charlevoix Area Hospital will sponsor post-event taxi service for persons needing a ride home.

The event will start at 6 p.m. Dec. 1 at Castle Farms with a cocktail reception and silent auction.

Tickets are $100 per person and include cocktails, dinner and all festivities. Call the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation office at (231) 547-8501 for tickets or more information.

Pratt to present a Katrina relief organ concert Oct. 23

Phil Pratt, the new organist at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix, will present an organ concert at 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 23 in the church sanctuary.

Pratt formerly served 14 years as organist at Heartside Ministry, an outreach ministry to the poor and homeless population of Grand Rapids.

Each December during that period, he gave an organ concert commemorating the anniversary of the opening of the Heartside Chapel.

During that time, he produced three organ CDs featuring favorite selections from those years of anniversary concerts. He is currently working on his fourth organ CD.

The concert will feature works of Bach, Widor, Vierne, Gigout, Manz, Lefebvre-Wely, and Weaver, as well as one of Pratt's original compositions.

The offering will benefit the victims of Hurricane Katrina. Some of Pratt's organ CDs will also be for sale with 100 percent of the proceeds also going to the hurricane victims.

Refreshments will be served in Ransom Hall following the concert.

For more information, call the church at (231) 547-9122.

Mediation launches victim offender program

Northern Community Mediation has launched a Victim Offender Reconciliation Program.

The program as applied to the following fictional scenario:

Fourteen-year-old Nancy shoplifts three CDs from the local retail store. After she is caught, she is placed on probation, and her case is turned over to Northern Community Mediation.

Through the Victim Offender Reconciliation Program, the store owner, probation officer, Nancy and her parents will meet with the mediator to establish restitution for the victim. Equally as important is the fact that Nancy will have to face the person she wronged and begin to understand the severity of her actions.

The 7th Probate Courts of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties in collaboration with Northern Community Mediation work to help juvenile offenders take responsibility for their actions, understand the impact their actions have on victims and determine how to right the wrong they have done.

At the same time, the Victim Offender Reconciliation Program allows victims to participate actively in a restitution agreement, tell about the impact the crime has had on them and listen to apologies.

Through a grant received from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, Northern Community Mediation was able to design and print brochures that explain the program. These brochures have been distributed within the courts, at social service agencies, and to the judges, court staff and attorneys. They are also given to all participants, both victims and offenders, in the Victim Offender Reconciliation Program.

Anyone interested in receiving a brochure or learning more about the Victim Offender Reconciliation Program, should contact Dr. Jane Millar at (231) 487-1771 or jane@northernmediation.org.

Planned Parenthood offers free exams

Planned Parenthood Northern Michigan will recognize Breast Cancer Awareness by offering free Clinical Breast Exams.

Free exams will be offered throughout the month of October at the Planned Parenthood Northern Michigan Health Center located at 1003 Spring St. in Petoskey. Appointments are required and are subject to availability.

Getting tested regularly for breast cancer is the best way for women to lower their risk of dying from the disease. These screening tests can find cancer early when it's most treatable.

Planned Parenthood recommends a 3-step approach to breast cancer screening that includes annual mammography beginning at age 40, annual clinical breast exams and monthly breast self-exams beginning at age 20.

Women with a family history of breast cancer or other concerns about their personal risk should consult with a health care provider.

Screening tests may need to be done more often and/or started earlier than usual if the woman has certain risk factors.

Clinical breast exams will be performed by female nurse practitioners. Although clinical breast exams are simple, they are an important part of screening for possible breast abnormalities.

To schedule a free exam, contact the Planned Parenthood health center at (231) 347-9692.

Barnes, Haggard discuss issues facing Charlevoix County

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

With only about three weeks to go until election day John Haggard and Josh Barnes, candidates for the Republican running slot for first district Charlevoix County commissioner, speak their minds on issues facing the county.

John Haggard

According to Haggard, a one-time county commissioner, one of the main issues facing the county is the astronomical price of fuel. "Somehow we need to get a handle on our unfortunate fuel costs," he said. "The fact that budgets are set we need to figure out how to handle it, not only fuel with vehicles, but also with the facilities. We need to be as conservative as possible to maximize our services."

Haggard announced his interest in the seat when Valerie Snyder moved west with her husband. Though the seat was filled by Snyder's father, Barnes, 77 after Snyder resigned March 10, 2005.

"Prior to the vacancy really occurring I went to the mayor of the City of Charlevoix and got his backing and went to three township supervisors and got their backing and they thought I would be a good person to replace Valerie," Haggard said.

When the board of commissioners decided to appoint Barnes to the first district seat, Haggard decided he would run for the office this fall. "I'd like to fill it and get back involved and help the county out," he said. "I've had a lot of people come up to me and say they support me and would vote for me and think I'd do a good job."

According to Haggard, he would make a good commissioner because he held the position before. And, he said, "I do have a little bit of connections with the state government as far as getting the necessary dialogue between county and state level."

Another issue which is still in the discussion phase is a possible county manager who would work much like a city manager.

"I'm willing to look at a county manager. But do we really want to move forward with it? I'm not sure," Haggard said. "We're a small county and all the departments I know of, appointed and elected, are run efficiently."

Josh Barnes

According to Haggard's opponent, Barnes, he considers creating the position of county manager a possible plus for the county. "I would prefer to see it if we have room in the future budget. If we do I would like to move toward it," he said.

According to Barnes, there are times when commissioners sit on committees of which they have little knowledge and that, having a county manager could improve the situation.

"We work in some committees and sometimes we've seen a good job done, but sometimes we sit on committees, like the board of corrections which I know nothing about," he said. "It offers some advantages though I'm still not completely sold on it."

Barnes said he is the right man for the job because he has already shown he can accomplish good for the county.

"I worked hard on getting that Boyne City Road thing moved from mid-summer to now, and it is finished today. I was very instrumental in getting that accomplished with the road commission," he said.

He added that he has been heavily involved with working on getting new phone systems and other communication services on-line.

"I've got a lot of things resolved and take pleasure in resolving things when I can," he said.

Barnes, who took over Snyder's first district seat earlier this year when she moved, is running for reelection because, he said, "I'd like to believe I've done a good job at it."

He added, "It's good work and fun work and some of it uses my talents as a registered, professional engineer."

"I've got a good background and good history. I've been mayor of Charlevoix and I spent 35 years as CEO of Lexalite," he said. "The support I've had from the community has just been tremendous."

He added, "They want me to run and I am."

Voters living in the north half of the City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix, Hayes and Bay townships will decide who the Republican candidate for the seat will be. Since no Democrats filed nominating petitions to run, the winner of the Nov. 8 primary will run unopposed at the Feb. 28 general election barring entry of a write-in campaign.

This first district commission seat will be the only matter on the county primary ballot. Township election questions for Hayes, Bay and Charlevoix townships will be on the ballot along with the commission seat.

Candidates for Charlevoix City Council seats are sounding off on one of the major points of contention in the coming election — the city's waterfront property.

At the Tuesday, Nov. 8 general election city voters will decide the fate of Charlevoix's music pavilion, known commonly as "the bandshell," and will elect officials who will determine the future of premier dock space.

Gene Beer

In the running for a first ward seat are former planning commissioner, Steven Bennett, who will face incumbent Robert N. Timms.

In the second ward councilman Bill Bellows will face Gene Beer.

And in the third ward, council member Shirley Gibson is running uncontested. A write-in candidate can file paperwork with city clerk Carol Ochs to run against Gibson. Ochs is also running uncontested and a write-in campaign can be launched for her seat.

While all the candidates have the race for a council seat in common, they are split as to how the city should proceed with planning for the intended abandonment of U.S. Coast Guard dock space in Round Lake.

Representatives of the U.S. Coast Guard's Ninth District have announced that the city's cutter ACACIA will be pulled from this port in 2006, without a replacement.

With this information in hand and a huge marina renovation just around the corner, Gibson and Bennett want to see the city establish a plan for the hundreds of feet of valuable dock space that could be vacant.

"That space needed to be included in a plan B — the extra docks could have decreased the length of piers in the marina project," Gibson said.

However, Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner said a backup plan could hurt the city's plight to have another vessel located here.

Bellows, Beer and Timms agree that a plan excluding space for a replacement vessel could hurt Charlevoix's status with the Coast Guard.

However, Timms, Bellows and Gibson said if it comes down to it, and the boat is not replaced, the dock space and accompanying parking spots should be for public use.

Gibson recommended the dock space be used for shoppers docks and the adjacent parking, which was recently requested for use by the Beaver Island Boat Company, be open to the public parking.

The Coast Guard also utilizes a training and meeting facility next to the boat company's main office. Gibson feels the city should nix plans for a harbor master's building at the base of Clinton Street in favor of renovating the Coast Guard area.

"It would be a tenth of the cost, right where they (boaters and the harbor master) want to be and it would be less obtrusive on the lake (Round Lake)," she said.

Bennett said this could also be an ideal home for the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce whose current location off Bridge Street in Chamber Park will be demolished during East Park renovations.

Bellows is thinking along the same lines as Gibson when it comes to incorporating the space into the dock renovation but doesn't want to see any planning for the space now.

Timms agrees that the city should retain ownership of the dock space.

Council candidates say: 'Bandshell should stay'

"The Beaver Island Boat Company is after it but I think we should reserve it for bigger boats that come in," he said.

Steven Bennett

Bennett doesn't agree wholeheartedly with Timms on this point. He said that use of the space by the boat company may be a logical expansion.

Beer added that the best use for the space is the one that brings the city the most money. He said whether it be part of the marina or a port for a cruise ship, he wants to see the city maximize its economic potential.

Shirley
Gibson

Money and aesthetics are two issues that have been discussed with relation to dock space and are also at the heart of the bandshell debate.

At the election, voters will have to decide whether the current facility will be removed and a new performance venue with amphitheater seating should be built in the fall of 2006 at the south end of the park. This project would cost the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority just under $1.5 million.

Robert
Timms

When it comes to the fate of the bandshell candidates Gibson, Timms and Beer want to see the city tighten the purse strings and leave it alone.

"That bandshell is dedicated to a special person (Clarence Odmark) and should be left as is," Beer said.

Bennett said he has mixed feelings on the fate of the bandshell as he believes it is somewhat of a historic landmark but feels park renovations need to move forward.

Incumbent Bellows was tight lipped about his opinion on the fate of the Odmark pavilion and said most of his constituents lean with Gibson, Timms and Beer and want to see it left as is.

This issue will be discussed at a public forum to take place at 7 p.m. Nov. 2 in city council chambers at Charlevoix City Hall.

Charlevoix Middle School football loses back to back

The Charlevoix Middle School Rayder football team tallied two losses in the team's first two games of October.

On Oct. 4, the team fell to the East Jordan Red Devils 20-6.

Ian Gauthier and Chris Levens led the Rayders defense with six tackles each. Gauthier also tallied two fumble recoveries.

J.T. Lawrence led the offense with 19 rushes for 83 yards and a touchdown. Clayton Mitchell threw for 94 yards on eight completions. Alex Foster had three receptions for 65 yards.

Then, on Oct. 11, the Rayders lost to the Boyne City Ramblers 46-14. Hunter Johnstone led the Rayders on defense with 12 tackles.

Lawrence led the offense with 22 rushes for 128 yards and a touchdown. Mitchell threw for 136 yards on seven completions including a touchdown pass. Foster had three receptions for 76 yards and a touchdown reception.

Rayder football falls to Grayling

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff Writer

Charlevoix found out early last Friday night that Grayling wasn't about to lose at home.

With a final score of 11-41 the Rayders were reminded that, despite their having made the playoffs, the season isn't over yet.

"We didn't play very well," said head coach Don Jess. "Turn the ball over against a good team you'll never win."

Charlevoix, now tied for number three in the Lake Michigan Conference and with a record of 6-2 overall, must get their mind's in win mode before heading in to see number one Traverse City St. Francis Oct. 21 and then moving on to the playoffs.

"We've just got to take care of the ball," Jess said. "Our last home game is coming up before the playoffs. We really need to build up some momentum, so this is a big game for us."

Against Grayling, quarterback Matt Kautz was 11 for 17 for 110 yards passing with one touchdown and two interceptions. Russell Williams had 12 carries for 65 yards, he kicked a 31-yard field goal and ran in a two-point conversion. Eddie Waldron had 7 catches for 85 yards and caught a five-yard touchdown pass.

The Rayders' defense was led by Drew Klooster with 11 tackles while Jeff Golovich and Darren Munson had nine tackles each.

According to Jess, his team doesn't have time to sit around commiserating last week's defeat. "This is an important game for us," he said. "Traverse City has a decent passing game, but we're going to try and stop them with the run first and force them to pass."

The Rayders' last game of the season before the playoffs will begin at 7 p.m. Oct. 21, at Kipke Field against Traverse City St. Francis.

Commissioners oppose bill to reduce public information fees

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff Writer

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners opposes a bill recently proposed in the Michigan legislature which would make public records more accessible and at a lower cost.

House Bill 5124 (HB 5124) was introduced on Sept. 6 of this year by State Representatives Joe Hune, Chris Ward and Edward Gaffney and referred to the Committee on Local Government and Urban Policy. This bill would amend 1875 PA 54, also known as "An act to facilitate the inspection and reproduction of the records and files in the offices of the registers of deeds."

According to the board of commissioners' letter of opposition, which according to Chief Deputy Clerk of Charlevoix County, Sherry Browe is identical to the letter received from Lenawee County, the bill "Radically alters the intent of MCL 565.551 from facilitating methods of acquiring copies and researching records to mandating services, fees contracts, special reports, payment dates, personal liability and legal consequences effectively removing any local government control."

The resolution adopted by the commissioners expresses concerns that the bill would, "Drastically reduce county revenue received in copy fees generated through the Register of Deeds Office by approximately 75 percent. And, county records should not be available for private businesses to profit at public expense."

"In my office alone it's like $52,000 or $53,000 in revenue last year and if they go to 4 cents we would lose a lot of money," said Charlevoix County Register of Deeds, Charlene Novotny. "This is a bill that's really going to hurt our county."

According to Novotny, as it stands right now, the register of deeds office by law is not allowed to charge unreasonable rates for copies. Right now they charge $1 per page.

According to Hune's Legislative Aide, Cindy Denby, Hune proposed the legislation to create a reasonable standard for fees with regards to research and tracking indexes at the register of deeds offices throughout Michigan.

"Although many offices are run very efficiently, some offices might charge unreasonable rates, not so much for copies, but for other information," Denby said.

Another concern the board has is that the bill, "Ignores national security concerns by making it mandatory to provide access to public records for any requesting party no matter where they reside or what organization they represent."

"There is some information that should not be available to the public such as Social Security

Board opposes bill citing possible security issues and revenue loss

BILL

numbers, but a copy of a persons deed and (similar) information is supposed to be available for public viewing," Denby said. "Track indexing and search work rates (across the state) range from extremely reasonable to excessive."

The bill states a register of deeds may prohibit reproduction of a record which has been temporarily left with the register to be recorded in the register of deeds office but, the register of deeds shall not place any restrictions on the reproduction, distribution, use, or transfer of any record maintained by the register of deeds.

Types of records which fall under the provisions of this bill include written or printed transcripts, photocopies, photographs, microfilm and electronic images.

Including entries and indexes made by the register of deeds.

Denby said the groups most affected by the proposed legislation, including the register of deeds offices, are discussing possible changes with lawmakers to see if some compromise can be made.

"We're holding back on this bill and waiting to see if there are some compromises that can help both sides," she said. "This bill wasn't designed to try to cause problems for registers of deeds."

According to the proposed bill, the register of deeds must provide records to individuals in a timely manner as well as keep the cost of reproduction to a reasonable level, not to exceed 4 cents a page to those with lawful purpose to view the records.

"The title comps definitely want it to go through they would be making big bucks off our information," Novotny said. "If they get if off the Web for 4 cents, they would make big money without having to pay for the service they're getting."

As far as national security concerns go, Denby said most of their (Charlevoix County's) records are available through the Freedom of Information Act.

The proposed bill reads, "The register of deeds or custodian of the records and files may make reasonable rules and regulations with reference to the inspection and examination of the records and files as is necessary to protect the records and files and to prevent interference with the regular discharge of the duties of the register of deeds."

National BREAST CANCER AWARENESS Month

October is National Breast Cancer Awareness Month. It is estimated that, during this year alone, 175,000 women will be diagnosed with breast cancer, and 43,000 women will lose their lives to the disease. Early detection and treatment of breast cancer are the best weapons for beating the disease. In support of the nationwide initiative to communicate the importance of early detection, we are pleased to provide the following breast cancer early detection guidelines:

WOMEN AGED 40 OR OLDER:

1. Have a screening mammogram every year.
2. Schedule a clinical breast exam with a health professional every year.
3. Perform a breast self-examination every month.

WOMEN BETWEEN THE AGES OF 20 AND 39:

1. Schedule a clinical breast exam with a health professional every three years.
2. Perform a breast self-examination every month.

*If any changes, such as swelling or skin irritation in the breast or underarm area, are noticed during the breast self examination, contact your health care provider for a professional evaluation. Knowing your body and promptly addressing any unusual developments are key to early detection.

Charlevoix Township man charged with assault and domestic violence

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office arrested a 26-year old Charlevoix Township man after an incident at his residence in North Point early Saturday morning.

A deputy was dispatched to a 911 hang-up call at a Cedar Street location just after 2 a.m. Oct. 15. Upon arrival Michael J. McCann was encountered in the front yard with blood on his hands and clothing.

McCann was intoxicated and resisted and assaulted the sheriff's deputy. He was subsequently arrested and placed into the patrol car after a several block foot chase and again assaulting the deputy.

The deputy then entered the residence and located the McCann's 57-year-old mother who had been severely beaten. She was transported by Charlevoix City Ambulance to Charlevoix Area Hospital where she was admitted with multiple injuries. The deputy did not require medical treatment.

McCann has been charged by the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office with a second offense of aggravated domestic violence and assaulting and resisting a deputy. Both are two-year felonies. McCann was also charged with being a habitual felon because he has two prior felony convictions for resisting and obstructing a police officer.

McCann has appeared before a Charlevoix County 90th District Court Magistrate and his bond has been set at $200,000 pending his arraignment on Tuesday, Oct. 18. Hours before the Oct. 15 incident McCann had been released from the Emmet County Jail.

Charlevoix Area Hospital to host 'Great Start' parent event

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The Sixth Annual Great Start New and Expectant Parent Expo will take place from 4 to 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 27, in the lower level of the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

According to Pam Oshaben, lactation educator with Charlevoix Area Hospital, the expo will showcase everything imaginable for new and expectant parents.

"It is a health fair designed for families with children. We focus on preschool age and under and the whole goal with the health fairs is to present everything available to new families," Oshaben said.

There will be representatives present from the Women, Infants and Children Supplemental Nutrition Program (WIC), the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, area preschools and health care providers including a dental hygienist and an eye doctor.

"We're promoting education so parents may make informed decisions on their child's schooling and their choices in health care," Oshaben said. "So really it's kind of one-stop shopping promoting childbirth classes, breast feeding classes, sibling classes like a class for big brothers and big sisters. And we'll be doing sign-up for all of our classes."

She added, "We just want to promote what's out there and available. About 40 vendors will come in all."

Oshaben said there will also be many nice door prizes and a hopper structure for children to jump around in.

"We're going to have a $350 breast pump, quite a bit of baby equipment, and a lot of gift certificates to stores and certificates to restaurants," she said. "And there will be a costume contest for kids to dress up and a photographer for a small fee."

She added, "There will be a little bit of everything and it's free of charge."

There will also be light refreshments offered at the expo.

For more information on the expo call Oshaben at (231) 547-8669.

Charlevoix County may face lawsuit

Legality of appointed commission seat under fire

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The validity of Josh Barnes' First District County Commission seat is the subject of debate among county officials.

Barnes, who was appointed to the first district county commissioner seat on March 10 when his daughter Valerie Snyder resigned, is now running for the Republican nomination in the primary on November 8.

However, according to Michigan law, an election for the seat should have taken place sooner. And, his appointed seat may be in jeopardy.

Michigan law maintains that appointees to vacancies in odd numbered years serve until the vacancy is filled. It further states that a county board's failure to call a special election to fill the seat within a reasonable amount of time makes the appointment illegal or invalid.

At a recent Charlevoix County Commission meeting, Charlevoix County resident Bob Taylor challenged the legality of Barnes' seat and asked county prosecutor John Jarema for his legal opinion on the matter.

"My opinion based on case law is that the election was not held in a reasonable time," Jarema said. "The case law cited by Mr. Taylor shows that commissioners were removed from office because they held their seats contrary to law because the special election was not held in a reasonable time."

Taylor and Jarema cite Wayne County Republican Committee vs. Wayne County Board of Commissioners (1976), under which they claim Barnes could be

In a written response from Jarema to Taylor, Jarema states, "It appears that on the basis of the case you have cited, if a court would determine that the (Charlevoix) County Board of Commissioners did not conduct a special election within a reasonable time, the legality of commissioner Barnes could be called into question."

Jarema added, "The case speaks for itself and it certainly appears that the time frame in that case (Wayne vs. Wayne), which was deemed to be unreasonable, is similar to the time frame in this case."

Investigators serve warrant at local guide book business

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

United States Postal Inspectors and the Michigan State Police are investigating the Exam Resource Center, a business located at U.S. 31 and Marion Center Road in Charlevoix.

The two agencies executed a search warrant at the business Oct. 19 after the post office and other consumer protection agencies fielded numerous complaints about the center's business practices.

According to Fred Van de Putte, a postal inspector with the Detroit branch of the United States Post Office Inspection Service, complaining parties maintain the Exam Resource Center falsely represented the availability of government postal service jobs that in reality were not available.

"We don't know if there was wrongdoing. We're investigating to find out if there is substance to those allegations," Van de Putte said.

At this time no arrests have been made or charges levied.

On Oct. 20 and 21 the office was

Postal investigators explore possible mail law offenses closed. But Van de Putte said the closing wasn't required by law enforcement and cannot be required due to a search warrant.

If the investigation uncovers violations of the mail fraud statute or other mail law offenses, arrests and charges may result.

The company under the investigative microscope sold postal exam guides for $150 a piece to assist users from across the United States in passing government entrance exams. Van de Putte said no such guide is available through the post office.

"Companies of this nature are a huge problem nationwide. They take money from the public for things they can get for free at the post office, or falsely represent job availability," he said. "The best way to find out what is necessary to get the job is to call the post office."

OPINIONS

It's election time: Let the political games begin

Benjamin Gohs
'Staff writer'

The birds flew south, bears are in their caves and politicians, panic-stricken at the possibility of impending upheaval, are twitching in their mohair suits.

Whether you prefer the lesser of two evils or the evil of two lessors, election day draws nigh. And, as nervous as I am about confrontational flyers, gaudy yard signs and hanging chads, the candidates are borderline frantic.

Handshakes are sweeter, the already plastic hairdos appear much slicker than normal and their lips are chapped from kissing one too many babies.

Whereas national and state politicians may spend millions of dollars to get elected to an office, local politicians tend to stick to campaigns consisting of word of mouth, letters to the editor and the occasional all-you-can-stomach pancake breakfast.

Now, to be fair, if absolute power corrupts absolutely, then even the worst of local politicians are merely the fat-free ice cream of politics. That doesn't mean they can't do harm, but they seem to be less capable of far-reaching chaos than your average congressman or senator.

But make no mistake, local candidates' hands are no drier and their hairdos no less caked with overpriced beauty aids. And this time of year, due to fluctuating poll numbers and dwindling finances, they tend to be more aggressive.

Due to the seriousness of the upcoming season I feel it is my paranoid, or patriotic, duty to forewarn my fellow citizens.

1. Never come a candidate with invasive inquiries concerning their policies and intentions. If they wanted to play 20 Questions they'd become a contestant on Jeopardy.

2. Watch where you flash your cash. Sharks can smell a drop of blood in a million gallons of water. Likewise, a hard-boiled politico can smell a would-be campaign contribution through denim at 500 paces.

3. Warning signs of an agitated candidate include: the blinding shine of bleached teeth and patent leather shoes, as well as unsettling amounts of enthusiasm.

If confronted by one of these quasi-motivational glad-handers panhandling for votes, don't panic. Accept whatever propaganda pamphlet they offer, take a deep breath and back away. It is imperative to avoid eye contact. Nod, smile and in a confident and reassuring voice, tell them you are as of yet undecided, but will consider them come election day.

The not-so-symbiotic relationship (while they need us, I'm not so sure we couldn't do without many of them) between politicians and citizens is only possible when politicians receive all the public exposure, tax funded stipends and limited power small town representative democracy has to offer.

Once at a safe distance, and only then, make certain you still possess your wallet, shoes and integrity. You'll know you're safe when you can no longer detect the overpowering odor of hairspray and desperation.

Don't get me wrong, all in all I believe most Americans enter politics to do good. If I didn't still feel that way I would have moved to Canada, changed my name to Rufus and taken up salmon smoking and moose herding. But, that doesn't mean some of my representatives don't frighten me at times.

When you see a current or hopeful of, ficeholder, take a little comfort in knowing that, at the very least, their anxiety is genuine. If that won't help you sleep any better tonight, here are a few tips on surviving the political season:

- Avoid the temptation to show your support via bumper stickers. Ask anyone who remembers trying to scrape off, "Vote Ferraro in '84."

- When annoying campaign workers call, answer the phone in Pig Latin.

- Political signs make great sanitary liners for bird cages and kitty litter boxes.

- Hang wreaths of garlic on your front porch, this will deter door-to-door campaigners and other assorted ghouls.

- As the late Chicago politician, William Hale Thompson, is thought to have said, "Vote early and vote often."

Skatepark, Inc.

Many people may not realize that Charlevoix Community Skatepark, Inc. has totally funded this skate park project, raising over $92,000. In addition, there is $21,500 awaiting disbursement from challenge grants. This has led to Charlevoix Community Skatepark, Inc. approaching city council with a request that the city give a $24,000 advance to the project so these challenge grants can be released. It is their hope that an increase of construction materials cost (due to the recent hurricanes) be minimized. It is my belief that the city is stalling a gift horse in the mouth and that these funds should be released.

Charlevoix Community Skatepark, Inc. can use our help. Recent articles in both the Courier and The Petoskey News-Review have focused on the issue of national disaster contributions displacing funds to our local charities. Each charity is valid and serves a unique purpose. Support to these non-profits can be monetary and service oriented. Charlevoix Community Skatepark, Inc. would welcome and appreciate either. Contact Vickie Damann at (231) 547-8063 if you are interested in helping see phase two of this project realized.

Vote in favor of park changes
Editor:

Downtown Charlevoix continues to evolve. Historically it has always been so. Now we are faced with some long-reaching proposals that require us to do some serious thinking from a practical aspect and controlling some of the emotional side.

Yes, I am writing about the proposed Round Lake marina. The boat dock area is sadly in need of updating and we expect that to be accomplished within the next nine months. I hope so. Although I do not have much opportunity to use the docks other than as a pedestrian, I totally support their replacement with the proposed floating docks and am delighted that both state and federal authorities agree.

Now about East Park. I guess that if we are to complete the evolutionary process, we have to include the park. As I understand it, the park grounds will be brought together from Antrim to Clinton streets. The harbor master's office and the appropriate bathrooms will be located to the north end and a new band shell, re-dedicated to Clarence Odmark, will be built taking advantage of our East Park site for the enjoyment of performers and the listening public. Great. What's more, the park will be improved with Downtown Development Authority funds.

Let's join together again and support this for our own enjoyment as well as the visiting public.

Rededicating new bandshell to Odmark
Editor:

As the son of Clarence Odmark, to whom the present band shell in East Park is dedicated, I have more than a passing interest in the future of the park and a newly relocated band shell. After reviewing the plans, I would like to add my support for the project and hope that it can be completed as soon as possible.

I cannot remember a time in all my years of growing up in Charlevoix that my dad was not actively pursuing some sort of permanent concert venue for the Charlevoix City Band in East Park. We would even make side trips on some of our vacations so he could see what other communities had done. His dream was fulfilled when the present band shell was built.

Some of my earliest memories are of loading up like Byers' truck at the school to take the chairs and music stands to the temporary platform in the park for the weekly City Band concerts. As I remember, the stand was approximately in the same place as the permanent band shell is today, but the exact placement would vary slightly from year to year. Its placement seemed the only logical place, backing up to the store (Nell's) at the foot of Mason Street. The tall flat wall of the store provided a good reflecting surface for the sound of the band to project into the park. Had the store not been there, nor the Parkside Restaurant and the Chamber of Commerce building, I'm sure the present location of the band shell would have been in the place you are considering. Both acoustically and logistically, it is the only location that makes sense, just as the present band shell made sense when the building next to it was there.

It looks to me as though the audience capacity of the new location will be at least doubled, and the terraced seating will be very much like the lawn seating now available at the present site. I hope there are plans for an adequate sound system, something the present shell lacks. I also think that the present band shell is a detraction from the clear view of the harbor from Bridge Street.

I would hope that the many years my dad spent in promoting the need for a band shell in the park would not be forgotten with the renovation of the park. To this end, I strongly request that the new shell be rededicated in his honor.

Editor:

The Charlevoix City Council recently discussed the city manager's performance relating to the problem we know as the check-writing incident. In a resulting editorial you stated there was not enough "meat" in the charges to consider terminating the city manager. You went on to describe the incident as a "slip-up," Councilman (Sherm) Chamberlain and Mayor (Norman) Carlson referred to it as a "communications problem."

I do not think the incident should be called a slip-up or a communications problem. It was a major blunder. I cannot imagine any other organization, public or private, big or small, where a payment of $220,000 could be made in such a casual manner with no managerial control in place.

Mr. DuPont responded to the editorial and made the excellent point that lack of criminal behavior by the city manager is not the same as his being competent. The ensuing public discussion in the paper evolved into a debate over the use or misuse of an odd word in the editorial. I thought this was too bad since I disagree with your opinion that there was lack of "meat" in the criticism of the city manager. I believe it is totally reasonable to question his performance.

You actually pointed out some "meat" in your editorial. You stated that the city should press hard for an expanded investigation of the check-writing incident by the state police. Well, who is "the city?" The police chief, or his supervisor, the city manager? Could it be "the city" kind of hoped the whole business would fade away?

Here are two more examples of additional "meat."

The faked sewer plant reports: The supervisor of the treatment plant was directly responsible for the problem, but he reports to the city manager, does he not? This "hands-off" style of management invites trouble. A competent manager must be sure his employees are running their departments properly.

Legal fees: Some planning commissioners incurred substantial cost to taxpayers during a dispute with the (former) mayor. The city manager should not allow employees or board members to engage the city attorney without managerial oversight. Maintaining fiscal control over expenditures is clearly one of the functions of a city manager.

In summary, I think council members (Gabe) Campbell and (Shirley) Gibson were correct in questioning whether the city manager is fulfilling his function, and further debate on this question is certainly warranted.

Vote 'no' on big box

Protect private property rights, by voting no on Ordinance No. 1.73.

Ordinance No. 1.73 is extremely destructive to private property rights.

Put yourself in this position. You own commercial property and are approached by a developer offering to buy your property to develop a project that completely meets current township ordinances, only to have a vocal minority group, and your civic leaders, change the rules because they did not like the developer.

Our right to sell our property, and the developer's right to purchase and develop commercial property for commercial use, is being denied.

Think of it this way — what if someone told you, you could not build your house that completely meets current township ordinances, on your residential property, because they did not like the design of your house or they did not like you. You and your house are not welcome here.

Private property rights must be protected. Vote no on Ordinance 1.73.

Current bandshell should stay
Editor:

My name is Evelyn Wujcik and I am the current president of the Charlevoix City Band. This band has been part of the Charlevoix summer scene for over 100 years, and I have been a member for almost 50 of those years. Research indicates that the Charlevoix City Band is one of the oldest bands of its kind in the country, and is well known throughout this state, as well as many other states, as a superb band.

The band will maintain its superior status regardless of what end of the park it performs. However, the issue at hand is the present band pavilion.

The question of acoustics always comes up when speaking of the present band pavilion, the shape, the size, the fish pond and other so-called obstacles. One would think the people were talking about an indoor auditorium.

The acoustics of any performing area are very important in most cases, but in this age of technology, super sound equipment seems to dominate any stage. The groups I have heard on our hand pavilion have all used sound equipment with the exception of the City Band. The reason for using such equipment was not because of the acoustics of our pavilion, but because the sound systems are part of their performance presentation.

I have seen and played on many different band shells and have experienced "good acoustics" many times, however these venues did not have a busy major highway 200 feet away. They were in quiet parks a ways out of town or in quiet areas of the city. Yes, acoustics are important if the groups are playing acoustically without super sound devices, and heavy traffic is not hindering the sound.

If people are so concerned about acoustic perfection, then maybe they need to look at locating the band pavilion in another park farther away from the downtown business area. There is a beautiful location on Michigan Beach, or another at Ferry Beach. As far as the present downtown location, our pavilion is in a perfect spot. It is centrally located to all businesses and parking lots, and provides glorious views of beautiful Round Lake.

The Clarence Odmark Band Pavilion is a landmark. It has sentimental value to many people who attended Charlevoix schools, and is a sound 12-year-old structure that should not be demolished.

Asking people to vote yes because the money won't be coming directly from people's pockets reminds me of someone buying something just because it's on sale. I'm certain the Downtown Development Authority could find a better way to utilize the funds from whatever the source.

I urge the voters of Charlevoix to vote no on the proposed park changes.

Vote 'no' on Ordinance 1.73
Editor:

Keep Charlevoix Township open to all retailers — vote no on Ordinance 1.73.

Ordinance No. 1.73 has a primary goal: To say no to "big box" stores. Nearly all of the proposed ordinance amendments are designed to obstruct or prevent national chain retailers from being interested in or willing to open a store in our township. The world's most successful retailer was, and likely still is, interested in building a store right here in Charlevoix Township — in an existing commercial district we might add, 100 percent compliant with existing zoning rules.

If this Ordinance passes, they will very likely build their store just two miles up the road in Marion Township.

By far the most vocal opponents to this project were local retailers who were afraid they might have to compete. They did not want to give up their sole supplier status. Retail choices are limited at best in Charlevoix, and some like it that way. We are forced to travel to Emmet, Otsego and Grand Traverse counties to have access to competitive prices. How much are you paying for gasoline these days to drive to Petoskey? Should we be forced to pay higher prices for goods simply because we live in Charlevoix?

Keep Charlevoix open to all retailers. Vote no on Ordinance 1.73.

Editor:

On Tuesday, Nov. 8, 2005, your vote is needed to decide the fate of Charlevoix Township's Zoning Ordinance No. 1.73. Proposed Ordinance No. 1.73 will radically amend our township's current zoning ordinance. Ordinance No. 1.73 was initiated on a one-vote margin (3-2) by our township's planning commissioners and was challenged by our county's planners.

This ill-advised ordinance will not protect our township as intended, but it will deprive our community of numerous benefits.

Please vote no on Ordinance No. 1.73. Voting no will ensure free enterprise and cultivate competition; ensure our township continues development with its many benefits including a more diverse and secure tax base; keep our township open to job creation; keep our township

Farewell to fishing season, hello freezer full of filets

Roger Knutson
'Ear to the ground'

In preparing to put the boat away for the winter, I checked the seldom examined memory of the fish/depth finder which tells me how many hours it has been turned on during its lifetime. I have noted this each of the past five years and the total number of hours is remarkably constant.

The depth finder tells me that during the just-past summer fishing season, I have been on the water for a total of 95 hours. Since the boat is used almost exclusively for fishing on Lake Michigan, the best guess of the number of hours spent fishing would be 90. Was it worth it? At the level of satisfaction and enjoyment that is a ridiculous question, but in economic terms how well have I fared this past season?

The freezer now contains 65 pounds of frozen boneless salmon and lake trout filets, and figuring that we have had 16 good meals of fresh fish for two during the summer, the total fish return comes to 89 pounds of fish flesh consumed or available. On average that would be 1 pound of pure fish for each hour spent in the boat. Considering that the usual price for a boneless fish at retail is about $6, I am compensated in financial terms at a rate of almost $6 per hour. And while that is not a princely or CEO-ly recompense, imagine getting paid for spending time fishing on Lake Michigan.

My accounting is certainly not complete (lacking depreciation for the boat and cost of fuel) but it is probably as good as that of some of our nation's most famous corporations. I am inclined to count the frozen larder as pure profit. And when someone else is fishing with me, I could add to the fishing profit with consultation fees that might well be in the hundreds of dollars per hour. While these fees are not actually collected, they should be citable for tax purposes. The entire fishing enterprise would certainly benefit from an offshore account in a warmer climate. And a few imaginary boats catching and storing imaginary fish might make the profit picture even more rosy.

Finally, if we can show sufficient promise for the future, wouldn't it be best to take the whole enterprise public and sell shares to those who might like to be fishing on Lake Michigan, but lack the time or geographic possibility? Then we could franchise the operation to other lakes. The economic picture is at least as bright as that for selling secondhand electricity or watery Florida real-estate.

All of the preceding is the sort of thinking that can occupy the mind while waiting for the fish to appear — another often uncounted benefit of fishing on Lake Michigan. Here's to next year.

Support the skate park
Editor:

I am writing to extend our appreciation to the members of Charlevoix Community Skatepark, Inc., the non-profit fund-raising group which has worked tirelessly for two years to see a quality, supervised skate park become a reality for our community. Phase one of the state-of-the-art park is now constructed near the ball fields on Carpenter Street.

Vickie Danian, Laura Stebe and Scott Stebe are three of the original members who have invested much time and personal sacrifice as caring parents who believe in the goal of providing safety to our skateboarders, BMX hikers and in-line skaters. Others have joined their group along the way to support them. This group has had only one agenda, to see the park built.

These parents are not politicians, but they have striven to work with both arms of local government, city council and the city manager. Learning to maneuver through the political landscape in the City of Charlevoix as been an education with perseverance as the key. This group has faced many challenges and delays along the way. A less committed group may have abandoned the project. Not so with Charlevoix Community Skatepark.

Vote 'yes' on East Park changes
Editor:

Nov. 8 is a very important election on the "yes" or "no" vote to complete the renovation of the downtown park. It seems that every time something positive comes along that isn't even going to cost the voters a dollar, there is a certain element who are always saying "no." I urge you to vote "yes," to improve our park downtown.

Everything we do in life has to do with timing. The time to do this is now, because the financing is there, as the Downtown Development Authority is paying their share, and the state is paying the rest. It won't cost the homeowners anything, or our grandchildren anything. It is a beautiful plan, and will only make Charlevoix more beautiful.

When I started the petunia project years ago, the same bunch were saying it couldn't be done, and wouldn't work. A council member even came down when we were first cleaning out the dirt from the curbs, and was yelling at me for ruining the curbs in town. Well, after 24 years, I think we've proven the nay sayers wrong. My grandfather on my mother's side, always stressed a famous quote by Benjamin Franklin, which was this, "The Lord helps those who help themselves." He lived by this, and I've lived long enough to see how true it is.

Mr. Odmark's sons, Dick and Bob, have stated that they are in support of the proposed new handball, and having it named after their father. By doing the complete project, instead of just half of it, we will all enjoy the benefits of a beautiful park for years to come. Let's not cut off our nose to spite our face, and shortchange our grandchildren. An opportunity like this doesn't happen every day. It's important to take advantage of it now.

I urge you to consider the above, and do your part to make Charlevoix more beautiful yet.

Keep our township open to free enterprise and competition. Vote no on Ordinance No. 1.73.

The proposed Zoning Ordinance Amendments are highly restrictive and will greatly hinder free enterprise and prevent retail competition. The ordinance is designed to prevent specific types of businesses from entering our community. It will prevent the world's most successful retailers from bringing their well received businesses to our community.

Free enterprise allows people to shop where they wish. Competition keeps prices low. Large international retailers have reached their level of worldwide success because they offer what we want at the prices we can and will pay.

The proposed ordinance amendments assure Charlevoix Township will lose the benefit of free enterprise and retail competition.

Keep our Township open to free enterprise and competition. Vote no on Ordinance No. 1.73.

Local women attend an Early Childhood Education summit

On Tuesday, Sept. 20, northern Michigan residents Wendy Crick, Nicole Zawisza, and Lynne Zimmer joined other state educators in Lansing to testify before the sub-committee for Early Childhood Education.

Chaired by 105th District Representative Kevin Elsenheimer, the sub-committee heard testimony in support of a bill to promote effective strategies to teach all children literacy.

The focus of the testimony was to share with lawmakers their successes, and to promote Evidence Based Literacy Instruction and other phonemic based reading strategies, to teach children to reach their highest potential.

Phonemes are the smallest units of sound in our language. This approach teaches decoding of words, which leads to fluent reading and comprehension of text.

Many schools do not teach sound to symbol correspondence, that each letter or combination of letters spells a sound and how they work together to make a word.

Instead, many children are

Community foundations award hospice grant

Pregnancy and Infant Loss Program to benefit

Recently the Charlevoix County Community Foundation and the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation presented Hospice of Little Traverse Bay with two grants for their Pregnancy and Infant Loss Support Program.

This unique program is one of four in Michigan offered by hospice programs and is funded solely with memorial contributions and grants. Funds from both foundations will be used to provide educational resources, books, and videos for families, memory boxes, monthly mailings, peer volunteer support, individual and family counseling and sibling support.

Gifts from the Charlevoix area are allowing Hospice of Little Traverse Bay to partner with Charlevoix Area Hospital staff to offer families specialized granite memorial markers.

The Hospice of Little Traverse Bay Pregnancy and Infant Loss Support Program was started in 2003 to offer support to families suffering miscarriage, stillbirth or infant death. Since it's inception two years ago, over 100 families have sought the support of this program.

For more information on this service, contact Jeanne Hice at (231) 487-4825 or visit the hospice Web site at www.hospiceltrb.org.

Local woman quilts blue star style to support troops

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Charlevoix resident and former soldier in the United States Army, Gail L. Seidel, made a quilt to honor and support the troops.

The quilt is similar to the blue star flag quilt she found on a Web site.

"I saw that on there and thought it would be something inspirational," she said. "The more I looked at it the more I felt compelled to make it."

She added, "I think that basically the blue star is designed to let people know that a family has a child in a combat situation. It's just to show my support for the families in that situation right now."

According to Seidel, in 1917 a captain in the army during World War I designed the Blue Star Service Banner because he had sons serving at the time.

Seidel's quilt reads, "Land of the free because of the brave thank you."

Seidel made the quilt because, she said, she wanted to show the people of this community that no matter how they look at the war in Iraq or what their feelings are about the military or government, the troops who serve to protect and defend deserve respect.

"These men and women do not walk out on their commitments when the going gets rough, they follow through," Seidel said. "I am sure they would much prefer to be home with their families, but they went when they were called."

She added, "But more than that, I made this quilt to show the families of the young people that I know who have served in this conflict my support, my respect and my gratitude for risking their all when called."

Gail Seidel made this soldiers quilt to honor and recognize American soldiers fighting abroad.

Seidel said she has been in similar positions wondering and waiting to find out where her husband was and whether he was all right.

"I know the kind of uncertainty, the waiting and stress it brings and the emotions that it carries," she added.

The quilt is currently being kept at her home but Seidel doesn't yet have plans for it.

She said, "Some people thought we should do a raffle for it, but we'll just have to wait and see."

City council approves Ship's Watch development

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

Charlevoix City Council approved a development plan for a 16-unit condominium complex to be constructed between the Sleep Inn and Monte's Auto Wash on the City of Charlevoix's north side.

The project, called Ship's Watch, will include four buildings and will cost developer Jack Strickland between $2 and $3 million.

Strickland said in phase one of the project, which is expected to be complete in the spring of 2006, a four unit building consisting of two 1,500 square foot units downstairs and another two upstairs accessed by a common entrance and stairwell will be built.

Following completion of phase one, three more similar structures will be built.

Strickland explained that each of the condos will be privately owned and also available for rent, like a motel.

In paperwork provided to council he states that the site will not have typical motel signs.

"We feel the community has a need for an up-scale, short-term rental experience with convenient access to the downtown business district," Strickland told council.

Strickland is a licensed residential builder and general contractor from Plymouth. He is also a Charlevoix seasonal resident.

He said he plans to use local labor and material suppliers for the project.

The property, owned by Oscar Stroud has been on the market for eight years and is currently listed with ReMax sales agent Greg Bryan, Stroud's nephew.

Bryan spoke at the council meeting and said no neighboring property owners have come forward with complaints about the project.

He said during the lengthy listing period restaurants and car repair shop owners have expressed interest in locating there, all of who were turned down.

"We told the C & O Club neighbors we would do the best we can for them," Bryan said.

City council gives Big Fish access to wastewater plant

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The City of Charlevoix recently approved the implementation of a new and environmentally friendly means of septage disposal.

According to John Campbell, owner of Site Planning Development and co-designer for Big Fish Environmental L.L.C., the new system will turn septage sludge into an effluent which can then be added directly to the municipal sewer system.

"The use will start immediately upon completion of documentation by the city," Campbell said. "It's soon to be completed. We're finishing up and awaiting final electrical inspection and growing the Pirana (bacteria). But there have been no discharges as of yet."

Campbell said his company is in the process of finalizing the procedures with City of Charlevoix with hookup being completed as early as Oct. 31.

"The city has been very, very cooperative and very helpful," he said.

There was discussion between the city and Big Fish on certain fees to hook up to the city's system. But, Campbell said, "All financial aspects were settled. It was a very positive meeting. The mayor did a great job and the (city) council did a great job sifting through all of the information."

According to Campbell, this has been a good relationship between private enterprise, the city and the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality.

"For me it's been a positive experience working for the same goal and objectives," he said. "Everyone has had good input helping to put the pilot program together to fit everybody's needs."

The contents of a septic tank are divided into two major groups, the effluent (liquid), which flows out of the septic tank and for the most part evaporates, and the solids, known as septage, which are a combination of waste from garbage disposals, bath and sink drains and toilets.

Traditionally, once the septage has been treated in an anaerobic (lack of oxygen) method it is then pumped out onto the ground in a designated area.

Big Fish may hookup to city's treatment system by Oct. 31

Campbell said, the Big Fish process is a biological way of treating septage without the use of chemicals. Instead of the anaerobic method, Big Fish uses both oxygen and safe, naturally occurring bacteria to treat the waste.

"Because of that, we do not generate Hydrogen-sulfide or methane," Campbell said.

When ready, Big Fish will serve southern Emmet, northern Antrim and Charlevoix counties.

Once hooked up to the city's system Big Fish will be able to complete the research and development stages of the pilot project.

He said, "We'll have a very specific set of parameters of effluents which will be discharged into the system."

Some benefits Campbell pointed to associated with implementation of Big Fish include: discharge of non-domestic wastewater; pretreated septage with no excess pollutant concentrations; aerobic bacteria influent to the city's sewer system; ability to control the quantity and period of pretreated effluent; and a reduced need for expansion of the city's sewer system.

Campbell said the Big Fish method of treating septage is positive for the environment.

"As septage will no longer be field applied, there will be fewer land applications," he said.

According to Campbell, fewer land applications means less chances for contamination of groundwater. And, the aesthetics will improve as the odor from the land application of septage sludge will no longer be an issue.

"As our communities grow and wells get closer and closer to qualified disposal fields, contamination from septage becomes a greater and greater possibility," he said.

According to Campbell, the cost for disposal is going to be higher, but, "We will be developing that cost more and more as we go along."

Charlevoix Trick or Treat Hours: Monday, October 31 • 6PM-8PM

Let's all be aware of children on Halloween night!
We want them to be safe and happy and have a great Halloween!

- Costumes should be nonflammable and should not restrict movement. Masks shouldn't block vision. Use makeup instead.
- Give your children a meal or snack before they go out, and emphasize that no treats should be eaten before they get home.
- Carry a flashlight so you can see & be seen easily.
- Discard commercially produced candy if the wrapper is loose or the seal has been broken.
- Drivers watch out! Children become careless from excitement and may run into the road.
- Choose a costume that is easy to walk in, easy to see out of and can be seen by drivers.
- Remind your children to look both ways and cross streets only at corners.
- Use a reflective tape on your costume so people driving cars can see you.
- Do not eat unwrapped candy!
- Leave your porch light on, so kids know it's OK to visit.

Sheriff Lasater's trick-or-treating safety tips

File photo

Recommended trick-or-treating hours provided by the Charlevoix City Police Department are from 6 to 8 p.m., Monday, Oct. 31. Charlevoix Elementary School students will trick-or-treat at downtown businesses at 2 p.m. that day.

George Lasater

Next Monday, the streets of Charlevoix will be filled with little ghosts, goblins and witches filling their sacks with trick-or-treating booty.

Recommended trick-or-treating hours provided by the Charlevoix City Police Department are from 6 to 8 p.m., Monday, Oct. 31.

To ensure Halloween is safe for your children, Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater offers the following safety tips.

Costumes should be short enough to prevent tripping. Masks shouldn't be restrictive and should have adequate holes for proper respiration and peripheral vision. Consider using cosmetics instead of masks.

- Watch costumed children around pets. Pets may not recognize a costumed child and become frightened.
- Avoid hard plastic or wooden props, opting instead for items made of foam rubber which is soft and flexible.
- To help make children more visible after dark, they should carry bright bags, a flashlight, or a glow stick. Add reflective tape to the side, front and back of the child's costume.
- At all times, watch for traffic and avoid walking in the street whenever possible. Cross the street at crosswalks only.
- An adult should always accompany young children, staying within close range. Children should never be allowed to go down a street alone. Walk with children to each house and wait near the porch or front entrance until they return.

- Older children should travel in pairs or groups and never venture down a dark, empty street. Dark, unlit homes should be avoided.
- Parents should know the route their children are following. And children should walk together to the front door of each house.
- Children should save candy until they get home so it can be inspected. Discard unwrapped or suspicious looking goodies, save all wrappers. If your child does get sick call your family doctor or the hospital emergency room.
- Keep flammable items like jack-o-lanterns away from small children, pets and other flammable materials. Never leave a candle burning unattended.

Coast Guard plans spooktacular Ghost Ship finale

By JULIE WITTHOEF
Editor

The crew of the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Acacia is preparing for a terrifying send-off to the age old Ghost Ship tradition.

For many years the Acacia crew has created one of the scariest Halloween traditions in northern Michigan, the Ghost Ship. Now, as the crew prepares for the ship to be decommissioned in the summer of 2006, they are preparing for the most frightening ship yet.

Aboard the over 200-foot long cutter, brave explorers will get a taste of the best Halloween costumes, scary tricks and yummy treats.

"This is our last year and we are going all out — more food, more money, more elaborate," said Brian Klinger, a coordinator of the Ghost Ship project and a boatmate aboard the Acacia.

He explained that about 30 of the ship's 54 crewmen are participating this year — teaming up to tackle technical scare plans and build support machinery.

"There will be a little bit of everything in each compartment," he said.

It will take about eight to 10 minutes to traverse the bone chilling Coast Guard presentation.

Due to the large number of ship thrill seekers that went through last year, which Klinger said totaled over 1,000 people, the crew has extended its hours this year.

From 6 to 7:30 p.m. Oct. 28 the crew will host a walk-through for children and the weak hearted. Then, from 8 to 11 p.m. that night brave souls are invited to test their courage with a tour.

Brave horror seekers are invited back from 7 to 11 p.m. Oct. 29.

Admission is "free" but the donation of three non-perishable food items per entrant is requested. Those donations will be given to the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry.

"Our mission with this is to raise resources for the pantry and entertain the community," Klinger said.

Alan Lovelace heads south to help with Katrina clean-up

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Like so many northern Michigan birds and residents, Charlevoix's Alan Lovelace, has flown south for the winter.

Alan Lovelace

Lovelace, executive director of Castle Farms, left for his hometown of Gulfport Miss. last week to help his family recover from the damage of this hurricane season.

"The elementary school that I went to was pretty much trashed," Lovelace said. "It's south of the railroad tracks which is also where my step-grandmother lives and it was flooded."

He added, "Two houses from my grandmother were leveled."

Lovelace traveled with a group of men and a trailer full of supplies to the decimated area the Friday after Katrina hit for a short time but has since been working in Charlevoix.

"The clean-up is going to take months. You could work everyday after work for a couple of hours and still not be able to mow your lawn due to debris," Lovelace said. "It isn't going to improve overnight."

Lovelace's stepfather is the vice-president of store services for RPM Pizza, which operates the largest franchise of Dominos Pizza in the United States. Aside from traveling to Mississippi to assist his family, Lovelace will work to help re-open many of the pizza stores damaged by the hurricane.

"Right now they have about 25 pizza stores damaged or gone, since some of them were on the beach," he said. "I have a master's in industrial engineering, so they've hired me as a project engineer."

Lovelace, who will be replaced at the Castle by its owners, Richard and Linda Mueller during his absence, will work to find construction crews and materials to help get the stores back online.

"(They) are going to be here this winter to help while I'm gone, so we're sort of trading places," he said.

Lovelace will work throughout Mississippi, Louisiana and Alabama to help make the stores operable.

"There are 470 people that don't have their typical store to work at, but they (Dominos) are short 400 people because they can't locate them," he said. "And, the government is paying $25 an hour for cleanup work and there are many businesses that are up and running and (utilizing) those people."

Lovelace said he couldn't remain idle while his father and step-father work so hard to recover their homes and businesses. In addition to engineering work, Lovelace will also work to find homes for people who will potentially be employed by Dominos.

"They work 12-hour days and then go grocery shopping which now takes three hours a day," he said. "Dad works all day. RPM Pizza employs 3,000 people as a whole."

He added, "My dad and step-dad just sounded so tired when I called them so I decided I could help."

"When I went down right after the storm, I was able to help immediately but I didn't know how I could continue to help my family," he said. "But then I realized our season in Charlevoix ends about now and as long as I'm back by the beginning of April, the impact of me being gone should be minimal."

According to Lovelace, his family is excited about his arrival.

"In a way, as they say, I'm getting the best of both worlds. I get to help my family and stay with them," he said. "And, now I'm going to spend Thanksgiving, Christmas and my birthday and a whole lot of time with my family when they need me."

Lovelace, who moved 1,300 miles from home to work at Castle Farms 17 months ago, said he will return to Charlevoix.

"I love it. Charlevoix is the most beautiful place in the world aside from Bora Bora," he said. "If people wonder if I might not come back — I have no intentions of staying down there."

"I will be working in the same capacity when I return," he added.

Lovelace left Monday, Oct. 17 with plans to be back by the first week of April 2006.

City council passes historic district ordinance

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

Establishment of a historic district ordinance in the City of Charlevoix has some questioning the balance between historic preservation and private property rights.

At Charlevoix City Council's Oct. 17 meeting the majority of council passed an ordinance that will allow them to establish historic districts in the city.

Now, a Historic District Commission will be formed to make potential district recommendations to council.

According to city planner Gerry Harsch, these districts will be relatively small areas including single buildings or areas with a significant number of historic resources tied together architecturally or through a common background.

Through the ordinance, the city can regulate the construction, addition, alteration, repair, excavation and demolition of exterior features of properties included in a designated district.

At the recent meeting, the Depot property located near Coast Guard Station Charlevoix, was discussed as the first possible historic district.

Other discussion included establishing districts in resort areas like the Belvedere and Chicago elms.

"What we are trying to do is save Charlevoix's heritage," third ward council member Shirley Gibson said.

While the majority of council voted in favor of the regulation, second ward councilman Bill Bellows voted against it claiming it infringes on personal property rights.

"I don't think we should be telling people what to do with their property. If a project meets building codes, the type of construction shouldn't be dictated by someone else," he said. "Adding bureaucracy

National BREAST CANCER AWARENESS Month

October is National Breast Cancer Awareness Month. It is estimated that, during this year alone, 175,000 women will be diagnosed with breast cancer, and 43,000 women will lose their lives to the disease. Early detection and treatment of breast cancer are the best weapons for beating the disease. In support of the nationwide initiative to communicate the importance of early detection, we are pleased to provide the following breast cancer early detection guidelines:

WOMEN AGED 40 OR OLDER

- 1. Have a clinical breast exam every year.
- 2. Schedule a clinical breast exam with a health professional every year.
- 3. Perform a breast self-examination every month.

WOMEN BETWEEN THE AGES OF 20 AND 39

- 1. Schedule a clinical breast exam with a health professional every three years.
- 2. Perform a breast self-examination every month.

*If any changes, such as swelling or skin irritation in the breast or under-arm area, are noticed during the breast self-examination, contact your health care provider for a professional evaluation. Knowing your body and promptly addressing any unusual developments are key to early detection.

doesn't help anyone."

He added that the ordinance could be a detriment to property owners as increasing regulations may decrease their value.

Harsch responded that the ordinance standards are generous and public hearings will take place prior to council adopting any proposed district.

Gibson said, "We'll work with property owners, not against them."

Harsch added that benefits to property owners within a district include possible renovation tax credits.

The ordinance came into being following the recent demolition of the Appletree building located at 224 Bridge Street. This was the former real estate office of renowned architect Earl Young, known for the "mushroom" homes found throughout the Charlevoix area.

In September of 2003, just after the building was set for demolition, the city formed a Historic Preservation Committee to brainstorm ways to make sure other structures with historic value are protected in the future.

"What we are trying to do is save Charlevoix's heritage."

Shirley Gibson,
Third ward, Charlevoix City Council

The committee recommended this ordinance be established.

At council's recent meeting, Bob Heath, vice chair of the Historic Preservation Committee, said, "When the Appletree was torn down, people came to council and asked what they could do to stop it. Your hands were tied."

He added that this ordinance will give council and the community the power to protect these resources.

Rayder football suffer 48-8 pre-playoff loss

Charlevoix to face Boyne City in district play at 7 p.m. Oct. 28

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The Charlevoix Rayders ended a season big on wins with a big 48-8 loss.

According to coach Don Jess, Traverse City put forth an un-stoppable effort.

"We lost pretty bad," Jess said. "We just couldn't stop them. Our defense couldn't stop their offense."

He added, "They're a good team — a very good team."

Charlevoix didn't manage to score a touchdown until the beginning of the fourth quarter when quarterback Matt Kautz managed a 50-yard touchdown run followed by a two-point conversion thrown to Matt Kanine.

But it wasn't enough to beat back the 40 point Saint Francis lead.

"We knew it was going to be a tough game," Jess said.

But, he added, "It's a big accomplishment. This is only the third time in history Charlevoix has gone to the playoffs, so regardless, this has been a good season."

Defense was led by Jeff Golovich with 10 tackles. He was followed by Drew Klooster with nine tackles and Evan Keller with eight tackles.

Nate Triplehorn recovered one fumble.

As the Rayders enter the playoffs Jess said they will reflect on a great season as well as the possibility of a championship.

"I'm glad we drew Boyne City. It's a team that we're very familiar with," Jess said. "We're just going to work on everything."

"They have a balanced offense. They can run and throw so we just have to be ready for them on defense, he added.

The Charlevoix Rayders will play at 7 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 28 in Boyne City.

If Charlevoix beats the Ramblers they will have to face either Suttons Bay or Kingsley.

SPORTS

Girls basketball head into districts on winning streak

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders rolled on with two more wins last week, defeating East Jordan, 68-46 and Harbor Springs, 63-38.

The girls basketball squad has now won 11 straight games for a 12-2 overall mark, 9-0 in the Lake Michigan Conference.

The Rayders will face a tough test this Thursday as they host Traverse City St. Francis. The Gladiators are 8-1 in the league with their only conference blemish coming at the hands of the Rayders.

"If we take care of business against Grayling (at home Oct. 25), (the game against St. Francis) should be for the conference championship," coach Keith Charlevoix turned the East Jordan game into a laugh early, cruising to a 27-8 lead at the end of the first quarter. The Rayders led 41-20 at the half and coasted for the win.

"We played real well early," Haske commented. "We forced a lot of turnovers and made our shots. I was very pleased with our effort. We set the tone early for the whole game."

Bethany Pearson had a big night, scoring 14 points and pulling down eight rebounds to lead Charlevoix in both categories. Laura Nitchman scored 11 points while Stevie Murray had 10.

At Harbor Springs the Rayders used a similar formula en route to the win, pulling out to a big lead early. Charlevoix led 16-9 after the first period and 37-22 at the half. The lead extended to 57-36 after three quarters.

"We jumped out again and had a comfortable lead early," Haske observed. "Laura Nitchman and Bethany Pearson pretty much carried us through the first half."

Nitchman scored 16 points before the half, finishing with 20 in the game.

Pearson scored 11 in the first quarter alone. She finished with 15 points and eight rebounds.

The district draw was held last week and according to Haske, "for the first time since I've been here, we had a favorable draw."

Charlevoix opens district play at 8 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 14 against host Mancelona.

The winner of that game plays at 6 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 16 against Inland Lakes.

The district finals will be at 7 p.m. Friday, Nov. 18.

"It's the first year that Inland Lakes has been in our district," Haske said. "We have all of the league schools (Boyne City, East Jordan, Harbor Springs) on the other side of the bracket for the first time."

PUBLIC HEARING November 7th, 2005 - 7pm

The Charlevoix City Council will hold a public hearing on Monday, November 7th, 2005 at 7pm in Council Chambers of City Hall, 210 State Street, to receive public input on a proposed amendment to Chapter 24 - City Utility Rates of Title II of the City Code.

The Proposed amendment would provide for the following:

A septage pretreatment facility may only connect to the City's sewer system pursuant to a written agreement between the City and the owner of the proposed septage pretreatment facility. This contract must be approved by the City Council. The contract shall specify the amount of connection fees, the terms of payment of those connection fees, the applicable sewer rate, the conditions under which the connection fees or sewer rate may change and the method of payment of the connection fees. Local churches seek support for New Orleans refugees

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

According to one lifelong Louisiana resident, southern hospitality has nothing over northern compassion.

Amanda Powell and her 2-year-old daughter, Riley, evacuated to Texas two days before Hurricane Katrina hit. On Oct. 6 Powell came to East Jordan to visit a hospitalized friend, and was so impressed with the community, she decided to stay.

"The people that I have met so far have been absolutely incredible," she said. "Even the ones that are not able to help are very supportive and very welcoming — you find the welcome in New Orleans, but you don't find the help."

Powell said she was safe from the winds and flooding in Texas, but the place in which she took refuge was not meant to accommodate more than a couple people.

"I had evacuated with my daughter and 4-year-old little brother to Houston, Texas to stay with my grandmother," Powell said. "And, at one point during the hurricane, we had 13 people and two dogs in a two-bedroom apartment."

Thanks to the fact that the parents of her hospitalized friend decided to move to East Jordan shortly after the hurricane hit, Powell has a temporary residence with them.

"I came up to help with the house while (their) son was in the hospital," she said. "I just fell in love with it up here. And, it helps that NCMC (North Central Michigan College) gave me a full scholarship so I can continue with my nursing degree."

Powell said the part of Louisiana in which she lived was devastated by the storm. And, barring two suitcases full of clothes, she lost everything.

"My car got pretty much creamed when two trees fell on it," she said. "And, I'm going to have to completely furnish an entire apartment."

Powell said she doesn't want to have to pick up and move again due to a natural disaster, especially if it's in an area where there is obvious danger.

"I would if I had to, but if the levies broke this time, I'm sure that they'll break again," she said. "Eventually I'd like to go back to New Orleans, but I think it would be more of a visit than to live."

She added, "My parents are still down there and of course I'd like to see them, but I don't think there's anything in New Orleans that's worth moving back for."

Powell said she is grateful for the scholarship to North Central Michigan College to continue pursuing her degree. As a result she hopes to find permanent housing as close to the college as possible.

"Next January I start full-time at North Central Michigan College," she said. "I'm looking at Maple Village in Petoskey and hopefully that will all work out and maybe I can be in by Nov. 1."

Powell is also in need of a vehicle to get to work, daycare and school as well as a computer to help with her school work. She currently uses the computer at the local library. But, she said, so many pages are blocked she is unable to access the online syllabus for her microbiology class.

In spite of losing everything and moving thousands of miles away from a home she's known all her life, Powell keeps an upbeat attitude.

"It's very strange, it's completely interesting and a little scary," she said. "But I'm hopeful that everything will work out and I'm sure it will."

Powell added, "It should be interesting this winter. I've never been in the snow before. That's going to be a new adventure — in New Orleans when we got an inch of slush all the kids would have to scrape the ground and the tops of cars to make a foot-tall snowman."

Members of the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix are assisting Powell with home furnishings of all kinds and have asked for additional help to get Powell on her feet.

County could face litigation in tardy election claim

COUNTY

Josh Barnes

"I asked for clarification on why the election was held until November and she (Brannon) said it was to save money," Jarema said.

Jane Brannon

In a response letter from Brannon to Jarema dated Oct. 20, Brannon states, "The decision to wait until November for a primary was mine. I relied on the state area election representative who agreed with the cost saving measure of holding the election in November since there was no August election scheduled."

In response, Jarema said when state law calls for a special election in a reasonable amount of time, it should be done.

John Jarema

"I think there is no real reason to wait that long. This opens the county up to potential litigation. The board relied on an opinion from Jane — she should have known better," Jarema said. "Saying this was done to save money when it is contrary to the law? We'll have to pay more if we get sued. While it is noble to wait for a longer time to save the county money, such waiting is contrary to the law in my opinion."

He added, "In speaking to the elections bureau in Lansing, I was told that there doesn't appear to be any reason to have waited so long for this election."

In Jarema's letter to Taylor, Jarema said the case law cited by Taylor refused to define what is a "reasonable time" in which to call an election.

"But it held that the range of a couple of months to one year is too long and removed the commissioners (in Wayne County)," Jarema said.

But, according to Brannon, there are no longer special elections.

"You have four times a year (February, May, August and November) you can hold elections. November was the next available time to hold an election," she said. "At the time there wasn't going to be anything in August. It was in an effort to save money for the taxpayers and at that time nobody said there was any problem with it."

Brannon said, by holding the election until November, she saved the taxpayers thousands of dollars and, by the time it was discovered that the City of Charlevoix had to hold an August primary election, it was too late to file.

Taylor said he will continue exploring avenues to rectify what he feels is a violation of state law, including possible litigation against the county.

According to Barnes, this controversy comes as a surprise to him.

"If they want to throw me out, then throw me out, but I think that's rather chicken," Barnes said. "I've been in the office and working my tail off and I don't understand how this can come up at this stage."

Barnes said he doesn't recall when discussions among the commissioners took place concerning when an election would be held, but, he said, "I don't think the subject was a matter of great discussion."

Right now, Barnes is focusing on the Nov. 8 primary in which he faces John Haggard.

"I hope I win, but I'm not going to do a lot of fierce fighting for it," Barnes said. "It's not worth this kind of stuff."

Money order scam at local B & B

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

An intricate counterfeit scheme has made its way across international borders all the way to Charlevoix.

When Charlevoix resident and business owner, Vera McKown, took reservations for two at her bed and breakfast, Bridge Street Inn last month, she had no idea she would soon be contacting the FBI.

"We received an e-mail we assumed was from overseas from somewhere in Great Britain," McKown said. "Two gentlemen made reservations for two weeks and we went through the rest of the process."

McKown said, she informed the gentlemen of the cost to stay and asked them the purpose of their trip.

"They said they were attending a container convention and that kind of put an alert to my brain," she said.

McKown asked for the men's addresses, names and other information, but she said, "Their names were obviously bogus."

According to McKown, she received an e-mail telling her that she was asking too many questions.

"Never mind," they wrote and told McKown they would pay her in advance.

"A couple of weeks later in the mail came five U.S. Postal money orders for $995 each for a total of almost $5,000 in all," she said. "Being suspicious I sat on it for a little bit and then there were e-mails canceling the reservation and asking us to wire the money back to these people via Western Union."

Health care providers prepare for flu season

No vaccine shortage reported

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

As we head into battle with flu season health care providers are armed with vaccinations.

"It's early in the season but there are a few strains of flu circulating in the country," said Josh Meyerson, MD, medical director at the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency.

"They have cultured out some of those and there seems to be a good match between those flu viruses circulating and the strain in the vaccines."

Meyerson added, that he can't say for certain that the strains moving through northern Michigan will match the vaccines which have been provided so far.

"You should take the vaccine to prevent getting the flu or at the very least modify the effects, but it's usually pretty good at preventing the illness," he said.

"Those with lung disease, heart disease, asthma, diabetes and even healthy children can be at risk for the flu."

According to Meyerson, people over 50, pregnant women and those with the aforementioned chronic health issues are advised to get the shots.

Last year's flu season began with a scare that there would not be sufficient vaccine available, and ended up with a surplus.

"When it's all said and done people should get the vaccine who need and want it," Meyerson said.

"Some area providers don't have their flu vaccine yet, but there is still time since typically we don't see much flu circulating in northern Michigan this time of year."

Meyerson said some perfectly healthy people contract influenza each year but your best bet is to take care of yourself.

People are better off if they are, "Washing their hands, especially before eating. When kids are out

Man arrested for sex offender registry violations

A joint investigation by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office and the Boyne City Police Department has led to the arrest of a 19-year-old Boyne City man on multiple Sex Offender Registry violations.

John C. Pankow was arrested in Charlevoix on Thursday morning, Oct. 27, after it was determined that he had moved from his Boyne City residence to Saginaw and then to Charlevoix between July and October without changing his address as required by law.

Pankow has been charged with failure to change his Sex Offender Registry address, failure to obtain a digitized driver's license or identification and failure to verify his Sex Offender Registry address during the October registry reporting period.

The failure to change his Sex Offender Registry address charge is a four-year felony.

Pankow is additionally being charged as a habitual felon by the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office, which would increase the maximum penalty to six years in prison.

He has been arraigned in 90th District Court and bond has been set at $5,000 cash or surety.

McKown added, "I did not cash them in. I called the FBI and they told us to contact the postmaster. Do not answer any e-mails, or reply or answer any phone calls (in relation to the scam)."

McKown said Charlevoix Postmaster, Blaise Rivers, informed her the money orders were fraudulent and that he would pass them on to the Postmaster General's office.

Since the events first took place a few weeks ago, McKown has received a few threatening phone calls and e-mails which ended as of Monday, Oct. 24.

As a result of this experience, McKown has taken it upon herself to inform as many people as possible to beware.

"I blasted an e-mail to all the lodging in Charlevoix since I'm president of Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau," she said.

"This can affect local merchants really badly because these money orders really looked real — there was nothing to tell me they were fake," she said.

According to McKown, the envelope had a British postmark and no return address.

"It just made us very aware of the fact that when something overseas comes, you check with the post office or bank to see if these are legitimate and not just take it at face value."

"How careful can you get? You get paranoid almost," McKown said. "I would say to the merchants, when you get a money order call the post office or even go to the post office to see if it's legitimate."

According to Rivers, this scam involves someone sending counterfeit money orders to a business and then asking that the money be wired back. By the time you realize you have fake money orders it is too late.

But, Rivers said, there are ways to protect yourself.

"Money orders are basically like dollar bills and are encoded with images. If you hold up one of our money orders on the left side there is a watermark in the image of Benjamin Franklin," Rivers said.

And, Rivers said, counterfeiters can't reproduce the watermark.

And, he added, "Eat a well balanced nutritious diet and get plenty of sleep."

Meyerson said he could not emphasize enough how important and effective hand washing is in preventing and/or reducing the spread of disease.

According to Meyerson, about 30,000 people die each year from complications due to the flu.

According to Jane Sundmacher, spokesperson for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the health department recommends anyone at risk for developing the flu visit the department's Web site at www.nwhealth.org or call (800) 432-4121 to find the time, date and place of the vaccine clinic nearest them.

Flu shots are available through the health department for $25 each.

"The health department definitely recommends a flu shot for those at high risk for developing the flu," Sundmacher said. "We have several clinics planned in the area."

She added, "We accept Medicaid and Medicare."

Sundmacher said, others at risk are children between 6 and 23 months, health care personnel who provide direct patient care and house contacts and out of home caregivers.

OPINIONS

The First Amendment
Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

It's time to stop talking and vote Tuesday, Nov. 8

On Nov. 8 you will have just 13 hours to get to your polling location and make your voice heard. Due to constraints on space we're going to skip the stereotypical, "Sentimental hogwash," as Capra's Mr. Potter would say, and go straight to the steak.

There are some issues and candidates for which, and whom, you will be asked to vote next Tuesday. Make no mistake, the votes you cast or fail to cast, will impact you, your family and possibly your children's children. And, for that reason, it is imperative you get out and vote.

Nobody wants to stand outside in line on a dreary autumn day like a sheep waiting to be sheared. And, packing up the baby, leaving work, finding a ride or figuring out where your polling station is located can be a bit of a pain — OK, voting isn't glamorous, profitable or sexy, but much like jury duty and taxes, it is an integral piece of democracy pie. (So much for omitting the hogwash.)

Minor inconvenience aside, consider the alternative: A society where Admiral fat-chance and the anti-freedom brigade offer you no say in the operation of your government or the politicians who run it.

The result of low voter turnout is a pool of politicians who know their constituents are far too apathetic to make their collective will known. And then not only are the patients running the asylum, they're holding an all day bake sale.

Hey, if you want to give your public servants a free ride, then by all means don't vote.

But, if you want to hold them accountable, if you want to look your government in its beady little eyes and say, "I'm more than a renewable source of tax dollars with lips and feet," we suggest you find the relatively short amount of time required to get out there.

If necessity is the mother of invention, then inaction is necessities' dimwitted cousin.

Throughout history people have fought and died for the ability to have a say in their government. Knowing this seems to negate just about any old excuse for not voting one can devise, especially when all you have to do is hoof it down to the township or city hall.

If you still decide not to vote, remember this: As an American you still have every right to complain about the state of the union, but to do so would be like a butcher marching for animal rights—contradictory at best.

Now go, have your say in the laws, ordinances, rules and regulations which are passed right here at home. We can't guarantee you'll be enthralled with the outcome, but civic participation makes us all better people.

Listen, engage and learn at coming teacher conferences

Gayle Gennett

'A look at life'

I can still remember my first parent teacher conference as a child in elementary school.

I felt like a criminal ready for sentencing. My teacher and parents looked so tall. I was fearful of what would come out of my teachers' mouths, let alone what extra homework would lie ahead as it was difficult for me to complete my work.

I always felt a step behind my classmates, and was occasionally compared to my sister by one of my teachers. Those were tough years for me. I was younger than my peers, tall and lanky, freckle faced, with braces. I felt like the target for teasing. This combination did not help my self confidence and actually hampered my learning.

Through all of this, one teacher when I was in fourth grade, recognized that my talents were in the arts. This woman, a Catholic nun I might add, encouraged me to focus on my creative ability. Through this woman and with the support of my parents, my confidence improved as well as my grades. That year, I designed the school hulaletin boards, did the choreography for the school musical and wrote a short screen play. To this day I credit my elementary school years for my choice in adulthood to become an elementary school counselor.

Now, as Parent Teacher Conference time approaches in many of our area schools, I'd like to remind parents that this is a significant and important meeting to attend. Remember that your child may also feel behind and worry about your impressions at this meeting.

From my own experience working in schools, conference time was difficult for parents, too. What parents need to know is that it's a difficult time for the teachers as well. They worry about saying the right thing and they want to do the best for your child. They work hard to create an inviting atmosphere, assemble samples of your child's work and try their best to accommodate to your schedule. They also feel stressed if there is any behavior or academic issues to bring up that might not be as positive as you had hoped. Keep in mind this meeting can be successful and smooth and that both you and the teacher can reach positive outcomes. Remember that you are a team working to benefit your child.

Some things to consider when attending a conference are: What projects and assignments are planned so you may help your child at home? Ask how your child was evaluated and are they ready to move on academically and emotionally. Ask what you can do at home to complement what is happening in the classroom. If you feel your child is behind, ask what programming is available to help in this area. If you're the parent of a high school aged child, ask how he or she is encouraged to think about the wide variety of careers. Check with your child to see that they are working on a portfolio that will assist them in a future job and college placement.

A Parent Teacher Conference is a great way to make connections with other parents and to see what takes place in the school. You should feel comfortable to follow-up with notes or a phone call, especially if a particular problem had been identified. Remember that when you attend a conference there are other parents waiting as well so if you need more time, schedule an appointment.

If you've read this article up to this point, I am hopeful that you'll take away this old sage's words of wisdom. Time spent where more than one person is talking about your child can only lead to good things. I wish the teachers, parents and children of our schools a positive conference.

Now that I look back, my parents and teachers really weren't that tall. They were only large in how they influenced my life.

Support East Park changes

Editor:

My name is Zita Anderson and I am a Charlevoix resident. I have been following the disputes over the bandshell and East Park and have yet to hear a logical argument against the proposal.

Although I acknowledge the fact that some people have sentimental attachments to the bandshell, change is inevitable. Why delay the plan when the funds are available right now?

By voting "no" on the park, we are only putting off something that is bound to happen and leaving the tab to be picked up by future generations. Safety is another concern with the current facilities. New sidewalks and stairs are included in the plan to make the park as safe and handicap accessible as possible.

The fact that the children of Mr. Odmark, the man to whom the current bandshell is dedicated, have expressed their support of this project is yet another reason to move forward with the plans. If the only reason you do not support the park is because you have emotional ties with it, please reconsider and at least listen to the facts before it before it's too late and this once in a lifetime opportunity has passed us by.

On Nov. 8, please vote "yes" to the proposal to improve East Park and the bandshell.

Article response

Editor:

Those who read last week's headline which included the statement "...the legality of Commissioner Barnes could be called into question" may have received the impression that my seat on the county commission could be challenged and that I then would not retain my position even should I be the voters' choice in the Nov. 8 primary election. This is not correct.

The reference to me did not reflect any error, act or omission of mine. In fact, both (Charlevoix Prosecuting Attorney) Mr. (John) Jarema and Mr. (Bob) Taylor commended me for my performance as commissioner.

The voters of the first district may be assured that, if I am their choice, I will both be legally seated and will serve to the best of my ability.

Editor's note: The headline in question appeared on page one of the Oct. 26, 2005 edition of the Charlevoix Courier and read, "Charlevoix County may face lawsuit. Legality of appointed commission seat under fire."

Vote 'yes' on Ordinance 1.73

Editor:

My wife and I were part of a study done by Charlevoix County over 3 years ago in which surveys were sent out to a variety of county residents. One of the main questions was how we would like to see the county in the next five to 20 years. We gave our opinions to all the questions and sent it back. Based on the results of that survey, the majority consensus was to keep small town charm and responsible controlled growth.

Zoning laws are part of all good cities, townships and counties. They help protect the majority of the residents' beliefs of what is right in given areas. Without proper zoning you could end up with a garbage dump next to your home. Farfetched? Maybe not.

This is why we have zoning in the first place. Professional planners were hired — they said "yes" to the ideas of the amendment. The Charlevoix Township Board, whose members were elected by the residents said "yes" to the ideas of the amendment. The Charlevoix Township Planning Commission appointed by the township said "yes." The Charlevoix County Planning Commission said "yes." Show the township boards you care — vote "yes" on Nov. 8 for the best future for our community.

Vote 'yes' on Ordinance 1.73

Editor:

I have followed with great interest the Nov. 8 ballot proposal for the renovation of East Park. After attending all the informational meetings and studying the final plan I am disturbed with the false information that has been circulated through the city in attempt to discredit the project.

The current proposal is very thorough and will result in long overdue improvements to East Park which will benefit current residents and many future generations.

1.73 of the planning ordinance. A lot of misinformation has been spread about what a "yes" vote means. The truth is if you want to maintain the small town character of Charlevoix and limit the size of big box stores to 90,000 square feet then you need to vote "yes" on the ballot. 90,000 square feet is bigger than K-Mart and almost twice the size of Glen's. It will help small businesses not hurt them. The ordinance only concerns commercially zoned property, not industrial or residential.

Help protect the small town character of Charlevoix and vote "yes" on Section 1.73.

DDA Chairman supports park change

Editor:

As a member of the City of Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority since its inception in 1982 and chairman since the early 1990s, I have witnessed the authority's hands off approach to East Park. However, when the bandshell committee ran short of funds to construct the existing bandshell, the Downtown Development Authority stepped in with $175,000 in financial assistance.

Over the years, the Downtown Development Authority has made many improvements to the downtown area of Charlevoix. These include the under bridge walkways on both sides of the bridge, and the purchasing and improvements of Hoffmann, Bridge, Veterans' and Water Tower parks. In addition, we made or improved parking lots between Clinton and Mason streets, Mason and Antrim streets, and East Clinton Street and the Coast Guard Cutter areas. The Bridge Street lighting project was also done by the authority.

With the Round Lake Marina and East Park projects, there will have been a total of over $25 million spent on improvements to the downtown district by the Downtown Development Authority over the past 20 years.

With the extensive marina project, it is the authority's opinion that there exists an excellent opportunity to improve our neglected pride and joy, East Park. It has long been in need of much more than just a fix-up.

Vote on Nov. 8 and let your voice be heard.

'Yes' to East Park proposal

Editor:

I have followed with great interest the Nov. 8 ballot proposal for the renovation of East Park. After attending all the informational meetings and studying the final plan I am disturbed with the false information that has been circulated through the city in attempt to discredit the project.

The current proposal is very thorough and will result in long overdue improvements to East Park which will benefit current residents and many future generations.

The current proposal also provides an excellent opportunity to preserve and enhance our motto "Charlevoix the Beautiful." The current proposal also provides a well-trimmed opportunity to maintain and enhance the downtown business community which in turn will benefit the entire community.

I wholeheartedly support, as former mayor, the unanimous vote by the Downtown Development Authority to fund the proposed renovation of the bandshell. By doing so, city-wide taxpayers will not pay for the renovations through general revenue taxes, as the renovation will instead be paid by the Downtown Development Authority through downtown taxes. Citywide taxpayers will not be burdened with monthly expenses (as stated in a letter to the editor published on page 5 of the Oct. 19 edition of the Charlevoix Courier) of cleaning, electrical, gas, garbage collection and general maintenance. These expenses, related to the marina, come out of the marina fund which showed a profit of $75,000 last year and will most certainly increase with the new marina. The expenses for the park will continue to be funded as before with the probability of less maintenance because of updated facilities.

I am, at the same time, alarmed by the patchwork approach towards park repairs which has been proposed by a few individuals. The repair of East Park has been neglected for way too many years and is now a cost which can no longer be delayed. It is questionable whether the patchwork approach would bring the park back into satisfactory shape or enhance our downtown business environment. As a result, Downtown Development Authority members may question the merits of patchwork repairs and the willingness of the Downtown Development Authority to pay for the same.

Charlevoix city voters are left with two alternatives. A "yes" vote on the East Park proposal on Nov. 8 will ensure thorough and long lasting improvements to East Park which will not be paid by general revenue taxes, but will instead be paid by Downtown Development Authority funding. A "no" vote on Nov. 8 would leave Charlevoix with a questionable, patchwork approach to East Park repairs which may end up being paid by citywide taxpayers.

The choice is clear. Keep Charlevoix strong and beautiful and limit citywide taxes by voting "yes" on the East Park proposal on Nov. 8.

Dave Novotny
Charlevoix

Vote 'no' on park plan

Editor:

To you many registered voters in Charlevoix I have heard from, that are against tearing down the bandshell — please remember to vote.

If there is anyone of you that need a ride to the polls, please feel free to call me. Jill Picha at (231) 547-4169.

I have gone down to the area in the park where they want to put the new bandshell. I see where we would be losing the beautiful view of Round Lake looking down into Lake Charlevoix. We would instead see a small area of Round Lake and mostly the condos and homes on the south shore of Round Lake.

Now they are trying to convince you that tearing down the bandshell and building the new one with concrete tier seating is going to cost $1.5 million, and I am here to tell you that it will be much more than that. My guess is it will be closer to $2.5 million. There seems to be a trend in Charlevoix that public works projects hardly ever are completed within budget and never under budget.

Now to address the acoustics — I find the "local complaints" interesting, as the Saturday night of Venetian the lead singer of the rock band War (which is nationally known among the young people) commented that in all the outdoor theaters in which they had played, Charlevoix had the best acoustics. Therefore I am inclined to go with the well-traveled and more famous professional group than I am with the local complaints.

In closing, I want to respond to a couple of letters to the editor in the Oct. 26 Courier.

First of all, I am sorry that someone who wants the bandshell removed, contacted Bobby Odmark and sold him a bill of goods.

When it first came out the bandshell was going to be torn down, those that planned it didn't know who Clarence Odmark was, didn't care and had no intention of even naming the new one after him, until some of us long standing locals got quite vocal about it. This saddens me. My husband refers to these people as "self serving."

Next letter I have a problem with was written by Dale Boss. First of all Mr. Boss has nothing to lose. He doesn't live in the city limits, so therefore it doesn't affect his billfold.

Mr. Boss is wrong about the state paying any part of the bandshell. The only thing the state will pay part of in the park is the harbor master building.

The Downtown Development Authority is taking millions out of the general fund so don't let Mr. Boss fool you, and when the general fund runs low, which is pretty close to now — what's left but to raise our property tax.

I have done what I can. I forced this issue on the ballot — now the rest is up to the voters of Charlevoix.

Please remember to vote Nov. 8.

Not us vs. them

Editor:

Your editorial of October 12, 2005 inspired these thoughts.

During the 30 years we lived in Decorah, Iowa, I was often able to bring a friend with me to visit my extended family in Charlevoix. As was the habit then, aunts, clerks and friends alike would ask my guest, "Is this your first time up here?" Living on top of this Michigan mitten, we naturally assume we are "up." The question also implied you'd be back if it was indeed your first time up.

Friends and strangers have come back by the score — and stayed. Picture them at work — wait staff and health staff, keepers and church charity workers, builders and benefactors, and busiest by far, our young future citizens and their teachers.

When you are recognized as a non-native resident, I expect someone to ask "How long have you lived here?" Edith Gilbert is right that an inviting question such as "What brought you to Charlevoix?" will trigger a personal story of how you first met the lake shores and maple-lined streets of "Charlevoix the Beautiful." Everybody likes to hear about the way a newcomer was charmed into making their home in this little city.

We are not an us and them community. We residents, new and old, are all busy perpetuating Charlevoix's uniqueness, a flavor that most happy visitors get only a taste of.

Support East Park project

Editor:

"Heavens to merkatroid," my aunt Dodo would say. "They're against fixing up the park. How can anyone be against a park?"

Here in Charlevoix a group has announced their opposition to making improvements to East Park, where the bandshell is. A look back will explain their position. These are the same people that were against fixing up the docks in the harbor last year. If you go through Couriers from months and years back you will discover that this same group opposed the Bridge Park project in 1994. It's beautiful there now, isn't it?

These people were against the new high school which is now a state-of-the-art beautiful facility. They were against putting the elementary school on the north side, they opposed moving the post office out-of-town. It's dandy out there, isn't it? They lobbied against the beautiful trees that line Bridge Street, and they opposed the improvements made at Charlevoix's beautiful beaches. I'm surprised the group didn't come out against the new skateboard park that the community is rallying behind. And Dale Boss pointed out last week that some of the same people said the petunia planting project would never work. Some of them railed against the modernization of our airport and objected to the city plans to improve things at Mt. McSaubia Ski Hill and Recreation Area. Back in the late 1980's they even objected to the building of the bandshell as it exists today.

Yes, it's been going on for years. Actually, for decades. For verification read the late Bob Clock's column in the Nov. 1, 1989 edition of the Courier. They should have it at the Courier office.

The bottom line is, improving the park has been a working project for more than 70 years. There was no park in the 1920s. Only when the buildings started burning down or falling down did the far-sighted city fathers start buying up the land for us, the citizens of Charlevoix. That's continued right up 'till now with the Downtown Development Authority purchasing the old Neff Bros Grocery and the Parkside building, tearing them down and making room for the next major improvements in East Park. Downtown Development Authority money paid only by members of the Downtown Development Authority, the people in the downtown area.

You've been in the park for the Memorial Day programs. It'll be great with a new facility. We'll be able to hear the speakers and singers. Same for July 4, Venetian week and all of the Tuesday and Thursday concerts.

Charlevoix wouldn't have much if that other group had their way. I hope you'll consider supporting the park project and vote "yes" on Nov. 8. Anything I can help out with stop by the theater and we can talk. I won't lie to you. This is a pretty good deal for the whole town. And I'll have the Bob Clock column with me.

Continue the park vision

Editor:
Just a reminder to all Charlevoix voters to be sure to exercise your rights in the upcoming Nov. 8 election. Charlevoix city voters have an added incentive to cast their ballots with the issue of the East Park improvements up for voter approval. The proposal calls for relocating the bandshell to the south side of the park to provide a continuous open park setting from Antrim to Clinton streets with no streets or buildings above sidewalk level in between. The bandshell will be appropriately rededicated to Clarence Odmark.

Our forefathers envisioned a beautiful user-friendly continuous park along the downtown waterfront, and now we can make a good part of that vision reality, and with no additional tax dollars or millage increases. Funding is provided by the Downtown Development Authority, with taxes generated from buildings in the downtown district, specifically earmarked for downtown improvements. And, those building owners have voiced broad support for this project. In all the debate in the newspapers, there are two big benefits to these improvements nobody has talked about. With the new marina and park renovation, all facilities become completely handicap accessible, right to the end of the new viewing pier on Round Lake. And, viewing concerts will not only be easier for all of us, but concerts can be held in one part of the park while the remainder remains open and undisturbed for all to use. To me, that means getting double the bang for our park dollars. It's a win, win situation. I urge you all to vote "yes" for the East Park improvements Nov. 8.

Park plan doesn't make sense

Editor:
It seems to me that the current debate regarding the fate of the bandshell overlooks the much broader issue of the proposed entertainment venue aimed at replacing it.

We aren't just relocating the bandshell, as many people seem to think. What is planned is a complete reshaping of the character and landscape of the south end of the park. The present plan does away with the natural setting and atmosphere of the current park by replacing it with an artificial looking structure that is packed into a limited amount of space. The scope and scale of the entertainment venue is way overdone, in view of the fact that entertainment and concerts are only conducted three to four months out of the year.

The intersection at Antrim and Bridge streets is one of the busiest and most congested in town. You only have to observe the vehicular and pedestrian traffic at this end of downtown in the summer to realize that relocating entertainment activities to the south end of the park would only make an already bad situation worse. Furthermore, it goes against basic common sense to move the location where people now view entertainment, from the larger center part of the park, to a much smaller area at the south end of the park.

The center part of the park is much more suitable to handle the larger concentrations of people that congregate during entertainment activities. A lot of effort went into opening up the center of the park. Why not use it?

As for the present bandshell, it's not that old. It's understandable why those people who worked hard to have it built, do not want to see it scrapped so soon. It's not ideal, but many people like the bandshell the way it is and enjoy sitting on the lawn and listening to music. Why do we need to build terraced seating and destroy the natural setting we currently possess?

When I hear remarks about the acoustics, I just laugh. The present acoustics are just fine for a small downtown park like ours. Most of the musical entertainment is amplified anyway. The sound doesn't need to carry all the way up to the north side of town like it does now. Sure, there are improvements that might be desirable, but how much is too much?

Making improvements to the marina are much needed. Making the proposed changes to the park are not improvements, nor are they needed. For an issue as important as this, it's unfortunate that the people do not have more than one design plan or option to consider, but we don't. There are numerous alternatives that are logical and could be considered. Instead we have just one plan being presented and it's all or nothing.

What's wrong with turning over the current Chamber of Commerce building to the harbor master? Make the necessary upgrades to offices, restrooms, showers, storage, etc. to accommodate the boaters and entertainers, and do away with the excessively overdone plan that is now on the table. Doing this would undoubtedly save money, preserve the natural beauty of the park, and keep two perfectly good buildings intact.

The one positive in this whole debate is that the people of Charlevoix will ultimately decide this issue by a vote. This is as it should be.

Letter response

Editor:
I am writing in response to the letter written by Roberta Whitley published Oct. 18. I feel that I owe it to the citizens to share some facts on the park issues. First of all, the harbor master building is not even part of the park issue. It was passed by your council unanimously. The concept drawings do include laundry and cooking facilities, shower rooms, lounge, harbor master office space as well as public restrooms. I do not believe it is outlandish especially since it is a "harbor master" building for the marina. The marina is being 75 percent funded by the Michigan Waterways Commission whose funding comes directly from boaters.

The Downtown Development Authority does not capture $200,000 a year that would otherwise go to the city. It has, however, funded over $24 million in projects for the downtown area during their existence.

The monthly burden of maintenance, electricity, cleaning, gas, garbage collection, etc. is not a burden at all for the taxpayers of Charlevoix. In fact, the marina had a profit of over $75,000 after paying for all those burdens from fees collected from boaters. I do agree that the park is a God given gift to our community. Any decisions regarding this gift should be made with a lot of thought and consideration.

I am not trying to tell you how to vote. That is your right as a registered voter. I would ask, however, for you to become familiar with the facts to make an educated decision. There is a public question and answer session at city hall at 7 p.m. on Nov. 2. I ask you all to attend and please ask questions you have to help clear up any misconceptions you may have concerning the park plans.

Thank you for your time and I look forward to seeing you on Nov. 2.

Park project would hurt business

Editor:
In a very short time the City of Charlevoix will be going to the polls to vote on an important issue that could change our community forever. The people will be able to decide whether or not we want to change our East Park land and water use to meet the needs of its year-round residents or to meet the needs of the three month boat traffic.

As natives of Charlevoix with a keen interest in East Park and the band pavilion, we would like to express our views on the aforementioned proposed changes.

We think Round Lake has as much traffic as it can handle now with the present harbor and the crowded docking facilities. With the proposed changes to the docks, we can see more crowding and more confusion in our little lake. The lake isn't going to grow, but it will get swallowed up by docks and boats. We think it would be reasonable to change the present dock master office to utilize the entire chamber building, and move the chamber to another existing building that the city owns.

The present band pavilion is certainly adequate for performances of almost any kind. A few minor changes would help the pavilion, and could be completed in the near future.

This past summer as we were playing in concerts on the band pavilion, we thought about all of the people that were in the park listening and enjoying our concerts. We were right in the center of town, people could walk across the street or just a half block for ice cream or whatever they wished to purchase. The pavilion is the center of activity for the whole park, and for that matter, the whole town. That's where the action is and that is where it needs to stay. We can't imagine what the Venetian Festival would be like with people all crowded around the band pavilion in the proposed south park area.

We think the merchants would actually lose business with the south park location being the center of attraction. Parking would be inconvenient as well, since the big parking areas for the city are right across the street to the west and to the north of the present location of East Park.

We would like to see some necessary changes made for the dock master and shower facilities, but leave the rest of the park as is.

We urge the people to vote no on East Park changes.

Save money leave bandshell alone

Editor:
I have been following with interest the proposed demolition of the Clarence Odmark Pavilion that my father worked so hard to make happen for over 40 years. Upon his death he knew that his dream for Charlevoix was going to happen. Many, many people spent time and especially money, to see that this dream became a reality.

When I heard of it's pending demise, I was truly heartbroken, not only for my father's memory but for the people that supported his dream. Now, after just a few years, to have it torn down and another venue built is just a waste of money.

I was told by my brother that if and when the pavilion is torn down, the new venue would be rededicated in my father's name. I was supposed to have received a copy of the plans but they have never materialized. But knowing the park there in Charlevoix and the location they are talking about, I doubt if the city is going to condemn a street that serves one of the cities' larger marinas. How would you like to listen to a concert with a street, with parking, between you and the venue?

I agreed with my brother that as a last resort, I would support the rededicating of a new facility should the present pavilion be demolished. However, the Clarence Odmark Pavilion was the one my father envisioned, saw and knew was to be there for future generations. I would hope the beautiful city of Charlevoix would take heed and spend money in other places rather than demolish a vision of Charlevoix's "Mr. Music."

Vote 'yes' on East Park

Editor:
For decades our forefathers have had a plan for a park free of commercial buildings between Clinton and Antrim streets. This goal has been accomplished and now the bandshell and the Mason Street extension isolate the southern half of the park.

The two main arguments against the remodeling of East Park are the costs to taxpayers and the Odmark name.

General tax revenue will not be used as this is a Downtown Development Authority project. This means it will only be paid for by the downtown business owners, and they voted unanimously to tax themselves. Maintenance on a brand new park also has to be less than on the present one.

Regarding the name, the Odmark family is in full support of the new band shell, as it will bear their father's name, taking his legacy another generation forward. It has also been mentioned that the present one was built with donated funds. If this is important why don't we place their names on the new one?

As we all know, the present structure has portable restrooms, no changing rooms, a lack of storage space, of course terrible acoustics and a fish pond in front of it.

Should the voters decide not to do this project the chamber (of commerce) building is to be torn down anyway, thus eliminating our restrooms on the south side of the park. The chamber is going into the old post office and the harbor master by Clinton Street.

This proposal is about much more than the bandshell. It is an opportunity to re-do the entire park for future generations with a clean piece of paper. It is about re-contouring the topography, new sidewalks, lighting, sprinkling system, restrooms, with all of it being placed where it makes the most sense, between Clinton and Antrim streets.

Some people cannot accept any change. However, this change is a positive one. Our town is looking tired and the park is our signature. Other than our schools, there is nothing more important than the vitality of our downtown. This is a one shot opportunity. Let's do it right. Please vote yes Nov. 8.

Charlevoix County primary election Josh Barnes vs. John Haggard

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

City of Charlevoix voters living north of the bridge, along with those in Hayes, Bay and Charlevoix townships will vote Nov. 8 in a primary election to decide who will be named the Republican candidate for the first district Charlevoix County Commission seat.

Josh Barnes

Republican party.

Barnes, 77, was appointed by members of the commission to fill a vacancy left by his daughter, Valerie Snyder, who resigned on March 10, 2005 because she was moving to a location just outside Las Vegas, Nev.

He said he wants to be elected to finish the term which ends Dec. 31, 2006.

But Haggard, a former commissioner of four years has stepped in to challenge him and in a previous interview Barnes said Haggard has "no business" running. Barnes explained his opinion is based on Haggard's position as chairman of the Charlevoix County Republican party in which he is in charge of assigning campaign funding.

Haggard, who has held the party chairman's position for about 15 years said the Republican party does not allocate funds for a primary election.

He added that he has no beef with Barnes but is interested in taking a seat on the commission once again. He was a commissioner from 1978-1982.

Both candidates have extensive political and business experience. Barnes was mayor of the City of Charlevoix for four years. He is currently director of Summa Industries, owner of several operating companies including local manufacturer Spectrus-LexaLite, which he founded. Barnes is also a consultant to several businesses.

Haggard, a Charlevoix native, is co-owner of Haggard's Plumbing and Heating. Aside from running this local business he has also had his hands in local and national politics since he was a teen.

This first district commission seat will be the only matter on the county primary ballot.

Election questions for voters north of the bridge in the City of Charlevoix and those in Hayes, Bay and Charlevoix townships will be on the ballot along with the commission seat.

Ballots can be cast between 7 a.m. and 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 8 at residents' respective government halls.

Voters who live north of the bridge in the City of Charlevoix will vote at Charlevoix City Hall located at 210 State Street in downtown Charlevoix. For more information call (231) 547-3250.

Voters who live in Charlevoix Township will vote at the Charlevoix Township Hall located on 12491 Waller Road. For more information call (231) 547-4611.

Those who live in Bay Township will vote at Bay Hall located at 05045 Boyne City Road. For more information call (231) 582-3594.

Residents of Hayes Township will vote at the Hayes Township Hall located at 09195 Old U.S. 31 North. For more information call (231) 547-6961.

The general election will take place Feb. 28, 2006 for a term to last through Dec. 2006.

No other party candidates filed nominating petitions to run. That means at the Feb. 28 general election the primary winner will run unopposed unless a write-in campaign is launched.

Connie Saltonstall, who will run as an independent, launched a petition drive so she may be included on the Feb. 28 general election ballot as a candidate for the first ward county commissioner seat.

The Green Party will hold a caucus to choose their first ward county commission candidate at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 8 at the Horton Bay General Store located at 5115 Charlevoix-Boyerne City Road in Horton Bay. The caucus is open to the public, but only Green Party members living in the district will be permitted to propose and vote on candidates.

For more information call Ellis Boal at (231) 547-2626.

Sheriff reports rollover crash in Eveline Township

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office investigated a one-vehicle rollover crash in Eveline Township at approximately 10:55 a.m. on Thursday, Oct. 27.

Michelle Pringle, 41, of East Jordan was northbound on North Advance Road and lost control of her 2003 Nissan Pathfinder on a curve at the intersection with Cummins Road. The vehicle ran off the roadway and rolled once coming to rest back on its wheels.

Pringle was transported by East Jordan EMS to Charlevoix Area Hospital for evaluation.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office was assisted at the scene by the East Jordan Fire Department and the Charlevoix County Road Commission.

The unwritten question on the city ballot

Candidates discuss their positions on firing city manager Mike Wiesner

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

An issue that doesn't appear on the City of Charlevoix's election ballot but will likely be decided on Nov. 8 is whether or not city manager Mike Wiesner will retain his position.

Shirley Gibson

In mid-September, second ward councilman Gabe Campbell and third ward council member Shirley Gibson came forward and said the CCMS check debacle that cost the city over $220,000 was grounds for Wiesner's dismissal.

Campbell is not currently running for reelection and is one of four council votes needed to fire Wiesner.

Gene Beer

One of the other three will come from Gibson if she is reelected. She is currently running unopposed to retain her third ward seat.

She said other recent mishaps, including the falsification of reports to the state by Charlevoix's Wastewater Treatment Plant Supervisor, Sam Cresswell, add to the merit of her push for Wiesner's dismissal.

Bill Bellows

Wiesner needs to be held accountable for his actions. He's made bad decisions, he lacks leadership and has too much power and not enough accountability," Gibson said. "I would fire him in a minute if we have the votes."

Robert Timms

A third vote to fire Wiesner will likely come from Gene Beer if he beats incumbent Bill Bellows for the second ward seat.

"I won't say anything against Mike (Wiesner) directly. But the mistakes that continue to plague city hall are incredible. Council should not have to continually investigate and cover for errors made by city officials," Beer said.

He added that his vote would be based on all the evidence presented.

Bellows said the incidents cited by his fellow candidates show a lack of communication throughout city departments. He added that Wiesner is ultimately responsible for all departmental errors.

However, he said Wiesner has had a long, successful track record with the city and should be retained.

"Firing people doesn't solve anything unless there is a compelling reason," Bellows said.

The final, fourth vote, sealing the dismissal of Wiesner will come from first ward councilman Robert Timms if he successfully defeats Steven Bennett.

"I would vote to fire him," Timms said. "There are a lot of reasons for that but the check was the glaring foul up."

However, he is concerned with Wiesner's severance package which he calls the "golden parachute." The package leaves Wiesner with a full year's salary and health coverage continuation.

City to use land use survey results in master plan

By JULIE WITTHOFT
 Editor

Gerry Harsch

Enclosed in this week's edition of the Charlevoix Courier is a City of Charlevoix land use survey, the results of which will be used to overhaul the city's master plan.

"Our (master) plan is so old that we're not really updating it. We're actually creating a brand new plan," said John Hess, chairman of the City of Charlevoix Planning Commission.

He explained that a master plan is a guide which details residents' goals and objectives for growth in the city. These goals and objectives are then implemented using the city's zoning ordinance.

About 3,200 surveys are being distributed through the newspaper. The surveys were created during city planning commission brainstorming sessions.

"We truly want people to tell us what they think," Hess said. City planner Gerry Harsch said residents in and out of the city limits are asked to fill the survey out and return it to city hall. He added that in evaluating data, responses of city and township residents will be separated.

Hess said, "The planning commission wants to hear from everyone. The city and townships are so close to one another. When it comes to economic and housing development, we've got to work together."

The survey is a 12-page form with specific community development questions that participants can respond to by agreeing or disagreeing.

Issues tackled in the survey include where commercial, residential and industrial development should be directed and how it should look, as well as where park land should be located.

Survey responses will be tallied to develop trends that will be incorporated in the master plan. There will be a planning commission meeting scheduled to publicly discuss the survey findings.

"The master plan will be a guide for development over the next five to 10 years," Hess said. "I've lived here all my life and truly want the City of Charlevoix to have an active say in how the city develops over the next 10 years."

Once the master plan has been adopted Hess said the commission will work with Charlevoix City Council to support the plan's goals through zoning and a capital improvement plan.

Master plan revamping has been going on for about a year. Other work that has been completed includes, infrastructure mapping and aerial photography. Hess said the recommended master plan should be ready for city council to review in about a year.

Crooked Tree exhibit highlights Otis Pottery

Crooked Tree Arts Center is highlighting the work of David, June and Andrew Otis of East Jordan in an exhibition entitled The Potter's House: Works in Clay.

The exhibit runs from Oct. 22 through Nov. 26.

A variety of styles of work will be on display in this exhibition. David's work represents a marriage of function and design. June's work is delicate and sculptural as seen in her kimono people. And Andrew grows from the roots of these two masters to create vessels of form and strength.

The Crooked Tree Arts Center is located at 461 East Mitchell Street in Petoskey. It is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

Week-long Community Reformed Church centennial celebration

Area residents are invited to participate in a week-long centennial celebration for Charlevoix's Community Reformed Church.

Charlevoix's Community Reformed Church was established in the countryside of South Barnard in November of 1905 by 15 Dutch immigrants.

In recognition of the church's roots, the celebration will kick off at 8:30 a.m. on Saturday, Nov. 5 with the Founders' Memory Walk/Run. Participants will meet at the Barnard Grange on Klooster Road, five miles south of Charlevoix, and walk or run to the church's present site on the corner of Meech and Oak streets on Charlevoix's north side.

The centennial celebration will continue throughout the week.

Sunday, Nov. 6 has been designated as Founders' Sunday. Former Pastor Larry Grooters will speak at 8 a.m., 9:30 a.m., and 11 a.m. on the theme, "Rejoicing in God's Goodness." Organist Terry VanderSlik will play Dutch Psalms.

At 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 9 the church will hold a potluck Harvest Dinner featuring Dutch desserts at Castle Farms off M-66. Community Reformed's Pious Priestettes will provide tongue-in-cheek Dutch entertainment with music by the Horton Creek Blue Grass Band.

Finally, at 10 a.m. on Sunday, Nov. 13, Community Reformed's congregation will gather in the auditorium at Charlevoix High School for its Centennial Celebration Service. Pastor Chip Sauer will deliver a sermon on "Responding to God's Goodness."

A mass choir, composed of present and former choir members, will perform under the direction of Cindy Mansen. A community band with Evelyn Wujcik conducting will provide music for the service. Honored guests will include many of Community Reformed's former pastors and summer interns. Fellowship and a light brunch will follow the service in the high school cafeteria.

The public is invited to celebrate with the church at any or all of the events. Choir rehearsals will take place at 7 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 10 at the Community Reformed Church and Nov. 13 at Charlevoix High School prior to the service. Band rehearsals will take place at 7 p.m. Nov. 1 and Nov. 8 in the band room at Charlevoix Middle School.

There is a revised history of the Community Reformed Church compiled by Jessie Potter Cunningham daughter of one of the original founders, available at the church free of charge. There are also commemorative plates, Otis Pottery tiles and T-shirts for sale.

Call the church office at (231) 547-9482 with questions or reservation for the Harvest Dinner.

Community health agency offers free radon test kits

In observance of National Radon Action Week, radon test kits are available free at local offices of the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency in Bellaire, Charlevoix, Petoskey and Gaylord.

It is easy and inexpensive to detect and remove radon. If a radon test kit detects unsafe radon levels, the health department offers free consultation to assist residents in solving the problem, including linking them with certified contractors who can install an inexpensive mitigation system.

Radon can be a problem in all types of homes.

"Testing your home for radon is the only way for you and your family to know if radon levels are dangerously high," said Scott Kendzierski, director of environmental health for the health department.

Radon has been found in many northern Michigan homes. About 12 percent of homes across the state have high radon levels.

"We've identified some homes in our area with indoor concentrations five times the Environmental Protection Agency's action level of 4 pCi/L. Last year, several area homes were found to contain unsafe levels of radon, ranging from 4 pCi/L to 22 pCi/L," Kendzierski said.

There are no obvious signs of radon. You can't see or smell it because radon is a colorless, odorless gas. Radon gas is a naturally occurring byproduct of the radioactive decay of small amounts of radium and uranium, commonly found in bedrock and soil. Most soils in north-west Michigan contain some amount of these radioactive elements. As they breakdown, radon gas moves through small spaces in soils and rock and can enter buildings through openings in foundation floors or walls.

Radon is a leading cause of lung cancer, second only to cigarette smoking in the United States.

For more information about radon exposure in your home, contact Kendzierski at (231) 547-7651 or call toll-free (800) RADON GAS.

Tipp of the Mitt offers guide to water quality

As part of a larger project funded by the Joyce Foundation, Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council is proud to introduce a guidebook designed to help citizens participate more fully in water quality permitting.

The book, "A Citizen's Guide to Water Quality Permitting, Understanding the National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) Program and Its Role in Michigan," was written by environmental attorney, Ellen J. Kohler.

"It is exciting to see this type of tool that will help Michigan citizens become better informed as to how our permitting process works," said Director of the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality, Steven E. Chester. "Understanding the process is the first step in becoming involved and participating in the decisions that result from it."

The guidebook specifically focuses on the National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) program established under the federal Clean Water Act and as administered in Michigan by the Department of Environmental Quality.

"This manual is a great resource, not only for private citizens, but for any person working in water quality circles in Michigan," said Cortland Overmyer of the Environmental Protection Services Department in the City of Grand Rapids. "It is the first time that I have seen the 'nuts and bolts' of federal Clean Water Act application in Michigan all in one spot. This guidebook is a wonderful explanation and compendium of information that will serve to guide and encourage input."

Kohler, is an attorney who has practiced environmental and natural resources law in Traverse City for 8 years, and has participated in several projects with Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council.

The guidebook is available in two formats, print and electronic. A Web based version is available on the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council's Web site at www.watershedcouncil.org.

City ballot focused on East Park and council candidates

By JULIE WITTHOEF, Editor

Voters in the City of Charlevoix will head to the polls Nov. 8 to decide the fate of East Park and three city council seats.

Election polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., Nov. 8 in the second floor council chambers at Charlevoix City Hall, located at 210 State Street in Charlevoix.

At the election, voters will have to decide whether the current performance facility will be removed and a new venue with amphitheater seating should be built in the fall of 2006 at the south end of the park.

This project would cost the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority just under $1.5 million.

This issue will be discussed at a public forum to take place at 7 p.m. tonight, Nov. 2 in council chambers at city hall.

Voters will also decide who will fill three council seats.

In the first ward, voters will choose between incumbent councilman Robert Timms and former city planning commissioner Steven Bennett.

There are about 853 registered voters living in the first ward who will be eligible to vote in the election.

Timms, a 71-year-old father of three and husband of Alice Timms, has held a council seat on and off for about 20 years. His most recent stint in office started in November of 2003 when he beat out his competitor, interim first ward councilman Dave Novotny, by 36 votes. In 1999 he lost to current mayor Norman Carlson by 21 votes.

Timms' time in office has been centered around his focus on city spending. His most recent mission is to earmark infrastructure millage money for infrastructure projects only.

Beer is against removing the existing bandshell and has said if evidence is shown to convince him Wiener should be removed, he would cast a vote to oust him.

Bennett, a 53-year-old father of two and husband of Sandra Bennett is a former long-time City of Charlevoix planning commissioner and past president of the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Bennett said he decided to run for council this year, for the first time, after attending council meetings and feeling as though constituents are not being well represented.

In recent interviews, Bennett said he is not in favor of tearing down the existing bandshell or firing Wiesner.

The second ward's Bill Bellows is up for reelection as well. He will be facing Eugene Beer.

There are 741 registered voters living in the second ward who will be eligible to vote in the election.

Bellows, 72, has been a council member for a total of 12 years since the late 1970s. Currently, he has held the seat for seven years running.

He is retired from his previous work as an electrical contractor and said he has no opinion on the fate of the bandshell but that most of his constituents do not want it to be removed.

He added that he feels recent talk of firing Wiesner is inappropriate and should be brought up at a public meeting.

Beer, 59, is a father of three and husband of Ginnie Beer, who has lived in the city for 27 years. His past political experience is limited to having run for Charlevoix County register of deeds, a position to which he was not elected.

However, Beer said his 17 years of experience as manager of Charlevoix County Transit afford him useful skills as a councilman.

"I'm an independent voice with my own mind that won't easily be swayed," he said.

Beer is against removing the existing bandshell and has said if evidence is shown to convince him Wiener should be removed, he would cast a vote to oust him.

Finally, Shirley Gibson's third ward seat is also up for reelection. Gibson, 58, has been a council member for four years and is vying for her third term.

There are 829 registered voters living in the third ward who will be eligible to vote in the election. However, no candidates have filed to run against her.

In previous interviews Gibson has voiced her opposition to removal of the bandshell and support for firing Wiesner.

City clerk Carol Ochs is also running unopposed.

Write-in candidates interested in running in this election must declare their write-in status by 4 p.m., Friday, Nov. 4 at the city clerk's office located at 210 State Street inside Charlevoix's City Hall.

Absentee ballots are available at city hall. Those looking to mail ballots must pick them up at the clerk's office before 2 p.m., Saturday, Nov. 5. Residents who want to vote an absentee ballot in person must do so by 4 p.m. Monday, Nov. 7 in the city clerk's office at city hall.

Voters who are prevented from voting at the polls due to circumstances such as a sudden illness or a family death may request an emergency absentee ballot until 4 p.m. on election day.

For more information, about filing as a write-in or to vote using an absentee ballot, contact Ochs at (231) 547-3250.

Historical Society hosts 528 students at exhibit

The end of September saw the final days of the Charlevoix Historical Society's exhibit, "Ancient Charlevoix Life Before the Written Word," displayed at the Charlevoix Depot.

This exhibit used artifacts on loan from the Michigan State University Museum, uncovered during the summer of 1972 to show how scientists discovered what life was like for the first inhabitants of Charlevoix.

During the last two weeks of the month, 528 students from local schools were given a guided tour of the exhibit and elementary and middle school students participated in a simulated archaeological dig activity designed to demonstrate the scientific principles of archaeology.

This opportunity was made possible by the many volunteer docents who donated their time to guide visitors through the exhibit and work with the students on their activity, as well as the following organizations: The Charlevoix County Community Foundation, Street Legends Car Club, the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians and the Michigan Council for Arts and the Cultural Affairs-Cheboygan Area Arts Council.

PARENTING

Pointers for getting tight lipped kids talking

Kristen Beach
'Kids Corner'

"What did you do at school today," I asked my daughter. "Nothing," she replied. I then asked her if all they did at school was sit around and look at each other. She responded with the typical pre-teen eye roll.

Many parents, myself included, struggle with the task of getting information out of their children about their school day. We know learning is going on because we see homework. I also know that socializing goes on, as I have not spent seven hours in silence with any child, unless they were asleep.

So why is it so difficult to get information from our children? Is there a fear that if we actually know about their day we may criticize? Get too involved? Or God forbid show up at school to ask questions?

From conversations I have had with parents and from my readings, I believe it is because we do not know the right kind of questions to ask. Often our questions are just not specific enough or too open ended. Questions like "how was your day" and "what did you do at school today" can be quite overwhelming for some kids. Both leave the opportunity open for a one word answer. The child may also feel that you really won't sit and listen to them.

Asking more specific questions will get children talking and will help open the lines of communication. Children may resist this at first, but will often look forward to the sharing time that occurs if they are truly listened to. Ask the following types of questions and be prepared for the dumbfounded looks on your child's face, especially the older kids.

Who did you sit with at lunch? This will also let you know if they have someone to sit with at lunch.

What was the hardest assignment you had today? Why was it difficult? This gives you insight into what they may be struggling with.

What did you do in (art, music, gym, computers, library or other electives) class?

Are you doing any research in any class? If so, what, and can I help?

Name one thing today that made you feel (happy, sad, frustrated, proud or excited)? This will help you know how your child is feeling and will help them identify how they respond to different things. An important thing to remember if you use this question is not to brush aside that feeling or what caused it.

Make your child your teacher.

Have them teach you something that they learned at school that day. A great area to let them shine is on the computer. I am positive my daughter can navigate it better than me.

My father started a tradition two years ago with my daughter. Whenever we eat a meal together during the school year she has to tell him one new thing she learned that day. When this first started there were groans and moans, and now whenever we go to grandma and grandpa's house for dinner, she begins to prepare in advance how she will answer the question. There has been a time or two that he has forgotten to ask the question and she reminded him before the meal ended.

This brings me to another important point. The family meal is often a thing of the past. Families are eating on the run, different people eating at different times, or are eating in front of the television. Research is showing that families that eat meals together, not in front of the television, have children with a better understanding of their heritage and history. The findings also reported increased self-esteem, sense of belonging, and resiliency in those children. Even if you cannot eat every dinner together, try to eat a meal together four times a week with no excuses.

In my youth we were allowed to play and make social plans as long as we were home at dinnertime. Back then I may have dished out the typical eye roll, some things never change, but looking back on that I have fond memories and feel like I was valued and listened to.

Children want to be heard, we sometimes just have to help them find their voice and reinforce that it is indeed important to us.

'Must reads' from library director Valerie Meyerson

The following is a list of age specific books selected by Charlevoix Public Library director Valerie Meyerson for November reading.

Peggy Archer, "Turkey Surprise."

Ages 2-6

"We're two mighty pilgrims, coming your way. Looking for a turkey, for Thanksgiving Day," goes the refrain in this delightful rhyming book. Two pilgrims go off on a hunt for the turkey, but come back with a big pumpkin instead. A great story for vegetarians and children who love a silly tale.

Louisa May Alcott, "An Old-fashioned Thanksgiving."

Ages 5-8

A picture-book adaptation of a story first told in St. Nicholas Magazine in 1881. On a farm in New Hampshire in the 1800s, the Bassett children attempt to make Thanksgiving dinner when their parents are suddenly called away because their grandmother is ill. The children give it their best, but the seasonings are all mixed up in the stuffing, the turkey is awful and the pie inedible. The mixed up feast ends when the grandmother, who was not really ill, comes in, followed by the parents. This is a warm-hearted story, which emphasizes the true meaning of the holiday — family and togetherness.

Elizabeth Spurr, "The Peterkins' Thanksgiving."

Ages 7-10

This is a delightfully fun book of the Peterkins' dinner fiasco. The Peterkins' go through trial and tribulations trying to figure a way to save their holiday tradition — from trying to get the dumbwaiter back down to calling a carpenter. All in all, this is a great book to start a family holiday reading tradition.

Ann M. Martin, "Dog's life: The autobiography of a stray."

Ages 9-12

Squirrel, a stray puppy, tells her life story, from birth to old age. She encounters many different events and learns some tough life lessons as she makes her way in the world. She faces busy highways, cold temperatures, and humans both gentle and mean. But, luckily this heartwarming story has a happy ending when Squirrel finds a human who needs her as much as she needs an owner.

Megan and Jill Carle, "Teens Cook: How to cook what you want to eat."

Ages 12 and up

Megan and Jill Carle started having fun in the kitchen at a very young age. The sisters have learned to put away the junk food to create tasty and fun treats for their family and friends.

This fun cookbook includes blurbs on "kitchen disasters" that add amusement and reality to this fun book. Megan and Jill have very different tastes in food, but together, they have combined their energies into creating a fun book to entice young people into the kitchen.

Monthly featured event: Community tree lighting

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

Charlevoix residents and visitors will usher in the holiday season with the traditional Community Christmas Tree Lighting.

The event will take place from 4 to 6 p.m. Nov. 25 in downtown Charlevoix.

At 4 p.m. kids will flock to the North Pole, located inside the Color Wear store at 222 Bridge Street. There, Santa Claus will greet them with candy canes as Marell Staff of Charlevoix Camera stands by to take complimentary photos.

If children did not get the opportunity to make a sturdy ornament for the huge pine at the corner of Clinton and Bridge streets that serves as the community tree, Charlevoix Children's House representatives will supply ornament crafting materials inside the North Pole.

With Santa photos taken and ornaments in hand, families will head to the huge, colorful tree, dripping with crafty creations for the grandiose lighting.

While onlookers wait for the breaker to be switched at 6 p.m. on the nose, they can sip hot chocolate and munch doughnuts all the while enjoying tunes from the petunia truck.

This event is sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

For more information contact the chamber office at (231) 547-2101.

Charlevoix Public Schools offer parents software

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Parents of students attending Charlevoix Public Schools now have information about their student at their fingertips.

Charlevoix elementary, middle and high schools recently implemented Pearson Centerpoint, a new software which allows parents to check on the grades, assignments, attendance and other aspects of their student's careers.

This new program works instantaneously as the teachers upload all types of student information to it. Centerpoint serves as a means for parents and students to track grades, assignment reports, attendance with a time in and time out section to know exactly where your child spent the day in particular classes, disciplinary records and a pictorial seating chart if the teacher chooses to use it.

The software is secure and, because it is on the Internet, Centerpoint can be accessed from anywhere Internet service is available.

"The biggest thing for me is the communications aspect," said Charlevoix Middle School Principal, Keith Haske. "It's just an easy way to communicate between parents and schools."

According to Haske, often the school believes it is doing an adequate job of communicating, but parents may not.

"I think both sides get frustrated," he said. "I think with the instantaneous communication of the Internet, the parents will know more about what their kids are doing and more about what their kid needs to do."

"The students also have a password and the students can see exactly what their parents see," he said. "It's not just for the parents, it's for the kids too."

According to Charlevoix Public Schools Technology Director, Scott Mays, Centerpoint also allows the school system to fulfill required reports to the state. And, so far, there are 11 school districts in Michigan involved with the software, making Charlevoix one of the first.

The old days of dogs eating homework and teachers miraculously failing to send home homework during the entire school year are over.

"From the student point of view, there's some more accountability instead of having the kid come home and saying, 'I don't have any homework — I turned everything in,'" Haske said. "Some kids need a little extra push to get their work done. I can see that as one of those avenues for parents to make sure their kids are getting everything done."

For those of you cursing the name of technology and its inevitable electronic gremlins, Haske said this software is as user-friendly as they come.

"The directions we sent out are simple. If you've been on the Internet at all, it's pretty gasy," he said. "And, we're also doing some training at our parent teacher conferences, so if there are those people out there who can't seem to grasp it, we will reach out there and try to help them."

The only downside to this project, according to Haske, is for those who are without a computer.

"I guess the one concern I have is for those households that don't have computers. I urge them to use the library where they have free access to the Internet," he said. "I know that's not as convenient as those with PC (personal computers) in their homes, but we hope they would use that avenue to keep track of their kids."

He added, "I know we've had very positive feedback from the parents that are using it."

Haske said to visit www.radyr.net, click the Centerpoint link in the upper left-hand corner of the screen, enter your user name and password, "And you're in — It's pretty simple and pretty self explanatory."

According to Haske, filling out progress reports, report cards and other filing duties take manpower and materials which quickly add up to high costs which could be saved if everything was done electronically.

"Our hope with implementing this is that hopefully we don't have to do anymore paperwork in the future," he said.

Health agency tackles mercury exposure with new analyzer

Karla Horne

As part of its campaign to reduce mercury exposure, the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency has obtained a mercury vapor analyzer through an agreement with the Michigan Department of Community Health.

This device gives the health department the ability to conduct mercury response activities and mercury detection follow-up investigations at no charge to citizens within its health district and surrounding counties.

"This is a needed piece of equipment in northern Michigan," said Scott Kendzierski, Director of Environmental Health for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency. "Until recently, we had to borrow equipment from the state health department in Lansing. It could take up to two weeks from the time we were alerted of a mercury spill until we could respond and investigate."

Karla Horne, an Environmental Health Sanitarian in Charlevoix County, leads the mercury program for the four-county health district. Before joining the health department, she was an air quality analyst for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). She was recently trained by the Michigan Department of Community Health to respond to mercury accidents, conduct removal activities, and perform follow-up monitoring.

"Now we'll be able to respond very quickly to mercury spills, usually within 24 hours of a reported release," Horne said. "This specialized equipment allows us to find mercury, even at very low detection limits."

The health department has responded to mercury spills in homes, schools, and businesses, collecting an assortment of mercury-containing devices including thermometers, manometers, thermostat switches and elemental mercury stored in a variety of containers.

"Last year we removed over 30 pounds of mercury through our mercury thermometer exchange program," said Kendzierski.

Exposure to mercury and mercury vapors can cause permanent brain, kidney, and liver system damage as well as developmental problems in young children.

"Although there's been a significant decrease in the amount of mercury in household items, many people still have mercury thermometers, switches and batteries in their homes," said Horne. "When there's a mercury release, it's critical that all of it is detected and removed. Even small amounts of mercury can continue to produce harmful vapors."

Detection and clean-up are usually simple for small spills. Many spills can be resolved quickly with little disruption. "Most of the time, it is relatively easy to identify mercury vapor, remove the mercury, and conduct cleanup," reported Horne.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department serving Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties. For more information about mercury exposure, call Horne at (231) 547-6523 or visit www.nwhealth.org.

Voters to determine direction of big box development

Charlevoix Township voters to decide ordinance's fate

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

While it may not put the big box store battle to rest, voting on Charlevoix Township zoning ordinance amendment 1.73 will take place from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 8 at Charlevoix Township Hall on 12491 Waller Road.

A "yes" vote on amendment 1.73 means you are in favor of limiting the size of commercial buildings in the township. A "no" vote means that you do not want the amendment adopted.

According to Charlevoix Township trustee, Nancy Rajewski, the ordinance amendment limits the size of single buildings in the commercial district to 90,000 square feet.

"Which is larger than K-mart. It's over two acres for the building alone," Rajewski said. "We are not keeping any big box out, we're just asking them to build a building more in line with the Charlevoix community."

Charlevoix Township resident, Keith Bales does not agree with the ordinance's proponents.

"This ill-advised ordinance amendment has set our township up for a long list of detrimental consequences," Bales said. "Wal-Mart remains interested in Charlevoix but will not work to meet Charlevoix Township's new radical expectations."

However, according to Charlevoix Township resident Bob Hoffman, amendment 1.73 is integral in maintaining the small-town character of Charlevoix.

"This ordinance is another tool to ensure that Charlevoix stays the way that the residents of Charlevoix want it to be," he said. "It also enables the township to gather information through an economic impact study and a traffic study to make sure that (proposed businesses) don't have a negative impact on the community."

According to local resident, Al Wojan, he isn't about to debate a community's right to maintain its small-town character, but he said, this ordinance will take away many people's rights and create numerous problems.

"We must reject it. If we do not, I pray the community is prepared for its detrimental consequences," he said.

Wojan said after Wal-Mart left town, the township planners decided to change zoning ordinances.

"I have been told the K-mart building complex is about 140,000 square feet and Harbor Industries' building is just less than 300,000 square feet," Wojan said. "Using the planners' premise, these buildings do not fit our small-town's character, yet they are very much a part of our town. I hope they always remain that way."

According to Wojan, one of the major flaws of the ordinance amendment is that it fails to describe what is meant by small-town character.

"Is it a town with less than say, 2,000 people? A town with no more than two gas stations? Or is it a town that passes zoning laws to keep out Wal-Mart by limiting the size of retail buildings," Wojan said.

According to Hoffman, the 90,000 square foot cap on commercial buildings is twice the size of Glen's Market.

According to Bales, some people would discount his opinion on the matter of amendment 1.73 because he was one of the seven property owners who were contracted to sell to Wal-Mart.

"On many occasions over the past 18 months, at least two Charlevoix Township officials were heard to say at regular township meetings, Wal-Mart was not welcome here. Indicating the intention of the amendment is to keep character at best fails its purpose and at worse is a misrepresentation of the intention," Bales said.

Charlevoix Township voters to decide big box ordinance

According to Bales, through Wal-Mart's broker, he learned the corporation still has a strong interest in Charlevoix as recent as last June but only if this amendment is defeated.

He added, "If the ordinance were to be defeated then Wal-Mart would be interested. The broker has told me pointblank that the ordinance was too strict."

But, according to Hoffman, the vast majority of people in the Charlevoix area don't welcome the invasion of big box stores.

"We gathered over 5,000 signatures on a petition (against Wal-Mart) two years ago," he said. "If this ordinance fails, I'm afraid Charlevoix risks the chance of becoming just another exit off the freeway that's crowded by big box stores."

Hoffman said those who believe passing 1.73 is an infringement on their property rights don't have the right to merge their properties in the first place.

"There's no single property owner who really is affected by this," Hoffman said. "The only thing that is prohibited is that a group of property owners get together and combine properties to sell to one buyer."

Charlevoix Township voters will cast ballots at the Charlevoix Township Hall from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Nov. 8. The hall, pictured above, is located at 12491 Waller Road. The ballot will include a zoning ordinance amendment that if approved limits commercial buildings to 90,000 square feet.

He added, "There's nothing in that ordinance or the current ordinance that says they have the right to combine their properties."

But, Bales said, there are seven property owners who are directly affected by this change, "So for anybody to say that this doesn't affect single property owners is ridiculous."

Hoffman said, regardless of how you feel about the issue, everyone should make their voice heard at the polls.

"I just urge people to get out and vote," he said.

Portable labyrinth available for community use

The Labyrinth Project of Northern Michigan announces that its portable canvas labyrinth housed at Crooked Tree Arts Center in Petoskey is now available for use by those interested in gaining more experience with the tool.

The portable labyrinth is a circular seven-circuit Santa Rosa design, painted on an octagonal canvas which measures 20-feet in diameter and is for indoor use only.

A deposit of $100 is requested and will be refunded when the labyrinth is returned undamaged. There is no rental fee provided there is no charge to participants. Those interested in renting the labyrinth for workshops or other events that have a cost will be charged a fee of $25 per day. The canvas may be borrowed for up to two weeks.

Proceeds will go to Crooked Tree Arts Center. A list of trained facilitators will be available at the arts center. These individuals work independently of the labyrinth project and may charge a fee for their services.

In addition, the Sisters of Mercy, Grayling announce that its canvas labyrinth is also available to travel. The 11-circuit Chartres labyrinth canvas is 36-feet in diameter, and is also for indoor use only. The terms are the same as for the Crooked Tree labyrinth. Proceeds will go to Sisters of Mercy Ministry Fund.

The labyrinth is a meandering path of twists and turns that lead to a center. Usually circular in design, the labyrinth can be seen as a metaphor for unity and community as walkers follow a common path.

Unlike a maze where it's possible to make a wrong turn and run into a dead-end or get lost, there is only one path through the labyrinth. Recently there has been renewed interest in these ancient blueprints as tools for reducing stress and promoting well-being, as well as tapping into creativity and intuition, problem-solving and team building.

Labyrinths are being installed across the country in parks, schools, hospitals, retreat centers, faith-based organizations and prisons. Portable or outdoor labyrinths can be found at a public park in Ellsworth, Oakland and Henry Ford Community Colleges, Sparrow Hospital and Munson Medical Center, and The Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island.

To reserve the portable labyrinth, call Crooked Tree Arts Center at (231) 347-4337. The arts center is located at 461 E. Mitchell Street in Petoskey. To reserve the Mercy Labyrinth, contact Jean Unlor at (989) 348-6716 or by e-mail at jnlor@mercydetroit.org.

Lady Rayder basketball continues winning streak

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders can't seem to get any respect out of the pollsters this year but they continue to get it on the court.

The Rayders rolled to two more girls' basketball victories last week, defeating Grayling, 79-42 and Traverse City St. Francis, 61-52.

Charlevoix has now won 13 straight games, has a perfect 11-0 Lake Michigan Conference record and is 14-2 overall.

The Rayders, after being ranked in the top five nearly all of last season and at the start of this season by the Associated Press, are unranked in Class C, not even receiving an honorable mention.

Surprisingly, St. Francis, who has now lost to Charlevoix twice this season, continues to receive honorable mention.

In the battle for Lake Michigan Conference supremacy, the Rayders jumped out to an 8-0 lead in the first minute and a half of play, including a spectacular set play off the opening tip that culminated in a three-point play by Madison Ramsey.

Shannon Dibble's three-pointer at the 6:33 mark of the quarter led to an early St. Francis time-out to regroup.

The Gladiators refused to fold, however, and they fought back to a 12-12 tie at the end of the first quarter. Haske dipped deep into the bench, playing 11 players in the first stanza.

The game's physical play picked up in the second period. Charlevoix opened the quarter with a 9-3 run to open a 21-15 advantage. Laura Nitchman scored five of the Rayders' five points in that spurt.

Again St. Francis refused to yield, battling back and eventually taking their first lead of the game, 23-22, on a three-point shot with 2:48 to play in the half. A free throw upped the lead to two points before Sasha Spenceley then converted four straight free throws to help Charlevoix regain the lead.

St. Francis responded with a basket to end the half with the score tied at 26-26. The Glads led early in the third quarter, by as many as three, but Spenceley hit a three with 4:23 left in the quarter to give the Rayders the lead, at 31-30, for good.

Ramsey had a steal and sank two jumpers to key an 8-0 that gave the Rayders a 39-31 lead. St. Francis could get no closer than four points the rest of the way. Spenceley scored seven points in the pivotal third quarter, which ended with Charlevoix leading, 41-35.

"It was a big league game with them being only one game back," coach

Keith Haske said of the win. "It's fun to be in those kinds of games. It was a good crowd, St. Francis brought a lot of people and it made for just a great atmosphere."

Madison
Ramsey

Nitchman led the Rayders with 14 points. Ramsey scored 13 and had five steals. Spenceley finished with 13 points while Bradley had eight.

Robin

Petzak pulled down nine rebounds. Stevie Murray grabbed seven.

Earlier in the week the Rayders ran out to a 25-6 first quarter lead and coasted past Grayling.

Bethany Pearson had 15 points. Ashlie Bradley and Stevie Murray each had 10. Dibble and Sally Haselschwardt each scored nine.

Ramsey and Nitchman each had five assists.

The Rayders have a chance to clinch the Lake Michigan Conference championship this week. They traveled to Kalkaska on Tuesday, Nov. 1. Results were unavailable at press time. Charlevoix hosts Boyne City on Thursday, Nov. 3.

My name is John Fiedorek. I own Paul Bunyan Lanes and The Flight Deck in Charlevoix Township. It has been a family owned business for 45 years. I have resided on Stover Rd. in Charlevoix Township for the last 19 years. I know many of the Township residents and business owners. My motivation for requesting a NO vote from my fellow township residents is simple. (Because I am a simple man). I have a desire to see my business grow and prosper. It stands between a building destroyed by fire, and a building that has been vacant for as long as I can remember. By voting NO, I am not deciding who can and can't develop property in Charlevoix Township. I am merely stating that anyone that wants to develop property should be allowed the right to attempt it. (That whole free enterprise thing.) Look at each site plan individually and openly. It shouldn't be about square footage alone. Allow any development the opportunity of presenting itself to enter into business with Charlevoix Township. (Taxes, utilities, jobs.) 45 years ago, there were people of the belief that Charlevoix didn't need a bowling center. Fortunately, my parents were allowed the opportunity to try. Thank you to everyone who has patronized my family's business over the past 45 years.

Charlevoix in 2nd with 49 points.

The girls' team had a good showing at the Conference Championships on Oct. 18.

Top finishers for the girls' varsity team were: Edger (All-Conference) in 6th with 20:15; Dhascleer (honorable mention All-Conference) in 12th with 21:09; Lamb in 16th with 21:25; McCary in 27th with 22:31; Westenhroek in 28th with 22:51; Taylor in 32nd with 23:02 and Matchett in 34th with 23:13.

Team standings show Elk Rapids with 29; East Jordan with 53; Harbor Springs with 75; Charlevoix with 80; and Boyne City with 120.

According to girls' coach, Mary Plude, the Elk Rapids Invitational was a great chance for her team to shine.

"This was a terrific showing by both varsity and junior varsity," she said. "All the top teams in the regional and the northern were there. The junior varsity was only beat by Traverse City Central junior varsity 31 to 49 points."

She added, "On both teams the girls ran personal bests or close to it for the season. Lindi has now run the fastest time in Charlevoix High School history for a girl in the regular season—excluding a meet."

Top finishers were: Edger in 11th with 19:39; Dhascleer in 22nd with 20:22; Lamb in 28th with 20:44; McCary in 40th with 21:13; Westenhroek in 62nd with 22:17; Taylor in 71st with 22:36 and Matchett in 73rd with 22:38.

Charlevoix finished 6th overall out of 16 complete teams.

Junior varsity was led by Bradley in 5th with 22:02. She was followed by: Kristina Alden in 7th with 22:08; Novotny in 8th with 22:13; Kuebler in 13th with 22:43; Goss in 18th with 22:58; Bradley in 31st with 24:07; Nuttall in 37th with 24:39; Dupuis in 43rd with 25:30; Shull in 45th with 25:39; Rich in 50th with 26:38 and Lemond in 57th with 28:13.

The Charlevoix junior varsity team took 2nd in the junior varsity race and 11th in the varsity race.

According to coach Ken Plude, leading up to competition on Oct. 22, his boys ran excellent against some incredible teams during the LMC Championship Oct. 18.

"I'm very proud of their effort in this race," he said. "They worked together and pushed each other all the way to the finish as was evident in their 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11 finish."

Ken said, the gap between 1 and 5 was the smallest he can remember. "In all my years of coaching."

He added, "Anything under 40 seconds is excellent and this group had an 18 second gap."

Jacob Wimmer was All-Conference. He took 7th place with a time of 17 minutes and 37 seconds.

Wimmer was followed by honorable mentions: Alex Buday in 8th with 17:42; Brandon Stevens in 9th with 17:45; Scott Plude in 10th with 17:47; Nick Wimmer finished in 11th with 17:55; Isaac Matchett finished in 23rd with 18:29 and Dustin Arp finished in 26th with 18:46.

Results of the Junior Varsity time trial are as follow: Hunt, 19:14; Sotuyo, 19:20; Graham, 19:22; Scharenbrach, 19:31; Mason, 19:33; Balasz, 20:18; Gilmore, 20:56; Myers, 21:08; Staehler, 21:09; Dilworth, 21:26; Shuttler, 21:46; McDonough, 27:16 and Smith, 31:08.

war on Wal-Mart. A local manifestation of that war has come to us in the form of an ordinance that would zone Wal-Mart out of our township by restricting the size of allowable buildings.

Most unfortunately, Wal-Mart would not be the only business we would exclude by approving such a limit. Plants that manufacture solar panels typically utilize extended production lines and require large area buildings. There are numerous other clean, non-polluting, light industry or wholesale businesses that require extremely large buildings. Do we really want to discriminate and limit our potential tax base while restricting employment opportunities just to spite Wal-Mart?

Too many of our young people are forced to leave their relatives, friends and the hometown they love because they can't find decent jobs. Many others, young and old, need part-time jobs to supplement their income. Shall we burn their bridges and their hopes with our vote? I say "no."

Let's vote for opportunity and prosperity. Let's think of our young people, seniors and all of our neighbors who struggle with the cost of living in this tourist oriented area. Let's defeat this proposed elitist restriction on who can come in to benefit our township. It would seem that if some people can't live in a gated community, they want to build a gate around the community they live in.

Vote 'no' on Ordinance 1.73

Editor:
As usual I'm finding myself listening to people on both sides of a controversial issue and compelled to write. The issue being big box stores, such as Wal-Mart and if they belong in Charlevoix. I'm hearing so many reasons why and why not and some so far out that I at times just listen and roll my eyes.

Certainly there are pros and cons to the issue but that's the way with anything in Charlevoix no matter how big or how small. Certain people and groups think that it will make our town self-destruct if we let the big box store in. Others feel that it's necessary to let them in to drive down over inflated prices that we live with here in Charlevoix. Both certainly have merit and depending on who you are and your source of income it has a different importance to you personally. It always amazes me though how many turn the issues around to fit their situation then say they're doing the fighting for everyone else. I would like to hear just one time someone come out and say "I don't want the big box store here because it will cut into my pocket book by driving my prices down." Or, "I do want it here because I'm a property investor and it will increase the investment value of my property."

No one can ever just say what it is. I have heard we don't need the ugliness of the big box store to be the first thing you see as we come into "Charlevoix the Beautiful."

But I guess in the eyes of those people the smorgasbord of pole buildings and storage buildings that now line every entrance of Charlevoix are the way to promote beauty in our town. I have heard the excuse that it will kill the downtown businesses as well and I truly believe that is possible depending on how you run your business but very unlikely if you treat your customers with a good product for a good price. I personally do shop at Wal-Mart in Petoskey at times but if one were to move here I would not change my loyalty to the businesses I already use. These businesses employ people that have become my friends and deserve to keep my business and with that being said will not lose it.

If we truly want to make changes that protect the Charlevoix image it most certainly could be done by keeping the box store out or it could be we need to have building restrictions not necessarily on size but for all of us to follow that make it mandatory to give the building we build have a character that is in line with the once Charlevoix charm. Maybe we need to consider having industrial areas of town to house all the pole building style buildings that seem to be popping up all over or have mandatory landscaping to camouflage their look. To me growth is inevitable and with the way the economy is we need to consider inviting it into our town. What we don't need to do is let it wreck it or take it over. Make necessary restrictions for looks and image of the buildings not size or who it may be.

Jobs are few and far in between for many and if we want to lose those people to other cities or states for that matter cut out these businesses that want to move in. I can honestly tell you with my business that I compete against the big box store lumber yards often and find they create more business for me then take it away. My customers like the personal service and the fact that my wife and I are always here to help. I feel our town and its townships do need to have their ordinances looked at but for the reasons of bringing businesses in and most of all Charlevoix charm back in to our community. Vote how you will but in doing so consider what you're voting for.

Vote 'yes' on park project

Editor:
My name is Gary Stutzman, co-administrator and band director at Northwest Academy and director of the Charlevoix Community Band. I too have been a part of the community band for nearly 50 years. I was born and raised in this beautiful community and I have witnessed many changes during my lifetime. The only constant in my life has been change and the issue that we are dealing with regarding the performance venue in our park needs to be addressed.

I just sailed my boat out of our unique harbor for the last time this year and as I looked back at the docking facilities and the park layout from the water, I said to myself, "The proposed changes for the docks and the Odmark Pavilion will really be a beautiful sight as people enter our harbor."

I agree with Bob Odmark that the performance area should be moved to the south end of the park and the name "Odmark Pavilion" should move with it. I headed up the fund-raising effort for the current performance venue and people insisted that we have a fish pond in front of it. Obviously it was a huge mistake to allow that to happen but that is what people had to have.

The community band is over 100 years old and the performance area has been positioned in several different locations in the park during that time. The current positioning of the Odmark Pavilion is due to the fact that there were two buildings that helped to form the center of the park on each side of Mason Street that extends down to the lake. However, things change and those buildings have been removed. Good acoustics in East Park will never be achieved unless we could close down the main street on the nights that we have events in the pavilion and restrict all air traffic over our area. When I perform on stage in East Park, I know that part of the performance will be the natural sounds that occur in the area and I deal with it.

There are all kinds of possibilities but the fact still remains that we have to make a decision on the current East Park and I vote, "yes" and strongly encourage others to do so.

Support the park and Ordinance 1.73

Editor:
On Nov. 8, Charlevoix area voters will have an opportunity to decide two issues that are certain to impact our community for many years to come. A lot is at stake — the character, economic vibrancy, size and success of our small town.

City voters will be asked to approve a plan to renovate East Park. The heart of our town, this park is the venue for our fairs, festivals, and concerts, a favorite gathering spot for residents, vacationers, and boaters and a prized asset that lends charm to Charlevoix. But it's in sorry need of fixing up.

After years of discussion and public input, we now have a plan that will make the park safer, more accessible, more useful, and more attractive. It includes new walkways, lighting, fishpond, public restrooms, gentle terracing, and a site-appropriate bandshell with better acoustics and seating. The park will not cost residential taxpayers anything. It enjoys the full support of the Odmark descendants, whose father, the new bandshell will honor Best of all, a renovated East Park will add immensely to our town's appeal. It's a wonderful investment in our future, and I urge city residents to vote "yes" for the park.

Meanwhile, Charlevoix Township voters are being asked to adopt a zoning amendment, Ordinance No. 1.73, that will cap new commercial development in the township at 90,000 square feet. That's twice as big as Glen's. This amendment is supported by our township planners and commissioners, the consultants we hired to study and prepare a plan, and hundreds of thoughtful citizens who turned out for public meetings. The few who now lobby for a "no" vote would have us believe the issue will quash free enterprise or individual property rights — but some of them stand to gain financially if the amendment is defeated and they sell to big box developers.

The proposed zoning amendment was carefully designed to promote the common good, provide local control over future growth, and protect the unique character of our small town. We've seen what unbridled development has done to many Michigan communities — destroying the center city, closing locally owned businesses, and ruining the landscape forever. Is this what we want for Charlevoix? A "yes" vote will adopt this reasonable zoning amendment and help ensure that we don't become a cookie-cutter, strip-mall-surrounded community with a hole where our downtown used to be.

Voters, you have a chance to say what kind of a town you want on Nov. 8. Please vote "yes" for the park, and "yes" for the township ordinance.

Save Charlevoix's charm, vote 'no' on park project

Editor:
I think that sometimes we lose sight of what Charlevoix is all about — the year-round residents who live and work here 12 months of the year. Granted, the summer people, the boaters who visit, are extremely important to our economy and we need to take care of them, but aren't the plans somewhat grandiose? Nice laundry and bath facilities are necessary — the size of the planned facilities is overboard.

One of the reasons that people find Charlevoix so charming (and I know this because I have been here only 10 years and well remember the "I'm home" feeling when I first saw our little town) is the nostalgia factor — it's charming, old fashioned in many ways and is a comfortable place to be.

However, if we keep building and modernizing we will surely lose all of that. Therefore — even though the current bandshell needs some work, it apparently can be made better acoustically, and the storage facilities could be enlarged and improved for far less money than taking it down and building a state-of-the-art shell at the end of the park.

I even agree that that might be a better location but are we being good stewards of our money? Our schools are hurting and many people may go without heat this winter. The money to be used for the park improvements could certainly be better more efficiently used than with a fancy new park. The current bandshell is not very old and a lot of people put a lot of time and money into it's construction. Someday, it will be necessary to replace the existing shell, but until then let's leave it where it is.

Bottom line — I say vote "no" on the current park plans.

Vote 'yes' on Ordinance 1.73

Editor:
Over the past several years, thousands of communities have decided to take control of their growth by making those decisions locally rather than big outside developers doing so for them. In 2003 Charlevoix County, along with all townships and cities, held a joint initiative to decide the type and size of growth we want over the next 20 years. All county residents were invited to participate. Gosling Czubak, a professional planning firm was hired to facilitate the four work sessions. The 90,000-square-foot limit on big box stores came from this initiative.

This decision, made by the planning commission was not made by a bunch of uninformed, unqualified people, as was stated by one of the opponents in a recent Courier letter to the editor. In addition to the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission agreeing with the citizens that took the time to participate in the strategic planning process, the township board voted for the amendment as did the Charlevoix County Planning Commission. All of this was after numerous public hearings by the township.

90,000 square feet is larger than Kmart and twice the size of (Charlevoix's) Glen's (Market). Most, if not all big box companies have existing stores within this size, so let them come if they choose to conform to what the local citizens decided is an appropriate size for our small communities.

The four people that wrote letters to the editor last week either own or are related to people that own property that Wal-Mart was originally considering. None of these individuals is being denied full use of their property as allowed by law, new or old. In fact, only one of these pieces would be large enough for a 90,000 square foot building, with required set backs, parking and retention ponds.

I do not understand people that say they do not care about Charlevoix's downtown because they don't shop there. I ask those individuals do you know anyone that works at any of these locally owned stores, anyone that washes their windows, cleans their carpet, does remodeling, provides insurance, banking and other services. The money stays here and goes round and round providing jobs.

One big box company has a TV ad where they brag about one-stop shopping. Most of what I see them offer is already being provided by a locally owned business such as food, clothing, pharmacy, eyeglasses, haircuts, film processing, oil changes, tires, hardware, and household goods. For a local family-owned business to lose not only their jobs and income, but their life savings, due to no fault of their own, is a tragedy.

I think most of us choose to live here because we do not look like every exit on every expressway in America. It takes longer to drive across Traverse City than it takes us to get to the big boxes in Petoskey. Let them have the monopoly on big boxes and let's keep our small town charm. Once it is gone, it is gone forever.

Please vote "yes" on Nov. 8.

Native American mentor guides students

By NICOLE GRAZIANO
Special to the Courier

These days, Larry Denemy, coordinator for the Native American mentoring program at North Central Michigan College, is keeping busy at his corner desk in the Student Services building.

His workspace is strewn with typewritten letters, photocopies of job opportunities and fliers promoting upcoming conferences hosted by the Tribal Court of the Little Traverse Bay Bands of Odawa Indians. A newspaper clip hanging to the left of Denemy reads "Native American Museum opens in Washington D.C.," and a column explains the history of the totem pole. At the edge of his desk stands a sign spelling Anii which means, "hello" in the Anishnabe language. Denemy, a mentor to students, academics and spirit, sits tall and proud.

The Native American mentoring program is intended to promote, nurture and protect native cultures and history. As an educational entity, the program is committed to presenting college as realistic and attainable endeavor to Native American high school and North Central Michigan College students. Through language seminars, cultural immersion workshops and local gatherings, the mentoring program also aims to enlighten those who are simply curious about native traditions and beliefs.

Denemy, a self-proclaimed extrovert and full-time North Central Michigan College student, was tapped to replace the program's original mentor last fall. With resources such as the college's Anishnabe language program director, Little Traverse Bay Band of Odawa Indians committees and High School Indian Education directors Connie Marshall (Petoskey and Charlevoix) and Cheryl Halfacre (Harbor Springs), the 30-year-old Denemy has made multi-tasking a way of life.

"I'm looking for that incendiary way to get people fired up," he said. "I do believe I'll get out of this what I put in to it. Last year turned out to be a really good year and the students have come forth with some good ideas."

In an April demographics profile compiled by the Michigan Department of Labor and Economic Growth, a total of 2,699 students enrolled at NCMC in 2004. About four percent, or 112 students, were Native American.

This year, said Denemy, Native American student enrollment at NCMC is up five to seven percent. About 135 Native American students now attend the Petoskey college, 30 of which are members of its Native American student organization.

"I've met a lot of people on campus who need to come forth with their talents and gifts," said Denemy, who is half Anishnabe Indian. "I recognize a lot of gifts here in the Indian community and I think we need to celebrate them and bring them together."

Such communal celebrations coordinated by the mentoring program were abundant last year and included: A four-day Anishnabe language conference in Sault Ste. Marie; two day-trips to the Zibiwing Cultural Center in Mt. Pleasant; a day trip to Michigan State University; Sugarbush Camp, the springtime traditional of collecting maple sap; a Native American Career Expo at the Soaring Eagle casino in Mt. Pleasant; an Earth Day Celebration at the Zibiwing Cultural Center; and a bowling outing organized for area high school students that incorporated native storytelling.

Aside from maintaining the calendar of cultural activities, Denemy works to combat the notion that Native Americans are a "dispossessed people."

"I wasn't supposed to be here with these thoughts," he said, recounting his struggle with self-actualization in his early 20s. "These thoughts of mine weren't supposed to survive, but they're here. So I started looking for like-minds and like-spirits."

Denemy continues to seek out these souls by writing personal letters to be posted or distributed throughout high school and North Central Michigan College campus. His words detail the mentoring program's mission and outline planned cultural events in the area. Through these letters, Denemy also encourages students to contact him directly to learn more about a cultural revival that they may or may not realize exists.

"I want to see more action in the high schools," he said. "I'm trying to be a liaison between college and high school. As soon as high school ended for me, I hit a brick wall. I didn't have my financial aid in order, I didn't have my tribal certification."

To obtain tribal certification, he explained, means to be eligible for a tuition waiver in the State of Michigan. Ideally, Denemy said, this task should be completed in high school and well before college applications are signed and sealed. Without a tribal certificate, Native American students may only receive financial breaks during college if they can prove that their blood quantum is one-fourth Native American; a process known as BIA certification. Because Denemy never thought to inquire about these opportunities as a high school student, he never knew they existed and his transition to college was anything but smooth. Today, he is making college preparatory guidance a key component of the mentoring program.

"If you don't ask, you don't receive," he said, adding that he plans to create and distribute a package of scholarships for Native Americans to high school students.

Denemy attributes the success of the mentoring program to a progressive community and a supportive home base. From the copy machine to postage, Denemy said North Central Michigan College has supplied him with ample resources to execute his duties.

Last fall, the mentoring program received a grant totaling $2,250 from the Petoskey/Harbor Springs Community Foundation Board of Trustees — the program's parent and Denemy's official employer. In the following spring semester, the Native American Student Circle, a student organization at the college, was officially organized. Within a week of its inception, the college's Student Senate awarded the new-found group $350 for aid in planning future events.

Each spring, Denemy is required to present a baseline report to the community foundation. During this presentation, he fields questions from a teen Youth Advisory Committee and discusses any shifts he's witnessed in Native American students' GPAs, retention rates and personal goals.

"This is primarily about education so we have to show empirical evidence that the students are doing good," he said.

In addition to attending classes five days a week, maintaining the mentoring program and working part-time as a server at Stafford's Weathervane restaurant, Denemy contributes articles to the Anishnabe Student Circle page in the college's bi-monthly Informer newsletter. He plans to transfer from North Central Michigan College in the coming years, to pursue a bachelor's degree in natural resource management.

"I don't want to leave this and have it fizzle," he said, explaining that his position is temporary and contingent upon his enrollment at the college. "I believe there is a plan for us and we need to meet the creator halfway for it to manifest. We have to show some effort, show some commitment and show some leadership. You've got to stand for something or you'll fall for nothing."

The North Central Michigan College Native American student organization meets at 6:45 p.m. the second Tuesday of every month in room 230 of the technology building. To learn more about the Native American Mentoring Program and upcoming events, call or visit Denemy during his office hours, 11 a.m. till 3 p.m. Monday through Thursday. He can be reached by phone at (231) 348-6834 and by e-mail at anishnabe_33@yahoo.com.

An important message for Charlevoix Township voters

NOTE YESBigger isn't always betterVote YES on November 8th

The professional planning consultants said YES.
 The Charlevoix Township Planning Commission said YES.
 Our Township Board said YES.

Then, the County Planning Commission said YES.
 Most importantly, over the course of three years and numerous public hearings, a huge majority of our citizens said YES.

All agreed to amend our township zoning ordinance, limit new buildings to 90,000 square feet, and control the growth of huge stores.

Now a few people are trying to change the rules.

Show them you care about local jobs, our local economy, local control of growth, our unique hometown appeal and the future of our community.

90,000 square feet is bigger than Kmart
 Twice as big as Glen's

And, big enough for Charlevoix Township!

Voters approve East Park changes

Gibson,
 Timms and Beer elected

By JULIE WITTHOEF
 Staff Writer

The general election for the City of Charlevoix ended with major changes on the horizon for East Park and the make-up of city council. 846 voters turned out for the Nov. 4 election, reelecting two incumbents, ousting a long standing councilman and pushing forward plans to renovate East Park.

Cool fall weather characterized election day, Nov. 8 when 34 percent of the city's 2,423 registered voters cast a ballot.

"It was steady all day," city clerk, Carol Ochs, said.

At the election, voters decided the time for major East Park renovations, approving an ordinance that will amend the Downtown Development Authority's development plan to make way for construction of a new performance facility. The existing bandshell will be removed and a new venue with amphitheater seating and restrooms built in the fall of 2006 at the south end of the park.

This project will cost the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority just under $1.5 million.

Of the 832 voters who cast a ballot with regard to the park project, 499 voted in favor of the changes while 333 voted against it. That is overall approval of about 60 percent.

The park issue had the most opposition in the second ward where 136 voted in favor of the changes and 135 voters cast a ballot for it to stay the same.

Jill Pieha, who has fought the park plan since its inception, was disappointed at the outcome and said, "There's nothing more we can do. I'm happy it went to a vote, the majority want it and they got it. But I don't think the DDA has the money to do this."

The majority of voters came from the first and second wards where races were contested.

Of the 853 first ward voters, 322 cast a ballot. Of those, 53 percent voted in favor of reelecting Robert Timms to his first ward seat.

The final vote was 171 in favor of Timms and 140 for his opponent, former city planning commissioner Steven Bennett.

Timms said he feels the outcome hinged on his penny pinching track record.

Bennett, said he decided to run for council this year, for the first time, after attending council meetings and

Haggard takes the primary by four votes

By BENJAMIN GOHS
 Staff writer

The primary race to single out a Republican candidate to run for the first district Charlevoix County Commission seat was neck and neck with John Haggard winning by only four votes.

His competitor, Josh Barnes, said, "It's over. I won't run again. I'm discouraged because I got so much verbal support."

The first district covers the City of Charlevoix north of the bridge, as well as Hayes, Bay and Charlevoix townships.

Voters north of the bridge in the city east 119 votes for Barnes and 121 for Haggard. Voters in Hayes Township cast 62 ballots in favor of Barnes and 64 for Haggard. In Bay Township, 27 people voted for Barnes while 33 voted for Haggard.

The biggest gap between the two was in Charlevoix Township where Barnes received 177 votes and Haggard came away with 171.

Haggard is a 64-year-old Charlevoix Township resident and long-time chairman of the Charlevoix County

First district voters choose Haggard over Barnes

But, Robert Hoffman, a local resident and supporter of 1,733 said, plenty of voters turned out to show overwhelming approval for what the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission and the Charlevoix Township Board have accomplished in drafting the ordinance.

"I think again, that with the ordinance in place, it is a tool the planning commission now has to ensure that the township will maintain its small-town character," he said. "It's not just a township issue, it's a community issue. It transcends the borders between township and city."

While the most contentious part of the amendment is the 90,000 square foot cap on the footprint of commercial buildings, other features include front facade requirements. Trademark architecture which identifies a specific company by building design features is prohibited, unless the applicant can demonstrate that the design is compatible with the historic architecture of Charlevoix.

In addition to the aforementioned requirements, buildings which exceed a footprint of 50,000 square feet must conduct a market feasibility study which indicates whether or not the potential of the market can accommodate the project and what the impact of the proposed project would be on existing retail businesses in Charlevoix area.

A traffic study must also accompany building projects in excess of 50,000 square feet which would show the effects of the proposed development on the level of service of all existing and proposed intersections within one mile of the project and how traffic impacts will be mitigated.

Over 30 percent of voters turn out for city election feeling as though constituents are not being well represented.

Bennett did not return calls by press time.

Timms was first elected in 2003 when he beat out his competitor, interim first ward councilman Dave Novotny, by 36 votes.

While Timms enjoys his second two-year term, second ward councilman Bill Bellows will not enter his fourth term after being defeated by newcomer on the political scene, Gene Beer. This was the first time since 2001 that Bellows has had to compete to keep his seat.

Of the 741 second ward voters, 273 cast a ballot. Of those, 60 percent voted in favor of electing Beer to his second ward seat.

The final vote was 102 in favor of Bellows and 163 for Beer.

Beer, who has spent the last 17 years as manager of Charlevoix County Transit, said he feels the outcome hinged on his vocal opinions on mismanagement at city hall and a need for tighter spending habits.

"I'm ready to get in there and get my feet wet," he said.

Voters also cast ballots for uncontested seats.

Third ward council member Shirley Gibson was reelected by 189 voters. This is the first time she has run uncontested. She was first elected in 2001 when she beat out Tom Rankle in a close vote and in 2003 beat A.J. Witthoef.

City clerk Carol Ochs will retain her post after widespread support from all three wards.

The next council election in November of 2006 will see first ward councilman Bill Haggard, second ward council representative Gabe Campbell and third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain's seats open up for two year terms.

Be a hero: Put your opinion in writing

Benjamin Gohs

'Staff writer'

Some of you are loudmouths, whiners, troublemakers and malcontents. And, while some may consider speaking one's mind offensive and annoying, I wouldn't have it any other way.

Some of my favorite speakers throughout history include: Jack Kennedy, Martin Luther King Jr. and Sam Kinison. A president, a preacher and a performer, all of whom I view as patriots. Like or loathe them, they knew how to speak their minds. If it wasn't for their vociferousness, this world, already dim on freedom, would be a much darker place.

From the time a baby can cry, humans are constantly communicating their feelings. Whether it's cooing or cussing, people have a need to be heard. But, as far back as Galileo or further still to the time of Socrates, those speaking their minds were often stigmatized and even killed. I don't know for sure, but the trepidation over speaking one's mind may extend all the way to the roots of mankind.

I once heard baby circus elephants are tied to a post with the strongest of chains. The idea being, by the time the animal is full-grown, its will to escape is sufficiently obliterated that it can be secured with a thin rope. Author Alice Walker said people most commonly relinquish their power by thinking they have none. I agree, when people believe impotence is a foregone conclusion, they often assume the role of sheep extraordinaire.

Being louder doesn't make you more righteous, but remember this, a good man cannot win a shouting match with a tyrant by whispering — no matter how prolific the statement.

But what is one to do? Aside from strutting around town with a sandwich board or installing a billboard in your front yard, there is no better place to voice your opinion than your local newspaper. Am I a little biased? Probably. But then, who isn't?

Listening to people's peevish and pleasures in my office or the local coffee shop doesn't bother me. What gets me is when I tell them to write a letter to the editor and they suddenly lose their voice.

"I don't want to sound like a whiner. I'll make my neighbor angry," they say.

The point is, they are afraid to opine and that's wrong.

Granted, last week there were three pages of letters, but political season shouldn't be the only time people become impassioned enough to offer suggestions, pontificate on politics or let us have it for messing up.

Yeah, you could bite your tongue and relieve your aggression by downing a dozen doughnuts, but I bet you'd feel better if you instead grabbed an ink pen and let fly your opinion on the issues and controversies that matter most to you.

Letters are accepted on just about any topic — president doing a swell job? Local politician rub you the wrong way? Not happy with the local newspaper?

Tell us about it.

And, while I'm not one for censorship, our standards and practices people already have ulcers the size of eggplants so please, give them a break and save the epithets and personal attacks for holiday get-togethers.

Just think of it as a large-scale suggestion box. Who knows, you could open a few minds, brighten someone's day or even change the community.

There is always the possibility you will anger someone with your point of view.

But, you may also enlighten, educate or empower, because few things excite, incite and spice up life like a passionately presented argument.

Intelligent Design has no place in science class

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

George Santayana is credited with the aphorism "Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it." I believe he was correct.

In 1802 the English Anglican priest William Paley wrote a book titled, "Natural Theology." It became the standard explanation in English of a major argument for the existence of God. It was called "The argument for design," and Paley explained it so well that his book was required reading for English university students until the 20th century. And in an interesting bit of irony, that book was a favorite of the young Charles Darwin.

Paley said in effect that both the world and a pocket watch were so complicated and obviously designed that it was necessary to postulate the action of a designer, God in the case of the world and a watchmaker in the case of the watch. The argument sounds familiar because it is the one now used by the proponents of Intelligent Design to cast doubt on the validity of evolutionary theory. If any further evidence were necessary to clarify that intelligent design is theology or religion and not science, Paley's book should do it.

Teaching people about intelligent design as a part of the history of ideas might well be acceptable in any school curriculum, but proposing it as an alternative to evolutionary theory reveals a profound misunderstanding of both science and human history.

In science almost no one today holds two views of the world and its workings that seemed certain when Rev. Paley wrote his theological treatise. Many of the views now accepted as truth by the vast majority of scientists flatly contradict those held by scientists in 1900. Truth to a scientist is not the revealed and eternal truth of biblical theology or Intelligent Design, it is rather more like the current record in a sports event. When someone says the world's record for the 1,500 meter run is three minutes, 30.5 seconds, that is a truth, but it is a truth almost certain to change with time. Scientific truth is like that sports record. It is true now and conforms to all we know, but almost everyone recognizes that it will change.

When either the sports record or the scientific truth change it will reflect more clearly what can be accomplished by extraordinary human effort. The extraordinary efforts of the world's scientists over centuries have produced what we accept today as truth about the world, whether it is about gravity or about evolution. Those truths will be refined or changed, but they will not be replaced with an idea that made theological sense in 1802. Science does not deal in potential proofs of the existence or non-existence of God. The truth of science is not based on authority or faith or self-evidence. It depends finally on conformation to a natural world that is accessible to the senses and is described by the concepts that scientists have produced. Such concepts are not discovered, they are produced by human intellectual effort. And, although we do not know exactly how gravity is produced, no one seems ready to abandon gravity in favor of the idea of rocks seeking each other or an explanation that requires an intelligent designer.

Evolution as a process is at least as well understood as is gravity. Both the theory of gravitation and the theory of evolution explain a great deal of how the world works. Intelligent Design attempts to tell us that we cannot explain or understand how the world works — it's just too complicated.

Finally, teaching a young aspiring student Intelligent Design in his science class is equivalent to telling the aspiring track athlete, "Don't bother trying to heat that record. No one will ever run 1,500 meters in less than three minutes and 30.5 seconds. It's too difficult." Neither would be teaching, nor would either be true.

learned more than a few things about gravity since Isaac Newton in 1700. And, although we do not know exactly how gravity is produced, no one seems ready to abandon gravity in favor of the idea of rocks seeking each other or an explanation that requires an intelligent designer.

Letters to the editor

'Thank you' Charlevoix beautifiers

Editor:
The purpose of this note is to say, "Thank you," to the many people who work so hard to make Charlevoix look as beautiful as it does.

Special thanks to our city public works. Yes, the people who work so very hard and do not get the recognition and gratitude that they deserve. All through the summer we see them quietly, and not so quietly, cleaning the streets, picking up the thoughtlessly thrown trash, painting the benches, light poles and baskets, repairing the electrical problems that come with use and of course the beautiful shrubbery and trees around town. Don't forget the electrical service people, the water system and the waste treatment plant, and of course our parks people. I'm sure I've missed some from other parts of our service system. But, "Thank you," to those I forget.

Thanks to those of you who so kindly wave or say, "Hi".

This is just a part of why I love Charlevoix.

Interpreting commandments

Editor:
From birth to death we are constantly recording facts and events, in our minds, that require us to interpret what we see, hear, touch, smell and taste that is formulated into knowledge.

This knowledge we acquire, through study or repetition, is what will assist us to become intelligent, or give us wisdom, in making efficient use of those interpretations when confronted with a problem. Everything that is recorded in our minds, either true or false, leaves an impression that is used during the reasoning process to make decisions, form opinions or develop our beliefs.

In the year 1604 King James I of England commissioned 54 scholars to translate the Hebrew scrolls, containing the inspired words of God, into English and the King James Bible.

It was inevitable that, either through error, an attempt to simplify or a desire to improve, changes would be made and one appears in The Ten Commandments. We have all been taught "Thou shalt not kill" and to take a human life is a sin for which we will be punished by God.

Many who have served their country in military combat are reluctant to discuss their experiences and may, because of their religious beliefs, harbor a subconscious guilt for taking a human life contrary to their biblical teachings.

The Hebrew word ratsach (pronounced raw-tsakh) was translated as the English word kill by the scholars, but the correct English word is murder. "Thou shalt not murder," and has a very different meaning.

To kill is to put to death, slay or deprive of life, which is a generalized and all-inclusive usage. The unlawful killing of one human being by another, especially with malice and premeditation, is murder. When confronted with a situation requiring deadly force, such as in time of war or self-defense, to kill before being killed is not murder and not a violation of The Ten Commandments.

It is my hope that the above clarification may help some of my comrades in arms, who carry guilt from their actions during a war, and will be relieved of the burden and enjoy an improved quality of life.

The most precious gift on earth is human life and we should protect our lives, and the lives of others, at all costs. The only certainty of life, as we know it here on earth, is that all life ends.

We should endeavor to live our lives absent guilt or regrets, but then who among us is perfect, faultless or all knowing.

Vote 'no' on 1.73

Editor:
Ordinance No. 1.73 unjustly tips the scale of governmental control versus free enterprise radically against free enterprise. Ordinance 1.73 greatly increases governmental control on how we do our business.

Charlevoix Township already has an extensive set of rules and regulations under our current zoning ordinance. All citizens, taxpayers and developers already must spend countless hours and large amounts of money to meet our current zoning standards. The proposed amendments go too far.

There must be some balance between governmental control and free enterprise. Vote no on Ordinance No. 1.73.

Charles Sherping

Remembering veterans

Editor:
Charlevoix residents will recognize veterans and soldiers at 11 a.m. Nov. 11.

The date and time for Veteran's Day ceremonies commemorates when World War I came to an end.

We remember how men and women set aside their civilian pursuits to serve their nation's cause, defending the freedom of mankind and preserving our precious American heritage.

"We believe our strength on the field of battle, on the supply line which nourished our armed might, lay in the justice of our cause against the forces of evil. We believe our determination made us better warriors because we fought with our minds and our hearts as well as our bodies.

We recognize service to your country and her cause does not end with the termination of military service. We continue our endeavors in behalf of an honorable world peace with a feeling of profound gratitude to God, and to the men and women who gave their lives as their part of the cost of this noblest of causes.

Out of blood and sweat we learned of purpose, sacrifice, tolerance, bravery and discipline. These are solid foundation stones upon which a great nation is built. In our continuing quest for an honorable world peace we must cultivate these virtues.

Let us honor those who in public service seek not how much they may secure from the nation but how much they can give.

Let us honor those who devote their lives to that education which will lead our children on to live and laugh and learn and love, as we have only dreamed of doing.

Let us honor those veterans who carry into ordinary affairs of life a noble idealism and sincere capacity for self-devotion.

Let us translate the devotion of war into a devotion of peace. Let us have the will to live as well as die for our country. Let us support our troops.

Zonta to host motivational event for middle school girls

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Charlevoix's Zonta Club has organized an event that will assist in making strides toward the service organization's aim of empowering young, northern Michigan girls.

The event begins at 10 a.m. and lasts until 3:15 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 12 at the Charlevoix Middle School. That day, the club will host public speaker Laurie Stewart, of Kalamazoo during Zonta's Sights on Success campaign (S.O.S.).

According to Betsy Granstra, member of the Zonta board of directors, nationally known Stewart, will present an interactive event for girls from grades six to eight in the Charlevoix area.

"She speaks on issues of self-esteem, peer pressure, goal setting and educational opportunities," Granstra said. "The underlying goal is feeling good about yourself."

Granstra said Zonta Club members along with nearly a dozen local school girls helped design this event for middle school girls.

"We chose our first year to highlight middle school girls, but if this year's event is successful, we've talked about incorporating both boys and girls in the future," Granstra said.

Topics which will be covered at the presentation are universal and appropriate for multiple age groups.

"Some of the information the speaker sent to us is relevant to me as an adult — I'm benefiting," Granstra said. "One of her catch phrases is TNT, which means, Today Not Tomorrow. Our goal with this is to advance their (young girls) status by helping them feel great about themselves."

This event is free of charge. Registration for the event is from 9:15 to 9:45 a.m. For more information call Granstra, at (231) 547-5930 or Zonta Club District One president, Linda Degrow at (231) 547-4109.

Zonta Club is an international service organization whose mission is to advance the educational, emotional, financial and spiritual status of women around the world.

Courier welcomes new classified advertising manager-receptionist

By JULIE WITTHOEF
Editor

Lisa Sladek

Charlevoix resident Lisa Sladek joined the Courier staff this week as classified advertising manager and receptionist. Courier advertising manager, Kim Taylor, said

Sladek will be a useful asset to both the Courier staff and its customers. "I think she is a good fit in the office. Her customer service skills are strong," Taylor said. Sladek, 39, is a Lakeview native, graduating from Lakeview High School in 1984. She moved to Petoskey after completing high school and attended North Central Michigan College from where she earned an associate's degree in business administration in 1987. Prior to accepting the position with the newspaper, Sladek was a bartender at Grey Gables. Before working at Grey Gables, she spent 13 years as a medical transcriptionist for Charlevoix Area Hospital. "I've missed the office pace and setting. Having worked nights for a long time, I'm looking forward to having more family time," Sladek said. "As far as the news business goes, I'm excited to discover its ins and outs — layouts, articles — it's all very interesting to me." She is the wife of Jerry Sladek, who is employed at Manther Development Corp., and the stepmother of Nicole, 19, Scott, 18 and Dylan, 12.

Boulder Park raising funds for indoor aviary

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

With the help of some local fund-raising efforts, Boulder Park Terrace in Charlevoix hopes to have an aviary built on site.

According to Boulder Park's activity coordinator, Elke Maierhofer, she has been dreaming of an aviary for her residents for years.

"It's an enclosed, giant bird cage," she said. "It is a gazebo style handcrafted bird cage that's going to contain specially bred tropical birds."

Maierhofer said the aviary, which will be built by a company called Living Design, will help Boulder Park maintain the birds once in place.

"The routine care is going to be done by our staff and residents and then the company also offers a quarterly checkup, so to speak, where they trim the beaks and nails and exchange older birds and sick birds for new ones," Maierhofer said. "And, they take the babies out to give them to other aviaries."

She added, "They disinfect the cage and then they restructure the interior branches and the nests."

Those familiar with Boulder Park Terrace, a nursing home near Charlevoix Area Hospital, will notice the aviary when it is finished.

"It will be centered smack dab in the middle of the lobby. It is going to be 6-feet in diameter by 9-and-a-half feet tall. So, it will take up the lobby," she said.

The idea behind the aviary, according to Maierhofer, is to bring a bit of nature indoors.

"It will not only be a great visual enchantment but it will be an opportunity to care and be in the circle of life in the animal world," she said.

According to Maierhofer, many of the residents with which she works had bird feeders prior to their residing at Boulder Park.

"We're hoping that it will be a gathering place for families and residents," she said.

Maierhofer said she hopes to raise the $15,000 needed to bring the project to fruition, quickly so the aviary can be built next year.

"One of the other things with this aviary is to provide a meaningful experience for the lower functioning residents — the ones who are not able to do the activities," she said. "They can spend time viewing the colorful birds."

According to Maierhofer, the aviary will house up to 25 different birds from the Passerine family.

"They're specially bred and there has never been a documented case of disease," she said. "They are mostly finches — special European gold finches, red headed finches, society finches and diamond doves."

She added, "And they are all special birds because we'll see them raising their young, so we will be foster parents."

Maierhofer said she is hoping the brightly colored plumage and bird songs will positively affect the mental health of Boulder Park residents.

"The most benefit we're hoping to achieve is really to bring the outdoors inside and to bring people back into a natural living habitat. When folks come into a nursing home that cycle of nature to man can be broken and can lead to depression," she said. "We're hoping to alleviate loneliness, depression and boredom and bring a purpose to our residents lives."

Maierhofer hopes the addition of the aviary will alleviate some of the grief people feel when they leave loved ones in nursing homes.

"So not only are we trying to help the residents, but the families too," she said. "And, we often have residents who are anxious or tend to wander, and the birds are just a kind of soothing, captivating thing."

Anyone wishing to help the residents of Boulder Park Terrace get their aviary can send donations to Boulder Park Terrace, 14676 West Upright St. Charlevoix, MI 49720 with Aviary Fund written in the memo line.

Norwood Township reviews permit request for private mining operation

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The Norwood Township Board voted to table a contentious special use permit request until December.

Vocal opposition and several public hearings have taken place at which Norwood Township administrators have discussed a proposed limestone mine in Norwood.

Norwood Township Supervisor, Wayne Wynkoop and his wife Micheline recently applied for a special use permit for the extraction of limestone on several parcels of land totaling 6.94 acres. The property is located at 01195 Norwood Road. Mining is an allowable use in an agricultural zone according to the Norwood Township zoning ordinance.

But for some what is allowable, just isn't practical.

According to Norwood Township resident and owner of H & D Farms, Douglas Warner, he is concerned the proposed mine will negatively affect Norwood for several reasons.

"I think it's going to affect the area traffic with the trucks that are going to be going through Charlevoix and Norwood," he said. "And the noise and dust with the mining operation will upset the pristine and quiet area."

He added, "We run farms out here and with the extra traffic it's (the mine) going to impede farm traffic. It's quite a narrow road already."

Warner said the community just conducted a survey concerning the township's future. He said respondents are against commercial development.

"We wanted to keep the land the way it was and didn't want commercial operations around here," Warner said.

In a letter dated Oct. 24, from Norwood Township resident, David Rothschild to the Norwood Township Board, Rothschild states, "The Wynkoop limestone pit proposal presents a variety of challenges to public health and safety but offers no substantive plan to address them."

"What this proposal passes off as a limited, contained mining operation, is in reality a threat to the health, safety and quality of life in Norwood. It would have a profound and long lasting environmental and economic impact," he added.

According to Rothschild, with 30 truckloads of limestone a day projected to be carried along Norwood Road to U.S. 31 in the proposed mining operation, the cost of road maintenance and unobstructed traffic flow are serious concerns.

At the board's Nov. 3 public hearing three representatives from the Charlevoix County Road Commission addressed some of Rothschild's concerns.

"Based on the information presented by the Charlevoix County Road Commission, it (the project) meets all the site requirement conditions. They said, as long as the trucks are legally loaded, the road can handle it. As far as slowing traffic, it shouldn't. This project does have the blessing of MDOT (Michigan Department of Transportation) and the road commission," Norwood Township Trustee, Denny Way said.

Rothschild also asserted that the establishment of a heavy industrial operation just off the main access road to and from Norwood will substantially alter the experience of living there.

The second public hearing on the proposed project, took place Thursday, Nov. 3.

Way said that at that meeting the board accepted Wynkoop's request that the ruling be delayed to Dec. 1. In the meantime, the board plans to explore questions including the length of the project and plans for rehabilitation of the land after mining has ceased.

Way said, while it may seem like a drawn-out process, special use permits generally tend to take longer for approval.

But, he said, "I think it's continuing on a due process course and the applicant is comfortable with that and the planning commission is comfortable with that."

"I think it gives everybody time to think up intelligent questions and come up with intelligent answers," he added.

Way said, while he remains neutral on subject, he hopes, "This is resolved in a timely manner. I hope the planning commission realizes that we need to follow the township laws and ordinances. And I hope the applicant will bear in mind his neighbors."

BUSINESS

New owners take charge at Grey Gables B & B

The new owners of The Inn at Grey Gables bed and breakfast are hosting an open house for the local community to take place from 5 to 8 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 10.

Guests will be free to tour the bed and breakfast while enjoying wine and light hors d'oeuvres provided by Grey Gables Inn Catering.

Michael Barton and Phillip Anderson, the new innkeepers, are actively working to increase new tourist traffic to their inn and to Charlevoix.

They hope to create working relationships with local businesses and the community to ensure guests spend as much time as possible in Charlevoix.

Barton and Anderson come to Charlevoix from south Florida and will operate the bed and breakfast as a full-time business.

They were searching for a business to buy in Florida but quickly decided to follow Barton's dream of running a hotel once they saw the "for sale" sign in front of The Inn at Grey Gables.

"We were visiting the area with my family this summer and decided that the business and location were exactly what we were looking for," he said.

The bed and breakfast will operate year-round and the innkeepers are planning special events for each season.

Barton, a Michigan native, spent much of his career as a director of public relations for the United Nations in Switzerland.

He compiled a long list of innovative marketing ideas during his extensive travels and believes tourism to the inn, even in off-season, can be increased with a bit of creativity.

When not managing the bed and breakfast, Barton will continue to concentrate on his consulting and grant-writing business for non-profits.

"The Internet allows me to work with clients across the country while still fulfilling a life-long dream of running an inn," Barton said.

Both are also looking forward to helping local charities as much as possible.

At the same time, Anderson is using his customer service and hospitality industry experience to create a sense of "casual luxury" for guests.

"We've received compliments on the hot, spiced apple cider we serve at check-in and the freshly baked sugar cookies cut in the shape of Michigan on the bedside table each evening," Anderson said.

While guests appreciate the small touches, both innkeepers are excited to begin redecorating and refurbishing the guest rooms during the slower winter season.

"The inn is in good condition now but some new paint and fixtures as well as upgrading the linens and amenities will make guests' stay even more comfortable and memorable," Anderson said.

All are warmly welcome to the open house but an RSVP is requested by calling (231) 547-2251.

World War II veterans awarded service medals

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

World War II veterans throughout Charlevoix County have begun to receive recognition for their service during the war.

On Oct. 20, Charlevoix County Veterans Affairs Director, Bob Drebenstedt, awarded the Non-commissioned Officers Medal to Louis McKenzie in recognition of his service to the United States during World War II.

This is the first in a series of medals which will be presented monthly to World War II veterans across Charlevoix County.

"There was never really any appreciation for World War II veterans," Drebenstedt said. "So this is a small way to say 'thank you.'"

According to Drebenstedt, there were memorials built for World War I and Vietnam War veterans, but only recently was there a memorial erected for World War II veterans.

"When the World War II veterans came back they were given little fanfare for their efforts to save the world from Germany," he said. "At the time of World War II no one thought that they were heroes or the greatest generation or anything; they just thought they were fighting for freedom."

According to Drebenstedt, he started handing out the medals in hopes that others would join him.

"My deal is to get the service organizations in the three towns — East Jordan, Boyne City and Charlevoix — involved," he said. "It's just outstanding for the VFW post and the American Legion post to hand it out to their own members," he said. "That would be an awesome honor — one of those long-time coming recognitions."

According to Drebenstedt, his office does not have the budget for the medals.

He said, "Any service medal is free, but this is made by non-commissioned officers so this is one that you purchase."

Drebenstedt said, there hasn't been a war since World War II in which soldiers were fighting for American freedom.

He added that it is imperative to recognize the remaining World War II veterans now, because 55 percent of them have died.

"This greatest generation is just that and they are dying off by U.S. statistics at a rate of almost 2,000 a day," he said. "Out of the 4.5 million that fought in World War II, there are only about a million left in the United States."

The Non-commissioned Officer Medal is awarded to World War II veterans all over America and now people have a chance to make sure local veterans are recognized as well.

"When you're young it's kind of like saying, 'I scored the last touch-

Christ Episcopal Church to host annual advent tea

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

Charlevoix's Christ Episcopal Church will host its Second Annual Advent Bazaar and Tea from 1 to 5 p.m., Nov. 19 in the newly remodeled parish hall at the church.

"We are looking for a way to use the building to serve the community," said Lynn Carson, a Christ Episcopal Church parish member helping coordinate the event.

She added that the tea is the small church's way of reaching out in the community. The church currently serves about 60 parishioners. Carson said among those is a strong core of active mission committee members.

"We are a tiny congregation, for us to pull something like this off is amazing," she said of the upcoming event.

The Episcopal church is closely affiliated with the Church of England which Carson said is the reason for the tea theme choice.

The event will include traditional edibles like cucumber sandwiches and marmalade cake complimented with tea service, music, crafts and a silent auction. Bids on auction items will close at 4:30 p.m. with bid winners announced at 5 p.m.

Each attendee will be given a small cookbook featuring recipes for some of the featured English fare.

and the Moms and Tots organization in Ellsworth.

This year, donations will be directed to both the Charlevoix Ministerial Association and BASES.

Medicaid cuts equate to loss in local dental care

Over 30,000 disabled adults and elderly people across northern Michigan have lost their only dental care provider due to state budget cuts to Medicaid dental providers.

According to officials from Dental Clinics North, which operates 10 dental clinics in the region, these budget cuts only affect adults enrolled in Medicaid. They do not affect children's dental services at all or adults who pay for their dental services, or those who are enrolled in the Northern Dental Plan.

"We did not come to this decision lightly," said Thomas Vervser, DDS, Dental Director for Dental Clinics North. "It is heartbreaking — we know Dental Clinics North is virtually the only place people on Medicaid can get dental care. On average, 30 vulnerable adults need emergency dental care in our clinics every single day — vulnerable people who are elderly, blind, wheelchair bound or mentally impaired."

According to Gerald Chase, Health Officer for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, providing dental services at current Medicaid rates, without any financial assistance from the state, will result in net loss approaching $1 million a year.

"The agency does not have that level of local support or other sources of financing to make up that loss. To accept the Medicaid reimbursement at that rate will quickly result in the closing of the dental clinics," he said.

After nearly two years of negotiating with state officials to reinstate dental benefits for adults enrolled in Medicaid, Vervser calls the situation very unfortunate.

"Despite strong support from Senator Jason Allen and Senator Tony Stamas to improve access to dental care for people on Medicaid, bureaucrats in Lansing reinstated adult Medicaid benefits at the same time they cut funding to public health dental clinics — the only place where people on Medicaid can get dental care," Vervser said.

Less than 1 percent of dentists practicing in northern Michigan accept Medicaid. He added that an option available to adults is the Northern Dental Plan.

"Many dentists are participating in the program, including Dental Clinics North dentists," he said.

Benefits of the Northern Dental Plan include a complete exam and reduced dental fees for two years with a $50 enrollment fee. Other options for adults on Medicaid are hospital emergency departments where they can receive pain medications for emergencies — but not treatment, or pay fees out-of-pocket at local dentists' offices or Dental Clinics North locations.

"We have not given up," Vervser said. "We are still talking with folks in Lansing. But until funding is reinstated to public health dental clinics, Dental Clinics North simply cannot continue to care for adult patients with Medicaid reimbursement."

For more information about Dental Clinics North or Northern Dental Plan, call (877) 321-7070.

Ethel Knepp resigns Hayes Township clerk position

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

After over 20 years of service with Hayes Township, township clerk Ethel Knepp is stepping down.

According to Knepp, she began working with the township in 1984 and has since held the positions of clerk, zoning board of appeals member and planning commissioner.

"I wanted to be involved with the workings of the township and I wanted to be available to the people who were voicing concerns, so I ran for clerk," Knepp said.

While her term doesn't expire for another three years, Knepp, who just turned 60, said it is time to lighten her load. She explained she is busy with her accounting business, Ethel Knepp's office, and other business she takes care of for the township.

"I'm still the (Hayes Township) zoning administrator and I have my accounting office," she said. "I'm getting older so I need to start paying attention to my business, besides, zoning is taking a lot more of my time."

Knepp said she will miss the people she helped as clerk.

"I've enjoyed working with the people the most," she said.

She added, "I've just been accessible to the people. And, I know

Although clerk, Ethel Knepp, is stepping down from her position after over 20 years of service to Hayes Township, she will continue as their Zoning Board Administrator.

they appreciate it. That was the rewarding part."

According to Knepp, the state continues to change rules affecting clerk positions and piling on work.

"We do everything but collect taxes and assessing for the township," Knepp said. "We do all the accounting, all the minutes, all the correspondence and all the zoning matters as it relates to rezones and publishing."

"I'm staying on as zoning administrator, so that will keep me busy," she said.

Knepp has recommended Marlene Golovich to replace her. The board will discuss this recommendation at its next meeting to take place at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 14 at the Hayes Township Hall located at 09195 Old U.S. 31 North in Charlevoix. Knepp's last day is Nov. 20.

Dems endorse Saltonstall for county commission

Independent candidate for the first district Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners seat, Connie Saltonstall, received a unanimous endorsement from the Charlevoix Democratic Party at their monthly meeting, Nov. 3, at the Dilworth Hotel in Boyne City.

Saltonstall, a Charlevoix native, announced her candidacy this week with the launching of a petition drive to gain the necessary signatures to place her on the Feb. 28 ballot. She will face the winner of the Nov. 8 primary.

The approximately 40 people in attendance at the Nov. 3 meeting discussed with Saltonstall her reasons for running and their major concerns for the county.

Overwhelmingly the candidate and membership agreed that the creation of jobs is a top priority. "We need jobs beyond just the service sector serving the tourism and resort industries so that our children don't feel they have to leave here," Saltonstall said.

She pointed out that Grand Traverse County has a waiting list of clean industries hoping to relocate there and said, "We have the same potential."

Connie Saltonstall

General Chase, from the audience, noted, "More than 1,200 jobs have been lost in the last few years." Job creation while protecting the environment that makes northern Michigan such a desirable place to live is a major part of Saltonstall's platform.

How to improve the county's infrastructure, especially roads, also received considerable attention during the discussion.

A Charlevoix High School graduate, Saltonstall has a background in both education and business. She taught fourth grade at Charlevoix Elementary School. In 1978, she was elected to and served on the Charlevoix School Board and was appointed to the Michigan Association of School Boards Taxation Committee. She also founded and was Vice President of a small but nationally known research and consulting firm, with clients including Viacom, ABC, ESPN, The Weather Channel and CBS.

Currently she is a mediator with Northern Community Mediation, is a board member of Hospice of Northwest Michigan and is active with the American Red Cross. She is well known for her tireless work on behalf of the Charlevoix Public Library.

Overeaters Anonymous offers holiday support

The local Overeaters Anonymous group will observe the International Day of Experiencing Abstinence Nov. 19.

With the season for overeating upon us and so much emphasis on food as the holidays arrive, people who suffer from compulsive overeating find themselves faced with temptations everywhere.

Assistance in dealing with this is available locally. Overeaters Anonymous is a Fellowship based on the 12 steps of Alcoholics Anonymous. The group meets from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. every Thursday night in the back of the Alamo Club, located at 106 Mason St., in Charlevoix.

Since 1992, on the third Saturday of November, members of Overeaters Anonymous worldwide observe an International Day of Experiencing Abstinence. The fellowship created in observing this day encourages members and newcomers to abstain from compulsive overeating. This year, International Day of Experiencing Abstinence, will be celebrated Nov. 19.

About 6,500 Overeaters Anonymous meeting groups in 52 countries will hold special events on this day to provide the support needed prior to the upcoming holiday season. Overeaters Anonymous is open to women, men and young people with any kind of food problem. Founded in 1960, Overeaters Anonymous held its first meeting in Los Angeles, Calif. Now 45 years later, it is a worldwide fellowship that has found a solution to the problem arising from overeating.

Overeaters Anonymous views compulsive overeating as a physical, emotional, and spiritual disease. Members find recovery on all three levels following a 12 step program patterned after that of Alcoholics Anonymous. There are no dues or fees for membership.

For more information on Overeaters Anonymous call the Alamo Club at (231) 547-9184 or Merilee a (231) 547-2104.

Women's Resource Center launches annual food drive

The Harvest Food and Supply Drive provides the opportunity for community members to make an impact on domestic violence by taking action at the local level to support area victims.

In the past year, 631 battered women sought supportive services through the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan's (WRC) Domestic Abuse Program.

As the only shelter for victims of domestic abuse in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet and Otsego counties, the Safe Home of the Women's Resource Center provides emergency shelter 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, as well as a 24-hour crisis phone line.

In the past year, 67 women and 79 children took refuge at Safe Home to escape the peril of emotional, verbal, and/or physical abuse. Over $21,650 was donated locally by groups and individual supporters.

The Harvest Food and Supply Drive is a call to action for the northern Michigan community to assist the Safe Home in providing food, supplies, and personal items to the many families who utilize these emergency services. Non-perishable food items and paper products are a major need. The Safe Home also requires financial support with $95,000 needing to be raised each year to maintain, operate and staff the shelter. Sheriff Lasater issues citizen warning of new cash scam Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater advises residents of a new scam that has been brought to his attention.

Sheriff Lasater explained that the scam delivery comes from an individual who contacts a citizen representing themselves as an IRS agent or official.

The caller will advise the citizen that the IRS would like to reward them for being such a good and honest taxpayer all of these years and will deposit $2,500, or any other amount, in their account at the bank as a show of appreciation. The IRS official only needs their savings account number for the direct deposit.

"This is obviously a scam, we all know the IRS never gives money away," Sheriff Lasater said.

He further advised that those receiving such a call, report the incident to your nearest police department.

How to get news in the Charlevoix Courier

If you have a news item you think would be perfect for the Charlevoix Courier, feel free to call 547-6558, e-mail news@charlevoixcourier.com or visit the Courier office located at 112 Mason Street in downtown Charlevoix.

News items include events sponsored by non-profit organizations. Please inform us of your event at least two weeks in advance.

Our coverage area is the city of Charlevoix and its immediately surrounding areas, including Beaver Island.

Because of space limitations in the newspaper, we generally try to avoid publishing "check-handing" pictures or "ribbon-cutting" pictures. However, we will work with your organization to get a picture that reflects the event and is visually interesting to our readers.

Due to time constraints on the staff, we cannot attend every event of which we are notified. If you have a picture of your event, we will gladly consider it for publication. But, please, contact us before your event.

It should be noted, each story and picture is dealt with on its individual merits. Any policies outlined above may be suspended by the editor or general manager of the Charlevoix Courier if necessary.

SCRAPBOOK

Reminiscing with Charlevoix residents from 1940

Marilyn Boss
'Days gone by'

The series I am writing is based on a directory published in the year 1940. Residents who were born later, and those not at home in that year, were not listed. I have had several inquiries about some who were not listed, and that is the reason.

Bonnie and Henrietta Nickerson lived at 805 State Street. He was the agent for the Pere Marquette R. R. and Railway Express Agency. Ernestine, their daughter was a student and lived there, as did son, Keith, also a student.

Peter Nielsen was a fisherman and lived with his wife, Anna, at 405 E. Dixon.

Marborough Nixon lived at 204 E. Hurlbut.

Frank Noble and his wife, Christina lived at 1206 Bridge St. Their daughter, Marie, lived with them. Frank was an ice dealer. Dale remembers stopping right on Bridge Street by Frank's house to get ice. He would open the cooler door, which was just 3 feet off the curbing, and pay Frank. It was easy to put the ice in the trunk of the car. During the World War II, Frank stuffed the tires of his Dodge delivery truck with old rags. The tires were too worn to hold air, and you could not buy new ones as they were not available.

Albert Noble lived at 108 Upright. Frank and Myrtle Noonan lived at 110 Palmer. He was in the U.S. Coast Guard. Their children were Lawana, Hazel, Ray and Muriel.

John Nordrum and his wife, Marie, lived at 404 Park Ave. He was a chiropractor and a graduate of Palmer School of Chiropractic. He had his office at 213 1/2 Bridge Street. His children were John, N. Jr. and Sonja L.

Oscar P. North and wife Esther, lived at 201 Lewis. Their children were J. Howard, Donald O. and Eleanor M. He was Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools. Eleanor was my friend in those years. Dale remembers that Oscar walked around school with his hands in his back pockets, with his thumbs out.

Vernard M. and Rosabelle Norton lived at Mercer and Petoskey avenues.

He worked for the Charlevoix County Road Commission. Richard Norton also lived there.

William Novak was a teacher and lived at 208 Lewis St. Margaret Novak was a widow (Charles), and lived at 210 Lewis. Max Novak and wife, Frances were not living in Charlevoix at that time, and they were not listed. William and Max were Margaret's sons.

Anthony Novotny and wife Frieda lived at 405 W. Garfield. He was a mechanic. Their children were Edward, William and James. Frieda also taught piano, and that is where I first learned to play. Albert Novotny and wife Wilma, lived at 306 W. Hurlbut. He was a landscape gardener. Wilma was a stenographer at city hall.

Albert Novotny and wife, Mary, lived at 525 Petoskey Ave. Charles and Lillian Novotny lived at 402 W. Lincoln. He was a mechanic at Northern Auto Co. Frank Novotny and wife, Mary, lived on Rural Route #2. He owned Frank Novotny and Sons Plumbing Co. Frank J. Novotny and wife, Florence lived at 528 Petoskey Ave. James lived on Rural Route #2. Jeff Novotny and wife Edith lived at 527 Petoskey Ave.

Acil Nowland lived at 205 W. Hurlbut, and also in Detroit. Ernest P. Nowland lived at 108 E. Lincoln. His children were Amy, Elizabeth and Jane. A son, Ernest B., was a student, and also lived there. Frank and Lillian Nowland lived on East Carpenter Avenue. He was a sexton at Brookside Cemetery. His children were Pearl and Frank Jr. Irving Nowland and wife, Minnie, lived at 201 Ferry Ave. He was a laborer. Their children were Minnie Belle, Edward, Kenneth, Fraley, Albert, Clayton, Lulubelle and Mary Lou. Raymond Nowland and wife, Lottie May lived at 416 Prospect. He owned Charlevoix Plumbing Co. with Frank Coatta. Their son, Raymond Jr., also lived there.

Harvey O'Brien and wife Anna May lived at 908 May St. He was a bridge operator. Donald O'Brien was their son. John D. O'Brien lived at 903 Bridge St. Ray and Grace O'Brien lived at 208 Garfield.

Harley Ochs and wife Mildred lived at 202 Clinton. They owned Central Drug Store. Their son, George Franklin lived there also, as did son, William, a student at the time. I worked with Mr. Ochs and Frank at their drugstore as a clerk when I graduated from high school. They had a wonderful soda fountain, and I made sodas and sundaes, and waited on customers throughout the store. It was a great place to work, and I made $25 a week, amounting to $18.75 after taxes. Frank was a pharmacist and in later years his son, John, became a pharmacist.

Edward and Marie Olach lived at 1024 May St. He was a caretaker. Their children were Dorothy, Hubert and Vincent. Sons, Clement and Emil were clerks. Edith, their daughter, was a student and they also lived there.

Annis Oldham was a widow (John) and she lived at 402 Mason St. Annis was a very good piano player, and she taught Dale's Aunt Margaret (Boss) Smith to play. Her son, Lacy, owned a gas station at 549 Petoskey Ave. I remember the parrot he had, who was very talkative. Lacy lived at 402 Mason St. Harry Oldham was a student and lived at 208 W. Garfield. Elaine and Mary O'Leary were school teachers in Detroit, and came to Charlevoix for the summers, living at 106 Alice St.

So ends another time of reminiscing about those living in Charlevoix in 1940. I trust those of you who knew them will enjoy remembering them as I do.

Corps releases permit for marina project

Construction may be held to fall 2006

By JULIE WITTHOEF
Editor

The long awaited permit from the United States Army Corps of Engineers for the upcoming overhaul of the Charlevoix Municipal Marina has been issued — but it could be too little too late.

A draft of the permit, which was expected to be issued in the summer of 2004, was sent to Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner's office in late October.

Representatives of the project engineering group, United Design Associates of Cheboygan, reviewed it and sent it along to Wiesner to be signed and returned to the Corps. Wiesner signed and returned the document Nov. 2.

Final signature from the Corps' district engineer John Konik is required before the process will be final.

Construction for the project was expected to start this fall so the new docks would be ready for the 2006 boating season.

However, the paky permit from the Corps may mean construction will be held off to the fall of 2006.

Wiesner said, "We (City staff and project engineers from United design Associates) are trying to figure out when it's practical to start. The alternative to starting in the spring (2006) is starting next fall (2006.)"

He explained that this fall is no longer viable as a month will likely pass before the Corps permit is finalized, then the bid process will be initiated.

"It will take four to six weeks to advertise the project and receive bids. That puts you into the winter. Then you have the issue of ice on the lakes and getting barges here to work," Wiesner said. "I don't think it's practical to expect a construction start before ice is out in the spring."

A spring start calls into question whether the city marina will be available for use in the 2006 boating season. And Wiesner said there is no way the entire project will be ready to go by then.

"I can't see any way the entire project will be ready by June of 2006. The question that remains is whether a portion will be ready by June of 2006," he said.

Bids that will likely be released soon are for three contracts. One to remove docks and rebuild the sea wall. The second to build and install the boat slips. And the third to position shore side utilities and pour the walkway.

The marina planning process, which was finalized in September of 2002, proposed replacement of the sea wall, removal of the existing 17 docks which at the furthest point extend 75 feet into Round Lake and replacement of those docks with a 67-slip floating dock system that extends 220 feet into Round Lake at the furthest point.

In December of 2003, 75 percent of this $4.8 million project was secured from the Michigan Waterways Commission and it was announced that Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority would pay for the rest.

John Winn, a Charlevoix resident and chairman of the project's major funding agency, the Michigan Waterways Commission explained that in spite of the delays, the 75 percent funding the commission dedicated to the project is not in jeopardy.

Wiesner supported this claim and said, "From recent discussions with Waterways staff, it proceeding well at 75 percent."

The other permit required prior to construction was issued by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ) on Feb. 24, 2005 and expires on Dec. 31, 2006.

The design keeps boaters from impeding on Ward Brothers operations on the marina's south end and on the Coast Guard area on the north end.

Plans for a viewing pier are set at 16 feet wide and 12 feet long. The other three piers, which extend 195 feet, 220 feet and 175 feet are 8 feet wide.

Councilman moves toward firing manager

City attorney issues memo outlining steps for dismissal

By JULIE WITTHOEF
Editor

Second ward Charlevoix City Councilman Gabe Campbell has taken the first steps in the process to fire city manager Mike Wiesner.

"It's time to make some changes. It's not something I'm happy about, but it's something I feel has to be done," Campbell said. "If the people in the second ward disagree with what I do, they can recall me."

remove him.

On Nov. 11, city attorney Jim Young issued a memo at Campbell's

In previous interviews, Campbell, Beer, as well as third ward council member Shirley Gibson and first ward councilman Bob Timms have said they would vote to request to council regarding provisions outlined in the city charter for discharging the city manager.

Reasons for firing Wiesner that Campbell points to in that memo include: "failure to properly supervise the city treasurer regarding the issuance of a check to CCMS in the amount of $222,978; failure to properly supervise the city wastewater treatment plant regarding the falsifying of records by wastewater treatment plant personnel; failure to provide in a timely manner the city council with information that will

Josh Barnes files recount request with canvas board the recent county primary.

Barnes filed a petition requesting a recount with Jane Brannon, clerk of the canvas board, on Friday, Nov. 11. His request was made in the form of a letter.

"I don't expect it to be overturned but if there were mistakes made, four votes is very, very few," Barnes said.

At the Nov. 8 primary, Barnes faced John Haggard in a race to win the Republican candidacy for the first district Charlevoix County Commissioner's seat. According to results submitted by the City of Charlevoix and Hayes, Bay and Charlevoix townships, Haggard won the election by four votes.

"I just want to make sure it's right," Barnes said. "The issue is simply over the fact that four votes separated us."

He said he isn't questioning possible fraud on the part of election workers but said there is room for human error in counting of absentee ballots.

"Maybe there was a mistake," he said.

Haggard said he isn't offended at Barnes' request for recount and added that the outcome could go either way.

"It's four votes, two votes could turn it into a tie. I feel the machines are accurate and are supposed to be able to read ballots to the tee. I hope it will stand up," he said.

There are four members on canvas board who will be in charge of recounting all the ballots cast in the first district. The process will be completed before the deadline elapses in early December. At this time representatives of the Charlevoix County Clerk's Office are unsure as to whether the ballots will be read electronically or manually.

Wiesner, who has been city manager for 21 years, disagrees that past performance merits his dismissal. "I don't know anyone in the business that delivers a better product than I do," he said.

Wiesner pointed to minimal tax increases coupled with expanded services as well as the marina planning process and the city hall renovation as examples of his ability to perform both efficiently and productively.

Wiesner said at this time he doesn't know whether he would call for a hearing.

"I don't know. Right now, I have nothing to react to," he said.

This hearing would take place about two weeks after his request has been made. In conjunction with the hearing, Wiesner may respond to council's reasons for removal in writing up until five days before the hearing.

"If council takes action, I'll come."

Campbell said he plans to put this motion on the table at council's Nov. 21 meeting. A majority of the six voting council members must support it for the motion to pass.

If it passes, the resolution may result in Wiesner's suspension for not more than 45 days. This immediate suspension is not mandatory.

Within 10 days of the resolution passing, Wiesner can file a request for a public hearing with city clerk Carol Ochs.

Wiesner said the financial hit of the severance package is outweighed by the potential for mistakes if Wiesner is kept on board.

"I want to see it (Wiesner fired) now because I keep waiting every month for another shoe to fall," he said.

Wiesner said he plans to work another eight to 10 years for the City of Charlevoix.

The Courier staff's new chief of police wish list

EDITORIAL

The incoming chief of police for the City of Charlevoix has big boots to fill.

Former chief, Dennis Halverson, 50, spent decades establishing a reputation of being approachable, consistent and fair.

As the longest serving Charlevoix Chief of Police, Halverson accepted the "Safe Schools Coordinator" position with the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District which he started earlier this month.

His last day was Oct. 28 and since then Charlevoix City Council has discussed procedures for filling the opening. By the Nov. 11 cutoff, the city manager's office had received 21 applications.

Council now has the opportunity and responsibility to choose the right fit for the community.

In the past we have seen council members stress promoting from within.

However, in this instance, simply choosing a candidate because he is a local might not be the cure-all they perceive it to be. Qualification, not location, of said applicant should be the gold standard implemented in this situation.

Current deputy police chief Scott Hankins said he chose not to apply for the position.

At this time it is unknown to us whether other members of the city force have applied.

But, promoting someone who currently falls under Hankins' management could cause some ego bruising and a nasty internal power struggle — quite possibly the last thing any workplace needs. We suggest sticking to one bowl of turmoil stew at a time.

With the uprising led by four members of city council speeding down the rocky road to firing city manager Mike Wiesner, we think they have all the administrative hoo ha they can handle.

Before council opens a can of worms this big, they'd best figure out just how hungry they are.

At the top of our wish list for a new police chief is an easy transition. Someone who can come in and take the helm without capsizeing the boat or forcing the current crew to walk the plank.

Someone who is personable and approachable. Who citizens can come to with everything from who stole the pie from aunt Mable's window sill and complaints about dogs in East Park, to parking ticket squabbles and more serious crimes.

We need someone articulate, empathetic and in tune with the pace of life in Charlevoix.

In a nutshell, someone who cares about Charlevoix and its residents the way Halverson did. In a previous interview he suggested that his predecessor learn as he did to "enforce the law with the community, not on the community."

Somewhere between the Simpson's Chief Wiggum and Dirty Harry Callahan lies the perfect policeman for "Charlevoix the Beautiful."

Good luck in your search council.

Writer shares her Thanksgiving holiday homecoming memory

Gayle Gennett

'A look at life'

From the time I was able to think and do things for myself I felt the presence of a guardian angel watching over me. Never would I realize how true this was until my life began to unfold.

As an infant I was given up for adoption and brought to my new home on Thanksgiving Day. Family and friends gathered as we celebrated a holiday as well as the welcoming of a new infant coming home to this young Detroit family. I was baptized a few days later but the blessing I received was overshadowed by the many blessings I received throughout my entire life.

As a rambunctious child and teen that tested the waters continually, I was fortunate enough to have parents who loved me unconditionally and provided me with the structure, creative freedom, guidance and consistency that shaped me into the adult I am today.

My mom became my best friend and confidant — my father, the man

I respected and admired. It was only when my mom passed away and my father became ill that I would have a new chapter in my life unfold. My father made one request and that was to find my biological mother. He wanted to personally thank her for giving up a daughter and providing her and his wife with the baby they so desired. With prompting from family and friends, I was given the support I needed to take this journey.

With much trepidation I moved forward. The adoption had been a closed one and what information I could garner from the courts were but a few facts with names and dates deleted. Once a birth certificate was found, my breath was taken from me as I realized for the first time I actually had a different name. It sounded foreign on my lips. I began to say my name again and again until it would become familiar.

My next step was to write and send letters to geographic areas I felt there may be someone, who knew my birth mother. On the letter I left information including my pre-adoptive name, address, phone number and e-mail. As an after thought I quickly added information that I had gleaned from a social worker's notes.

Days passed and I heard nothing but by day seven I had received an e-mail. The subject heading said it all. "At long last I have found my daughter."

Not long after the e-mail arrived, arrangements were made for reuniting a mother who wondered what happened to her baby and a daughter who needed to thank her. The meeting took place during the midnight hour in the lobby of the Pellston airport. No fanfare, no bright lights and cameras — just two people who took in the amazement and joy of seeing reflections. I saw what I might look like in my future years, and for my mother, a vision of a younger version of herself.

My father was finally able to thank the woman who provided the baby that brought joy to their family and taught them patience is truly a virtue.

Thanksgiving Day is still a big celebration in our home with a large gathering of family and friends which now includes my birth mom. This holiday is a little more special now because when I look across the table and see my "entire family" my heart is quietly leaping with joy and ever grateful. This day I truly celebrate my life and all that I am thankful for.

Use crosswalks

Editor:

Today as we were riding south in our car on Bridge Street near the corner of Antrim Street, a small group of adults with two or three children were standing on the east side of the street and looking both ways.

As they saw us approaching they proceeded across the street laughing and chatting.

When my husband brought the car to a stop I rolled down my window to ask them if they thought of using the cross walk, which was only 10 feet away.

One of them yelled, "We don't need it." What an example to set for those children.

If we had been driving a semi-truck we couldn't have stopped in time. I hope those people read this letter and understand what tragedy could have occurred.

I lived down state I resided in a community which was second only to Marshall, Michigan for the number of historical structures within the community. I had served as the president of the county historical society. Twice, I was chairperson for the annual historic home tour. My house was a Queen Anne, circa 1898, which was on the State of Michigan Register of Historic Sites (I actually had an eight foot historical marker in my front yard). I participated, to a limited degree, in the process of having the historical structures within my city cataloged for historic district purposes.

Now the article of Oct. 26, would suggest that there could possibly be certain tax credits available within a historic district. Not totally true. Less anyone think that I am making this up, I invite you to go the State of Michigan Web site (www.michigan.gov/shpo). There, you can download and print out an 83 page booklet from the State Historic Preservation Office, entitled "Local Historic Districts in Michigan." Unless the law has been changed recently, the publication indicates that a 25 percent tax credit is available for qualified rehabilitation expenditures. However, this is only available in communities with a population of over 5,000. If you are under 5,000 in population the property must be listed on the National or State Register or be a contributing resource in a National Register historic district. Charlevoix has been seemingly fixed at a population base of 3,000 at least since the 1990 Federal Census.

This booklet also has a FAQ section which contains some interesting examples. Let's say you are in a historic district and want to change the size of the pillars on your front porch. Even if your house, within the district, is defined as a "noncontributing" structure (meaning non-historical), you would still have to apply for a Certificate of Appropriateness from the Commission. What if you ignore the commission and go ahead and have the work performed anyway? Well, you can be charged a maximum fine of $5,000 for "inappropriate work in the district." The commission can go to court and have the "inappropriate work" corrected. What if you apply but the commission still turns down your request? Well, then you can file a petition with the State Historic Preservation Office and you can have a hearing before this board, and in turn, should they deny your request you can file a complaint in our local circuit court. This is what we need, more litigation. When you are in a historic district you cannot "opt out." Under some circumstances they can tell you what color to paint your house.

I know the article indicates that the districts are being considered selectively, but God save us from bureaucrats who want to better our lives. I'm not implying that historic districts are a bad thing, but clearly they must be thought through carefully. In cities which have experienced blight (I give you the city of Baltimore, Md., for example), they have helped turn entire areas around. I doubt, however, that the Chicago or Belvedere clubs really need such protection as is being suggested in the article.

What started all this was the demolition of Earl Young's old real estate office which housed the Appletree. I'm not here to make a value judgment on whether that building was historical or worth saving. What I'm struck by, however, is the fact that the statute that allows municipalities to enact local historic district ordinances was enacted in 1970. Where were the concerned citizens who have seen numerous historic structures razed, but did nothing? Seems to me we are more than a day late and a dollar short as to getting on this bandwagon.

I encourage those who are interested to take a look at the booklet I've mentioned above. It is best to inform yourself as to the possible ramifications of a local historic district. Once done, it is difficult to reverse the process. When you have informed yourself, make your views known to your city representative.

'Thanks' NWA parents

Editor:

The leadership team at Northwest Academy would like to take this opportunity to say a special, "Thank you," to several parents that have gone the extra mile to help make the first eight weeks of school a success.

Gary Young volunteered his time to coach the soccer team and Martha Young supported him and drove to games. Tim Bruce assisted Gary and Krista Bruce filling in for both coaches when there was a need for some help, due to everyone's busy schedules.

It would be impossible to offer the quality extracurricular programs if we did not have the support of interested parents that help us make it happen. Also, a big, "Thank you," to Leslie Herriman and Lou Ann Griffin who both helped out with transportation. Leslie also took care of much of the clerical work for the soccer program.

Ghost Ship's successful final voyage

Editor:

The Community Food Pantry would like to recognize and show our appreciation for the efforts of the crew of the Acacia in giving a Halloween party for the children of Charlevoix on Friday and Saturday nights, Oct. 28 and 29.

The price of admission was three non-perishable food items. The response was tremendous. We called in extra people to sort food, and our shelves are full and look great.

What a Halloween party — probably one these children will never forget.

The good planning and people's generosity will touch many lives in the Charlevoix School District.

Please know we are very grateful for the wonderful help for the Community Food Pantry. The demand on our resources has been great this year. In September, for example, we helped 72 households, consisting of 159 adults and 91 children for a total of 250 individuals helped.

The "Ghost Ship" has become a tradition in Charlevoix. We are going to miss you next year.

'Thanks' from Alabama

The Coden Survival Group would like to thank the citizens, businesses and schools of Charlevoix for the supplies you sent to us after Hurricane Katrina. These things were needed and greatly appreciated. We would like to especially thank Ken and June Kinkle for doing this and making sure that the supplies were delivered to us.

Thanks to all who had anything to do with helping us. The supplies were given to the most needy families. If you ever need help please don't hesitate to let us know. We will do everything in our power to help.

Writer seeks writer

I am a past resident of Charlevoix having lived at 200 Dixon Ave. from 1929 to 1943. In the early spring of 1943 there was a war going on so I decided to take a permanent sabbatical from Charlevoix High School, much to Mr. Bingham, North, and Novak's delight, and joined which I think was then referred to as the U.S. Maritime Service.

One could do that at the age of 16 with parents' consent. To join the Merchant Marine one had to be 18, or 17 with parents' consent. As I remember the reason was simply this. Fresh water vs. salt water. The Merchant Marine folks sailed the ocean blue. And one could have a really bad hair day out there with all those nasty German and Japanese U-boats.

However, the Great Lakes provided safe sailing for mama's little boy, not withstanding little old Nor' Eaters like which did in the Fitzgerald and Bradley just to name a couple. I served on the 636-foot iron ore carrier John Roen. In two seasons I worked my way up from ordinary seaman, to deckwatch, to watchman and then to wheelsman. And in the fall of 1945 while passing through the Soo Locks I received an invitation from Mr. Truman. We did get to wear Maritime service uniforms and I must of thought back then I was hot stuff. 17 years old steering a 600-foot ship down the St. Mary's.

It was 1968 when I retired from the Army's boats and joined the Merchant Marine.

The letter written by Anne Olmstead, on page 5 of the Aug. 3 edition of the Courier, was right on. The Merchant Marine consists of civilians, sailing U.S. flag vessels upon oceans. I doubt the so-called Maritime Service even exists today. But then I am not sure if those folks on the Great Lakes are considered as Merchant Marines.

I would very much like to contact Anne. If anyone can help I would appreciate their assistance. My home address is Capt. U.S.M.M. Gene Bridge, 3444 Bob White Ln., Belton, TX 76513 and my e-mail address is apachepoint@direway.com.

Skatepark thanks city

Editor:

On behalf of the fund-raising group Charlevoix Community Skatepark, Inc. we would like to express our sincere appreciation to the City of Charlevoix for embracing this project for the youth of Charlevoix. Your financial "donation" towards the materials for the build-out of the Skatepark is truly appreciated and embraced. To date the fund-raising group has raised over $90,000 in cash donations, in-kind service donations, fund-raising and through grants.

It has been said if a town does not have a skating facility the town actually becomes one, this is very true here in Charlevoix. A need was realized and the dream of our very own skate park is close to reality.

The plan is to build a state-of-the-art park for our area boarders, bikers, and in-line skaters to get them off the streets. We set an amazing pace and everyone has championed the efforts of the fund-raising group.

We will acknowledge all the donors at a later date but every single donation is appreciated. A special "thank you" to Charlevoix City Council for supporting our endeavor as we navigated our way through city channels, "thank you" to city manager, Mike Wiesner and his staff for their guidance and patience and

"thank you" to the kids who have faithfully hung in there even when things got a bit rough, it will happen and it will be awesome.

Support Christmas project

Editor:

Even though most of us have just finished handing out candy to treat-or-treaters, even though the Michigan deer hunting season might be a priority right now, even though we probably haven't even thought yet of our Thanksgiving menu, some of us have been thinking of Christmas preparations.

The Charlevoix Community Christmas Project starts plans for Christmas in October, and this may prove to be a year in which we have many more households needing help. High costs of rent, heating fuel, and gas stretch budgets for many people, and so we will need your help on our project this year as we face higher numbers of recipients.

Might I suggest that if you are having a Christmas party with exchange of gifts, be it family or business or club or church group, you consider instead a donation of money or mittens or hats or any article of children's warm clothing, and send that to the Community Christmas Project.

If you can send a check, please make it out to the Community Christmas Project and mail it to treasurer Carolyn Batdorff, 04903 Marion Center Rd., Charlevoix, MI 49720.

If you wish to donate mittens, hats or other clothing, please call project chairperson Bev Boss at (231) 547-2078 to arrange for pickup or to inquire as to what other ways you might help.

Last year we helped over 180 families and over 250 children. And let's face it, Christmas is for everyone, but, most of all, the children.

You will find yourself richly blessed by sharing with others at this very special time of year.

Thank you for your generosity.

Obituaries

Andrew Brumm: June 2, 1967 - Nov. 6, 2005

Andrew Palmer Brumm, 38, of Charlevoix died Sunday, Nov. 6 at his home.

He was born June 2, 1967, in Petoskey. He is the son of Norman H. and Judith Gray (Wedemeier) Brumm. In 1985, Andrew graduated from Principia High School in St. Louis, Mo. He received a Bachelor of science degree in physics from the University of Michigan.

In addition to working toward his Ph.D., he was involved in projects at CERN in Switzerland. He was a member of the American Rose Society.

Andrew is survived by his father, Norman H. Brumm, and mother Judith Erica Wedemeier of Charlevoix; brother Joel N. (Sarah A.) Brumm of Rapid City, S.D.; nephews, Reed, Forrest, Cedar, Hawthorn; former wife, Raina Dass.

His courage, humor, and buoyant spirit will always live in the hearts of those who knew him.

A graveside memorial service took place Saturday, Nov. 12 at the Norwood Cemetery. In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to the Michigan Chapter of Nature Conservancy, 101 E. Grand River, Lansing, MI 48906.

Bessie Coleman: March 14, 1911 - Nov. 8, 2005

Bessie Fern (Baumbach) Coleman, 94, of Traverse City, and formerly of Kewadin and Charlevoix, died Tuesday, Nov. 8 at Grand Traverse Pavilions.

She was born on March 14, 1911 in Banks Township, Antrim County, the daughter of Rollie and Mary (Waldruff) Baumbach.

Over a 38-year career that began in the mid 1920's she taught in one-room country schoolhouses in Antrim and Charlevoix counties, spending the last 28 years teaching second grade in Charlevoix Public Schools. She often taught the children of parents who had been her second graders. During retirement she helped the children of migrant families with reading, writing and public speaking. "Material things vanish," she once said, "but the time you spend with children is precious. Every single kid needs training. Like one little girl once said to me, 'It's been pull and tuck all the way.' But I wouldn't of changed any of that. I would have kept on plodding back and forth to that school no matter what."

She once estimated that, by the time of her retirement in 1972, she had taught more than 800 children their ABC's. Highly respected, and fondly remembered, she was treasured by members of her own family.

A member of the retired teacher's Michigan Education Association, she enjoyed baking, mending and gardening. A practicing Christian, she was known throughout her life for good works. As her son, Ronald, remarked this week, "She did as much as she could for as many as she could for as long as she could."

She is survived by a son Ron (Carol) Coleman of Traverse City;

seven grandchildren; six great-grandchildren; two sisters, Grace Warner of Charlevoix and Ruth Bradley of Midland; and several nieces and nephews.

She preceded in death by four brothers, Earl, Rollie, Harley and Vern Baumbach; and two sisters, Beatrice Peebles and Mary Smith.

Her husband, Charles, died in 1994. They met and married in 1936.

Funeral services took place Saturday, Nov. 12 at the Kewadin United Methodist Church. Pastor Frank Wilson officiated.

Interment will take place in Maple Grove Cemetery in Elk Rapids. Memorial contributions may be made to Munson Hospice.

Arrangements are being handled by the Central Lake Chapel of Mortensen Funeral Homes.

Rich was born Dec. 26, 1941, in Columbus, Ohio, the son of Paul Ahern and Ada (Richardson) Kelly. Rich married the former Anne T. Webster in Westlake, Ohio, in 1967.

He is survived by his wife, Anne T., son, R. Scott (Anu) Kelly of Washington, D.C.; daughters, Amy Ellen (Chris) Warner of Fenton, Jennifer Anne (Michael) Guglielmi of San Carlos, Calif., Laura Elizabeth (Brian) Kelly of Charlevoix, Patricia Jill Kelly of Charlevoix; grandchildren, Henry, Holden and Sam Warner, Sophia Guglielmi, Jane and William Kelly; and mother, Ada Kelly of Charlevoix.

Rich received a Bachelor's degree from Ohio Dominican College in Columbus, Ohio, a Master's degree in Secondary Education Administration from Toledo University, and an Education Specialist degree from Central Michigan University.

He began his career as a secondary teacher and junior varsity basketball coach at Traverse City St. Francis High School from 1967-69. He pursued his Master's degree in administration at the University of Toledo from 1969-1970 and began his tenure as principal and basketball coach at Boyne Falls Public Schools where he subsequently assumed the position of superintendent. Rich and Anne moved to Charlevoix in 1971. In 1974, Rich was asked to become business manager of the former Twin Valley Public Schools (Boyne City-East Jordan). In 1976, he served a brief tenure as assistant superintendent of that system until the de-merger occurred in 1977. At that time he remained with Boyne City Schools as their superintendent until 1988. Following a one-year superintendency in Bellevue, he was asked to join the Charlevoix Public Schools as business manager. He served in this capacity until 1995 when he joined the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District as business manager. He retired from Char-Em in 2002 and earned his securities license. He was employed as a part-time investment consultant for Public Financial Management until the present time. In this capacity he visited school districts in a territory extending from Clare to Ironwood in the Upper Peninsula.

Professional affiliations include: Council Representative and Secretary for Region 2 of Michigan Association of School Administrators (MASA), Michigan School Business Officials for more than 25 years and Northern Michigan School Business Officials for over 10 years.

For many years, he served on the St. Mary's Church Education Foundation, was a former member and secretary of the Charlevoix Lion's Club, treasurer of the Charlevoix Public Schools Enrichment Foundation and sat on the Big Rock Point Advisory Board.

Friends met the family at Saint Mary's Church on Monday, Nov. 14 at which time a Biblical memorial service also took place. The funeral service took place at noon, Tuesday, Nov. 15, at Saint Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Dennis Stilwell officiated, assisted by Fr. James Gardiner and Fr. Jerry Hunko.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society, Michigan Chapter, 1421 E. 12 Mile Road, Building A, Madison Heights, MI 48071, or to the Third Floor Oncology Department at Northern Michigan Hospital, Northern Michigan Hospital, 416 Connable Ave., Level 3, Attn: Laura Sepic, Petoskey, MI 49770, where the family hopes to provide bedside table lamps, DVD players and CD/Cassette players for cancer patients' rooms.

Survey shows overall teen drug use down

Results of a recent survey gauging area teens' alcohol and drug use shows some decline in areas while others increased. Students surveyed are in eighth, tenth and twelfth grades.

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Results of a recent survey gauging area teens' alcohol and drug use shows some decline.

Eighth, tenth and twelfth grade students who completed the Michigan Alcohol and Other Drugs School Survey for 2004-2005 answered questions about their consumption of drugs including: crack cocaine; LSD; PCP; heroin; alcohol; cigarettes; steroids; methamphetamine; ecstasy and rohypnol. They rated their consumption in use categories like never, in the past month and daily use.

According to Scott Kelly, executive director of BASES, one of the ways the survey kept kids honest is by inserting a false drug name into the study and if the kids infer that they've taken it, their survey is removed.

Results of the study show 90.2 percent of the total registered eighth graders participated, 79 percent of the registered tenth graders participated and 62.9 percent of the registered twelfth graders participated.

According to a 1996 study by the Johnston Institute, Minneapolis, Minn., the difference in underage use of drugs (sixth through twelfth grades) and alcohol between kids whose parents disapprove of illegal activity and those who do not is staggering.

"We have less than five percent of parents who are not giving their kids a clear 'no use' message. If you don't give a clear 'no use' message the problems can be two to three times higher," Kelly said.

When parents allow some use of drugs and/or alcohol, there is a 19 percent rate of underage drinking and driving compared with 6 percent by parents who say "no." And, 34 percent of kids whose parents allow some use will use illicit drugs as opposed to 14 percent of parents who say "no."

Cigarette and marijuana use increases among area teens

Scott Kelly

According to Kelly, while everybody talks about peer pressure as a reason for illegal drug use, he likes to look closer at peer selection skills. "Parents think only had kids will use drugs, but that's not the case. If a child is not prepared for (pressure), then they may internalize and think everybody is doing it," he said.

When asked, "How much pressure do you feel from your friends and schoolmates to use drugs," the eighth, tenth and twelfth graders answers were similar. About 80 percent of eighth, 78.5 percent of tenth and 81.4 percent of twelfth graders who responded said they felt no peer pressure to use cigarettes compared to 4, 1.4 and 1.5 percent of them who said they feel a lot of pressure to smoke.

On average the feelings of peer pressure increased for each increase in grade level.

All in all, the study shows the participants in Charlevoix Public Schools are below the national average in number and frequency of drug and alcohol use except in cigarette use by tenth graders which is down by 10.3 percent from 1991, but still higher by nearly three percent than the national average. And, marijuana use by local twelfth graders is up 5.6 percent since 1991 and higher by nearly one percent than the national average.

"It's very interesting when you talk to parents, they perceive teen drug use as very, very high, but we have some positive numbers," Kelly said.

But, he cautioned, despite the trend showing drug and alcohol use down overall, "If one kid gets into an accident and hurts himself, it really doesn't matter that the (statistics) are low, the impact on that child and the family is going to be tremendous."

He added, "Teen drug use is not just a school problem, it's a community problem."

Kelly said there is no single reason for the decline in the number of kids using drugs and alcohol, but tougher school policies, stricter law enforcement, and parent education may have had an important impact.

"I think teens are getting the message, 'Don't do drugs, don't drink and drive, or the consequences and laws will be enforced,'" Kelly said.

Boyne Rehabilitation Center to tackle $500,000 expansion

After months of planning and preparation, the construction of a major expansion and renovation at Boyne Rehabilitation Center in Boyne City is underway.

The center, a wholly owned subsidiary of Charlevoix Area Hospital, provides a full spectrum of physical, occupational and speech and language therapies.

According to the center's records, patient treatments have grown to over 24,000 annually since opening in 1994 in a small strip mall in Boyne City.

The existing building was purchased in 1996, but has since outgrown the rising patient demand for rehabilitation services. The staff includes 10 licensed and certified professionals.

The expansion will double the size of the existing facility and will add important modalities not before offered on site, including a warm water therapeutic pool and expanded gym areas. The number of treatment rooms will be doubled, allowing 10 rooms for individualized care in a private setting. Industrial medicine patients will see improved and expanded space for evaluations and treatment and the pediatric treatment area will be greatly improved with additional space as well.

In order to finance the more than $500,000 cost to expand this facility, the hospital foundation has undertaken a fund-raising campaign to raise $250,000 from the local community and area businesses.

To date, the local committee working on the project reports that some $108,000 remains to be raised.

Individuals or businesses interested in contributing to this project are encouraged to call the foundation at (231) 547-8502 during normal business hours.

The project is expected to be complete in February of 2006.

Harbor Health and Fitness hosts a weekend certification course

Participants traveled from all over the state of Michigan to seek their Personal Trainer Certification the weekend of Nov. 5 at Harbor Health and Fitness Center of Charlevoix.

Those who attended arrived just in time to enjoy the fitness center's new facility, off Clinton Street. This was the site of the Aerobics and Fitness Association of America Certification course. The aerobics association originates in California and specialist Jeff Bush traveled from Chicago to lead the training and testing.

Local participants were college student Tiffany Potter, triathlon runner Michelle Rick-Biddick, massage therapist Myra Bagley and Harbor Health and Fitness Center Group Fitness Instructor Melinda Morgan.

All of the above named were notified that they have passed the practical portion of the exam. The results of the written exam will not be known for six to eight weeks.

Candy Smith, manager of Harbor Health and Fitness Center, is a certified personal trainer, who also took the course for continuing education.

"The intense three-day course material ranged from fitness assessment testing procedures, to nutrition fundamentals and weight management, to anatomy and kinesiology," Smith explained.

Trimper family loses child to rare genetic disorder

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Staff Writer

The Trimper family has lost one of its runners in their amazing race to, "Kick MLD in the butt."

Maddie Trimper, 7, died Monday, Nov. 7 in the arms of her parents at a hospital in New York City, N.Y.

Her death was related to many health factors including kidney failure, Epstein Barr Virus, pancreatitis and complications from gall bladder surgery.

But at the heart of it all is an incurable disease called Metachromatic Leukodystrophy (MLD).

"It was just one thing after another. That little girl didn't get a break," her grandmother, Marcia Trimper of Charlevoix, said. "She's the toughest little kid I've ever seen — an incredible child."

MLD is a rare genetic disorder that is the result of an enzyme deficiency which allows for destruction of the myelin sheath around nerve fibers. The result is mental and physical deterioration that leads to death. The disease affects approximately one in 100,000 people.

Maddie was diagnosed in November of 2002 at age 4.

In October of 2003 she underwent a stem cell transplant surgery to slow its progression.

If left untreated children diagnosed with the disease often die within five to six years. Each treatment is uncovered by medical insurance and costs the family at least $150,000.

This surgery went well but Marcia said there were just too many other things that went wrong.

"She has been through way more

County commission approves workplace smoking ban

Commission votes to exempt Charlevoix County

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners passed the revised Public Health Clean Air Act of 2005, commonly known as the "workplace smoking ban," last week, just before opting to exempt

Charlevoix County from it.

According to Charlevoix County Commissioner, Josh Barnes, Charlevoix County chose to exempt itself due to the possibility of costly lawsuits as well as possible needed revisions of the language of the regulation in the future.

Barnes said, Charlevoix County adopted the regulation in order to allow Antrim, Emmet and Otsego counties, which fall under jurisdiction of the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, to make the choice on whether or not to adopt it for themselves, which they already have.

"At the meeting before last we presented

"It leaves enforcement to somebody turning somebody in. It's not a good direction to head in this county."

Ronald Reinhardt,
Third district Charlevoix County Commissioner

the proposed revised tobacco regulation and at that time there were some legal questions that were raised," said agency health officer, Gerald Chase.

Chase said, since that time, both health department attorney, Jim Young, and county prosecutor John Jarema, have issued opinions supporting the commission's authority to opt out.

Prior to the vote, Chase told the commissioners, "I am requesting the board approve the regulation as submitted, I want to remind the board that the regulation has several changes in it that clearly addresses the issue that we're not regulating people's behavior, we are protecting people from secondhand smoke — period."

Chase said despite overwhelming support of the regulation by the other three counties which fall under the health department's jurisdiction, it is impossible for him to convince some of the commissioners of the need for the regulation.

"You don't believe me, you don't believe the statistics, you don't believe the science that I'm talking about," Chase said. "You don't believe this is a serious issue because we've all lived with smokers and somehow or another maybe we're still living."

Chase demanded to know the consequences if he was correct in his assertion that smoking was deadly.

"What happens if I'm right and you're wrong? There's going to be some more deaths caused by secondhand smoke," Chase said.

Chase said, if he is wrong, the worst thing that could happen is some people may be inconvenienced.

Chase's sentiments were echoed by Charlevoix County Commissioner Randolph Frykberg.

"I would like to move for approval of the resolution," Frykberg said. "We've talked about this a lot and we've had a lot of background discussion on a lot of these different viewpoints."

Third district commissioner, Ronald Reinhardt, said most of the people in his district don't like the idea of this new regulation.

"It leaves enforcement to somebody turning somebody in," he said. "It's not a good direction to head in this county. The people in my district said they don't like it. They think it's an infringement and we keep moving more and more and more than anyone should ever have to go through," Marcia said. "She showed incredible strength, faith and class."

While the disease ultimately claimed Maddie, Marcia said it hasn't beat her parents. Jane and Jeff, of Stanton. Jeff, one of five of Marcia's children, is a Charlevoix native.

"They are an incredible pair," Marcia said.

Jeff and Jane returned to their home in Stanton Nov. 8.

In the family's on-line journal, Jane wrote, "It was good to see the boys but hard to be home where Maddie is everywhere."

Maddie's brothers, Max and Sam, also suffer from the disease.

Max was the first of the three to be diagnosed in October of 2002 at age 7. His parents noticed changes in his behavior and a CAT scan found a brain abnormality that eventually led to a MLD diagnosis.

He underwent stem cell transplant surgery in January of 2003. Sam, 3, when diagnosed, and Maddie followed with diagnoses coming in November of 2002 and transplants in October of 2003.

Max is now 10 and confined to a wheelchair and Marcia described 6-year-old Sam as a "typical" boy.

The family has received tremendous support from people across the globe who offer prayers and support via their Internet Web site.

The site, www.caringbridge.org/mltrimper, offers daily updates on the children. Since it has been up and running the site has received thousands of hits every day.

Maddie's funeral took place at 11 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 12 at the Central Montcalm Upper Elementary School in Stanton. Lunch followed the funeral at the Central Montcalm Middle School, also in Stanton.

In lieu of flowers, the Trimpers have asked that memorial considerations be made to either the Trimper Children Foundation which will be used to fund research in Metachromatic Leukodystrophy or Caringbridge, a non-profit Web site for patients and families.

PUBLIC ALERT

WARNING!

Medicaid Estate Recovery Could Threaten Your Home!

The State Legislature is currently debating Medicaid Estate Recovery (Senate Bill 820). This allows the government to "recover" Estates of Medicaid recipients who receive long-term care (e.g. nursing home and home care) after they are deceased.

Michigan citizens who have worked and paid taxes their entire lives to pay for a house to pass on to their children could lose everything if a long-term illness forces them to enroll in the Medicaid program. Such a law could also be devastating for family farms.

WHAT CAN YOU DO? Contact your State Representative and your State Senator and ask them to oppose efforts to enact Medicaid Estate Recovery in Michigan!

towards that direction. I think it's an infringement."

He added, "If you don't want to smoke, if you don't like it, you don't have to visit there."

Sixth district commissioner, Shirley Roloff, said business people are already going out of their way to try to take care of this.

"And I don't think we should push things down peoples throats when we've got so many regulations out there now we don't enforce," Roloff said.

"I realize that secondhand smoke is bad for you and I probably know better than anybody in this room because I've seen family die from it. But still I'm not going to push it off on other people," she added.

The final vote was 5-1 in favor of approving the regulation with Charlevoix County opting out. Roloff voted against it.

Strong wind storm knocks out power across town on Sunday

Unknown cause of city-wide outage Monday

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

(Above) What appeared to be miniature tornadoes made of leaves whipped and whirled in the corner of the Captain's Corner Plaza Sunday afternoon. (Below) City of Charlevoix police officer Pete Shrift directed traffic during the Monday morning power outage which lasted less than an hour.

Wind storms that blew branches and power lines to the ground on Sunday were not the cause of a city-wide power outage Monday morning.

According to Tim Pietryga, spokesman for a local electrical provider Consumers Energy, storms knocked out power to 3,400 Charlevoix and Boyne City area residents on Sunday.

At 2 p.m. Monday, 800 Consumers customers remained without service at 12 different locations.

According to city engineer Don Swem, City of Charlevoix electric customers experienced isolated outages on Sunday. He said power was cut to a group of about 20 houses for an hour in the morning. Later that day a few others experienced outages.

"Everyone was back on within an hour," he said.

Area residents were surprised when winds calmed Monday morning but a city-wide outage plagued those returning to work and school.

According to Pietryga, electricity failed at about 9 a.m. for reasons currently unknown.

He said what is known is that a breaker at the Emmet County substation, near Petoskey, that feeds all of the city's power system, including Lexa-Lite and Charlevoix High School, tripped.

Power was restored around 9:30 a.m.

"We don't know the exact reason the breaker failed. It was replaced and sent to the lab in Traverse City to discover why that may have happened," Pietryga said.

Traditional Beaver Island music offered on CD

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Ed Palmer

A Beaver Island native of nearly 60 years will soon release his second album of old time country music on CD.

59-year-old self-taught musician, Ed Palmer, was in the recording studio last week putting the finishing touches on his new CD entitled, "Ed Palmer Family Traditions." From his days as a child learning how to play the guitar and piano by watching the musicians on television, to his gigs at house parties and even the Hilton in Grand Rapids, Palmer has been enamored of music.

"It kind of come down through the generations. My parents played the same kind of music. And I just wanted to play it," Palmer said. "I used to sit and watch the old timers plunk away on the piano and I learned to play the piano by ear. And then I got brave and played guitar and harmonica."

Palmer said, as the years went by, he played with many different musicians while he was in the military, working on a car ferry and even when he came back home to Beaver Island.

"You learn from different people by playing and listening to the old timers playing the jig tunes," he said. "And I just stuck to it. It just became part of my life."

Palmer, who plays the piano, harmonica, guitar and fiddle, doesn't like to choose one instrument over the other, but he said, "The piano, I would say, is my most entertaining instrument."

According to Palmer, he played with different musicians on and off until one gig, about 20 years ago, when one of the players didn't show up.

"A drummer couldn't make it and Rich Scripps who is a drummer, bass player and keyboard player, sat in and we've been playing together ever since," Palmer said.

Scripps, who plays with Palmer at events such as the Beaver Island Club of Grand Rapids, sits in on some of the tracks and is helping with the engineering of Palmer's new CD.

A few years ago Palmer's father was honored with the Michigan Heritage Music Award for carrying on the traditions of his heritage. It was then Palmer first received his chance to record some of his tunes.

"A professor (at Michigan State University) asked me if I would come down and show the type of music that my father played. So Rich (Scripps) and I and Dan Gillespie (guitar player) went down and the studio gave us recording time in payment," he said.

Palmer said he mixed the CD in Petoskey. "And the guy said they were so good I should market the CDs."

The 13 tracks on Palmer's new CD include songs from the 1940s through the 1970s by artists Hank Snow, Charlie Walker and Jim Reeves and songs like "The Green, Green Grass of Home," "You are my Sunshine," "I'll be all Smiles Tonight" and "I Can't Stop Loving You," as well as instrumental solos by Palmer "You Can't Be True Dear" and "Home Sweet Home."

The best part of working on this album, according to Palmer, is the chance to work with his three musical daughters.

"I decided now is the time to get them together and go to the studio so I can have a chance to record with them, to have fun with them and do a family tradition thing," Palmer said. "So I invited them to come in and do their own part. Hilary sings and Tara sings harmony with her and Rita plays backup guitar on some of these tunes."

According to Scripps, also a self-taught musician, Beaver Island music is just as unique to this area as Cajun country music is to New Orleans, La.

"It takes you right to the heart of the culture," Scripps said. "He (Palmer) does have a unique style and I've been honored to be a part of that through the years. He's just got a real authentic sound."

Ellis Boal named Green Party candidate for county commission

The Green Party has nominated Ellis Boal as its candidate for First District Charlevoix County Commissioner.

Ellis Boal

Saltonstall in a election to take place Feb. 28.

"If elected, I will continue my activities protecting the environment and the local economy, and implementing Green values," said Boal.

He plans to approach Haggard and propose they agree that neither of them put up lawn signs for the February election.

"They're ugly," he said. If elected Boal would also work to instate runoff voting, to facilitate alternative transportation and to work on the county's energy conservation.

Boal has been active in social movements since he was young, marching for civil rights and an end to the war in Vietnam.

He became a labor lawyer in Detroit, representing workers.

In 2000, he moved to this area, near his family in Hayes Township. He maintains a part-time law practice, and edits legal rights books for union members as well as writing technical code for various non-profit Web sites.

Last year, he ran as a Green for Charlevoix County prosecutor, getting 646 votes in the district.

Boal has actively supported the striking nurses at Northern Michigan Hospital, and helped organize anti-war activities in Petoskey.

"I look forward to the campaign," he said. "I will meet with every county department head. I will attend commissioners' meetings and township meetings. And of course I will be going door to door to hear from the citizens."

Dental Clinics North to accept emergency Medicaid patients

Effective immediately, Dental Clinics North will accept Medicaid for the treatment of emergency services and will take information from adult Medicaid enrollees for the arrangement of future visits for other dental services.

This action reverses a recent decision not to accept Medicaid reimbursement for the provision of adult dental services. The agency had decided to eliminate the acceptance of adult Medicaid reimbursement because the current reimbursement process would result in a significant operational loss. As a stand-alone entity, the agency has no way of addressing that loss except by the closing of clinics.

The decision to continue to temporarily accept Medicaid was made after consultation with State Senators Tony Stamas and Jason Allen. Both senators were highly concerned that, as the result of the restoration of adult services on a statewide basis, nearly all dental services for adult Medicaid clients were eliminated in northern Michigan.

Senator Stamas provided leadership in securing the restoration of adult services, while Senator Allen, previously as a state representative, provided leadership in securing funding necessary to establish and equip Dental Clinics North.

Senator Stamas and Senator Allen have arranged for a meeting with representatives of the administration to resolve this issue. That meeting will occur this week.

Gerald Chase, health officer for Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, which administers the Dental Clinics North program, indicated that the agency is very happy to accommodate the wishes of the senators as a step toward resolving the issue.

Adult Medicaid clients have acute oral health needs that may be compounded into other health issues resulting in great personal suffering to themselves and at significant cost to the state. The decision to accept Medicaid will continue while there is forward movement towards the permanent resolution of the issue.

Dental Clinics North remains the principal source of dental care for approximately 30,000 adult Medicaid clients in northern Michigan. For more information, call (877) 321-7070 or visit www.nwhealth.org.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX Ordinance No. 707 of 2005

AN ORDINANCE TO ADD ADDITIONAL PROVISION TO SECTION 2.142 OF CHAPTER 24 - CITY UTILITY RATES OF TITLE II OF THE CITY CODE TO AUTHORIZE THE INSTALLMENT PAYMENT OF CONNECTION CHARGES TO THE CITY'S SEWER SYSTEM UNDER CERTAIN CONDITIONS.

Whereas, the City Council makes the following legislative determinations:

A. Big Fish Environmental, LLC (BFE) has begun a research and development facility that is a pilot program for the processing of residential septage. It is the first septage treatment receiving and processing facility to utilize Pirana ABGTM (Aerobic Bacteria Generator) technology. BFE is licensed by the MDEQ as a septage treatment receiving and processing facility.

B. The need for innovative approaches to septage disposal is reflected in a letter to municipal wastewater plants dated August 21, 2002 from Robert Babcock, Chief, Surface Water Quality Division, Department of Environmental Quality State of Michigan. In his letter, Mr. Babcock states, "Thank you for considering acceptance [of septage] and being stewards of water quality in your area. Septage disposal is an environmental concern and septage acceptance and treatment at Publicly Owned Treatment Works would assist in providing proper treatment and environmental protection."

C. BFE has asserted that the City may benefit from a connection of the BFE septage treatment receiving and processing facility. The City has determined that a connection of the BFE facility to the City's sewer system may allow a determination regarding whether those potential benefits may, in fact, come to fruition. The asserted benefits include: the discharge of non-domestic wastewater, pretreated septage will not contain pollutant concentrations in excess of those established in the Sewer Use Ordinance, as amended from time to time; an aerobic bacteria influent to the City's sewer system; ability to control the quantity and period of pretreated effluent to minimize impact on the sewer system; and a reduction of pressure for expansion of the City's sewer infrastructure by providing an environmentally sensitive alternative for septage disposal.

D. The City recognizes that Grand Traverse County is operating its own septage receiving and treatment facility. The City also recognizes that: the majority of residences within the region are located in areas not serviced by public sanitary sewer collection and treatment systems (i.e. non-sewered areas) and utilize a septic tank or holding tank; the potential for much of the residential growth within the region is in non-sewered areas; that solids accumulate in septic tanks over time and require periodic pumping while holding tanks accumulate both solids and liquid and also require periodic pumping; the pumped material from septic holding tanks are currently disposed of via land application and, while acceptable, the practice carries with it a certain level of health hazard; several trends are placing pressures on the local regulatory community and the local industry in the management and disposal of septage; land application sites for septage disposal are dwindling; development pressures are increasing and impacting the availability of locating new application sites; recent changes to State law have restricted the disposal of septage on open land; the BFE facility is consistent with the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency's (NWMCHA) efforts to identify potential solutions to this issue as illustrated in their document "Final Report to the Septage Waste Disposal Committee Of the Septage Feasibility Study"; and the Health Officer of NWMCHA has publicly asked the City Council to permit connection of BFE to the City's sewer system for many of the reasons described above.

The City also recognizes that it is not obligated to connect the proposed septage pretreatment facility to its sewer system, but may do so under contractual terms that are acceptable to both parties.

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

That the following provision is added to the end of the existing Section 2.142 entitled Installment Payments in Chapter 24 of the City Code and the existing portion of Section 2.142 shall remain unchanged:

A septage pretreatment facility may only connect to the City's sewer system pursuant to a written agreement between the City and the owner of the proposed septage pretreatment facility. This contract must be approved by the City Council. The contract shall specify the amount of connection fees, the terms of payment of those connection fees, the applicable sewer rate, the conditions under which the connection fees or sewer rate may change and the method of payment of the connection fees. The amount of connection fees and the method of payment of those connection fees may vary from provisions that would apply to a sewer user that is not a septage pretreatment facility. The contract shall include such other provisions as shall be acceptable to the owner of the septage pretreatment facility and the City Council. The agreement shall be in a form approved by the city attorney. The City shall be under no obligation to permit a septage pretreatment facility to connect to the City's sewer system and any such decision is subject to the sole discretion of the City Council to determine whether any proposal is in the best interests of the City. The term "septage pretreatment facility" shall mean a facility that receives and treats non-domestic wastewater that originates from residential type septic systems including single family homes, condominiums, apartments and commercial users such as hotels, motels, offices, restaurants, schools, retail structures, etc. with the exception of restaurant grease interceptors and industrial process wastewater. Pretreated septage shall comply with the characteristics of common domestic sewage as defined in the City's Sewer Use Ordinance. The treatment process shall be approved and licensed by the State of Michigan and operated pursuant to the contract with the City of Charlevoix as specified in this ordinance.

ADOPTED, this 7th day of November, 2005.

Seconded by: Bill Haggard

"Statistics show that most motorist deaths and injuries occur when drivers swerve to avoid hitting a deer and, instead, hit a fixed object, such as a tree or another vehicle," said Michigan Deer Crash Coalition Chairman Richard J. Miller of AAA Michigan. "No one wants to see a deer destroyed, but striking the animal is often the safest action for the driver."

Two sentenced in connection with crack bust

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Anthony Curtis Burks and Chesica Dawn Brown were sentenced on Friday, Nov. 11 in Charlevoix County Circuit Court for their role in a crack bust which took place Aug. 5.

Chesica Brown

Brown, a 25-year-old mother of two, received two years probation and 12 months in jail after pleading to controlled substance delivery-manufacture of a narcotic or cocaine and controlling or maintaining a drug house.

"She ended up getting a plea 'Five Wishes' documents available at local health department

Copies of the "Five Wishes" are available at the local health department and Hospice of Northwest Michigan offices in honor of National Home Health and Hospice Month.

"Home Health and Hospice Month provides an opportunity for everyone — no matter what their age — to think about how they would want to be treated if seriously ill and unable to speak for themselves," said Nancy Bottomley, Director of Adult Health and Aging Services for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency.

"The 'Five Wishes' document does just that, in easy-to-understand language, not in 'doctor speak' or 'lawyer talk,'" she added.

Trained staff from the health department's certified home health and hospice program can help people to complete the "Five Wishes" form.

Five Wishes is unique among all other living wills and advance medical directive documents because it looks to all of a person's end-of-life needs: medical, personal, emotional and spiritual. It lets your family members and doctors know which person you want to make health care decisions for you when you can't make them; the kind of medical treatment you want or don't want; how comfortable you want to be; how you want people to treat you; and what you want your loved ones to know.

For more information about end-of-life decisions and the "Five Wishes" document, call the health department at (231) 547-6092, Hospice of Northwest Michigan at (231) 536-2842, or visit www.nwhealth.org.

agreement for testifying against the guy (Brown) with the drugs," said Charlevoix County assistant prosecutor, Shaynee Fanara. "The judge put her in for 12 months. It's a pretty clear indication he's trying to send out a message that coming up here and selling drugs in our community will not be tolerated."

Burks pled guilty to and was sentenced for controlled substance delivery on school property of narcotic or cocaine less than 50 grams or roughly 20 rocks. He also pled to three counts of controlled substance delivery-manufacture of a narcotic or cocaine less than 50 grams. Burks received a minimum of two years to a maximum of 60 years in prison and a fine of up to $75,000.

The two were busted in August as the result of a continuing investigation by Straits Area Narcotics Enforcement (SANE) into cocaine sales in the area.

SANE made their way up the drug chain by arresting 41-year-old Marvin Darnell Hailey. An undercover officer purchased $100 of crack cocaine from Hailey who went to the Kipke Lane duplex to pick up the product, leading officers to Burks and Brown.

Using a warrant, the enforcement group, along with patrolmen with the City of Charlevoix Police Department, executed a search of a duplex off Kipke Road, near the Charlevoix Middle School.

Inside the house, detectives seized at least 20 pea-sized rocks of crack cocaine, worth between $10 and $20 each. They also seized a handgun, cash and a vehicle.

Motion to fire Wiesner fails in tie vote

By JULIE WITTHOEF
Editor

A change of heart by first ward Charlevoix city councilman Bob Timms kept city manager Mike Wiesner in his seat.

During the miscellaneous business portion of the city council meeting Monday, Nov. 21, second ward Charlevoix city councilman Gabe Campbell put a motion on the table to fire Wiesner, who has been manager for over 20 years.

Campbell said someone has to be held accountable for "failure to properly supervise the city treasurer regarding the issuance of a check to CCMS in the amount of $222,978; failure to properly supervise the city wastewater treatment plant regarding the falsifying of records by wastewater treatment plant personnel; failure to provide in a timely manner the city council with information that will be considered at a city council meeting; and failure to provide monthly reports regarding the operation of city departments."

Two hours of public comment followed, with the bulk of those who spoke, supporting Wiesner.

Mike Wiesner

"Maybe I'm flip flopping here," he said after Ochs spoke and before the final vote. "She makes sense and I respect her insight into this sort of thing. It's a really stressful situation here tonight."

The final vote was a tie with Campbell supported by third ward council member Shirley Gibson and second ward councilman Gene Beer, who were sworn in at the beginning of the meeting.

Timms, first ward councilman Bill Haggard and third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain voted against it.

Working in a winter wonderland

Charlevoix's first snow of the season fell Nov. 17 and 18, catching motorists off guard and keeping local law enforcement officials on their toes.

"The first few storms of the year, people forget they have to slow down. It was slippery. When the roads are warm and the snow is cold the snow doesn't adhere to the road well," interim Charlevoix County Sheriff, Don Schneider, said.

Schneider said this first storm caused mild mayhem on the roads.

By around 3:30 p.m. Nov. 17 the sheriff's office had responded to 17 calls from motorists having crashed or lost control and landed in the ditch.

Scott Hankins, interim police chief for the City of Charlevoix, said his department responded to five traffic crashes that day, all of which occurred in the north curves where cars collided with the guard rail.

He said while it's common for the first signs of sloppy roads to bring traffic accidents there are precautions drivers can take to travel safely.

"The best thing to do is reduce your speed in inclement weather. You should also use your headlights as well as properly inflated snow tires. Tire pressure is really important in controlling your vehicle," Hankins said.

Sheriff suffers heart attack and undergoes surgery

By JULIE WITTHOEF
Editor

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater suffered a heart attack and underwent open heart surgery last week.

The heart attack took place around 3 a.m. Monday, Nov. 14, while Lasater, 67, was at his home in Horton Bay. He drove himself to the emergency medical service post in Boyne City and was transported by Boyne City Ambulance to Northern Michigan Hospital.

Lasater, who has been sheriff for the past 29 years underwent surgery Thursday, Nov. 17 at Northern Michigan Hospital.

Following surgery, county undersheriff Don Schneider, said, "We expect him to make a full recovery and be back in the office in a short period of time. We ask everyone to keep him in their prayers."

Schneider is stepping into the sheriff's position during Lasater's absence.

He said sheriff's department officers are not required to participate in regular physicals during their employment. They are required to complete a physical when first hired.

Former CHS student found guilty of falsely reporting a bomb threat

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

A 15-year-old former Charlevoix High School student could face hefty fines, non-secure detention time, community service and years of probation after a jury found him guilty of reporting a false bomb threat Nov. 18.

"Nowadays we have to take every bomb threat seriously," Shaynee Panara, Charlevoix County's chief assistant prosecutor, said.

The decision was handed down at 6 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17 following a two-day jury trial where 19 witnesses, including 15 students took the stand in Charlevoix County's Probate Court.

The incident occurred Feb. 28, 2005 at Charlevoix High School when the guilty party was a freshman. According to Panara, the former student wrote, "The school will blow up at 1 p.m. March 1," in pencil on a men's bathroom wall at the school.

The student was charged as a juvenile and has not yet been sentenced. Panara said sentencing may include non-secure detention time, community service work, probation up to the age of 19 and several thousand dollars in restitution.

Timms 'flip flops' following clerk's comment

WIESNER

Robert Timms

A majority vote was needed to unseat him.

While the outcome was in Wiesner's favor, prior to the vote, he urged council members to make a clear decision.

"Do your best to be sure where you're going — a 3-3 vote and we're back here in three months, that's not an easy way to live," he said.

After the vote came down, he said he doesn't plan to change his management approach but isn't entirely comfortable in his seat.

"3-3 definitely wasn't a vote of support," he said.

Ochs, an elected official who ran unopposed Nov. 8 to retain her seat, said Wiesner approached her recently and asked that she speak to his performance at Monday night's meeting.

She said when she needed to fill her petition to run for office she went door to door citywide seeking support. She said during that petition drive Wiesner was bad mouthed by some city residents.

But, after taking office, Ochs said she found those comments were false rumors.

Gabe Campbell

City of Charlevoix.

Others, including city resident Tom Rankl told council to end the public witch hunt for Wiesner's job and referred to him as an indispensable asset to the city.

"After 21 years of service to the city we are going to arbitrarily stand up and say, 'Thanks Mike but you're no good anymore,'" Rankl said.

Downtown Development Authority member Dan Barron spoke on Wiesner's behalf as well.

"Everyone makes mistakes. But there have been unbelievable accomplishments in this city over the past 20 years and those outweigh the negative aspects 20 fold," he said.

While most of those in attendance cheered as the final vote was handed down, a approval didn't come from city residents Birdie Whitley and June Cross who supported his dismissal.

During public comment Whitley reminded council that at the Nov. 8 election Wiesner's firing was an unspoken issue. Those who publicly supported his dismissal including Beer, Timms and Gibson were elected while Steven Bennett and Bill Bellows, who said they wouldn't support firing Wiesner, lost.

In an effort to smooth the choppy waters remaining from talk of firing Wiesner, council discussed introducing regular performance reviews of him. His last review was done in 1993.

Campbell said he hopes to see Wiesner conduct business in a more open fashion and wants to see city spending curbed.

Wiesner is completing a scheduled vacation and will be back in the office Monday, Nov. 28.

Good old fashioned Thanksgiving memories

Benjamin Gohs
‘Staff writer’

Every few years I hear a new story on who actually invented Thanksgiving so please bear with me.

Although the first official Thanksgiving is supposed to have taken place Nov. 26, 1789 after New Jersey congressman Elias Boudinot proposed it, I also heard Abraham Lincoln started Thanksgiving during the Civil War. Perhaps it is the desire of historians to forget this holiday was sprung from the same Puritan minds of 1623 and all their religious intolerance — I can't say as I blame them.

All I really know about the holiday involves some rock band from Plymouth called the Pilgrims, who left the new world in search of spices. Upon landing in Poughkeepsie in 1492, the Pilgrims were able to survive their first winter when the Cleveland Indians taught them how to make popcorn and turquoise jewelry.

My knowledge of this poultry-centric holiday may be warped at best, but it seems ironic we celebrate a holiday rooted in a time when an enormous celebratory meal really was a once a year occurrence. I doubt this is the case in our contemporary and increasingly pathologically portly society.

Don't get me wrong, in the spirit of Will Rogers, I never met a meal I didn't like and that goes triple for turkey — this year it's a 21-pound monster.

Selfish as it sounds, I didn't grow up in one of those homes where everyone announced what they were thankful for before eating. Raised in a house of nine people, for us Thanksgiving was one of the few times a year no one left the table hungry. For us, Thanksgiving was a tradition, but the focus was the food.

What I really get a kick out of are the big families who converge during the holidays. Sure, there were nine of us, but that's nothing compared to my maternal grandmother's get-togethers. Even with nearly 35 mouths to feed she knew how to put on a spread.

Turkey day at grandma's meant spending Thursday in a house filled 10 times to the capacity allowed by fire code. It also meant eating dry turkey and soggy stuffing until we couldn't breathe.

I'm not sure anyone ever contracted worms from undercooked turkey. But, to stave off the possibility of larval infestation, mom, granny and a half dozen aunts awoken at 4:29 a.m., Eastern Standard Time to get the turkey in the oven by 6 a.m.

Around midmorning there come a series of whoops and hollers from the living room turned moose lodge as the patriarchs, preoccupied with cold beer and the upcoming football game, do a less than mediocre job of keeping the kids out of grandma's hair.

Strung out on a combination of black coffee and adults only holiday nog, the matriarchs aggressively defend their territory from no less than 20 marauding children who stampede the kitchen every 10 minutes to decry the inhumane treatment doled by the older kids and to inform grandma of impending starvation if the turkey isn't done soon.

It's early afternoon. The turkey has been in the oven for over six hours. During which time the bird goes from raw, to golden brown and juicy, to arid and crunchy. But, by the time dinner is ready, everyone is so hungry they'd be happy with an old boot dipped in gravy. And to be fair, at this point, they wouldn't know what to do with a succulent slice of bird anyhow.

The muggy, turkey scented air teases the nostrils as granny pulls the prize from the oven. The hungry horde hyperventilate with anticipation. Grandpa fires up his circa World War II electric knife while the uncles bicker over proper carving technique.

Years of grandma's signature stone turkeys dulled the blade beyond repair. In reality the only thing grandpa could cut is the can shaped, imitation jellied cranberry product now wobbling to the rhythm of the reciprocating blade.

It's time to eat. Everyone digs in. Everyone, that is, except aunt Lois who is resting comfortably on the couch after fainting from a combination of heat exhaustion and one too many cocktails.

It's not a Hallmark card, but it's Thanksgiving as I remember it. And for that, I'm thankful.

Wild west winds move dead leaves this fall

Roger Knutson
‘Ear to the ground’

Almost 200 years ago an English poet named Percy Shelley wrote an “Ode to the West Wind.” He might almost have lived in Charlevoix this autumn.

To briefly quote the beginning of his poem, “O, wild west wind, thou breath of autumn's heing thou, from whose unseen presence the leaves dead are driven, like ghosts from an enchanter fleeing, yellow, and black, and pale, and hectic red.”

It goes on from there for another 67 lines, but you get the idea. For those of us living here who have both trees and lawn, autumn means somehow getting the leaves from where the trees dropped them to the curb, where the city graciously picks them up and carts them away.

I moved all my leaves from the lawn to the curb at least three times this fall. It was that wild west wind that Shelley wrote about. It got to the place where I was able to recognize some of the individual leaves because I had seen them so often.

I initially hauled three great tarp loads of dry leaves to the road edge. Two days later, before the city had opportunity to pick them up, one of those wild west winds moved them all back into the yard — not just some of them, all of them.

After waiting a few days, another magnificent fall day arrived and I took advantage of it to stack up the leaves and move them out to the curb again. There was more of them now, since the trees still had a few. A pile of leaves the size of two monster SUV's sat in the fall sun at the curb waiting to be carried away. Worried that there might be another wind, I had even walked back and forth over the whole pile to pack it down.

During the night I heard the wind beginning to howl. By the time the sun rose, and I looked out the window, most of the pile was gone from the roadway. Maybe this time it will blow another direction, I hoped, I was wrong. It was another wild, west wind. After breakfast, when I surveyed the roadway, all the leaves were gone. All seemed well until I tried to open our back door on the north side of the house. A pile of leaves at least 3-feet high had gathered all along the north wall, and I had to push them out of the way to open the door. At least now they were almost all in one place, even though that place was some distance from the curb where they belonged.

Shelley was right. “Leaves dead are driven, like ghosts from an enchanter fleeing.”

And they certainly were, “Yellow, and black, and pale, and hectic red.”

By now I had seen them often enough to be certain of their individual identities.

They are gone now, finally. I have read that if you have a wood stove and feed it yourself, you are warmed four times by the same wood — when you cut it, split it, carry it to the stove and finally are warmed when it burns. It is also true, at least this fall, that it is possible to be warmed at least three times by the same leaves, even without burning them.

I look forward to another fall, which I hope will be sunny, warm, calm and filled with dead leaves. At this point my imagination does not match Shelley's. I will not imagine another fall of wild, west winds. I don't imagine that poets spend much time raking and hauling leaves. If they did they might be less poetic about those wild winds.

Letters to the editor

‘Thank you’ sheriff Lasater
Editor:

Louisiana suffered catastrophic losses following hurricanes Katrina and Rita. With entire communities decimated, the amount of damage is unparalleled in modern history. Over 100,000 buildings are severely damaged, and the death toll exceeds 1,000.

When the Louisiana State Police requested help through the Emergency Management Assistance Compact (EMAC), you responded promptly. Your agency's concern and willingness to assist is an uplifting demonstration that the law enforcement community is truly a family where jurisdictional boundaries matter little.

Conditions in the state, particularly immediately following the storms, were adverse. In many instances, your officers endured hardships working in oppressive heat in areas without electricity or other modern conveniences. They performed a variety of missions that helped in some way to ensure the safety of our citizens and preserve order.

Thank you for your invaluable assistance to our department and the citizens of Louisiana in our time of need.

Column response

Editor:
After reading Roger Knutson's column on intelligent design (page 4 of the Nov. 9 edition of the Charlevoix Courier) I couldn't help but think that not only is his ear to the ground, but his entire head is buried in the sand.

Mr. Knutson cited an example in defense of intelligent design, this being a book written in 1802 by a priest with reference to a pocket watch. Not once did he mention the Cambrian explosion, which gave us most of our major animal phyla, and devoid prior Darwin transitions, or how non-living chemicals could somehow self-assemble into the first living cell.

No fossil record has ever been produced to confirm our leap from fish to amphibian to reptile. Or, “incredibly complex” molecular machines, such as cilia and bacterial flagella, which could not have been built piece-by-piece through the Darwin processes, because they had to be fully present in order to function. Or the 6-feet of chemical alphabet that spells out precise assembly instructions for all the proteins from which our bodies are made. Or that Haeckel's embryo sketches used by Darwin to show similarities in species were forged by using the same wood cut dye to print the embryos from different classes. Or that Java Man consisted of nothing more than a skullcap, a femur, three teeth and a great deal of imagination and a 342 page scientific report from a fact-finding expedition of 19 evolutionist demolished Darwin's claims and concluded that Java Man played no part in human evolution. Evolution, when put under the microscope of scrutiny, fails to provide consistent scientific facts.

All of these illustrations, and I could list dozens more, either provide a case for intelligent design, or cloud the facts of evolution. I'm not, nor should any of us be arrogant enough to claim that what we think is right is fact and close our minds and our children's minds to other scientific facts. It appears as though Mr. Knutson's atheistic or agnostic views on creation have clouded his intellectual thinking, and now he is trying to force his faith of evolution on the rest of us.

Veterans dinner a success

Editor:

This note is a “thank you” for the U.S. Coast Guard's part in providing the Thanksgiving dinner at the annual Charlevoix County Veterans' Affairs holiday dinner on Nov. 12, 2005.

It was a nice touch to have the dinner at the new VFW hall, to have a flag presented by Congressman Bart Stupak's aide and to combine the meal with a dedication.

The food, as before, was absolutely wonderful, and your staff did a superb job of preparing and serving it. It was nice, too, to have the beautiful flowers which decorated the tables and the hall.

It was a truly enjoyable outing for all of us. I wanted you and your crew to know how much we appreciated the extra effort it took to provide that special time for us. We were talking at our home about going to this dinner three or four years ago (when you're old, you aren't precise anymore) and how there were about 20 there. This year there appeared to be more than 100.

We enjoyed the picture-taking part of the program — it was very interesting to see how many World War II vets were there and the large contingent from the Korean War era. Our grandchildren last year received the newspaper and were tickled to pick out grandpa in the Korean War group.

Again, thank you also for the good work you do as members of the U.S. Coast Guard. We are pleased and proud to have you as a part of the Charlevoix community, and we shall miss the Acacia next year.

However, we were glad to hear at the dinner that the station and the contingent there will stay.

Again, thank you so much, and I wish you and your crew a most Merry Christmas and a peaceful, blessed new year.

Holiday tree lighting and decorating contest

Courtesy photo

Charlevoix Children's House students Jake Conway and Max Hinkle create ornaments for the community Christmas tree lighting to take place at 6 p.m. Nov. 25 in East Park. At 4 p.m. Children's House representatives will be at Santa's House at 222 Bridge Street with ornament making supplies for those children in need of a homemade ornament.

Charlevoix will ring in the Christmas season with two signature events.

The annual Charlevoix Community Christmas Tree Lighting will take place Friday, Nov. 25 in downtown Charlevoix's East Park.

Beginning at 4 p.m., children are invited to visit Santa Claus at Charlevoix Santa's House located at 222 Bridge St. and have a free photo taken with him compliments of Charlevoix Camera.

Decorate the community Christmas tree with handmade ornaments from 4 to 6 p.m. in East Park. Children who don't have an ornament can make one at Santa's House thanks to the staff of the Charlevoix Children's House who will help children create spectacular decorations.

The tree is decorated thanks to the City Electric Department crew who provides a bucket truck and places the children's ornaments where they wish on the tree.

Everyone is invited to watch the children decorate the tree while enjoying music provided by the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful petunia truck and warming up with free hot cocoa and cookies.

At 6 p.m. Santa Claus will officially light the Christmas tree.

On Dec. 1 Charlevoix businesses will participate in a Christmas Decorating Contest sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

Business owners are encouraged to decorate their store fronts and light their windows for judging to take place from 4 to 6 p.m.

Thursday, Dec. 1. Judges will look at the entire business front.

Points will be given for holiday spirit and originality. Only businesses that have pre-registered at the chamber office will be judged. Prizes will be awarded.

Obituary

Weldon "Corky" Price, Jr.: July 28, 1952 - Nov. 17, 2005

"Corky" Price, Weldon Wales Price Jr., 53, died Nov. 17, 2005, at his home in Charlevoix.

Corky was born July 28, 1952, in Detroit, the son of Weldon Wales and Ruth (Anderson) Price. He graduated from Groves High School, in Birmingham, and then went on to ferrier school to become a blacksmith.

Corky's greatest love was owning, training, boarding and working with horses.

This love started in 1964 when the Price family bought a small farm on Lone Pine Road in Bloomfield Hills. At the annual Franklin Village Horse Show, Corky was the small guy on the big horse named Buttermilk racing in the barrel bending event. Years later his family bought a horse farm in Charlevoix and Corky spent the rest of his healthy life working with horses.

He had a good ferrier business and hosted annual horse shows as well as the 4-H Handicap Riding Club at Lake Charlevoix Farm. He was an active member of the local "Quarter Horse Association" and the Charlevoix Sheriff's Posse.

Unfortunately, Corky became a diabetic at the age of 12.

This disease, overtook his body and he became unable to do much in his last years. If you would like to donate in Corky's memory, please do so to the American Diabetes Association P.O. Box 1131 Fairfax, VA 22038-1131.

Corky's family knows he's now healthy and happy in heaven for eternity, because last summer he accepted the free gift of salvation offered by God through Jesus Christ.

He is survived by his father, Weldon W. "Bill" Price; sisters Cindy (Ben) Benson and Sara (Robert) Yarrow; his step-daughters, Marty Wells and Rebecca Wildman; and his beloved granddaughter, Olivia Wells.

There will be no services at this time. Corky's family will be gathering in Charlevoix in June for a memorial get together. Those interested, e-mail spyarrow@earthlink.net.

County residents attend Nov. 3 mental illness recovery seminar

On Nov. 3, 71 individuals from 13 counties in northern Michigan, including Charlevoix County, came together at Treetops Resort in Gaylord to learn about and celebrate recovery from mental illness.

Joanne Rackow, Consumer Relations Specialist from North Country Community Mental Health, organized this "Day of Education" with the theme, "recovery from severe mental illness is not only possible but achievable."

During the day, there were several educational presentations on topics including: Medicare Part D, Psychiatric Advance Directives, Kevin's Law, Individual Development Accounts and substance abuse. The speaker was Leslie Sladek, who offered a very moving and insightful talk about the "roller coaster of recovery."

In addition to these educational topics, Rackow led a discussion on recovery. Having the personal experience of living with a mental illness, Rackow is well equipped to do so. She said with hard work, professional support, medication, and support from family, friends and peers, she is successfully managing her illness and leads a full and rewarding life.

"Persons with disabilities experience many losses and challenges that are different from those of others. I do not mean to minimize the challenge that all humans experience in life or to glorify the unique challenges of persons with disabilities. But there are differences that need to be appreciated from both perspectives," Rackow said.

There are plans to hold more recovery education events in northern Michigan in the future.

Charlevoix Public Schools budget committee meets

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The first of four scheduled meetings occurred last Thursday with the intent to search for proactive solutions to the Charlevoix Public Schools' impending budget crisis.

The Charlevoix Public Schools Budget Steering Committee, which consists of four school staff members and 19 community members, spent their first meeting learning some vital information concerning the state of the district's budget.

"With the state of the economy in Michigan not being a bright picture, where are we going to go if the money doesn't come in," Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools, Dr. John Sturock, said. "We want to explore options for both increase of revenue and decrease in expenditures and we want to do it before we get to the point where we have our backs up against the wall."

According to Sturock, this steering committee will play a vital role in the school board's budget decisions.

"The charge of the committee is to prioritize expenditures. We don't want to put (them) in the position of having to make hard-line decisions," Sturock said. "Hopefully, with the help of the committee, we can come up with some options which are beneficial to the kids both on a revenue as well as an expenditure side."

Committee members were chosen for the unique part they play in the community.

"We have a nice cross-section of people on the committee, The community is well represented," Sturock added.

During the meeting, Sturock emphasized that all school districts in Michigan are facing financial hardships.

The 2005-2006 Charlevoix Public Schools budget, which passed with a little over a half million dollars in cuts earlier this year, made its largest savings in the form of not rehiring three-and-a-half of five retiring teachers in the amount of $390,000.

Projected expenditures for the 2005-2006 school year are $13,014,706 with an income of $12,239,145 which forces the school to use $775,561 out of its rainy day fund.

"We're marching toward the edge of a cliff, it's just a matter of how close we are to the edge," Sturock said.

"According to Sturock, if a solution isn't found within the next few years, by 2008 fund equity will be spent and the schools could be forced to make cuts in the operational budget.

"That means that everything funded under the general operational side, anywhere we spend money, would be subject to cuts.

Charlevoix Public School board member Dean Spencley attended the first of four scheduled meetings of the Charlevoix Public Schools Budget Steering Committee Nov. 17 at Charlevoix High School.

By law you have to operate on a balanced budget," he said.

Projected revenues for 2006-2007 school year are $11,946,901 while expenditures are expected to be as much as $13,691,436. The 2007-2008 school year shows a possible discrepancy between revenue and expenditures of $12,001,335 and $14,290,652 respectively. And, the 2008-2009 school year budget is projected with revenue of $11,990,498 and expenditures of $15,097,670.

While the school board was not at the meeting in an official capacity, Sturock and Charlevoix Public Schools business manager, Shawn Biddle, facilitated the meeting by supplementing information through a presentation.

Sturock: 'Cuts by 2008 if budget crisis isn't solved'

BUDGET

Biddle explained some of the steps the board has already taken to stave off fiscal distress, including reducing staff over the last couple years and implementing an all-day kindergarten program.

Biddle told members of the steering committee that, despite the $175 per pupil increase in state aid for the 2005-2006 school year, the increase in health care premiums, among other things, outweigh the incoming dollars.

"It is certainly welcomed, but it's not getting us where we need to be and any future increases by the state will not put us where we need to be," Biddle said.

According to Sturock, it is imperative the new committee look at the financial picture of the district and share that information with parents as well as students.

Steering committee member, Zita Winn, said she was a little hesitant to join the committee at first, but now she is proud to be a part of it.

"I think it was very well organized and there were some very well thought out questions by the committee members," she said. "And there was an even broader range of subjects covered than even the superintendent thought there would be."

The steering committee meets from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at Charlevoix Middle School. Its Dec. 15 meeting will focus on expenditures;

Zita Winn

sion. Community members on the

Jan. 12 on revenue; and on Jan. 26 members will work to summarize findings. They will prepare a report to the school board and possibly host a public input session.

Charlevoix Public Schools Budget Steering Committee are: Nancy Rajewski, Lee Barta, Zita Winn, Linda Bradley, Tim LaBlance, Tom Barnes, Dan Koffman, Lisa Faust, Jeff Stevens, Christine Cole, Treasure Eggers, Joe and Christie Vogelheim, Bob Heath, Chuck Mason, John Kurtz, Jim Rudolph, Jay Balasz and Beth Teuscher.

Staff members on the committee are: Cindy Whitley, Coreen Henry, Roger Gowell and Doug Drenth.

Charlevoix man arrested for shooting at his wife

Deputies with the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office arrested a 62-year-old Charlevoix man for assault with intent to murder and possession of a firearm while intoxicated.

The incident occurred in Marion Township at approximately 6 p.m. Nov. 14. The suspect had been involved in a verbal altercation with his wife, when he grabbed a .357 caliber revolver, pointed the gun at his wife and shot at her inside their house.

The wife fled the scene and came to the sheriff's office for assistance.

Sheriff's deputies later arrived at the house and the male suspect was arrested without incident. The wife was uninjured in the incident.

The name of the man arrested is being withheld pending court appearance.

Chili cook-off Friday at Methodist church

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

Shoppers, residents and visitors ready to take a break from turkey and try some of Charlevoix's best chili are invited to the First Annual You Judge It Chili Cook-off.

The chili cook-off will take place from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 25 in the fellowship hall at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church located at 104 State Street in Charlevoix.

Participants will pay $5 for samplings of six chili masterpieces created by area chefs from the Flap Jack Family Restaurant, Scovies Gourmet Deli, Weathervane Restaurant, Nanny's, Village Inn Pizza and Whitey's of Charlevoix.

Event tickets are also ballots. Votes will be tallied that day and the chef of the favorite chili will be awarded a plaque proclaiming their chili concoction, Charlevoix's best.

Chili will be complimented by servings of macaroni and cheese, muffins and ice cream.

Event coordinators Rosie and Richard Parton, who are members of the local Methodist church parish and its finance committee, commended par-

"This contribution by area restaurants is a generous display of community spirit," Richard said.

Proceeds from the event will benefit community outreach efforts by the Charlevoix United Methodist Church.

Crown Motors supports Iacocca's diabetes research

In honor of National Diabetes Month in November, Crown Motors of Charlevoix, Ltd. will contribute $1 for every Chrysler, Jeep and Dodge vehicle sold to the Iacocca Foundation's JoinLeeNow fund-raising campaign to raise money for diabetes research.

This partnership will run through the end of 2006.

"Diabetes strikes all demographics, from those living in Charlevoix, nationally and around the world," said Robert Ferguson of Crown Motors of Charlevoix, Ltd. We are proud to do our part to help this great cause and find a cure for those suffering from this devastating disease."

Crown Motors of Charlevoix, Ltd. will help the Iacocca Foundation achieve its goal of finding a cure for diabetes, a disease that kills more than 200,000 people in the United States annually and causes health complications including blindness, amputations, heart disease, nerve damage and kidney failure.

The Iacocca Foundation's JoinLeeNow initiative is halfway to reaching its goal of funding a clinical trial for a potential cure for type 1 diabetes, a treatment that has been found to successfully cure diabetes in mice.

Lee Iacocca, Chairman of the Iacocca Foundation, said, "I promised my late wife that I would help to find a cure for type 1 diabetes in my lifetime. I feel like we are finally close. I'm very grateful for everything Crown Motors of Charlevoix, Ltd. is doing to help us reach our goal."

Launched in August of 2004, JoinLeeNow has raised six of the $11 million it needs to fund a clinical trial at Massachusetts General Hospital that will be conducted by Dr. David Nathan and Dr. Denise Faustman.

The first phase of the clinical trial program will test a potential cure for type 1 diabetes.

For more information about the Iacocca Foundation and diabetes, or to make a donation, go to www.joinleehow.org.

WATCH members to visit Florida cement plant

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

Four of the 300 members in the local environmental group, Water and Air Team Charlevoix (WATCH), will travel to Florida next week to tour a new, state-of-the-art cement plant.

Charlevoix's St. Marys Cement Company is footing the bill for the trip, to give WATCH members Michelle Rick-Biddick, Joellen Rudolph, Jerry Puhl and Bill Henne a look at the latest and greatest technology in cement manufacturing.

The group will arrive Nov. 28 in Branford, Fla. During their four-day stay they will tour the St. Marys Cement Plant there, which went on-stream in 2003.

"I am going down there to learn. We will tour a state-of-the-art facility and see what we hope Charlevoix will achieve at some point down the road," Rick-Biddick said.

Construction on the $130 million Branford production unit, which produces about a million tons of cement annually, started in 1999. It is smaller than the Charlevoix plant which produces about 1.5 million tons but shares similar topography. The Branford, Fla. plant is located along the Suwannee River in a pristine, wilderness area. The local plant is located off Bell's Bay Road and borders Lake Michigan.

Dirk Cox, Charlevoix plant manager for St. Marys Cement Company, said the company's Branford, Fla. plant project faced serious environmental opposition during the planning phase. Project opponents there launched a major anti-permitting campaign claiming the plant would produce dangerous emissions and would destroy the area's environment.

Cox said now that production has been underway for over two years, the complaints have stopped.

He credits the environmentally friendly technology used there for its success.

WATCH representatives will meet with people from both Florida's environmental regulatory body, the Florida Department of Environmental Protection, and the area citizens group, Save Our Suwannee, during the upcoming trip.

Charlevoix's cement plant which has changed ownership four times in its existence has been plagued with environmental criticism. Prior to St. Marys purchasing the local plant from Cemex in April, air quality violations from the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality were a common occurrence.

Other concerns stemmed from cement kiln dust pile leachate making its way into Lake Michigan and resulting in changes in the pH of the water as well as noise and dust from limestone harvesting blasts in the quarry.

According to Dave Thorley, an environmental engineer with the Air Quality Division of the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality, since St. Marys took over, early this spring, major changes have been made to improve the plant's relationship with the environment.

"They've been great. It's like night and day. I have not written a violation based on a plant inspection since they've taken over. The roads are better, general upkeep is much better," Thorley said. "My problem areas are no longer problem areas. They are spending a lot of money to fix everything at the plant that they can."

Plant owners are in the process of investing in a new $9 million dust collection system called a bag house. Cox said he anticipates a 90 percent decrease in particulate emissions as a result of installing the new bag house.

"It's like a $9 million vacuum," he explained.

An $8 million indirect firing system is also being planned to reduce emissions by 10 percent.

Charlevoix harbor receives $80,000 for maintenance

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

Charlevoix's harbor got a leg up last week when word came from Michigan's United States senators Carl Levin and Debbie Stabenow that $80,000 in funds will be allocated here for harbor maintenance.

The funds are used by the United States Army Corps of Engineers for maintenance and operation of the harbor, but cannot be used for construction projects such as deepening ports or channels or expanding them in any way or the marina dock project.

According to Stabenow, this appropriations bill, which was proposed in July of 2005, is aimed at facilitating shipping and recreation.

The bill also includes strong support for bringing to Michigan the Rare Isotope Accelerator research facility which will be dedicated to exploring and producing new isotopes which aren't found on earth.

If built, the Rare Isotope Accelerator would be the most powerful research facility of its kind, in the world.

"Locating this project in Michigan would mean almost $2 billion for Michigan's economy over 20 years and 400 new jobs in the state," Stabenow said.

have also improved vibration issues from blasts by using different, more expensive explosives and having a noise consultant follow-up with nearby residents to field reactions.

"The reaction is way down," Cox said.

The consultant has also been measuring the frequency of motor, machines and fans.

About 180 trees have been planted along the burn areas at the facility's entrance, bordering the quarry.

"This place has a lot of opportunity. From an environmental perspective, from an operational perspective and from a quality perspective — this place has a lot of room for improvement," Cox said.

Puhl, a member of WATCH who lives near the plant, said the changes thus far are "beyond his wildest dreams."

"Owners have come through before and done a lot of talking with no results," Puhl said. "I am totally amazed at what is being done. It's precedent setting. I've spent more

Shop Locally This Season

Here's 10 Good Reasons Why:

- 1 Your Tax Bill.
When you shop in local stores, part of every dollar goes to pay local taxes.
- 2 Employment.
Local businesses employ local residents, creating jobs for you, your children, your friends and your neighbors.
- 3 Quality.
Products purchased locally are backed by the reputation of the local merchant who sold them. Follow-up service is handled personally.
- 4 Save Money.
Save time, save gas. Local merchants offer competitive prices but you have to shop here to compare!
- 5 Variety.
When you can't find what you want, ask the merchant. They'll order it or tell you where to find it.
- 6 Selection.
You actually determine which goods and services are available in your area by creating a demand for them.
- 7 Economic Development.
That dollar you spend locally does the work of $5.00, it recirculates five times! Spend it elsewhere and it's gone forever.
- 8 Community Interest.
Local merchants generously support the interests of your kids and grand kids thus opening a wide range of opportunities through organizations, schools and churches.
- 9 Personal Service.
When you're having trouble deciding what to buy, local merchants gladly offer their time and advice to help you, because they know you.
- 10 Concern.
When you shop locally you're more than just a face in the crowd. You'll shop at your leisure knowing you're contributing to the betterment of your home town.

Community Lunch Program in jeopardy

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Times are dire for the local Community Lunch Program as volunteer workers drop to an all-time low.

For nearly two decades the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix has provided people in Charlevoix with a hot midday meal. But, according to Community Lunch Program volunteer Pat Phillips of St. Mary's parish, without much needed volunteers, those benefiting from the meals and fellowship may find themselves out in the cold when the noon whistle blows.

"The volunteers cook the food, but we have don't have enough volunteers right now," she said. "A lady named Susan Mossman, who is cooking at least eight to 12 times a month, is doing the food preparation and buying some of the food."

If concerned citizens don't step forward, Phillips said, "They're going to be without a lunch that day. And they're going to miss the socialization. It's a nice place where people can come and share a meal together."

Mossman said, "We don't need donations. We would just love to have some volunteers who feel the same way we do."

Mossman stepped in when she found the program in jeopardy.

"There are lots of folks in this town unemployed or barely hanging on," she said. "When they were going to dispose of it my husband and I said we're not going to let that happen."

According to Phillips, the Charlevoix Ministerial Association started the lunch program so those in need would have one less thing to worry about.

"The program (goal) is to provide a hot meal to people because there was a need to feed the hungry," she said.

said.

While the program is aimed at those in need, Mossman said, "This program is for anybody. If you breathe and walk through that door we'll serve you."

As it stands right now, the program will close in the middle of December and reopen when Mossman and her husband come back to Charlevoix in May.

The best part about working the lunch program, Mossman said, "Is that we get to love and serve anyone that sits at the table."

According to Phillips, the amount of people who come to lunch is representative of a much larger number who need to be served.

"Right now it's anywhere from 16 to 20 (people) a day — the numbers are really up," Phillips said. "I've been doing this for several years and only one or two would come for lunch when I started, but more consistently the numbers are getting greater and the need has increased."

According to Phillips, she doesn't understand why there is such a lack Volunteers are needed for lunch program to continue

of help in this area.

"This is almost sickening," she said. "I have called almost every church in Charlevoix and only one person has responded."

According to Phillips, the work isn't difficult. In fact, she said, one volunteer can handle 20 people without any problem if the person prepares the meal in advance. And lunch can be anything from stew and biscuits to soup and sandwiches.

Without volunteers to work the program, "It's going to shut down," Phillips said.

She added, "And I've heard different comments that people can go elsewhere or to the senior center for $3 a day, but $3 can be a lot of money for some people."

In addition, Phillips said, people feel welcome when they come in for lunch and that is something that cannot be replaced.

Lunch is served between 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix located on 104 State St.

Anyone wishing to volunteer can contact Mossman at (231) 582-6539.

Lady Rayder basketball suffers loss at regional

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

It was a bittersweet end to a great season for the Charlevoix Rayders as their comeback fell short against Kingsley, 66-63 in regional play.

The Rayders trailed by 12 headed into the fourth quarter but they cut the lead to one with 10 seconds remaining and Laura Nitchman's three-point shot at the buzzer just missed.

"We competed at the highest level in the state," coach Keith Haske said. "If (Kingsley's) not in the state finals, it will be an upset. I'm just so proud of our team, to be down like we were and have a chance to go into overtime against those kids, I was super impressed."

Shannon Dibble keyed the Rayder rally, as Kingsley led by double digits with four minutes remaining. The surge started after a Kingsley missed layup and Dibble took advantage with a three-point shot. In all, Dibble sunk three three-pointers in the last four minutes of play, including one with 10 seconds left to cut the lead to one.

"It was a great way for her to go out," Haske said of Dibble. "It was definitely one of her better games."

Dibble finished with a career high 18 points, all on three pointers. Nitchman finished with 15 points, six assists and five steals.

Lori Zimmerman and Bethany Pearson each had eight points. Stevie Murray pulled down nine rebounds.

"When it's all over, even though we didn't win, we took it to the highest level," Haske observed. "That's something you can hang your hat on. This team came a long way this season."

The Rayders were done in by 4 for 19 shooting in the third quarter when the Lady Stags (22-1) built their cushion.

In district play, Charlevoix took their second straight title, defeating Inland Lakes, 65-35 in the second round and Boyne City, 64-44 in the district championship. The Rayders, who finished their season with a 20-4 record, also have won two straight Lake Michigan Conference crowns.

Against Inland Lakes, Pearson led the Rayders with 10 points. Pearson scored nine. Madison Ramsey and Murray each had eight.

Nitchman paced the Charlevoix attack against Boyne with an 18 point, six rebound, three assist and seven steal effort. Ramsey scored nine.

Dismantling Big Rock's trademark sphere

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Those familiar with the giant steel sphere which once housed the nuclear reactor at Big Rock Point might have noticed a change — it's nearly gone.

According to Big Rock Point decommissioning project manager, Bill Trubilowicz, deconstruction of the sphere is nearly complete.

"It's probably about 80 percent complete," he said. "You can't see it in the park anymore."

The sphere, which used to stand 120 feet high and 130 feet in diameter is now down to one ring above grade.

"There were eight rows of pieces that came down and now we're down to row one," Trubilowicz said.

The 2 million pound sphere, which is made of three quarters of an inch thick steel welded together, was designed to contain any release of steam inside the 30 foot high reactor which was removed in 2003.

Currently, nearly 20 people from the demolition crew Berlein of Midland, are working to dismantle the sphere with cutting torches in a hanging crane. Once the sphere is cut into pieces, lowered to the ground, cleaned and decontaminated, it will be cut into smaller pieces for disposal at an industrial landfill in Waters.

The below ground portion of the sphere's foundation, which consists of poured concrete reinforced with steel re-bar runs about 30 feet and should be removed by the second half of 2006.

According to Trubilowicz, the recent days of high winds haven't been a boon to productivity.

"It's a pretty intense job. The dangerous part about it is working aloft — as high as 120 feet in the air," he said. "Obviously, you have a very strict safety protocol in place. Because when you're working aloft, you cannot work in winds 25 miles per hour and above."

He added, "We haven't been cutting any pieces the last few days. But we planned weather delays into the schedule."

Trubilowicz said as the sphere begins to disappear, the Big Rock Point site doesn't look the same.

"If there was ever any of our buildings that defined us and our plant, it's that we had a sphere sitting on the ground," he said. "The sphere was literally the image and symbol of Big Rock Point, not only to our employees, but also to the community."

He added, "It is a stark visual and emotional feeling you get when you pull into the site and see it gone now. It really brings to home that the decommissioning is coming to a close."

According to Tim Petrosky, Big Rock Point public affairs director, decommissioning of the plant property should be done by fall of next year.

"A vast majority of the site will be free for unrestricted use," Petrosky said.

While that use has yet to be determined, the dry fuel storage facility will remain for a few years.

"The estimate remains that we hope to begin shipping fuel in to Yucca Mountain (Nev.) in 2010 and that would wrap up in 2011," he said. "The hope is that Big Rock Point would be to greenfield status by 2012."

Greenfield status is a term used by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission which basically means that a location which once housed a nuclear plant can have its radioactivity levels lowered to the point that the property can be released for public or private sale.

Petrosky said the hope is the final site survey will occur in 2006, which should yield about 1.5 miles of lakefront property for a total of 530 acres of Big Rock Point's 560 acres of land to be salable.

The other 30 acres will house the dry fuel storage facility which is approximately the size of a basketball court.

At 35 years, Big Rock holds the record as the longest running nuclear power station in the country and is one of 19 nuclear plants either decommissioned or in the process of doing so. The plant officially ceased providing power in 1997 because it was deemed no longer economically viable and efforts have been taken since it's closing to decommission the landmark.

When all the work is complete, the Big Rock decommissioning should take less than two decades.

By federal law, nuclear power plants have up to 60 years to decommission.

The projected budget was $366 million with the project at $325 million last May.

Slippery roads lead to accidents across town

Kindergartner Levi Carson spent part of his Friday afternoon shoveling snow. More squalls are expected to roll through Charlevoix this week.

rologist with the Gaylord post of the National Weather Service, in all the storm spilled about 6 inches of snow on Charlevoix.

He said a weak, low pressure system that drifted into the area Wednesday night, Nov. 16, brought light snow with it and passed through. But later that night northwest winds hit the light storm's back side and kicked up lake effect snow that lasted into Thursday morning.

A second lake effect snow band along the Lake Michigan shoreline swept through Friday, Nov. 18. Schneider said incidents were reported but the number of motorist mishaps, "wasn't anything like Thursday."

Celliti said this first storm is a taste of what is to come this week. He said traces of light snow are expected throughout the week with another round of lake effect storms in store for Friday.

While some cringe at the thought of gnarly commutes, snow lovers at Mt. McSaubia are gearing up for an early start to the ski season.

Mt. McSaubia manager, Bo Boss, said snow guns were blowing snow at the local ski hill Nov. 17 and 18. He added that all systems are go and he expects to continue blowing snow full-time this week with a projected Dec. 19 or 20 opening date.

Will Charlevoix make the Cool Cities cut?

DDA fields state Blueprint Program pitch

By JULIE WITTHOEF
Editor

Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority members were receptive to a pitch from city manager Mike Wiesner and city planner Gerry Harsch to pursue the state's Blueprint Program, an offshoot of the popular Cool Cities initiative.

"Our best chance is the Blueprint Program. It's more of a marketing program that looks at a mix of factors including business improvement, the longevity of businesses and bringing businesses in," Harsch said.

Harsch said Charlevoix's two major economic issues area lack of vacant space in downtown and the seasonal nature of business.

The Blueprint Program is steered by The Michigan Economic Development Corporation which has its headquarters in Lansing.

This same program, aimed at boosting Charlevoix's economic climate, was presented by representatives of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce in February of 2003 but Wiesner told the authority the political climate at the time squashed it.

"Plans and studies were not a good thing then politically. I didn't feel it would be well received and said I couldn't support it. It was a different political environment," he said.

Studies he alluded to include one that looked at a conference center locating in town, another aimed at solving the seasonal traffic problem and a third to develop a strategic plan for the chamber.

Wiesner said now he hears citizen groups, members of the chamber and representatives of the city staff discussing ways to improve the local economy and it's time to present a united front.

"The cities that have done it have felt good about it. I think it really has the potential to focus us," Wiesner said.

The Blueprint Program which was pursued in Cheboygan is less intensive than Main Street which has been underway in Boyne City since 2003.

Acacia crew to distribute 200 Christmas trees locally

By JULIE WITTHOEF
Editor

The crew of the Acacia will spend their last scheduled Christmas in Charlevoix's Round Lake harbor distributing 200 live trees to those in need.

According to Kathy Lott, executive director of the Harbor Springs Chamber of Commerce, since 2000 the Cheboygan based cutter Mackinaw has revived a tradition reaching back to the late 1800s when ships traversed Lake Michigan's rough winter waters to deliver Christmas trees to fire decimated Chicago, Ill.

While times have changed, the spirit of that mission, now carried out by the largest and oldest ice breaking vessel in the Coast Guard's ninth district fleet, the Mackinaw, hasn't. This week, the ship's deck will be packed with 1,000 trees waiting to brighten the lives of the deprived during the holiday season.

This is the first year in the past five that the Mackinaw's load will be lightened before reaching the windy city. The plan is to distribute 200 trees to Emmet County residents and another 200 to Charlevoix area residents before continuing on to Chicago, Ill.

pick up the local load of 200 trees, from 4 to 7 p.m. today, Nov. 30, at the Pier Dock in Little Traverse Bay in Harbor Springs.

After an overnight filled with festivities including dockside caroling, excerpts from the Little Traverse Civic Theatre's "The Christmas Schooner" play and a crew member reception at Stafford's Pier Restaurant, the Acacia will return to its port in Charlevoix to unload.

According to United States Coast Guard ensign George Columbic, the trees will be unloaded near the Beaver Island Boat Company storage area on Thursday.

Columbic said the quick turn around time is necessary so the Acacia crew can set out on a buoy tending mission near St. Ignace.

"We can't put buoys on the buoy deck when we have 200 Christmas trees aboard," he said.

The crew will return from its mission late next week and will distribute the trees at that time.

Both the Acacia and the Mackinaw are scheduled to be decommissioned in 2006 making this the final Christmas Tree Ship voyage both will participate in.

For more information, crew members of the Acacia can be reached at (231) 547-4447.

DDA discusses application for state Blueprint Program

Under the Blueprint Program, a consultant does a week-long market study of the downtown, including visits from the state preservation group and the housing authority. From the results of the study, goals are established and an action plan is developed to meet those goals. About 11 of these programs are done throughout the year in Michigan.

In a previous interview, Laura Bower, a team specialist with the state development group, said funding for the Blueprint Program depends on the community's population but is generally a match with the development corporation footing the bill for half and the community paying the other half.

Wiesner told the authority that the program cost is about $30,000 and if an application the city plans to submit in March of 2006 is denied, funds will have to come from elsewhere but the model of the program should still be pursued.

Authority member John Yaroch questioned why the city should wait until March to act and suggested hiring the consulting firm used by the Blueprint Program, HyettPalma, now.

"We are about three years behind the eight ball here," he said. "Let's not sit here and wait for the cart to lead the horse."

Mayor Norman Carlson told Yaroch that by going through the grant request process Charlevoix is eligible for Cool Cities status.

Bower said that in evaluating Blueprint applications the development group is looking for someone in the community who will implement the action plan.

There was no discussion as to who this would be.

Ring in 2006 with cheers and jeers from 2005

Julie Witthoeft

'Just a thought'

Charlevoix is a hotbed of political controversy, fun-filled events and community outreach efforts.

In the midst of all the hustle and bustle are residents and visitors, each of who hold strong opinions as to how things could and should be.

As we slide into 2006, the courier staff and I want to get your gears turning. It's time to look back at the highs and lows of 2005.

I am compiling a list of those moments in 2005 that made readers smile, sweat, tear, cheer and jeer. Those things that make Charlevoix the sweet treat that on occasion leaves a nasty taste in your mouth.

In the form below, jot down what made you cheer or jeer and why. We will run the results in the first paper of the new year to be published Jan. 4, 2006.

A few political highlights to jog your trampled memory from this busy year include the banning of dogs from most of East Park and intense elections where East Park changes were approved and a Charlevoix Township "big box" ordinance passed.

The big meal the election served up was followed by a cherry-topped sundae when three members of Charlevoix's City Council set out to oust city manager Mike Wiesner.

While political struggles plagued 2005 and I'm sure will continue to pepper the paper in 2006, there were also plenty of projects that were completed. City council voted to save Brookside Chapel, the city hall renovation project wrapped up, the Charlevoix Skatepark and the new Charlevoix Public Library continued their courses toward completion and a new VFW hall rose from the ashes of its predecessor after burning to the ground.

Reflections of the community's selflessness and caring were shown in outreach efforts that took place in January of 2005 when a tsunami hit Indonesia and again this fall when hurricanes Katrina and Rita ravaged the southern United States.

Event success stories include the country kick-off to the annual Venetian Festival which took place at the Castle, art and craft fairs, Apple Fest and Symphony on the Green.

My jeer for the year is the event that never was when the city turned 100 this summer. City officials said a summer ice-cream social would take place but it never did—City administrators dropped the ball on that one. A fantastic opportunity to celebrate our community came and went.

With that off my chest, I look forward to reading your cheers and jeers as they filter in during the month of December.

If clip and send isn't your thing, feel free to e-mail me your thoughts.

Letters to the editor

Wiesner should be kept
Editor:

The mayor and city council of Charlevoix. Please permit me to express my very grievous concerns regarding your consideration of terminating the services of Mike Wiesner, city manager. I cannot attend the meeting (Nov. 21 Charlevoix City Council meeting) because I have the duty to attend a county parks and recreation meeting also scheduled for 7 p.m.

Mike has been the major contributor to the greatly improved appearance, functionality and infrastructure of our fair city. He has been instrumental in obtaining funding, gaining approvals and implementing successfully such projects as Bridge Park, the golf course, the ongoing improvements to the municipal airport, the city hall, the electrical system and substation, the in-progress work to beautify the waterfront and replace the shabby docks and restrooms. Prior to Mike we changed city managers too frequently and ended up with few major improvements.

Our strong manager form of government has the major asset of keeping continuity by using the leadership of a professional, relatively free from political influence. To undo that is to put the vitality of Charlevoix at risk.

To avoid the appearance of conflict of interest each council person voting for removal must declare that they will not, under any circumstances, be a candidate for the office of city manager.

Before voting, each person needs to be aware that the issues regarding the treatment plant were brought to the attention of the DEQ (Michigan Department of Environmental Quality) by this city manager, not the other way around. A very bad situation was mitigated, wrongdoing was punished. In short, it was perfectly handled.

Blaming the city manager (or the treasurer) for not foreseeing and avoiding criminal activity on the part of a third party is akin to making a homeowner responsible because an unknown drunken snowmobile operator kills or injures someone while trespassing on that property. But, if you do consider them responsible, how can you consider firing one and putting the other in his position? I do not consider either to be responsible but, instead, looked for faster criminal action and fund recovery by those in our legal system.

Editor's note: This letter was submitted prior to the Nov. 21 Charlevoix City Council meeting when a motion to fire city manager Mike Wiesner failed in a tie vote.

Successful blood drive
Editor:

I want to express huge and heartfelt thanks to all of you who braved the first taste of winter in Charlevoix to attend the American Red Cross blood drive on Thursday, Nov. 17.

"You" include not only the staff of the Community Reformed Church, who provided a warm, bright sanctuary, but also my staff of remarkable volunteers whose friendly and sincere smiles welcomed close to 100 donors inside from the frigid (25 degrees) outdoors.

I am also imagining how grateful the up to 300 recipients of the blood must be.

A total of 102 pints were collected.

lected between the Type O drive on Nov. 15 hosted by Bethany Lutheran Church and Edith Dale's staff, and the community blood drive on Nov. 17. Each pint can be separated into as many as three blood products to help the sick and injured.

Thank you to the Lions Club for once again providing the workers necessary to set up and take down all of the Red Cross equipment. The ferocious winds attacked my banners but the Charlevoix Electric Department did their best to protect them. Thanks to my wonderful bakers for all of the delicious treats.

The blood donors in Charlevoix are absolutely the greatest. I hope to see all of you again (except for a few snowbirds) at our next blood drive on Jan. 19, 2006. New donors are always most welcome. Come, join us.

Senior party donations needed
Editor:

It certainly takes a community to raise a child and our community does a great job thanks to your generosity. The All Night Senior Party Committee is in the process of planning a fun, safe and memorable after-graduation party for the class of 2006 to celebrate their accomplishments and we need your help.

Planning an event of this magnitude for a class of 100 seniors takes a lot of time and money. We have a dedicated committee that has committed the time but need your help in our efforts to raise the needed funds to host this event. The committee has planned several fund-raising events such as a spaghetti dinner, student-faculty basketball game, raffles and more.

We hope that you can help out by contributing a cash donation or merchandise for silent auctions or raffles. Your contribution will be much appreciated and will not go unrecognized. With your donation your business will be acknowledged at all of the fund-raising events held throughout the year.

Donations can be made payable to "Charlevoix High School - Senior Party 2006" and mailed to Citizen's Bank, Attn. Lorraine Niswander, 201 State St., Charlevoix, MI 49720. A member of our committee will be personally contacting you soon to ask for your help. In the meantime, if you should have questions please feel free to contact me at (231) 547-4991. Thank you in advance for your continuing generosity. We couldn't do it without you.

Letter response

Editor:
Bill Supernaw wrote an interesting timely letter "Support East Park," page 5 of the Nov. 2 edition of the Charlevoix Courier. In response:

East Park — the City of Charlevoix approved 2005 to honor the Neff Bros. for their 1954 gift of docks and land on the Charlevoix harbor with an appreciation plaque to be installed at the new marina building to be constructed at the foot of Clinton Street.

In the city's researching the sale of land to the city on the harbor from Clinton Street to Antrim Street, 1896 to the present, it will be interesting to see who, if any others gifted harbor property and docks to the city.

Memorial Day — In 2005, I watched the Memorial Day Parade in front of Bill Supernaw's "Aunt Dodo's" house. The Memorial Day parade was memorable complete with an oversized U.S. Army truck carrying a few veterans not walking to town. This U.S. Army truck with room for many more could have easily driven amongst the Memorial Day Parade to Charlevoix's Brookside Cemetery.

To cease the traditional observance on Memorial/Decoration

Day at Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix, there is no excuse.

There is something special about the services in Brookside on Memorial Day including the cemetery, the cannon, the Gettysburg Address, Charlevoix High School Band, scouts and others speaking from the portable stage with U.S. flags placed one by one at markers, many flowers from those who remembered especially our war dead. This is important for all generations, respect.

Memorial/Decoration Day is not Venetian, Craft/Art Fair, Applefest. The City voters had no voice in moving Memorial Day to East Park.

Grieving family's gratitude
Editor:

It is with much gratitude that I write this letter. Our family is most appreciative for the outpouring of sympathy and support shown to us during the last two weeks.

Dinners, flowers, cards, donations, kind words, shared remembrances and kindness of all sorts have flowed through our home and into our hearts. I know that Rich would have been overwhelmed and forever grateful for this tribute, as is all of his family.

Visiting family and friends were amazed at the community response. We are so fortunate to be part of town that wraps its arms around you as you grieve.

Lions Club Christmas tree sale on now in East Park

The Charlevoix Lions Club will kick off its annual Christmas tree fund-raiser sale today, Nov. 30 at the foot of Clinton Street in Charlevoix's East Park.

This year the Lions will feature Fraser Firs, Black Hills Spruce and Blue Spruce.

Since these trees are going to be short-term "centers of attention" in many homes over the Christmas season, here is a little background information about each variety which might add to its particular status and "pedigree."

The Fraser Fir was named after John Fraser, (1750-1811), a Scotsman horticulturist and plant hunter, who traveled in North Carolina's western Appalachians in the late 1780s to early 1800s. He collected and introduced specimens to European, particularly English, gardeners, all of whom avidly sought to outdo each other with rare items from the "New World." Lions' Frasers are grown locally and have been bred to withstand more northern colder weather.

The Black Hills Spruce is the state tree of South Dakota. It is a unique variety of the white spruce and its ancestry has been traced back over 500,000 years. Lions' trees, of course, are off-shoots of the originals and are grown in local tree farms.

The Blue Spruce is the state tree of both Colorado and Utah with a long heritage of growth in the snowy Rockies. The trees to be sold in East Park were grown locally.

Charlevoix Lions Club members will staff the Christmas tree sale from 4 to 8 p.m. weekdays, from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturdays and from noon to 6 p.m. Sundays.

Charlevoix Public Schools holiday band concerts will take place in December in the Charlevoix High School auditorium.

Toys for Tots holiday gift drive underway

By BENJAMIN GOHS
 Staff writer

For nearly 60 years the Toys For Tots program has brightened the lives of needy children during the Christmas season.

According to Charlevoix area Toys For Tots coordinator, Russell Bolt, thanks to local volunteers, the program continues to grow each year in Charlevoix.

"I feel it's like giving back to the community. I like to do that from a service work perspective," he said. "And anyone who was in the armed forces can be a regular member."

According to Bolt, the main reason he works with this program year after year is because he was so fortunate when he was younger.

"I had a wonderful childhood with a lot of wonderful Christmas' and that's maybe what got me into this," he said. "There are an awful lot of kids who don't have what we had and don't ever get the opportunity to have the things we had."

Bolt said the local Toys For Tots group is affiliated with the Northern Michigan Marine Corps League Detachment and services Charlevoix, East Jordan, Harbor Springs, Petoskey, Alanson, Cheboygan, Indian River, Burt Lake and Boyne City.

"Last year I think we raised over 4,000 toys," Bolt said. "The toys which are collected and sorted in each of those areas are kept in those areas and redistributed."

According to Bolt, all the toys donated in the county are sorted by a group of dedicated people from the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project.

"Plus many other wonderful volunteers from local churches, schools and the Coast Guard," he said.

Bolt said, in addition to the many drop boxes located in the Charlevoix area, some of the Charlevoix Elementary School students plan to help.

This will be the third year Nicole Sterret's second grade class will collect pennies and use the money to buy toys for the Toys for Tots program at Kmart. Last year, the class raised over $400. The penny drive runs from Nov. 28 through Dec. 9.

"The kids not only feel good about volunteering, but also about going out and purchasing the toys, so it's a good learning process for them," he said.

New, unwrapped toys can be donated at any of the following drop boxes up to Dec. 12: Kmart; Dollar Tree; Ace Hardware; Rite Aid; Copy Plus; Altel; Glens Markets; Bolt's Studio; Pat McKeown Ford; Harbor Industries; Holiday Gas Station; Oleson's Farm Fresh Markets; The Clothing Company; and LexaLite International Corp.

"The Toys For Tots program helped nearly 500 people in the Charlevoix area last year," Bolt said. "I think a lot of families can't afford an awful lot of extra gifts, without this program they just wouldn't have (them)."

Anyone wishing to help with monetary donations can mail them to Russell Bolt, P.O. Box 427, Charlevoix MI, 49720.

Anyone else who needs a collection box can call Bolt at (231) 547-4855 for more information.

Charlie Butcher, Russell Bolt and Ken Staley of the Marine Corps League, Northern Michigan Detachment are just a few of the many Toys for Tots volunteers in the area.

Trademark to close its doors in January

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

A long-time Charlevoix landmark will soon close its doors for good.

Kris Way, owner and operator of Trademark Gifts & Collectibles located at 113 Bridge St. in Charlevoix plans to close the store shortly after Christmas.

"We are going to close the first week of January. We're liquidating the merchandise right now," she said.

According to Way, she wants to spend more time with her children and help her husband with his new business, Pine River Logs, where she will work part-time. She and her husband Barney have two children in college and three at home who are active in school.

"We have five children and my husband is starting a new company south of town making manufactured logs in the old Hoskins building," she said. "Pine River Logs will hopefully employ about 40 people eventually."

Way originally bought Trademark from Fred DiMartino in October 1996.

"Then we moved to the 113 Bridge St. location, but it has been Trademark of Charlevoix for a long, long time," she said.

According to Way, while she is excited to spend more time with the family, there are some things she will miss about operating her own store.

"Really it's been a great learning experience," she said. "I learned all about the retail business."

And, she added, "The best thing for me was meeting the different people. I really enjoyed the people that came back year after year. That's something I'm going to miss."

Anyone looking for savings on Trademark's jewelry, ladies apparel and collectibles has about six weeks to enjoy shopping there.

"We will be doing progressive sales," which, she said, began the Friday after Thanksgiving and will run through the holidays.

Once Trademark's doors are closed in January the building will be available for sale or lease.

"We have it up for lease and had a couple inquiries on both ways," she said.

While Way has no plans to open another retail business in the near future, it is always a possibility.

"If it works out that way, I'm not opposed to it," she said.

Community pledge retail event earns $850 for non-profits

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

On Monday, Nov. 28 the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, led by president, Jacqueline Merta, dispersed checks to nonprofit organizations benefiting from the recent retail event "A Community Pledge."

A Community Pledge took place on Saturday, Nov. 5 with participating local retailers donating 10 percent of certain sales to nonprofit organizations.

"It was $850 for our first year attempt, which I think was a great way of giving back to the community," Merta said.

According to Merta, this event gave people the opportunity to do some Christmas shopping with the knowledge they are also helping their favorite cause.

"This $850 represents 10 percent of what was spent that day," she said. "We thought this was a win-win situation and a win-win project for nonprofit organizations and the business community."

Some of the businesses which participated include: American Spoon Foods, Bridge Street Book Shop, Brittany's, C2 Gallery, Central Drug Store, Charlevoix Harbor Wear, The Clothing Company, Elements, Hallway to the Top, Kilwin's, Marvin's Gardens, Rocking Horse Toy Company and Shop of the Gulls.

"I think it went over really well for the first year. We have made a commitment to do it the first Saturday of November (through 2007)," she said. "We're hoping everybody will put this date on their calendars and shop that day to raise money for their favorite nonprofit organization."

The event was sponsored by the Retail Committee of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce as a means for retailers to increase holiday sales and support local charities and nonprofit organizations.

The following people were present Monday to collect donated funds on behalf of their nonprofit group: Barb Godwin-Shulick for the Charlevoix Children's House; Elke Maierhofer for Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Home; Tom Carey for the Northwest Shrine Club; Patti Barnaw for the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation; Roger Nesburg for Charlevoix Cub Scouts, Pack 11; Cheri Leach for Raven Hill Discovery Center; Jacqueline Dipert, Chairman of Retail Committee; Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce board of directors, Jim Berlage; Celia Kelly for BASES; Pam Barnes with the Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation; Gary Stutzman of Northwest Academy; Suzanne Muma of The Bergmann Center; Al Gooch for the Charlevoix Area Community Pool; and Gregory Tate for the Charlevoix County Humane Society.

Merta said as long as this program is appreciated by merchants, customers and nonprofit organizations she will support it.

"We will evaluate this program at the end of three years and if this is a successful program we (may) want to continue doing it for more than three years," she said. "Hopefully we have more stores next year and more nonprofit (organizations)."

Daredevils continue holiday tradition despite weather

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Thanksgiving Day for a Charlevoix family is the perfect opportunity for a family gathering, turkey dinner and an icy swim in Lake Michigan.

For three years now, John McNabb of Charlevoix has taken time out of his busy turkey day for a dip in the Great Lake and he isn't the only one.

"My son and I have done it for three years and this is the second for public involvement," he said.

John's son, Douglas, said he isn't sure why his dad started the event, but he enjoys it nonetheless.

"My dad just got a crazy idea to go swimming on Thanksgiving Day," Douglas said.

According to Douglas, he plans to do this every year for awhile.

"It wasn't as bad as you think, because right as you got the coat off you went numb pretty quickly," he said. "It's fun. It was painful, but I managed — I'm still alive. The pain was only temporary and it was for a good cause."

This year's swim didn't last long and according to John, it doesn't need to.

"Everybody has to swim underwater for three strokes — that counts as a swim," he said.

A group of more than 10 people gathered, but only two braved the frigid water. At about 10:45 a.m. Nov. 24, John walked to the water's edge and stuck his toe in just to get a feel for the eleven o'clock swim.

John and Douglas were on the beach at 11:01 a.m. and back in their vehicles shivering by 11:03 a.m.

"It was almost a burning sensation," John said. "The wind-chill was extremely painful."

According to John, in past years there was a little snow on the ground when he took his plunge, but never anything like this year.

"This (is) the first year with blizzard conditions and 40 mph winds," he said.

John said 13 or 14 people had committed to the swim but, with wintry conditions worsening as the week progressed, the number of participants dwindled.

He said it took sitting in a hot tub, taking a hot shower and standing in front of the fireplace to bring his core temperature back to normal.

But, he added, "We were okay within an hour."

The event, which is sponsored by Take A Breath, Inc. of Charlevoix, was just for fun for the first couple of years, but this year's event had a twist.

"This year it's a charity thing. We'll be raising some money for a local cancer survivor," he said.

The anonymous recipient doesn't know about the help she'll soon receive, John said.

"This is just a straight cash pledge to a local cancer survivor who did not have insurance and went through two radical mastectomies and she is a single mother of two," he said.

According to John, regardless of the weather, he will be there again next year and anyone with a good heart is welcome to attend.

"I'd have done it for free and it just makes it all that much better to do it for a charity cause," he said. "If you're bored with the parades on Thanksgiving Day and have deep inner warmth, c'mon and do it, it's just something fun."

He added, "We'll be there next year."

The event raised over $1,500 so far. Anyone wishing to donate to the cause can contact John McNabb at (231) 631-4574 or (231) 237-0380.

Guess who supports the local boy scouts, little league, etc.

Local merchants are the same people that serve as scoutmasters, coaches or fund raisers for your community. These merchants donate many hours of time and effort to building and improving the community for everyone. If they prosper — we all prosper.

Shopping locally ensures that your money will stay at home supporting the things we all need and enjoy. Each dollar spent locally is returned many times over in local services for you and your family.

Think about it! Do you want your money supporting parks, streets or service in some other city? And when is the last time a big city merchant took a local scout troop camping for the weekend?

Beaver Island Community Center under construction

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

A community center is being built in downtown St. James on Beaver Island to serve local teens, seniors and event goers as well as tourists.

"We've got some targeted groups to benefit from the project, in particular our youth on the island, who have no place to go. We don't have a movie theater, shopping mall or arcade, there's nothing for them to do," said Jacque LaFreniere, secretary of the Preservation Association of Beaver Island, the group steering the community center project.

Almost 12 years ago, a group of Beaver Island residents decided to form the Preservation Association of Beaver Island to preserve a key landmark on beautiful Paradise Bay. At that time, it was called Dockside Market, but it went through several hands in the more than 100 years that it stood welcoming visitors to Beaver Island as they disembarked from the ferry.

The association's 14-member board of directors planned to create a community center for the island in this old market but the structure was unsound and was consequently torn down. Now, a new community center is being built in its place, across from the ferry boat dock off Main Street.

According to LaFreniere the new 9,000 square-foot community center will include three main areas. The first is a welcoming center that will include the Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce, and a lobby area around which a historical mural will span. The second is a youth and senior center which will provide a place for both young people and senior citizens to spend time, with games, computers and space for their favorite pastimes. The third is an event center that will be used for movies, theatrical and musical performances, family reunions, weddings and more. A kitchen will be included in this area also.

"This center won't be taxpayer funded. Money will come from what we generate through the events center," LaFreniere said.

The total cost of the project is $2 million. So far, islanders have contributed $1.3 million.

"We are proud of the fact that we managed to do that much," LaFreniere said. "Not all of the money is in hand to complete the project but the board feels that now is the time to begin."

A letter drive to Charlevoix and Petoskey businesses will get underway soon to attempt to raise the rest.

"The people that come here and live here are pretty tapped out with major fund-raising. We need to go off island now. So we are looking to people who do business with islanders," LaFreniere said.

The preservation association has spent much of the past 12 years designing, and redesigning the final product, and fund-raising. The Preservation Association of Beaver Island opted to build the facility in three phases — framing, finishing and furnishing.

Funds are available to complete the first phase which started in October the goal is to complete framing by February or March.

Those who wish to donate to the project can direct funds to the Preservation Association of Beaver Island, a registered 501(c)(3) corporation. All donations are tax-deductible and funds are managed through the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

There are several levels of giving available. Founding Family, Friend or Business, Endowed Chair or general do-

Local students to participate in People to People

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Four Charlevoix Middle School students are currently trying to raise $4,629 each to go on a goodwill trip to Australia next summer.

Stirling Witthoeft, 11, Chandler Novotny, 10, Sydney Carlson, 10 and Becky Evans, 11, along with 30 to 40 other northern Michigan students, have been selected to participate in the People to People Student Ambassador Program.

According to Novotny, this is a distinct honor which he will always remember.

"I think it's important," Novotny said. "We get to go represent the United States and learn about the other cultures in Australia. And they can learn about us."

According to former United States President, Dwight D. Eisenhower, if average citizens across the globe, had the opportunity to meet, the meeting could go a long way in promoting peace, understanding and tolerance.

As a result, in 1956, Eisenhower created the People to People Ambassador Program.

But, it wasn't until seven years later that the Student Ambassador Program was created to allow young people to also carry out the mission of People to People.

The Charlevoix Middle School students were chosen for their different attributes and positive features.

"Some of us were chosen for different things," Witthoeft said. "Becky was chosen for her amazing test scores and I was chosen for being an amazingly good student."

Witthoeft said she is curious about the possible cultural differences and similarities.

"I want to learn how it's different here from over here," she said. "And, I'd like to see the wild animals like kangaroos and koala bears."

According to Carlson, she is a little

Central Dispatch receives $200,000 technology grant

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The ability of local police and emergency service personnel to do their jobs more efficiently was recently given a financial boost by the federal government.

According to Bob Bradley, executive director of the Central Dispatch Charlevoix-Cheboygan-Emmet 911 call center, the center was given $200,000. He explained that the funds will go toward the $2 million cost of upgrading Central Dispatch's radio infrastructure as well as its technological upgrades to their mobile data system.

The mobile data system includes laptop computers which law enforcement have in their vehicles which Bradley said are currently being added to EMS vehicles and ambulances.

"They'll be able to have the call right on their screen when we dispatch them including a map to the incident," he said.

According to Bradley, Central Dispatch has pursued these upgrades over the past two years.

"This is a continuation of a grant we received last year. We received $247,000 last year," he said. "This is fairly expensive and $200,000 will go a long way to help with the project."

He added, "If it weren't for those funds, the extra $200,000, the cost would be born by the three counties. So, to have money come back to us from the federal government greatly helps everybody in the tri-county area."

According to Bradley, this year's grant should cover approximately 10 percent of the overall technology budget.

The funds doled out to Central Dispatch Charlevoix-Cheboygan-Emmet, are part of $90 million in discretionary funds released from the office of Community Oriented Policing Services (COPS) of the United States Department of Justice for the Interoperable Communications Technology program. The moneys are designated to enhance public safety communications systems. The funds are also designated to resolve voice and data interoperability issues.

The mobile data systems in emergency service vehicles will allow EMS workers to find residences more efficiently and to see any notes concerning a particular call and any previous calls at that address.

According to Charlevoix Deputy Chief of Police, Scott Hankins, the mobile data systems located in squad cars offer an additional tool in everyday police work.

"As is the case with all computers — sometimes they don't work," he said. "It's certainly an additional tool, but it's not a replacement for the dispatchers."

While this is just another manner of accomplishing the same work,

Hankins said, there are some advantages to having the mobile data system.

"We can communicate with other patrol cars instead of putting it over the radio. We can communicate with central dispatch and we have maps," Hankins said. "We can see all the notes a dispatcher typed in and we can run our own LEIN (Law Enforcement Information Network) information which can free up the dispatcher sometimes."

In a recent press release from Michigan Senators Carl Levin and Debbie Stabenow, they state the importance of the allocation of these funds.

"I have led the fight in Congress to ensure that first responders have the communications equipment they need to work together in an emergency, and this legislation will help Michigan's first responders move toward that goal," Stabenow stated. "In addition, this bill makes important investments in science, business, and tourism, which means jobs for the state. This is important legislation for Michigan."

Levin stated, "Keeping Michigan's families safe and secure is one of my most important concerns. This measure contains critical funding for the law enforcement officials and first responders on whom we all depend. I'm pleased that we were successful in securing funding for such a wide array of Michigan's top priorities."

SEE-North lifts admission fees to exploration center

SEE-North, northern Michigan's science, mathematics and environmental education center, has eliminated the admission fee at its Exploration Center.

Individual admission is now free, but donations to support the operation of the center are welcome.

The Exploration Center is located at 220 Park Ave. in Petoskey, off Pennsylvania Park between the Gelato Café and the Perry Hotel. It features displays and interactive learning stations about northern Michigan's plants, animals and habitats, as well as a gift shop with science and nature items.

"Eliminating admission fees will make the Exploration Center more accessible to families and individuals who wish to visit," explained Mary Whitmore, Executive Director of SEE-North. "As more people visit the Center and learn about our region's natural environment and the work that SEE-North does to promote science and environmental education in northern Michigan, we hope they'll become members of SEE-North."

Membership contributions and other donations help support SEE-North's work in area schools and communities.

In addition to keeping regular business hours for drop-in visitors, the SEE-North Exploration Center hosts free Nature at Noon programs during the summer, and special activities for people of all ages throughout the year. Modest fees will remain in effect for classes and other groups that visit the center for guided programs.

presented by SEE-North's education staff. Group visits can be arranged during regular center hours or at other times.

"We've developed an initial set of programs that are tied to the Michigan curriculum framework," explained Whitmore. "That link is very important to teachers these days."

She added that with shrinking budgets in local schools and money for bus trips at a premium, 1,800 students within walking distance of the center can have an affordable field trip to the center.

Visits to the Exploration Center are a great family activity for school vacations and snow days. The center also provides a unique way to entertain out-of-town guests and help them learn about northern Michigan's local environment.

SEE-North's Exploration Center is open from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday.

Planned Parenthood offers free AIDS testing

In recognition of World AIDS Day on Dec. 1, Planned Parenthood Northern Michigan will offer free HIV tests and will hand out red ribbons in the lobby of the health center.

The regular cost of an HIV test is $22. Appointments are preferred, but walk-ins will be welcomed as time is available.

Planned Parenthood Northern Michigan uses the Orasure HIV test, which does not involve needles or taking of blood. To be tested, a testing wand is held in the mouth for a few moments, similar to having a temperature taken.

The whole procedure, including risk assessment and counseling, takes about 15 minutes.

Results are available within one to two weeks of testing.

The tests are completely confidential, and patients can opt to remain anonymous. Counseling and follow-up education are included with every HIV test.

Five people worldwide die of AIDS every minute of every day. HIV has hit every corner of the globe, infecting more than 42 million men, women and children, 5 million of them last year alone. Around half of all people infected with HIV are under the age of 25. It only takes moments to learn about the risks of HIV, and to get tested.

On this World AIDS Day, Planned Parenthood Northern Michigan is encouraging everyone who feels they may be at risk to get tested.

The red lapel ribbon is an international symbol of AIDS awareness that is worn by people all year-round and particularly around World AIDS Day to demonstrate care and concern about HIV and AIDS, and to remind others of the need for their support and commitment.

Planned Parenthood will have free red lapel ribbons available in the lobby throughout the month of December.

To schedule a free HIV test on World AIDS Day, Thursday, Dec. 1, call Planned Parenthood at (231) 347-9692.

Planned Parenthood can also be contacted for more information about HIV testing, risk factors, and counseling.

Health department to host teen sexuality seminar on Dec. 14

Talk Early and Talk Often, a course for parents of middle school students designed to help them talk with their children about abstinence and sexuality, will take place from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Dec. 14, in the Petoskey Middle School Library.

"The class gives parents the tools they need to talk to their children about the important issue of sexuality, such as listening and responding to them, and also how to find additional resources," said Susan Pulaski, lead prevention specialist for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the health department that serves Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Oshtemo counties.

The health department has joined forces with Petoskey Public Schools to sponsor Talk Early and Talk Often.

Petoskey is one of 60 pilot sites across the state to offer Talk

Early and Talk Often, which is part of Gov. Jennifer Granholm's Blueprint for Preventing Unwanted Pregnancies.

"The Governor recognizes that parents are the primary abstinence and sexuality educators of their children," said Barbara Flis, Talk Early and Talk Often project coordinator. "Continued communication at home is vital in helping our young people avoid sexual relationships they are not yet prepared for that may have serious consequences, including pregnancy, HIV and sexually transmitted infections."

There is no charge to attend. However, space is limited so advanced registration is required. To register, call (231) 348-2150.

For more information about Granholm's Blueprint for Preventing Unwanted Pregnancies visit www.michigan.gov/mparent-resources.

County primary results upheld at recount

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

A ballot recount in the first district Charlevoix County Commission Republican primary upheld the original outcome with John Haggard taking the Republican candidacy by a small margin.

The Board of Canvassers of Charlevoix County met on Monday, Dec. 5 to perform the recount at the request of current first district commissioner, Josh Barnes who lost to Haggard at the Nov. 8 primary.

The recount resulted in two more votes for Haggard for a final count of Haggard 391, Barnes 385.

Canvass board members Howard Horton, Ellen Addington, Eleanor Sniff and Edna Lawler recounted the results from all four polling precincts.

The recount of ballots from Charlevoix Township resulted in an increase for Barnes of one vote, changing the original outcome to 177 for Barnes and 171 for county commission candidate John Haggard.

The recount for the City of Charlevoix resulted in an increase for Haggard by two votes for an end total of Haggard 123 to Barnes 119.

Recounts in Bay and Hayes townships were unchanged for counts of Barnes 27 to Haggard 33 and Barnes 62 to Haggard 64, respectively.

In the recount process the canvass board also discovered discrepancies in involving late arriving absentee ballots, mislabeled poll books and incorrectly recorded votes.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners may soon decide whether they will have new civil counsel representation.

According to a proposed resolution drafted by the Internal Government Committee, which consists of commissioners Josh Barnes, Vic Patrick and W. Randolph Frykberg, due to a sharp increase in criminal case filings and the prosecutor openly taking a legal position against at least one other county official, outside counsel should be hired to handle civil and personnel matters.

"It has been discussed at personnel and internal government committee (meetings)," said Frykberg, second district county commissioner.

He added that with the importance of the criminal work the Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney's Office completes and the increase in cases filed, it's prudent to look into the possibility of separate civil counsel.

"They state they have a lot to do — we want them to be able to concentrate on the more critical cases," he said.

According to Frykberg, the proposed document was drafted a couple days before the Wednesday, Nov. 23 meeting, which was canceled due to insufficient public notice.

The resolution, which will be discussed at the next board of commissioners' meeting, states MCL 49.71 authorizes the board, by a majority vote of members-elect, to employ an attorney to represent the county in civil matters whenever the board members determine the prosecuting attorney is unable to properly represent the county.

While caseload is one reason pointed to in the resolution for hiring outside counsel the resolution also supports hiring unbiased representation.

"It's no secret there's been some friction (between county prosecutor John Jarema and commission members), but hopefully we can

Jarema, Roloff question politics behind proposal smooth it out," Frykberg said.

As far as Frykberg is concerned, the language in the draft which states, "the board of commissioners desires independent, impartial and unbiased legal counsel to represent the county in civil matters," is not an attack on Jarema, but guidelines for looking for a new civil counsel.

"When we look for somebody we have to continue to have it that way," he said.

According to third district county commissioner, Ronald Reinhardt, he didn't agree that separate civil counsel should be hired until recently.

"I really didn't have a problem

John Jarema,
Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney

with it until this year's budget came up, and they were saying they are busier and have more cases," Reinhardt said.

According to Reinhardt, most counties have separate civil counsel this is not out of the ordinary.

"If he's (Jarema) overloaded running the chief law enforcement for the county, one way to relieve pressure is hire separate civil counsel," he said.

In addition, Reinhardt said, there have been, "some conflicts where he felt he couldn't act as the county's lawyer and we had to hire outside counsel anyway."

While Reinhardt said it is impossible to eliminate the possibility of a conflict of interest between any future civil counsel hire and issues which may spring up, maintaining civil counsel separately from the prosecutor's office could be a step in the right direction.

According to Jarema, the total cost for an average year of civil counsel work is over $10,000, not including lawsuits.

"We fought to get Shaynee's (Shaynece Fanara chief assistant prosecuting attorney) salary up to the 2004 chief assistant prosecutor's and now they want to hire outside counsel. Where are they going to get the money for this?" Jarema said. "I think it's a waste of money."

John Jarema

my chief assistant what the guy made in 2004, but they're going to farm out civil stuff?"

"I'm tired of the politics. If that's what they want to do, fine, but we can handle any of the civil stuff," he added.

According to first district Charlevoix County Commissioner, Shirley Roloff, before this resolution was drafted, the entire commission should have met with Jarema to discuss it.

"I don't believe in doing things without the whole committee. That really bothered me," she said. "If we want to do it, that's fine, but let's get together as a whole committee and discuss this — especially with Mr. Jarema, it's just as plain as that."

Roloff said, there were a couple of paragraphs that really bothered her and, left her saying, "What is this all about."

"I definitely did not like it. It felt like going through the backdoor instead of being honest," she said.

Roloff said, she isn't against hiring outside counsel if that is deemed best for the county, but it should be done for the right reasons.

"What is this, a political move," she questioned.

This draft resolution is an agenda item on the commissioners' next scheduled meeting which will take place at 3 p.m. on Wednesday, Dec. 14.

Josh Barnes may run for county commission seat in August 2006

Clerk, Jane Brannon, despite the fact that she goes over election procedures prior to each cycle, there generally tends to be a few mistakes at polling places.

"Boyne City's unrealistic deadline caused the delay in the absentee ballots," Brannon said. "Boyne City has never, because of the way their charter is written, had their absentee ballots in, in a timely manner."

Brannon said state officials reviewed the Charlevoix County ballots prior to the election, decided they didn't like them and issued a new one. By the time the new ballots were issued, there was less time for townships to prepare and mail them than there would have otherwise been.

According to Barnes, he is displeased by the handling of absent-tee ballots. And he may run for the seat in August of 2006.

He added, "This board of (canvassers) has performed admirably. I am appreciative of their efforts."

Tackle the holidays the safe way: One sober step at a time

EDITORIAL

For many, December is a time for holiday cheer and goodwill for all, but for some it's an excuse to crawl inside a bottle of 100 proof stupid juice until they fall down.

After decades of public service announcements, increased punishment for offenders and the demonization of alcohol advertisements on television, people still drink and drive by the millions. And why not? What better way to vent frustration than by jumping in an SUV and tossing back a few of Grandpa Swerves old fashioned cordials just before mowing down a small child at play?

Sarcasm aside, it seems obvious to us that these governmental tactics of television commercials are useless. Those who feel drinking and driving is wrong simply don't do it. Of course, those who have little to no self-respect often have none for others and as a result are going to swill their booze to the point of retardation just before a rousing game of dodge the pedestrian — public safety be damned.

The last thing you want to hear from us is another moldy regurgitation of "Don't drink and drive," so we'll just say this: We don't care if you drink yourselves to death, but please have the courtesy to do it at home, or if you must binge at the bar, let someone else drive you home. And by someone else we don't mean that pink elephant you see after downing a dozen cocktails.

Call a friend, call a taxi, call your momma, because there is simply no excuse for drinking and driving. This isn't something you do by accident. And, if you can't remember getting behind the wheel, you have no business drinking in the first place.

If having a few belts down at Ye Olde Tavern is worth risking the lives of others, you have much bigger problems which need to be addressed.

Few actions so blatantly infringe upon the rights of others as rolling a few tons of metal death down the highway after a night of abusing one's liver.

So if you are the type to go booze-cruising, avoid the bar altogether.

Other than pleading to you with ink and paper, we know there's nothing we can do to stop you. So here it is, the sentimental ploy — try to think of life without the person whom you love most. Families of drunk driving victims don't have to imagine.

"Hey, we love a good toddy as much as the next hobo, but for all our sakes, do it carefully. Happy holidays Charlevoix and stay safe."

When to wake: The science behind winter hibernation

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

This is the time of year when I begin to think the animals that hibernate through the winter have the right idea.

By now, in what is approaching the darkest part of the year, birds and animals with the resources to do so have either moved to warmer climates or taken to sleeping for longer or shorter periods.

Hibernation is a wonderful plan. It conserves personal resources, shuts out awareness of the cold and wind and must make it seem as though spring arrives much more rapidly. We don't know what the bears and woodchucks are thinking, but if hibernation is really like sleeping, then time must pass very quickly.

Hibernating animals face two problems — when to go to sleep and when to wake up. Going to sleep seems to be triggered by cold temperatures. If kept artificially at a room temperature above 50 to 60 degrees, no animal goes into hibernation. I can understand how that might work. If it never got colder than September, I would probably feel little impulse toward hibernation.

When to wake up is more of a problem. The deep and prolonged sleep of some hibernators is more profound than even the coma state for people. Their body temperature drops to nearly that of the surrounding air, breathing slows or nearly stops and their heart is slowed to a few beats per minute. So how do those creatures sleeping beneath the ground or in dark caves have any idea when winter has passed? We humans could set some sort of alarm, but what does a bear do?

One solution to the problem is to wake up periodically. Our local squirrels and chipmunks hibernate for only a week at a time. Then, they come back to normal activity for anywhere from a few hours to a day or so before sleeping again. The hibernators that sleep all winter have a built-in calendar which not only keeps track of days, but can run for months without any external clues. The woodchuck sleeping in a burrow wakes when spring arrives, as its built-in calendar tells it that March is here, no matter what the temperature of the burrow or the air outside may be.

Science fiction scenarios aside, is there any realistic possibility of some sort of artificial hibernation for people? Human biological origins were clearly in the tropical parts of the world where there was no advantage to or necessity for prolonged periods of deep sleep. When early humans moved out of the tropics they took that heritage with them, and we haven't lived in really cold places for long enough to have evolved hibernation tendencies. We humans can most probably not be induced to hibernate.

Goose down, central heating and an abundance of coal and petroleum are effective substitutes to hibernation for those of us above the 45th Parallel. But there are times during December and January when I would give a good deal to be able to emulate our local squirrels and go to sleep for a week at a time. I just have to remember to set the alarm.

Beware of scam vets

Editor:

In a Oct. 19 news release from Washington, the Department of Veterans Affairs warns of a phone scam that is directed at veterans who receive their prescriptions from the department. The Department of Veterans Affairs is warning veterans not to give credit card numbers over the phone to callers claiming to update Veterans Affairs prescription information.

"Some unscrupulous scammers have targeted America's veterans, especially older veterans," said

R. James Nicholson, Secretary of Veterans Affairs. "VA does not call veterans and ask them to disclose personal financial information over the phone."

The latest scam, currently centered in the Midwest, comes from callers who identify themselves as working for the "Patient Care Group." They say the Department of Veterans Affairs recently changed procedures for dispensing prescriptions and ask for the veteran's credit card number.

"VA has not changed its processes for dispensing prescription medicines," Nicholson said. "And we've definitely not changed our long-standing commitment to protect the personal information of our veterans."

Veterans with questions about Department of Veterans Affairs' services should contact the nearest Veterans Affairs medical center or call 1-877-222-8387. Should you receive a call connected with this scam, and have caller ID, write the number down and report it to your local police department.

Beware of Proposal A tweaking

Editor:

A couple of weeks ago I heard on the Michigan section of National Public Radio news — twice, listening for it again the next hour because I couldn't believe what I had heard — the latest in Proposal A "tweaking" by the Michigan State Legislature.

The loving legislature was looking out for private lumbermen. For practically, nothing the legislature sells off trees from the state forests to the lumber barons. The big guys send in their crews to clear-cut, leaving denuded state forests. They also receive subsidies from the state government.

Private forest owners are not so fortunate. They have no such extra source of supply nor do they receive the subsidies that the lumber barons do. So, the legislature is going to give them a monetary "equalizer." Our elected legislators were even being "forthright" about where the money was coming from — the education budget.

What on earth does private lumbering have to do with education? How dare the legislators. Furthermore, why are the big city newspapers letting the legislature get away with the 73rd "tweak-ing"? I have scoured the press since that announcement and have found not a word.

Will you non-big-city newspapers show the (Detroit) News and Free Press how to report stories that affect hundreds of thousands of schoolchildren? Furthermore, help by not calling such behavior "tweaking." Tweaking sounds like a giggling, tickling match. It's not. It's pure theft, stealing from our children's futures.

Power solutions

Editor:

The latest pursuit of electric power without pollution is hydrogen fuel cells. The main problem with that solution is the economical acquisition and storage of hydrogen. Water is a good source of hydrogen. Sodium reacts with water forming sodium hydroxide and releasing half of the hydrogen in water. Aluminum reacts with sodium hydroxide forming sodium aluminate and releasing the remaining hydrogen from the hydroxide radical.

These chemical reactions suggest the possibility of creating lightweight, inexpensive, electric battery and hydrogen fuel cell combination units. Both sodium and aluminum are lightweight and abundant. Build breeder reactor electric generation plants instead of fossil fuel electric generation plants.

Home Tour funds distributed

Editor:

Kappa Sigma would like to thank the volunteers, homeowners, local businesses and visitors who made the July 2005 Home Tour successful.

Each year, as a group, Kappa Sigma works very hard to ensure those who attend the annual tour will enjoy a day admiring architecture, design and amazing views from the showcased homes. Volunteers are at the heart of this endeavor and we certainly want them to be recognized and let each one of them know how much their efforts are appreciated.

Although attendance and proceeds were down from the 2004 tour, we are pleased to announce we raised nearly $4,000 this year, which will benefit Circle of Strength ($2000), BASES ($1000) and the Charlevoix Middle School ($800).

In hopes of increasing future attendance and moneys raised for the community, we are modifying the format of the Home Tour to every other year. This makes the next Kappa Sigma Home Tour in 2007. Please keep us in your thoughts and look for future advertising announcing the date of the next home tour.

Thank you again volunteers, homeowners, local businesses and visitors for your dedication, efforts, positive attitude and support of our tour. It enables us to give back more to the community.

The hall was decorated with fall colored Gerbera daisies. William Armstrong, the bride's great uncle, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Thomas III and Lyddy Morrison of Charlevoix. The groom is the son of Jim Furgeson Jr. of Petoskey and Barbara Furgeson of Flint.

The bride was escorted down the aisle by her father. Don Neidert played piano at the ceremony.

The bride wore a floor length, princess style dress with a train. Her bouquet was made of white Gerbera daisies with accents of fall roses and a cascading lily. The bride's attire and that of the bridesmaids and flowers were made by her mother.

The maid-of-honor was Suzanne Vrondran, cousin of the bride. Bridesmaids were April Hayden, Peggy Newman, cousin to the groom and Jessica Soto. The flower girl was Micayla Vrondran, cousin of the bride.

The best man was Jim Furgeson, the groom's father. Groomsmen were Bob Fetting, Scott Rose and Cody Morrison, the bride's brother. The ring bearer was Devon Hayden and the usher was Bo Moore, the bride's cousin.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bride and groom along with the groom's mother at the Charlevoix Knights of Columbus on Friday, Oct. 28.

The reception was also held at the Charlevoix Knights of Columbus, hosted by the bride's parents. Rita Moore, the bride's aunt and Lynn Pearsall catered the reception dinner.

City council to review chief hiring process and manager's performance

By JULIE WITTHOEF
 Editor

Charlevoix City Council has scheduled a special meeting to consider hiring procedures for the new chief of police and to review city manager Mike Wiesner's performance.

The meeting which will take place at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 13, will begin with public discussion of hiring procedures for the police chief.

Former police chief Dennis Halverson's last day was Oct. 28. By the Nov. 11 application cutoff, Wiesner's office had received 21 applications.

At council's regularly scheduled meeting which took place Dec. 5, Wiesner suggested forming a manager's committee to look over the initial batch of 21 applicants for the position.

He suggested this committee comprise professional resources including city fire chief Paul Ivan, Traverse City Commissioner and former police chief Ralph Soffredine, as well as current police chiefs in both Mackinaw City and Harbor Springs. Wiesner himself would also sit on the committee along with city mayor Norman Carlson, second ward councilman Gabe Campbell and city clerk Carol Ochs.

Wiesner believes that under this setup the manager's committee could pare down the bulk of the group to about five for city council's final review and hiring without breaking the applicants' requested confidentiality.

"My recommendation would be a professional approach to the hiring," he said. "It might be difficult to maintain confidentiality as requested if it's a council review."

While Wiesner feels an initial review by the professional group is in order, Campbell said he wants to see council review all the applications.

Third ward council member Shirley Gibson agrees.

She mentioned at the Oct. 24, special meeting when council discussed hiring procedures for the city police chief opening. At that time council supported review of all the applications with each choosing their top picks and then narrowing the list to five candidates for council interviews.

"That's the direction we should take," she said.

City attorney Jim Young plans to draft information as to how council can approach the hiring process while maintaining the applicants' requested confidentiality.

Campbell said he hopes to see a new chief hired before Christmas.

Following discussion of the procedure for hiring a new chief, council will go into closed session to review Wiesner's performance.

Since the Nov. 21 council meeting when Campbell's motion to fire Wiesner died in a 3-3 tie vote, Wiesner and a mediator have met with each council member individually to discuss their concerns.

Third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain said he feels communication between Wiesner and some council members is a problem.

"That's what he needs to improve on," Chamberlain said. "It's all about running the city and doing the best possible job."

Wiesner, who has been manager for over 20 years, has not gone through a performance review since 1993.

Norwood mine to move forward without special use permit

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The application for a special use permit filed by Wayne Wynkoop for a proposed limestone mine in Norwood has been rescinded.

Wayne Wynkoop

"Our investigation and analysis reveals that the Wynkoops are entitled to proceed with continuation of the mineral extraction from their property without pursuing an application for issuance of a special use permit," Wynkoop's attorney, Edgar Roy III, with the firm Brandt, Fisher, Alward & Roy, P.C., states in a letter to the Norwood Township Planning Commission. "Accordingly, the application is formally withdrawn."

In the letter to the planning commission, Wynkoop's attorney further states, the proposed use of property is consistent with the township's requirements for Class B non-conforming uses and therefore, no special use permit is required.

According to the letter, the Wynkoop property has a long history of use as a source of gravel extraction dating back to the 1800s.

He said he knew all along the special use permit wasn't required for him to operate a proposed sand and gravel extraction operation from his property, but he wanted to show the residents of Norwood Township he has good intentions.

"I did this out of respect for the township to show that these are the processes that are to be followed," he said. "I went to great extremes - I tied my hands behind my back on this project and hired experts in many fields to delineate on this project, so when people had questions, I had people who could answer those questions."

According to Norwood Township resident, Bill Knodtke, there is a good chance there will be a challenge made to the proposed limestone mine by its opponents.

"I'm kind of perplexed by the process, he (Wynkoop) applied for a special use permit and the planning commission did their due diligence and then I guess it became apparent to the applicant and his attorneys there might be some problems with the planning commission's findings," Knodtke said. "It appears to me they got worried about that and they sent a letter that pulled it."

Knodtke said he is concerned with the amount of noise, dust, runoff and traffic which may affect the surrounding community. "I'm really bothered. It looks like the townspeople are going to have to fight this," he added.

According to Wynkoop, he has no intentions of harming the environment.

"I have a family of four children and I plan to spend the rest of my life there, it's not like I just want to strip it of the resources and leave," he said. "I'm not sugarcating a thing. There's going to be some noise, but I live there too."

According to Norwood

Township Trustee, Denny Way, because the application was withdrawn, it is no longer in the hands of the planning commission.

"They (Wynkoop's attorney) did indicate they would pursue a non-conforming use which then falls into the hands of the zoning administrator," Way said.

A non-conforming use means Wynkoop may go ahead with the proposed mine without the special use permit.

And, Way said, "Once started, the zoning administrator would step in at that point as the policing body to make sure that what they are doing does fall within the guidelines of the ordinance."

While some of the planning commission members did not want to see this matter policed by zoning administrator, Jonathan Scheel, Way said, "The chairman and attorney made it very clear that it now fell onto the responsibility of the zoning administrator."

Senator Levin meets with local activists to discuss war in Iraq

By JULIE WITTHOEF
Editor

Ellis Boal

war on Friday, Dec. 2 in Traverse City.

Boal, who is a Charlevoix resident running for the first district Charlevoix County Commission seat in February, is also a member of the Petoskey based group, Northern Michigan People for Peace.

"Our goal is to bring the troops home now. And we urged that message on Senator Levin," Boal said. "He listened to what we were saying. But he doesn't agree the U.S. should pull out immediately."

The Traverse Area Peace and Justice Community selected Boal to be one of seven delegates in attendance at the meeting with Senator Levin. The delegates, from Grand Traverse, Leelanau, Benzie, Charlevoix and Otsego counties, are Steve Morse, Tim Keenan, Larry Helvie, Randy Bond, Joanna Dueweke, Simon Anton and Boal.

Also in the group were veterans, high school seniors and peace activists.

According to Boal, in discussing the group's initiative to end the war in Iraq with Senator Levin they cited a New York Times/CBS poll released in September which showed 52 percent of Americans polled support immediate withdrawal of troops, even if that means abandoning the president's goals in Iraq.

Aside from immediate withdrawal the Traverse Area Peace and Justice Community delegates also urged Levin to support an end to funding of all hostile activities, a restoration of veterans' benefits and discussed depleted uranium testing for all veterans of wars since 1991.

Students at the event stressed banning military recruiters from schools.

While Levin disagreed with the immediate withdrawal of troops he did tell the group he feels the U.S. administration should set a timetable for withdrawal from Iraq and said the U.S. has little credibility among the Iraqi people.

"I'm glad he took the time to meet with us," Boal said.

The group now plans to request in writing that Senator Levin attend a second large, public forum to hear the opinions of a broader group of people with varied opinions on the war in Iraq.

The cost of making the traditional holiday meal

Holiday memories are made and refreshed each year by the comforting tastes and aromas of roast turkey, pie and other dishes.

Consumers Energy has provided the following break-down of energy costs for preparing those delicious dishes.

The cost of natural gas or electricity needed to cook a traditional holiday meal for 12 guests is less than 80 cents.

The meal costs are as follows:
Roast stuffed turkey in an electric oven: 50.9 cents; in a gas oven 32.1 cents.

Large pan of mashed potatoes cooked for 20 minutes: About 3 cents.

Giblet gravy cooked on the stove for 10 minutes: About 1 cent.

Homemade dinner rolls baked for 30 minutes: 6 cents with electricity or with natural gas.

Re-heating pre-baked rolls in the microwave oven: Less than half a cent.

Vegetable casserole baked in an electric oven for 30 minutes: Less than 7 cents.

Two pies baked in an electric oven: 12.6 cents; with natural gas 9.6 cents.

While dinner is cooking, holiday guests may gather around the television. The cost of electricity to power the TV for four hours is less than 7 cents.

Tips on how to keep energy costs down during the holiday season:

- Glass and ceramic dishes hold heat well and allow you to lower the oven temperature 25 degrees.

- Opening the oven door loses 25-75 degrees of heat each time. Monitor the time and peek through the oven window, if possible.

- Use your microwave for defrosting and cooking small portions.

- Bake more than one dish or cook an entire meal in the oven to save energy.

- Using roasting bags reduces cooking time in the oven by nearly one-half.

Beaver Island St. James Light Tower receives $16,000 grant

The St. James Light Tower was recently awarded funding to assist in its restoration.

Department of History, Arts and Libraries Director William Anderson and Michigan Historical Center Director Sandra Clark announced last week that more than $145,000 in lighthouse grants will be dispersed among six organizations for 2006.

This funding includes grant dollars for the Michigan Lighthouse Assistance Program, administered by the State Historic Preservation Office which is funded by proceeds from the sale of the "Save our Lights" license plate.

Lighthouse grants are given to state and local governments or nonprofit organizations that are maintaining or restoring a lighthouse. Recipients must provide 50 percent of the grant award as matching funds.

"Lighthouses have become a powerful symbol of Michigan and our rich maritime history," said Anderson. "By choosing the 'Save our Lights' license plates, Michigan drivers can help preserve these important icons."

The Michigan Lighthouse Assistance Program was established to assist in the preservation, restoration, and protection of lighthouses in Michigan. The program arose from a concern about the disposal of over 70 lighthouses in Michigan by the U.S. Coast Guard.

Fiscal Year 2006 Michigan Lighthouse Assistance Program grant recipient included $16,000 for Beaver Island's St. James Light Tower. Grant funds will be used to hire an architect/engineer to conduct a structural evaluation of the Beaver Island St. James Light Tower, study the cause for moisture infiltration in the lighthouse, analyze appropriate remedies, and prepare engineering plans and specifications for the recommended work to secure, stabilize and ventilate the tower.

Additionally, St. James Township will hire a contractor to make the recommended repairs including metal repair, tower window repair, replace entry door, install tower window vents, and foundation repair. Soil testing will be performed and a report with recommendations will be produced.

Two-car accident Friday, Nov. 18 in Eveline Township causes extensive vehicle damage

On Friday, Nov. 18 there was a two-car accident on Ferry Road near Wurm Road in Eveline Township.

The accident involved a 2004 Ford pickup driven by Teresa Ann Saputo, age 48, from Oakland, and a white 1997 Chevrolet pickup driven by Warren Carl Reinhardt, 59, of Boyne City.

Reinhardt was driving a Great Lakes Energy truck and heading east on Ferry Road. Saputo was heading east and had just come around a curve and was going up a slight incline. The road was slushy and it was snowing. Saputo's vehicle began to slide to the left. She tried to correct the direction of travel. As the Saputo vehicle traveled back into its original lane, it was struck on the driver's side door by the Reinhardt's truck. Saputo's truck went off the right side of the road.

The impact caused extensive damage to both vehicles. The airbags were activated in the truck operated by Reinhardt.

The Boyne City Ambulance and the Boyne City Fire Department were dispatched to the call. It was found that the Jaws of Life were required to gain access to the interior of the Saputo vehicle.

Saputo reported she had pain in her back and legs. She was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital by Boyne City Ambulance.

Arthur Kirk to face two separate circuit court trials

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Instead of one trial, Arthur Kirk faces two trials beginning with court proceedings at 9 a.m. Jan. 17, 2006.

Arthur Kirk

Kirk was in court Wednesday, Nov. 30 while his defense attorney, Jennifer Deegan, petitioned the judge to have his five charges separated into different trials. Deegan cited several unpublished cases which stated unrelated offenses must be separated and tried separately.

"In this particular case these charges do not constitute similar conduct. It is essential for charges to arise out of similar conduct such as an incident involving a drunk driving that results in multiple deaths," Deegan said.

Deegan said the false statement made on a concealed weapon permit, weapons possession by a felon and three counts of perjury are not the result of a single act as they "arise out of different dates."

"I think it's important to show that they're distinct and unrelated acts," Deegan added.

According to Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema, there isn't a good reason for holding multiple trials.

"Five different times is a waste of resources," Jarema said. "He (Kirk) went into the (Charlevoix County) sheriff's department, swore in front of the notary that he had no felony convictions, then gets the gun and comes back to certify it."

But Deegan argues, "The prosecutor contends that his (Kirk's) purpose was to own a handgun, but any case can be shown to have an ultimate goal."

Deegan said the problem with Jarema's argument is there is no finding that any of these charges on their own could have resulted in the occurrence of the rest of the events.

Deegan wanted the charges tried separately because of the perception a jury may have of him having five counts against him instead of one.

Charlevoix County 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas said he wasn't sure multiple charges were an automatic prejudice for a jury.

But, Deegan said, "I think it does."

She went on to say that a convicted felon facing multiple charges before a jury is at a distinct disadvantage.

Deegan asserted she is no expert on applying for a concealed weapons permit, but said, "I think most people think that you can apply for a CCW (carry concealed weapon permit) whether you have a gun or not."

According to Deegan, because someone is able to apply for a carry concealed weapon permit whether or not they own a gun, there is no connection between Kirk's application for the permit and his eventual alleged possession of it.

In order to try all charges in one trial, "There must be a connection made," Deegan said.

Pajtas said there is difficulty finding a connection between the charge of felon in possession of a firearm and the charges of perjury and a false sworn statement and ruled to allow two separate trials.

Kirk was originally arrested by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office this summer on multiple counts of felony weapons charges.

At the time of his arrest he was a contract worker coordinating volunteer operations for AmeriCorps through the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District.

In 2000 and 2001 he was an AmeriCorps volunteer at Charlevoix

Middle School and in 2002 and 2003, though not a staff member of Camp Daggett, he was a volunteer counselor there.

Law enforcement were tipped off when he applied for a concealed weapons permit in late May and the FBI and Michigan State police background checks revealed several prior arrests and convictions including felonious assault and sex offenses ranging from 1964 to 1980 in Oakland and Macomb counties, and at least three prior sex offense convictions all under an alias name, Arthur Kirkeby.

Kirk's last conviction, for which he was sentenced to 25 years in prison, was for the second offense of first degree criminal sexual conduct with an 8-year-old boy. Kirk/Kirkeby isn't included on the state's Public Sex Offender Registry because his convictions came through prior to 1995, exempting him from registration.

A lieutenant with the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department and a police officer with the City of Charlevoix Police Department executed a Charlevoix County 90th District Court search warrant at Kirk's condo in Charlevoix Township on July 30. During the search, three handguns were seized including two .357 caliber revolvers and one .40 caliber semi-automatic pistol.

Due to three prior felony convictions, if the jury finds him guilty at the upcoming trial, Kirk could spend up to life in prison.

PARENTING

Making healthy diet choices during the holiday season

Laurel Najarian

'Kids' corner'

Holidays are always a busy season for families with all the holiday parties, school holiday events, shopping, as well as all of the everyday life activities. As a consequence some things fall to the wayside. One of the areas often neglected is making sure the children eat a healthy diet.

So how do we as parents find the time and inclination to provide a good healthy diet for our families during this time of the year? Hopefully this article can provide you with some tips.

With so many Americans fighting the battle of obesity, including children, one of the ways to avoid holiday overeating is to plan ahead. Instead of depending on fast foods and highly processed convenience foods, you can make and freeze meals when you are not so busy. All it would take is to re-heat the meal and add fresh fruit and vegetables and a glass of low fat milk to complete a healthy meal. Items could include chili, spaghetti, soups, meatloaf, or any foods you would normally prepare for your family.

Another suggestion when preparing favorites such as baked goods is to either make recipes that would be lower in fat and sugar or to adjust your favorite recipes to do the same. For example when I bake banana or pumpkin bread, I take out the oil and substitute applesauce (equal amounts) and then decrease the amount of sugar I add. The end result is very tasty and no one would notice the change. I also cut back on the amount of sugar when I bake other items such as cookies or cakes. There are many Internet sites that have recipes that are quite good that already have a lower fat and sugar content. Making fewer desserts and have more fresh fruit available is another suggestion.

Potlucks and parties pose another challenge. We always think we need to take a rich dessert or a fattening entree. Instead think about taking fresh vegetables with low fat ranch dressing, a fresh fruit salad or just a bowl of fresh fruit. If the healthy items are available kids are more likely to eat them.

Children enjoy holiday parties with other children. If the party is centered around a non food event such as ice skating, sledding, caroling, building a snowman or even watching a favorite holiday movie they will not be so food focused. Serve a healthy snack after the event such as trail mix and fruit.

So parents I challenge you to plan ahead, think about good nutrition, and make an effort to buy and prepare healthy foods for your children during this holiday season. As a result everyone will feel better and enjoy the holiday more.

'Must reads' from library director Valerie Meyerson

The following is a list of age specific books selected by Charlevoix Public Library director Valerie Meyerson for December reading.

Trish Cooke,
"Full, full, full of love."

Ages 2-5
For Jay Jay, Sunday dinner at his granny's house is always full of love. There are hugs, kisses, happy faces and lots of delicious foods. Cooke's rhythmic prose brings a light, fun feeling to this story, which underlines the strong ties that bind all families.

Shelley Rotner,
"Many ways: How families practice their beliefs and religions."

Ages 4-8
Rotner uses large bright photographs to highlight the differences and similarities of the different world religions. This timely hook will help children understand different cultures and traditions as well as give them a greater understanding of inclusiveness.

Jill Wolfson,
"What I call life."

Ages 10-14
"What I call life," is a story of a young girl who is placed in a group home run by the "knitting lady." She rooms with four other girls who are all in different stages of denial of their situations. We learn about the girls through stories within the story some of which are humorous, sad and thought provoking. Although there are some painful moments in the books, the ultimately hopeful ending ties it all together.

Exxon awards Charlevoix Public Schools $500 grant

The Exxon Mobil Educational Alliance recently awarded a $500 grant to Charlevoix Public Schools to support the Literacy Library at Charlevoix Elementary School.

The grant is one of 4,000 available to schools across the country served by Exxon or Mobil stations and funded by Exxon Mobil Corporation.

The Charlevoix Mobil E-Z Mart met stringent eligibility requirements before applying for the grant.

"We know the Charlevoix schools work hard to make learning interesting and fun. As a Mobil retailer we're proud to help the young people of Charlevoix," said Jeff Blanchard, the Blarney Castle E-Z Mart Area Manager covering Charlevoix.

Charlevoix alumni shines on college court

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

Charlevoix's own hoops master Jimmy Shepherd has moved his game to the East Coast where he is leading the offensive charge for Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn.

After graduating from Charlevoix High School in 2002, Shepherd, 22, did a post graduate year at Exeter Academy in Exeter, N.H. where he was the leading scorer on his team and voted Most Valuable Player for the year.

In 2003, he was recruited by Wesleyan University to play basketball. Now, in his junior year, Shepherd who wears jersey number 33, is tallying his finest work on the collegiate court to date.

"Over the past couple of years I haven't had the opportunity to get in the game for significant minutes to get into a rhythm," he said. "This year, some players graduated, I've seen more minutes and have gotten into a flow."

Shepherd has played an average of 22 minutes in each of the Wesleyan Cardinals' seven games this season and is the team's most accurate shooter having sunk 38 of his attempted 75 field goals for a shooting percentage of .507.

"Jimmy is now the leading scorer on the entire team. Quite a feat for a kid from little Charlevoix. And he earned it the hard way — by putting time in at the gym. Jimmy shoots 500 shots seven days a week," his father, Frank Shepherd, stated in a recent e-mail.

He has continued his Charlevoix based legacy of amazing shooting from the three-point line sinking 27 of 57 attempts for the Cards — an average of .474 successful shots.

He averages 15 points per game and marked his highest scoring game, Nov. 30, when the Cards faced Eastern Connecticut State University in front of a crowd of 250 people. There, Shepherd claimed 23 points, sinking four of his five three-point attempts in the second half. His team won 72-67 bringing their season record to 3-3.

This season high was a follow-up to a star studded afternoon game, Nov. 27, when Wesleyan faced Mitchell College located in New London, Conn. and Shepherd took home 21 points in Wesleyan's 68-47 win.

Shepherd went a combined 10-for-15 from three-point range during the Cards' Nov. 27 and Nov. 30 match-ups.

His flawless performance continued Dec. 2 when he scored 23 points against Mitchell and earned all-tournament honors for his execution on the court. They won 86-75.

"Since middle school, outside shooting has been my game," he said.

This showing doesn't trump his state finalist appearance as a Charlevoix High School Rayder. According to his Rydier leader, head basketball coach Keith Haske, in 2002, Shepherd was in his final year as a Rayder. During that basketball season he was named an all-state and all-regional basketball player. He helped lead the team on a state championship run, losing in the regional to McBain.

Shepherd also saw success on the court in 2001 when he helped lead the Rayders to the state final game. The team lost to Kalamazoo Christian in the final game but Shepherd had a personal victory. During the tournament run he tied the state record for the most three pointers. He hit eight, three-pointers in the semi-finals against St. Martin DePorres of Detroit and hit another five against Kalamazoo Christian for a total of 13, three-pointers in two games.

He still holds the state record for having scored the most three-pointers in a semi-final or state final game at the Breslin Center in East Lansing.

Haske said he isn't surprised to see Shepherd continuing his success on the court at the collegiate level.

"Shepherd was a self-made basketball player. He really dedicated himself to becoming as good a player as he could be. He spent hours in our gym shooting the ball with mom or dad rebounding," Haske said.

Shepherd credits Haske, for the success he is now realizing.

"The way coach Haske coaches really prepared me for college basketball. He really stresses defense. The way I earned minutes in college wasn't shooting the ball, it was on defense," he said.

To those students looking to follow Shepherd's lead, he said, "The key is to not take days off and to get lots of shots up every day."

Shepherd is a junior at Wesleyan University on track to graduate in 2007. He has focused his studies on government and may attend law school after graduation.

Part of his focus right now is on making it home, to Charlevoix, during the coming holiday season. His examination schedule runs through Dec. 23 and his team is leaving for a tournament in Daytona, Fla. on Dec. 26.

Aesop's fable still holds true

Bigger isn't always better -

The best shopping is here at home.

The fable: Aesop, a famous fable teller is remembered for his story about the dog trotting home with a prize bone. On the way he saw what looked like a much larger one in the reflection of a stream...but, in grabbing for it, lost the bone he already had.

The fact: Many of us today are still risking and losing some of the good things we have by reaching for a tempting offer outside our own community.

By shopping elsewhere for the bigger bone, we seriously undermine the economic structure that supports our schools, churches, businesses and everything else that makes our home town a great place to live and work.

This community could enjoy greater prosperity and many more social and civic facilities if out-of-town spending were kept in our local economic bloodstream. Shop at home. Don't be a victim of a 1300-year-old fable.

Holly Daze committee reports increased support

Holly Daze festivities this year drew 240 people. The theme for the evening was Home for the Holly Daze. Auction items featured theme oriented products. Auction items and donations earned about $100,000 to support community health education outreach programs for the Charlevoix Area Hospital. (Far left) Charlevoix builder Rick Wertz stands with his head carpenter, Rob Huckle of Charlevoix, in front of a play house the two built and donated for inclusion in the live auction. This was one of two play houses included in the live auction. They were sold for $6,500 each. (Above, left) Holly Daze volunteers, Mary Adams, Lyn Jenks, Chris Unbehaun and Joanne Friedman enjoy the festivities. (Below, left) Marilyn and Ted Dumbald of Charlevoix check their silent auction bids one last time before the auction closed. The silent auction was set up in the lower level of the King's Castle at Castle Farms while the live auction and dinner took place on the second level.

Golstick's murder trial underway in circuit court

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Bill Brady

Court proceedings in the jury trial of David Edward Goldstick, 57, of Charlevoix, began Monday, Dec. 5 for his involvement in the shooting death of 79-year-old Hubert William (Bill) Brady.

Following about three hours of selection, a jury of 14 was chosen and then Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney, John Jarema and Goldstick defense attorney, Robert Banner, questioned six witnesses by the end of the day.

According to Jarema, Goldstick's guilt is not in question since he confessed the day of the crime, but what is at stake is whether the murder was premeditated or not.

Monday was all about, "Establishing the timeline of events," Jarema said.

At the close of proceedings Jarema and Banner called for a motion in limine, wherein Banner requested that certain evidence, namely the .357 registration card, the 10-22 Ruger and an undisclosed amount of, "hingo money" be removed as evidence.

David Goldstick

"The 10-22 Ruger, which was criminally modified, is not the murder weapon and was not used in the crime involving Mr. Brady, so I would object to its submission into evidence," Banner said.

According to Banner, he wanted the evidence suppressed because it could do more harm to his client than is warranted.

"The prejudicial effect of this evidence outweighs its probative value," he said.

Jarema argued that the .357 registration card isn't something he plans to enter into evidence, but the Ruger and the money could show intent and motive.

"For those reasons, your honor, I don't believe this evidence should be struck down," he said.

Charlevoix County 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas denied the suppression of evidence.

Brady was shot repeatedly Tuesday morning, April 19 as he worked in the temporary office of the V.F.W. located in a garage known as the "carpet barn" located at 12777 N. US-31.

Goldstick claimed to be the first to find the body and later confessed to the murder saying he shot Brady with a .380 handgun, which was later found at a residence located at 8091 Indian Trails in Charlevoix, because he was embarrassed he might be caught.

Banner filed a Notice of Insanity Defense for his client with the Charlevoix Circuit Court in May. Goldstick was analyzed by an examiner from the state of Michigan Center for Forensic Psychiatry.

Goldstick later sought to fight the validity of the three independent statements about his involvement in the murder which were made to the police he made the day of and following the murder. But, during a later hearing, Pajtas denied the his motion on all three counts.

If found guilty, Goldstick could receive life in prison.

Jury: Guilty of first degree murder

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

David Goldstick

The man who murdered Hubert William (Bill) Brady the morning of April 19 was convicted of first degree premeditated murder. According to Charlevoix County Prosecutor, John Jarema, the jury of six men and six women in Charlevoix County's 33rd Circuit Court deliberated for 50 minutes to decide the destiny of David Edward Goldstick on the morning of Friday, Dec. 9.

The sentence for this crime is, "A life sentence without the possibility of parole plus two years," Jarema said.

According to Jarema, there is an appeal process which Goldstick may pursue.

"I believe it's automatic because he was found guilty of first degree premeditated murder. We were very cautious when trying the case to avoid appellate issues so there were no errors."

Jarema said he believes it was the comprehensive amount of evidence which swayed the jury's collective minds.

"I think it was the amount of evidence that was collected by the sheriff's department," Jarema said. "Detective (Mike) Wheat and detective (Charles) Vondra did an outstanding job. They made sure the evidence was preserved, they contacted the crime lab to process it, they interviewed many, many people."

He added, "They processed this case and gave me more than enough evidence so that I could present it to the jury."

There were no surprises during the five-day trial according to Jarema. But, he said, there was a new finding during trial preparation that Goldstick used a previously unknown vehicle during commission of the murder. "The gun, ammunition and a change of clothes was found in a black Jeep at the house he was a caretaker for," Jarema said.

According to Jarema, family members of the deceased were emotional and relieved when the jury brought back the guilty verdict.

"I know Mrs. Brady requested a sentencing date as soon as possible so she could put the terrible events of 2005 behind her and start the new year out fresh," Jarema said.

Jarema said this type of crime is difficult for all involved including the City of Charlevoix.

Katrina refugee makes Charlevoix her home

After suffering the devastating impact of Hurricane Katrina, a Mississippi resident decided to leave her ravaged home state to start a new life here, in the great white north.

Former Pass Christian, Miss. resident Nancy Pryce moved to Charlevoix Nov. 25 looking for a safe harbor and a fresh start.

"I look at coming here as an opportunity to start a new life. To establish myself," she said. "What I've found are friendly people who are willing to give me an opportunity to develop the talents I have. I hope to be able to return to the community some of what they've given me."

Upon arrival she was welcomed by a warm home on Charlevoix's south side with furnishings and a fridge filled with the essentials provided by a committee made up of local residents, organized by John Campbell and based out of the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

"We were originally looking at bringing a family here. But it makes sense for her to be here," committee member Carol Ochs said.

Since arriving, Pryce has taken the helping hand of others and has visited churches and other organizations. "Everyone here has welcomed me and made me feel like family," she said.

Pryce had moved to Mississippi in November of 2004 to be with her sister Joanne Webb who lives in Pass Christian with her husband, Alan, and three children.

When Katrina hit the small town on Aug. 29, Pryce and her sister's family evacuated to Hattiesburg, Miss. She said she packed four changes of clothes and left.

They returned three weeks later to find the Webb family's three homes had been destroyed and Pryce's two-bedroom condominium located near the Gulf of Mexico had been reduced to nothing. Her possessions and keepsakes were gone.

Mackinaw City man killed in car accident

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office is investigating a two-vehicle crash which took place Dec. 6 and claimed the life of a Mackinaw City man.

The accident happened at 11:23 a.m., Tuesday, Dec. 6, on U.S. 31 about a half-mile south of Ferry Road in Norwood Township.

Richard Bonter, 67 of Mackinaw City lost control of his northbound 2002 Mercury Mountaineer on snow covered roads and slid sideways into the oncoming southbound lane. Bonter's vehicle was struck broadside by a 1996 Ford van driven by James Eddy, 44, of Alden.

Richard Bonter died at the scene of his injuries. His passenger, Sharon Bonter, 62, was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital for evaluation.

Eddy was transported by Charlevoix City Ambulance to Charlevoix Area Hospital for multiple injuries. He was treated and released.

The sheriff's office was assisted at the scene by the City of Charlevoix Fire and Rescue, the Michigan State Police Petoskey Post and the Banks Township Fire Department.

Rider escapes serious injury in a snowmobile accident

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office is investigating a snowmobile crash that took place at approximately 11:30 p.m. Dec. 2 in Marion Township.

According to the report from the sheriff's office, Roger Pittman, 26 of Charlevoix, escaped serious if not fatal injuries.

Pittman was traveling eastbound on a friend's 2003 SkiDoo MXZ440 along Clover Road, a seasonal road that isn't maintained.

He drove off the roadway and entered into a field on private property striking a chain and "No Trespassing" sign, which had been placed to warn trespassing hunters.

Pittman was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital by Charlevoix City Ambulance where he was treated for neck and shoulder injuries.

Deputies wish to remind snowmobilers that they must have permission to use private property and also to reduce their speed at night because it's very easy to miss hazardous objects.

Jury returns guilty verdict in Bill Brady murder trial

"It's a sad case. It's a terrible crime for the victim's family and for the Goldstick family," he said. "It's also a terrible crime for our community. I mean, these two individuals were friends, and for this to happen amongst friends with no argument or fight is really sad."

He added, "I think the community can be at ease knowing that their sheriff's department will thoroughly investigate a crime and bring the person to justice."

Goldstick invoked his constitutional right not to testify, though the jury heard his taped statements and taped confessions.

According to Jarema, "this was a tough case for Goldstick's defense attorney, Bob Banner."

"Bob Banner was faced with overwhelming evidence," Jarema said. "I thought he did a great job with what he had. I've got a lot of respect for Bob and how he conducted this trial."

According to Banner, Goldstick's constitutional rights were protected during the trial.

"I don't know that for him (Goldstick) it could have gone any better," Banner said. "There was a lot of evidence that the prosecutor's office had to work with."

Banner said, Goldstick has the right to appeal. But, if he does, he would need to determine in the near future what part of the trial he is appealing.

Goldstick's sentencing hearing is scheduled for 8 a.m., Thursday, Dec.

22 in circuit court.

Since he was tried in a circuit court, Goldstick will be sent to the Charles Egeler Reception and Guidance Center Annex in Jackson for an intake assessment.

According to Gail Madziar, spokesperson with the Michigan Department of Corrections, prisoners sent to Jackson could spend as many as 12 weeks at the annex for testing before being sent to one of the 41 men's prisons in the state.

"They do all types of testing — vocational, medical, a mental health evaluation," Madziar said. "Assessments are to see what kind of special programming he might need. They're trying to give him the most appropriate training and programming."

Madziar said the duration of Goldstick's assessment also depends on how quickly bed space becomes available at his destination prison.

Despite Goldstick's sentence of life in prison, he will still be given the tests to check for mental health issues and to see if he is prone to violence before his security level can be determined.

"Security level is determined a great deal by how he responds in prison," Madziar said.

According to Jarema, Goldstick complained of chest pain and heart palpitations and went into the hospital Saturday, Dec. 10 to have a pacemaker installed.

Jarema said in his confessions, Goldstick admitted to having had bypass surgery in the past.

Currently there is a deputy posted outside Goldstick's room around the clock.

Charlevoix welcomes Hurricane Katrina victim with open arms

REFUGEE

"It was like a war zone. Katrina did us in completely," Pryce said. "Everything is gone, 30 years worth of memories."

She said insurance claims thus far have fallen on deaf ears and her mortgage payment on the nonexistent condo continues to roll in.

After returning to Pass Christian, Miss., the family took refuge at their church, Grace Lutheran Congregational Church where they slept on air mattresses on the floor.

One day, Charlevoix resident Linda Mueller, who attends this same Mississippi church, walked through the door and told Webb the Charlevoix religious community was looking to sponsor a hurricane refugee.

At that moment, Pryce, a 62-year-old Pennsylvania native, made her decision to relocate.

"I really felt Linda's walking into that church was a God-given opportunity," she said.

Pryce added that the news of her plan to come to Charlevoix didn't come as a shock to her sister.

"I had already told her I couldn't stay in Mississippi," Pryce said. "It will always be the place where I lost everything."

While Charlevoix in the winter is a big change in comparison to Mississippi's balmy weather, Pryce said her east coast roots have made the transition easy.

"I don't know what my purpose in being here is. But this is where I'm at and this is where I hope to stay," she said.

Her sister is now working with the Lutheran Episcopal Relief Effort and has no plans to relocate.

"That's home for them," Pryce said.

Pryce is a retired registered nurse of 40 years who is looking to return to work in the medical field with a special interest in working in either billing or record keeping.

Her needs at this time include a book case as well as financial support.

Ochs said cash donations are needed to help pay utility bills, grocery needs and other expenses.

Anyone wishing to help Pryce can send donations to: Charlevoix County Community Foundation with "Charlevoix Katrina" written in the memo line, P.O. Box 718 East Jordan, MI 49727. Or checks may be dropped off at the Charlevoix State Bank with locations off State Street, Petoskey Avenue and M-66 made payable to Nancy Pryce.

The first day of winter comes early in Charlevoix

Benjamin Gohs

'Staff writer'

I'm not the most observant person around, so each year I am shocked to hear the official start to winter is Dec. 21 — a bit tardy if you ask me.

Obviously the Hawaiian-shirt-wearing, piña-colada-sipping goon in charge of determining this particular date has never been north of the Tennessee-Kentucky border. And he certainly knows little of anyone who doesn't don a sweater whenever the mercury drops below 72 degrees.

Though the beach bums may be at a loss, you can ask any "Eskimo by proxy" and they'll tell you the real start of winter in the northern lower peninsula seems to be when people begin to mistake the white stuff on the ground for traction enhancer.

We endure blizzard after blizzard and whiteout after whiteout, yet the first couple days of wintry conditions always resemble improv night at the Ice Capades.

Don't get me wrong, I'm as guilty as the next. Slippery roads are the furthest thing from my brain come midsummer. But it usually only takes a terrifying slide through a busy intersection to remind me of two things. First, I should slow down. And second, that third helping of prune Danish is never a prudent idea, for breakfast time or otherwise.

Another unofficial start to winter is finding yourself stuck behind some joker who manages to turn a 15 mile trip into a three-hour ordeal. And who can blame him? After all, nobody bothered to tell him he'd need to install a periscope on his car before strapping that 18-foot blue spruce to the roof.

Regardless, he is convinced if he just slows down and cranes his neck enough, he'll be able to see around the 600 pounds of nettles, trunk and sap.

Of course, the real saps are the poor schmucks in line behind him who consist of holiday shoppers, travelers and the snowplow driver on his fifth pot of coffee. Their only recourse is to express holiday cheer with an assortment of improvised sign language and pained screams.

The final unwritten signal of winter's arrival are the brave men and women who, despite possessing an average amount of good sense, choose to pass slower vehicles under conditions which reduce even the most stalwart drivers to nail biting grannies.

Huddled over my steering wheel, I creep along a two-lane highway of ice, polished to a high shine by six weeks of 45 mph winds. All the while these northern Michigan daredevils fly by me sideways on two wheels at 76 mph — stopping just long enough to flash me a frown.

"He must be a local," I shriek through clenched teeth as I attempt to keep my already queasy stomach from bailing.

Ironically the same ones to flash me dirty looks tend to be notorious for rolling through stops, refusing to employ their turn signals and slamming on their brakes to avoid turning Thumper or Bammi into highway soufflé.

When the hyperventilation and horror subsides, I turn to the hope that I will later pass these venturesome sojourners safely, but inconveniently, stuck on the side of the road.

That's how I know winter has begun.

Writer discovers there's always room for more children

Gayle Gennett

'A look at life'

So you've been married awhile and now you are wondering if you can afford to have children.

As expensive as raising children may be, my personal feeling is, "go for it." You can't afford not to have this wonderful experience.

I recently took part in a jubilant fiftieth wedding anniversary where many Charlevoix residents were in attendance. The loving couple are the parents of 10 children and 22 grandchildren. Their secret for staying together through the ups and downs of 10 children — faith, faith and more faith coupled with a large helping of patience.

As I looked around the room and saw face after face that was unmistakably a family member I was in awe of this heart warming event. There is a generation, mine to be exact, who held onto the theory that two children — a boy and girl — were the limit if you wanted to continue with your lifestyle choice. I feel certain this family didn't see the memo.

When I ask couples from my generation what they would do over again, it's amazing how many of them say, "I wish I had more children." Sure it's an expense, and yes your patience is tried to the limit but given the resources of grandparents or someone else's grandparents and friends to support you, the decision to have more children is not about money but about the future and the caring and support given back tenfold.

With technology at our fingertips parenting information is readily available to help with raising larger families. Discussion continues promoting legislative measures to help with larger families. There isn't a family I've met in Charlevoix who with five or more children doesn't feel blessed. Comments made by parents of larger families include, "You know your family is large when you see someone cast a long glance and start counting heads," or hearing someone say aloud, "Are you crazy?"

Parents of smaller families will often share their reasons for a small family as well. These comments generally include, "We're not patient enough," "We're too old," "What kind of world will our children grow up in" and "We need to save the planet."

While I hear couples from large families respond, "If you expect more from your children they will do more." I've also heard, "The novelty of toys will wear off but the novelty of a sibling stays forever," "Having many children has encouraged us to have a sense of humor," "It's living in organized chaos but it taught us not to be vain," "My kids always have someone around the house to play with," and best of all, "My kids know how to share."

Siblings don't get along all the time, but in a larger family you get your pick of who to play with. Couples with more than four children have told me their marriage is stronger because they put their marriage first. They quickly add that they have formed a bond as strong as steel to help them weather various situations their children may present. They also try to still find some together time as a couple once in awhile. Having a strong marriage gives your children security and these couples want to be sure to provide that.

It's not always a bed of roses, but once a routine is established it can run smoother than you think. With birth control making a big hit in the late 1960s, smaller families flourished. Recent medical discoveries and technology are helping many of us live longer.

So I say, opt for the children and if you're worried that you haven't toured the world or started the career of your dreams prior to children, then check on-line. Travel discounts will always be offered until you are too feeble to do so and see if your dream job still exists.

Most importantly, take the time to enjoy your children. Gayle Gennett is a columnist for the Charlevoix Courier. She can be contacted by calling (231) 547-6558 or by e-mail at news@charlevoixcourier.com.

Letters to the editor

Learning lessons

Editor:
I am taking Benjamin Gohs' suggestion to heart and writing you with my opinion on two topics.

As for the volunteers needed for the lunch program, first of all, bless the hearts of the people who run the program at United Methodist Church. I have an idea that might be a possible solution to the director's problems. I know I always feel a sense of respect for myself when I participate in any activity that benefits me in the end. Cooking your own meal, helping to clean up afterwards and socializing with others longer, might open new doors of opportunities and surely build new skills for some. It would also solve the problem of volunteers, because the volunteers would be there for lunch. It's a win-win situation.

As for the Charlevoix City Council and city manager Mike Wiesner, it is my humble opinion that as soon as the "check" mistake was found out, all of the council members should have marched up to CCMS' door and said, "We've made an accounting error, which you probably have already noted. We're here to say we're sorry and collect our refund check." And not leave until they did. It happened to me about 40 years ago when I was 16. I worked in a drugstore and gave a man $140 too much. The owner wasn't angry with me, but put me in his car and we drove to the man's house. In we walked and didn't leave until we got our money back. The man and woman denied any knowledge of the money over and over again. My boss just stood his ground, proved his facts and said, "We're not leaving without our rightful money. It was a simple mistake." Finally the woman couldn't stand it anymore and said to her husband, "Fine. Just give her the money back and get them out of my house."

So as far as I can see, all the council members are responsible for not taking action immediately. What on earth are they waiting for? Voting to fire Mr. Wiesner isn't going to get our city's money back.

I even volunteered to quit my job after my money mistake, but my boss wouldn't let me. He said, "Everyone makes mistakes. They're learning opportunities." Which finally leads me to this. I went to a conference about 20 years ago and the keynote speaker was a successful psychiatrist who said, "Mistakes are the best way to really learn something. Have your child make 10,000 mistakes a day. Look at Edison's research — 98 percent of his work was a mistake. But that last 2 percent was right on. He had to learn from his previous mistakes to actually get where he was going with electricity. It's the same with cancer research. So celebrate your errors. You're learning."

I'm sure that the council members have all learned a big lesson, as we all do.

'Thank you' veteran supporters

Editor:
Thank you Charlevoix, from the Charlevoix County Veterans Affairs Office.

The Community of Charlevoix has always been a charitable community, especially to their veterans. This year, Charlevoix was generous at home and around the USA, with many businesses and individuals who have helped by giving to our VFW Post. This community is caring and giving to both, the VFW and American Legion.

I want to say without your support these veteran organizations would have a much harder time helping veterans in this community. They are now able to rent their buildings for group meetings and weddings as a means of raising funds.

Please attend their pancake breakfast on the first Sunday of each month.

The Women's Auxiliary also sell poppies every year to help our veterans in the different veterans homes and hospitals.

So, once again the Charlevoix County Veterans Affairs Office wants to say, "Thank you," to Charlevoix, a great, giving and caring community.

Letter response

Editor:
I may be barking up a parallel tree, but in regards to Ms. Marilyn Neff-Gibbons' letter of Nov. 30 (page 5, Charlevoix Courier), I would like to add some clarification concerning the Memorial Day celebrations.

I am the commander of American Legion Post 226 and am responsible for Memorial Day events. During the two years (2004 and 2005) that I have been in charge of the parade there were ceremonies held at Brookside Cemetery. These were conducted as had been done in previous years in the vicinity of the flagpole and cannon. These services were advertised in the Courier and the Petoskey News-Review in advance of the date in question.

I specifically organized these services because people had mentioned many times the sentimental significance of the service in the cemetery.

Ms. Neff-Gibbons is perhaps right in saying that the parade change was not put before the people to decide, but in one sense, it was. I have marched in this parade since I was 10-years-old as a Cub Scout, Boy Scout and finally soldier and veteran. What made those parades memorable were the many veterans who filled the ranks and our minds and hearts with countless stories and adventures. Unfortunately, times have changed, we have all grown older, and the active veteran community is now very small in Charlevoix.

Sometime before my return to Charlevoix in 2000, it was decided to change the parade route because the veterans could no longer assemble enough marchers to properly parade to Brookside. Services were shifted to town because of the relatively short marching distance. Now, unfortunately that distance is too much for some of my active members, ergo the "big Army truck" mentioned in Ms. Neff-Gibbons' letter.

My wife and I are the only active members of the American Legion under the age of 50.

We will only hold that designation a short while longer. It takes living, active people to cherish and perpetuate memories. Sentiment alone will not keep a celebration alive.

I sincerely hope that we will be able to keep these memories alive. I continuously ask for volunteers from the community and will keep doing so as long as I can.

Holiday donations

Editor:
At year's end when many folks are considering charitable contributions, we would like to call attention to the State of Michigan's Tax Credit program for gifts to food banks and homeless shelters. This is the same type of tax credit program one hears about for Interlochen Public Radio, or Central Michigan University's public television and radio stations.

Here is how it works. An individual can make a cash donation of up to $200 ($400 for a couple) to a food bank or homeless shelter and receive a credit — better than a deduction — for 50 percent of the donated amount against taxes otherwise owed to the state. So that reduces the cost of the donation by that amount.

In addition, the full amount of the donation also qualifies as a federal income tax deduction, so there is a savings on federal taxes as well, the amount depending on one's tax bracket.

These credits apply to an individual who itemizes deductions on their federal tax return. For example, in the 28 percent federal income tax bracket for one who makes the maximum contribution of $200, the out-of-pocket cost is $44. The comparable figure for a couple contributing $400 is $88. For those in higher brackets, the cost is even less, dropping down to $42 in the top bracket for a $400 gift by a couple. At these rates, it is quite easy to see one's way clear to help others who are down on their luck with a hot meal and a warm dry place to stay for awhile.

There are two local agencies that can receive such donations: The Nehemiah Project Hospitality House, 36 Bridge St. and the Manna Project, 13 McBride Park Drive, both in Petoskey. One's entire donation could go to either of these organizations, or could be divided among the two.

To complete the picture on Michigan's Tax Credit program, the credit is also available for contributions with the same limits and provisions to certain Michigan public institutions, including Michigan colleges and universities, public libraries, and public broadcasting stations. The same goes for contributions to the permanent endowment funds of community foundations, such as our local Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation.

An individual so inclined could donate up to $200 ($400 per couple) to each of these three categories of institutions (i.e., homeless shelter, public institution, or community foundation endowment fund), and receive the same tax credit for each donation.

For more information on this program, consult your accountant or refer to the 2005 Michigan Income Tax Information booklet. You're also welcome to contact us.

Now that cold weather has arrived, we hope that many of our fellow citizens will count their blessings and use this means to help out others who are not so fortunate.

Here's to a pleasant holiday season for all of us.

Giudice earns Girl Scout Silver Award

This past spring at the Charlevoix Service Area's Girl Scout Court of Awards Ceremony Girl Scout Troops in Charlevoix were present to receive badges and recognition for their hard work over the past school year. Alicia Giudice, 15, received the Girl Scout Silver Award, the highest award that a Cadette Girl Scout can earn. The Girl Scout Silver Award represents a girl's accomplishments in Girl Scouting and her community. The Girl Scout Silver Award Project is self-designed and requires a minimum of 40 hours of work. The Girl Scout Silver Award and its pre-requisites normally take, on average, 3 years to complete. Giudice was able to complete this award in two years. Her project entailed the creation of 12 wooden flag stands, repair and cleaning of Charlevoix Girl Scouts current ceremony flags, the purchase of a City of Charlevoix flag, a World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts flag and the creation of a flag ceremony book for Girl Scout troops in Charlevoix to use. She has now moved up to the Senior Girl Scout Level. Through her work with the Silver Award, Girl Scouts, and other community service projects that she and other members of her troop completed, Giudice was able to also receive the President's Volunteer Service Award - Gold Level, for completing more than 250 hours of service to Girl Scouts and her community this past year.

Obituaries

Daniel Gallagher: June 14, 1918 - Nov. 4, 2005

Daniel Gallagher

Daniel Gallagher, 87, of Cocoa Beach, Fla., passed away on Friday, Nov. 4 at home, following a long illness. He was born on June 14, 1918 on Beaver Island, to Elizabeth (Green) and Andrew Gallagher. While a teenager, he began his career as a commercial fisherman with his father on Lake Michigan, and later sailed the Great Lakes on ore carriers. He joined the Merchant Marine as an able-bodied seaman, but subsequently earned licenses as third mate, second mate and first mate. In 1947, at age 29, he earned his master's license, at that time becoming the youngest master mariner in the history of the Merchant Marine. He was a veteran of World War II, having served aboard the liberty ships in the European and Pacific theaters. His first command was aboard the liberty ship U.S.S. Daniel Willard.

Following the war, he continued to command vessels for the Merchant Marine and also spent 13 years ashore as a cargo surveyor for Bethlehem Steel in the port of Philadelphia. He then returned to sailing and during the Vietnam War, commanded ships which carried supplies to U.S. soldiers in Vietnam. In 1965, he moved with his family to Cocoa Beach, Fla. to assume command of the U.S. Air Force missile tracking ship Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, which tracked missile launches for the Gemini space program and also gathered top-secret intelligence off the coast of the former Soviet Union. He considered his achievements as captain of the Vandenberg to number among his finest professional accomplishments. Following the transfer of the Vandenberg to the United States Navy, he was offered but declined a naval commission. He later served as master of several commercial cargo ships owned and operated by Puerto Rico Marine Management, Inc., ultimately retiring in 1986, at age 69.

Among his many accomplishments, he was nominated for the Carnegie Medal in 1950, while living in Baltimore, Md. when he saved the life of a baby who was choking. He was well-known everywhere he lived for his willingness to help friends, neighbors, and even strangers in need, and he went out of his way to do so on numerous occasions. He was a longtime member of Church of Our Savior, a lifelong Catholic and a lifelong Democrat. He was a devoted and much-loved husband, father and grandfather, and he will be greatly missed.

Alex "J.R." Cornstalk Jr., Kaybayosay, 67, died Dec. 8, at his home in Charlevoix, after fighting cancer for more than a year.

He was born May 25, 1938, on Beaver Island, the son of Alex and Esther (Washegesic) Cornstalk. He has lived in the Charlevoix area most of his life where he enjoyed working as a commercial fisherman. He also enjoyed doing craft work using birch bark and beadwork.

J.R. moved to Mount Pleasant in the late 1990s and returned to Charlevoix in 2004. He was a member of the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians.

He survived by his sisters, Helen J. Paul, and Irene (Michael) Mitchell, all of Charlevoix, Alvina (Melvin) Napont of Beaver Island, Rose Denemy of East Jordan; and many nieces and nephews.

Alex was preceded in death by his brothers, Thomas, Frank and Harvey Cornstalk, and sister, Louise Kane.

A Traditional Native American service took place at 3 p.m. Monday, Dec. 12, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. Pipe carriers, Joe Mitchell and Tony Davis of the Little Traverse Bay Bands of Odawa Indians conducted the service.

Following the service, a luncheon was served at Greensky Hill United Methodist Church Hall.

Many attended the sacred fire at 412 Robinson St. in Charlevoix, which burned until the day of the funeral.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society.

Charlevoix Township Board to host public hearing

Big box ordinance wording on the table

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Some Charlevoix Township residents are shouting, "lawsuit."

Ordinance amendment 1.73, also known as the big box ordinance of Charlevoix Township, passed with 340 yes votes to 215 no votes — but not without some uproar.

A group of residents have issues concerning certain language in the ordinance. As a result, there will be a public hearing on the issue at 7:30 p.m., Dec. 21 at Charlevoix Township Hall.

According to Charlevoix Township Supervisor, H. Dale Glass, the item of contention is section G3 which concerns referendums in Charlevoix Township zoning law and reads, "The township clerk has determined that an adequate petition has been filed within 30 days of the effective date and has been approved by a majority of the registered electors residing in the township."

Glass said some people read, "Approved by a majority of the registered electors," and believed that invalidated the amendment.

Some locals, such as Charles Scherping, contend that, since a majority of registered voters in the township failed to vote, the ordinance amendment did not pass.

"Their ordinance specifically stated that it takes a majority of voters to change an ordinance. A majority of people means close to 700 people would have had to vote to change the ordinance," Scherping said.

Glass said, "We assumed that when we say, 'majority,' we mean the majority of the people who voted on it. Some people contested that because that's the way they read it."

He added, "We have researched it and we have the state attorney general's opinion and our attorney came forward and said it (ordinance amendment) is perfectly fine the way it is, but they did suggest that we change the wording."

According to Scherping, Charlevoix Township representatives are holding the public hearing on the ordinance amendment because they know they are in error.

"I agree with them the ordinance is not written properly, but that doesn't mean they can change the rules in the middle of an election," he said. "The township is in violation. I think really right now the only recourse is going to court."

Scherping added, "Right now we've got an attorney looking at it."

Glass said, the easiest way to fix this situation is to simply alter or delete the wording. "But I never got that excited about it because I figured common sense would come into play."

Glass said the wording is misleading because it is unnecessary since state law already determined how things are handled.

"State law already prescribes the requirements and the state law supersedes any requirement we have on that," Glass said. "Some people interpreted that you had to have different majority in relation to the whole, but that's going to have to be taken out."

Some of the main points of zoning amendment 1.73 which passed at the Nov. 8 election are, that land and buildings in the C commercial district can be used only for the following purposes; as long as no single tenant occupancy exceeds a footprint area of 20,000 square feet; land and buildings can be permitted with special conditions as long as no single building exceeds a footprint area of 20,000 square feet; single tenant occupancies can be larger than 20,000 square feet, but no larger than 90,000 square feet.

Also, for a single tenant occupancy larger than 20,000 square feet in the commercial district, the following conditions apply: Large buildings and occupancies must fit the small-town character and appearance of the community. They cannot become a blighting influence.

Buildings must be readily able to be reused if it is ever abandoned and the buildings cannot adversely impact the preexisting businesses, community or neighborhood.

While the most contentious part of the amendment is the cap on square footage, there are facade requirements and other architectural guidelines in it as well.

In addition to the aforementioned requirements, buildings which exceed a footprint of 50,000 square feet must conduct a market feasibility study which indicates whether or not the potential of the market can accommodate the project and what the impact of the proposed project would be on existing retail businesses in the Charlevoix area.

A traffic study must also accompany building projects in excess of 50,000 square feet which would show the effects of the proposed development on the level of service of all existing and proposed intersections within one mile of the project and how traffic impacts will be mitigated.

Citizens advisory committee tackle city budget

By JULIE WITTHOEF
Editor

A citizens advisory committee has been formed to nip the City of Charlevoix's coming budget woes in the bud.

City of Charlevoix mayor Norman Carlson first proposed the formation of this advisory committee when he was elected in 2004.

Budget projections show the city will be short about $50,000 in its general fund by 2008.

Currently, city manager Mike Wiesner said the city is supplementing the general fund with infrastructure dollars to get it to the break even point. Over the past two years, $220,000 has been turned over to the general fund from the infrastructure millage.

He explained that the pitfall with this is that the city starts to fall behind on infrastructure projects.

Carlson said that instead of city administrators making the decision to increase taxes or hike service fees, the advisory committee will make recommendations as to where the city can cut corners to make up the shortfall.

"The committee is tasked with analyzing services and amenities the city provides and to help make suggestions on ways we can save or raise money to supplement the general fund in the future," Carlson explained.

The committee met Nov. 21 and Dec. 7 to review information gathered by city staff this summer.

At the two initial meetings Wiesner explained the ins and outs of the city's budget problem, including revenue constraints created by state regulations Proposal A and the Headlee Amendment and increasing costs of things like insurance and fuel.

He also started to delve into an overall look inside city departments. The first on his list was the street department where full-time staff members have been cut resulting in a cash savings while services this group provides have skyrocketed.

The group listened to the street department operational overview and asked to back up. The committee requested an overall look at the current budget to get their bearings before looking at its pieces.

The next meeting, which is scheduled to take place at 6 p.m. Jan. 4 in the fire department training room on the second floor of city hall, will include this budget overview. The public is invited to attend.

Future meetings will include a run-down of the city's infrastructure plan as well as in-depth looks at each of the city's departments.

All six members of city council recommended two citizens for this committee. Carlson recommended two as well as three students to sit in. The committee's membership includes both city residents as well as those with a vested interest in the city including business owners.

The committee includes: Tim Parker, Kirby Dipert, Bill Bellows, Pete Phillips, Don Voisin, Ken Staley, Curt Thompson, Ed Johnson, Butch Russell, June Cross, Birdie Whitley, Kaye Beatty, Tom Conlan, Chris Papineau, Dan Nuttle, and students Kevin Greyerbiehl, Chuck Mason and Caitlin Cole.

The city's 2006-2007 budget will be presented to city council at a budget work session to take place in late January.

Area students partake in biotechnology program

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The Char-Em Intermediate School District sponsored a hands-on biotechnology workshop at Charlevoix High School on Wednesday, Dec. 7.

Participating in the workshop were 22 high school students in grades nine through 12 from the Beaver Island Community School, Northwest Academy and Charlevoix High School.

According to the Char-Em ISD, the biotechnology workshops they sponsor are intended for high school science students interested in cloning, DNA fingerprinting, biotechnology, microbiology, cancer research, recombinant DNA, genetic engineering and forensic biology.

Ferris State University Professor, Jim Hoerter, who facilitated the workshop, said he enjoys the opportunity to offer a window into certain sciences to the many students he teaches.

Jim Gowell, who teaches tenth, eleventh and twelfth grade biology at Charlevoix High School said, "They're doing lab work with biotechnology work with DNA. They are going to actually at one point take a gene from a firefly and put it into bacteria so the bacteria can become bioluminescent."

He added, "This is a great opportunity for the students to do things that we don't have the equipment for. This is a neat opportunity for the kids to see what this field is all about and what kinds of careers are available — it's a wide-open field."

"We really appreciate the opportunity from the ISD to offer this program to students," Gowell said.

According to 15-year-old Beaver Island student, Kevin Gillespie, he learned a lot about mixing enzymes with DNA and the processes involved in identifying certain aspects of the genetic code.

"It's cool," he said.

Seventh through twelfth grade science teacher at the Beaver Island Community School, Adam Chittle, said this workshop is a great opportunity for the kids to be introduced to technologies that they otherwise would have no experience with.

Chittle said, "Perhaps this could lead to careers in biotechnology."

Holy Island Bridge receives funding for repairs

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

A historic Charlevoix bridge in a state of disrepair will get a major face lift.

Governor Jennifer Granholm in cooperation with the Michigan Department of Transportation recently announced $62 million in extra funding for 137 bridges in over 50 Michigan counties including the Holy Island Bridge which spans the south arm of Lake Charlevoix. This funding is in addition to the previous $8.9 billion which was announced for investment into roads and bridges and $618 million for over 150 transportation construction projects throughout the next two years.

According to Charlevoix County Road Commission Manager, Pat Harmon, the state tentatively plans to allocate $330,000 for work on the bridge while Charlevoix County must raise/supply 5 percent of that.

"Then, the county has to pay for the design engineering, construction engineering and the local match," Harmon said.

The Northwest Design Group Inc. of Petoskey has been working with the Charlevoix County Road Commission on the Holy Island Bridge project and according to Northwest president, Howard Haselschwardt, the announcement of the allocation of funds from the state couldn't have come at a better time.

"The bridge in its current condition is such that it's extremely important that the thing get replaced," he said. "It is in very poor condition and the road commission's action to get funding for it is very timely."

While Haselschwardt said he isn't sure exactly what year the bridge was built, the national bridge inventory system has it listed at 1903.

The last time there were repairs performed on the bridge was 2004.

"(There) were some major problems. We did an emergency inspection and we prescribed some emergency repairs that the road commission did right away," Haselschwardt said.

The 50 foot long, one lane bridge located approximately eight miles southeast of Charlevoix on Holy Island Road was moved from a location on Springvale Road in the late 1950s or early 1960s, according to Harmon.

The bridge is on Michigan's historical bridge list. Currently there is little to no water under the bridge which connects Holy Island with the Charlevoix mainland.

According to Harmon, there is much work to be done before a proposed construction date will be available.

He said the work might not happen until 2007.

The metal and wooden bridge has been reinforced to make it useable until repairs can be made.

"It's all cribbed up with timbers so it doesn't fall in," Harmon said.

Harmon said the new bridge could be made of steel, concrete or wood.

"There are a number of structures that it could be, but we're not that far yet."

He added, "We've got to decide what type of structure and how long it's going to be."

Harmon said the bridge serves 19 residences.

In a Dec. 5 press release, Granholm stated, "This investment continues my commitment to work with local governments to equitably meet local transportation needs across our state. County road commissions and municipalities are important partners in providing motorists and businesses with safe, usable bridges that help keep traffic moving, strengthen local economies, and support jobs."

The funds earmarked for allocation for county and city owned bridges come from the Federal Highway Bridge Replacement and Rehabilitation Program and the state run Local Bridge Program. One of the requirements for those areas that receive the funds is a local division match of five percent.

Charlevoix submitted design plans for consideration and was chosen on the first come, first serve basis in this region of the state.

According to Gloria J. Jeff, State Transportation Director, in the Dec. 5 release, the department of transportation understands just how vital the partnership between local road agencies and municipalities to keep city- and county-owned bridges in good repair is.

Michigan Dairy Ambassador scholarship opportunity

A new scholarship program offered by the Great Lakes Dairy Conference will provide students interested in a career in the dairy industry with an opportunity to further their education both in and out of school.

The Michigan Dairy Ambassador Program is designed to help students hone their leadership skills while learning more about the industry.

"This is not a typical scholarship where you take the money and run," said Sara Long, one of the program's founders. "We hope recipients will use this as a launching pad for a career in the dairy industry. They will have access to numerous professional organizations and have a chance to attend meetings, give presentations and seek out opportunities to promote the dairy industry and themselves."

The program consists of two divisions. The winner of the senior division, open to youth from ages 17 to 21, will receive a $1,500 scholarship, the opportunity to participate in several regional dairy promotion projects and a chance to serve on the 2007 Great Lakes Dairy Conference planning committee.

The junior division winner, open to students ages 12 to 16, will receive $1,000 that can be applied toward a scholarship or the purchase of a dairy animal.

Both junior and senior division winners will have an opportunity to attend Michigan Dairy Expo and speak to participants about their experiences in the dairy industry.

Applicants are required to attend the Great Lakes Dairy Conference, Feb. 2-4 at the Bavarian Lodge Inn and Conference Center in Frankenmuth where dairy producers from throughout the state and region will learn about increasing profits and cow productivity.

Michigan Dairy Ambassador Program applications are due Jan. 18 and can be obtained by logging on to www.gldc.msu.edu, or contacting Margery Webster, program coordinator at (989) 862-4835.

Official Notice

Proposed November 9, 2005

Establishment of Zones for Bovine Tuberculosis (Identification, Testing, Permitting & Movement Requirements)

All Zones within Michigan

Animal Identification

All cattle must be identified with RFID Electronic identification ear tags prior to movement from a premises within Michigan. Initial identification of cattle must utilize an RFID Electronic identification ear tag issued by the Michigan Department of Agriculture to the premises at which the identification occurs.

Livestock Inspection

Point Check-Points

Any vehicle that may contain livestock must stop at any posted Livestock and Plant Inspection Point. Upon stopping of the vehicle, a person transporting the livestock shall produce documentation that contains the origin of shipment, official identification of livestock, any documentation required to move livestock and the direct shipping destination of the livestock.

Modified Accredited Zones - includes the entirety of Alcona, Alpena, Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Crawford, Emmet, Montmorency, Oscoda, Otsego and Presque Isle counties, and those portions of Isosco and Ogemaw counties that are north of the southernmost boundaries of the Huron National Forest and the Au Sable State Forest.

Surveillance Testing Requirements

All cattle herds must complete an annual whole herd bovine tuberculosis test of all cattle 12 months of age and older, and all goats, bison, or privately owned cervids 6 months of age or older in contact with the herd. Retesting of herds must be done within 9-15 months of the anniversary date of the initial whole herd test. Registered terminal operations, or feedlots in which all animals are sold for direct slaughter or through a concentration point for slaughter are exempt from the annual whole herd testing requirement.

Movement Testing Requirements

Movement within the Modified Accredited Zone

- Cattle must comply with one of the following prior to movement:
 - a) Originate directly from a bovine tuberculosis accredited free herd, or,
 - b) Originate from a herd which has received a whole herd test within 60 days prior to movement, or,
 - c) Receive a negative bovine tuberculosis test within 60 days prior to movement.
- Calves less than 2 months of age may be moved if they originate from a herd that has completed a whole herd test within 12 months prior to movement.
- Steers or spayed heifers may be moved to a registered terminal operation, or between registered terminal operations without meeting tuberculosis testing requirements.
- Cattle may be moved to slaughter, or through a concentration point to slaughter, without meeting tuberculosis testing requirements.

Movement into another Zone within Michigan

- Cattle two months of age and older must comply with one of the following prior to movement:
 - a) Originate directly from a bovine tuberculosis accredited free herd, or,
 - b) Originate from a herd that has received a negative whole herd bovine tuberculosis test within 12 months prior to movement, and receive a negative bovine tuberculosis test within 60 days prior to movement (steers or spayed heifers do not need to meet the whole herd testing requirement.)
- Calves less than 2 months of age may be moved if they originate from a herd that has completed a whole herd test within 12 months prior to movement.
- Cattle of any age may be moved to a specially approved registered terminal operation if they originate from a herd that has received a negative whole herd bovine tuberculosis test within 12 months prior to movement.
- Cattle may be moved to slaughter, or through a concentration point to slaughter, without meeting tuberculosis testing requirements.

Movement Permit Requirements

A Movement Permit is required to be obtained prior to movement of any cattle from a premises within the zone. All cattle with a destination of a concentration point must receive a new permit that identifies the final destination of movement, prior to leaving the concentration point facility. Cattle do not need to be re-permitted from the concentration point if they are moved directly to a slaughter facility that maintains a RFID Electronic ear tag tracking system.

Modified Accredited Advanced Zone includes the remainder of the Lower Peninsula of Michigan

Surveillance Testing Requirements

All herds must obtain a premises identification number, and be placed into a database from which herds will be randomly selected for whole herd testing. Proportional samples of beef and dairy farms will be selected from each Michigan Agricultural Statistics Service agriculture district based upon the total number of farms in that district. Selection will occur on a two-year cycle.

Selected herds, or herds selected as a replacement for herds determined ineligible for testing, shall be subject to whole herd testing of all cattle in the herd 18 months of age or older in contact with the herd. This testing must occur within 90 days after the person responsible for herd management receives notification that a whole herd test under this surveillance program is due and necessary.

Surveillance Testing Requirements

Movement into another Zone within Michigan

- Sexually intact cattle 18 months of age or older must meet one of the following prior to movement:
 - a) Originate directly from a bovine tuberculosis accredited free herd, or,
 - b) Be included in a whole herd bovine tuberculosis test at the premises of origin within 6 months prior to movement, or,
 - c) Receive a negative bovine tuberculosis test within 60 days prior to movement.

- Cattle less than 18 months of age, steers and spayed heifers, or cattle moving to slaughter do not need to meet tuberculosis testing requirements prior to movement.

Movement within the Modified Accredited Advanced Zone

- No tuberculosis testing is required for movement of cattle within the zone, or through a livestock concentration point to a final destination within the zone.

Surveillance Testing Requirements

All cattle must receive an official movement certificate prior to movement to any other zone within Michigan, and a copy of the certificate must accompany the animals during movement.

Bovine Tuberculosis Free Zone - includes the entirety of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Surveillance Testing Requirements

All herds must obtain a premises identification number, and be placed into a database from which herds will be randomly selected for whole herd testing. Proportional samples of beef and dairy farms will be selected from each Michigan Agricultural Statistics Service agriculture district based upon the total number of farms in that district. Selection will occur on a two-year cycle.

Selected herds, or herds selected as a replacement for herds determined ineligible for testing, shall be subject to whole herd testing of all cattle in the herd 18 months of age and older, and all bison, goats, and privately owned cervids 6 months of age or older in contact with the herd. This testing must occur within 90 days after the person responsible for herd management receives notification that a whole herd test under this surveillance program is due and necessary.

Movement Testing and Certificate Requirements

All cattle must receive an official movement certificate prior to movement to any other zone within Michigan, and a copy of the certificate must accompany the animals during movement. No tuberculosis testing is required to move within the bovine tuberculosis free zone, or to other zones within Michigan.

This order revises the order that established zones effective June 1, 2004.

Former Cemex employees fight to return to work

By JULIE WITTHOEF
Editor

Employees who lost their jobs in the buyout of the local cement plant from Cemex by St. Marys Cement Company, Inc. continue to fight for their positions.

Mike Gauthier, a father of four who worked as a laborer at Cemex for five years, said, "I want my job back. I've been to every factory and I can't find a legitimate decent job. What am I supposed to do? Sell my house and move when I've lived here for over 30 years."

According to Dirk Cox, Charlevoix plant manager for St. Marys Cement, Inc., when Cemex sold the facility to St. Marys on April 1, 2005, all Cemex employees were terminated by Cemex. St. Marys went through an application and interview hiring process of the Cemex work force and offered employment based on that process.

"It's a hiring decision, not a termination — all but 12 people from the former Cemex workforce were not offered employment with St. Marys," Cox said.

He added that currently the local St. Marys Cement, Inc. employs 137 people from the Charlevoix area.

Since having been informed that their jobs were no longer available, Gauthier, along with his coworkers who were not hired by St. Marys and the union representing them have pursued claims against both Cemex and St. Marys.

File photo

Employees who lost their jobs in the buyout of the local cement plant from Cemex by St. Marys Cement Company, Inc. continue to fight for their positions.

At this point this path of recourse is leading to dead ends.

Since the change in ownership took place, union representatives have filed two grievances with the National Labor Relations Board against St. Marys Cement, Inc. and Cemex while employees who were let go have filed three complaints.

The first union complaint was filed in mid-April, by representatives of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, the local D480.

According to Thomas Good, the examiner with the National Labor Relations Board in Grand Rapids handling the case, the issue at the heart of this claim is whether Cemex unlawfully required some employees to sign a waiver accepting terms outside of what was agreed to by the union.

In e-mail correspondence Good said an informal settlement has been signed by Cemex and the union to resolve this claim but the case is not yet closed.

At this time Mark Kelly, an international representative of the D480, is facilitating arbitration between the union group and Cemex to discuss the employee grievances.

He said Cemex is in the process of setting up dates for arbitration, a court hearing with the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service headquarters in Washington D.C.

"It's the only avenue they have. It's final and binding. That's it," he said. The second union complaint is against St. Marys and was filed Oct. 3. Good said it questions whether St. Marys unlawfully refused to arbitrate certain grievances with the employees. This complaint is still under investigation.

This investigation will culminate in a report for review by labor board regional director, Stephen Glasser, who will determine whether there is reasonable cause to believe the company violated the National Labor Relations Act.

If they do find there is reasonable cause, the labor board will issue a complaint and set a hearing. If the complaint can't be solved at the hearing, it will go before an administrative law judge in Charlevoix who could require the company to pay back wages.

All three of the employees' claims were filed June 3 through attorney Brandon Zuk and were dismissed.

The first complaint claimed Cemex refused to bargain in good faith — laying off employees, without just cause.

"It's our contract, they were wrongfully dismissed. They should have honored our contract," said Paul Parrish, a member of the local D480, who has worked at the cement company for the past 35 years and is a current cement loader.

The employees' second claim, was filed against St. Marys. It questioned whether St. Marys was liable for remedying Cemex's unfair labor practices and whether the company's refusal to hire those 12 employees constituted unlawful refusal to bargain with the union or abide by the contract.

The third claim was filed against the union. This questioned whether the union violated its duty of fair representation to employees or unlawfully caused an employer to discriminate against them.

According to Good these complaints were investigated and dismissed on July 29. Zuk appealed those decisions to the National Labor Relations Board's general counsel office in Washington D.C. Those appeals were denied and the cases were officially closed Sept. 28.

Delphi bankruptcy impacts local manufacturer

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

When Delphi Corp., one of the largest auto parts manufacturers in the world, filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy in the New York U.S. Bankruptcy Court on Saturday Oct. 8, the effects were felt worldwide, including right here in Charlevoix.

According to Jim Hater, General Manager of Charlevoix Manufacturing Co., this is not the shot in the arm Michigan's economy needs.

"We manufacture aluminum castings and brake components. It's a combination of original equipment as well as after market parts," Hater said. "As far as original equipment, Delphi is our biggest customer."

Hater said production schedules for orders from Delphi are off considerably.

"We're down about 30 percent right now just due to general automotive conditions," he said. "As result of the bankruptcy we are still working with Delphi."

He added, "It's substantial."

According to Hater, Charlevoix Manufacturing produces parts for roughly 25 different companies including Delphi Corp.

"Everything we do more or less becomes a component in a system," Hater said. "Our primary component is a master cylinder break piston."

Once a division of General Motors, Delphi, which has its headquarters in Troy, broke away from GM in 1999.

According to the Detroit News, this is the largest corporate bankruptcy on record in Michigan.

According to Hater, there is no single reason for the downturn.

"A lot of it is just general economic conditions. One thing is that employee pricing flooded the market, the general economy around the country is down," he said. "And, gasoline prices are kind of shying people away from buying automobiles."

Hater said the road to recovery for the manufacturers who supply the automotive industry is a complex issue.

"The simple answer is, the more people that buy cars, the more parts we're going to sell," he said. "But, to get people to buy cars and put out that type of capital expenditure is tough to do. People have really become accustomed to special deals and special pricing and they're waiting to see what the next special deal is going to be."

According to Hater, it is too early to speculate on the possibility of job cuts. But, he added, "We are evaluating that."

Hater said this isn't the first economic downturn Charlevoix Manufacturing Co. has endured.

"At this point it's not quite as severe as the early 1980s and early 1990s — back then we had some substantial downturns and layoffs," he said.

The majority of parts which Charlevoix Manufacturing Co. ships to Delphi go to the Delphi plant in Dayton, Ohio.

Primarily producing supplies for the automotive industry, Charlevoix Manufacturing Co. produces approximately four million master cylinder pistons a year as well as parts for fuel filters, air pumps and the lighting and robotics industries.

Founded in 1978 and currently employing approximately 80 people, Charlevoix Manufacturing Co. located off Martin Road is a division of its parent company, Hater Industries Inc., located in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Hater Industries was founded by Hater's father and uncle in 1960.

Library capital campaign raises $1.9 million

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The Charlevoix Public Library Capital Campaign Committee recently convened to announce they exceeded their goal of $1.6 million for the new library.

According to Capital Campaign Committee Chairman, Don Heise, with approximately 150 pledges for $1.9 million, the capital campaign was a rousing success.

"It would be nice to get to $2 million," Don said.

Don's wife, Kay, who is the past president of the Friends of the Library, said the support this campaign has received is enormous.

"There is just a tremendous number of people in Charlevoix who are philanthropic," she said. "The community support has been great."

Kay said there are so many reasons why people supported the new library and for that she is grateful.

Don added, this has been a great experience.

"It's been a lot of fun," he said. "It's fun to see something like this grow."

According to Don, a project of this scale could not have been completed without the voters' responsible for passing the millage in the first place.

The new library should stand tall for many years, according to Kay.

Kay said, "Don said there's no reason why this building can't be here for another 100 years and there is plenty of room for expansion."

In addition to being a full service library, the new facility which is under construction, will also include a community center with a capacity for 150 people at no charge to those who wish to use it.

Kay said, "We had many community meetings and all of the stages of development from planning, right down to the colors have included community involvement."

With such a huge amount of their time previously devoted to raising funds for the new library, Don and Kay said they will have time to pursue other interests.

"We're going to sit in the new reading room and read all those books we've been meaning to," Kay said.

While Don has experience in finance, he said this type of capital raising is rather new to him.

"I raised money for little league back in Connecticut but nothing like this," he said.

According to Kay, this was a labor of love. "Which is why it worked."

Don said he wanted to stress that he probably did not know what he was getting himself into when he began fund-raising. "But within about a week, Jeff and Nancy Porter helped us and I don't know where we'd be without them."

According to Kay, the only moneys designated for use from the library's coffers were for some brochures and two studies completed years ago—one to find the feasibility of Charlevoix needing a new library and the other was to study the probability of raising the needed funds.

As of the Thursday, Dec. 8 meeting, the scheduled opening of the library is fall 2006 with hours set at 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., Monday through Thursday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Friday and Saturday and as of now closed Sundays.

It doesn't take all day when you shop here at home

When you shop in the big city, you risk life and limb on the highway ... have to fight heavy traffic, so you're tired before you even get started.

Then come parking problems, elbowing your way through crowds of people in a hurry, try to find a place for lunch, gulp it down, and back into the fray.

Then after trying to deal with harassed and impatient salespeople, you drag yourself back into the car, hoping you won't get run over crossing the busy parking lots, and battle your way back home again.

Wouldn't it have been easier to shop here at home?

Your friendly home-town merchants probably had just what you wanted anyway ... and often cheaper than bigger city stores. Certainly shopping at home is easier and quicker, giving you time for other more important "chores!"

Barb Dobulis named outstanding employee

Barb Dobulis

County, recently received the agency's 2005 Outstanding Employee of the Year Award.

Several co-workers nominated Dobulis for the award, which was developed to recognize employees who provide excellent public health service, enhancing the lives of individuals and families.

"If I could design the perfect home health and hospice nurse, Barb would be the model," said Lori Malfroid, Home Health Supervisor for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency. "She does whatever it takes to ensure care and comfort for all of her home health and hospice clients plus her professional clinical skills are excellent, she's a team player, and she's always willing to mentor less experienced nurses."

Dobulis has worked as a home health and hospice nurse at the health department for 21 years. She serves as leader for the nursing and therapy teams assembled for her clients, including providing case management and direct nursing services.

"Barb has all the personable attributes that make a great nurse," said

Nancy Bottomley, who directs the health department's certified home health and hospice programs. "She is thoughtful, dedicated, and she has a great sense of humor. She's also a terrific mentor for registered nurses who get their clinical educational experience for community health nursing here at the health department."

Dobulis lives in Charlevoix. Before joining the health department in 1984, she worked in hospital settings in Saginaw and Cadillac. She received nursing education at Delta College in Saginaw to obtain her license as a registered nurse.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department serving Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties.

For more information, call (231) 547-6092 or visit www.nwhealth.org.

Health department offers holiday safety tips

Taking a few simple precautions can prevent injuries during the holiday season according to Bert Notestine, Northwest Michigan Safe Kids Coordinator for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency.

Holiday decorations, especially candles and electrical lighting, can be fire hazards.

"Never, never leave lit candles unattended," Notestine said. "Don't put candles on a Christmas tree or natural wreath, or near curtains and drapes. And keep matches and lighters out of reach."

He also says that it is important to attend Christmas trees or other decorative lighting displays and to inspect lights for exposed or frayed wires, loose connections, and broken sockets.

Michigan Safe Kids also suggests:

- Minimizing risk of indoor fires by getting a fresh tree and keeping it watered at all times and keeping it away from fireplaces, space heaters, radiators or heat vents.
- Do not overload extension cords or outlets and do not run an electrical cord under a rug.

- Do not burn Christmas tree branches, treated wood or wrapping paper in a home fireplace.

- To prevent accidental poisoning, keep alcohol, including baking extracts, out of reach of children and do not leave alcoholic drinks unattended.

"Many holiday plants are potentially harmful if eaten, including holly berries, mistletoe berries, poinsettias, amaryllis, Christmas rose, Crown of Thorns, English ivy, and Jerusalem cherry," Notestine said.

For more information, call your local Poison Control Center at (800) 222-1222.

- Parents and caregivers can make sure they're choosing safe toys for their children by paying close attention to warning labels and manufacturers' guidelines.

"More than 3 billion toys and games are sold in the U.S. every year, and most of them are very safe. Warning labels and manufacturers' instructions tell you how to use products safely."

Insider's look at the Boss holiday display

Marilyn Boss
'Days gone by'

As we have many requests about our Christmas scene, I am writing about all the things we do to make it complete.

We begin in September, when Dale brings the trees into the house from a garage where we store them. Then, I decorate each one differently with lights and ornaments kept in a room downstairs. We buy everything when area stores have their after Christmas sales. I keep all the new lights and ribbons in a room in our house, on shelves, and it looks like a little store. After Christmas, when I take the ornaments and lights off the trees, I store them in individual big tubs, with contents listed on the outside. These are also stored in the room.

We began our big scene in 1987. Before that, we had a 25-foot tree in our living room. I also had a display of Snoopy characters, which we still have today. We had to climb up to the top of the tree to decorate it, and our son, Jim, did it when I couldn't climb up anymore. We used a big double ladder to reach the top.

When we begin the outdoor decorating, we bring out all the figures I have made through the years. We store them in our manger scene building. When I begin, I draw each one on prepared 4 foot by 8 foot boards, cut them out, sand the edges, and paint each elf or character, and then coat them with a preservative.

In 1987 we had 121 pieces and one tree. Today, we have 353. Dale pounds stakes in the ground and then attaches screws to each of them. I usually add figures each year and buy the toys at yard sales. We place the toys in front of the elves who are "making them." This year, my grandson, Ryder Boss, drew a large "Polar Express" train from the movie. He drew it in school and he and his classmates painted it. It is displayed on our picket fence. We also have a rocket ship which our grandson Logan Priess made when he was in middle school. Two new additions are a 12-and-a-half feet tall inflated snowman on the porch and a Santa in our carport display which pops up and down from a chimney.

When the big winds came in November, our 12-foot lighted Big Bird was twisted and broken, so we will repair it next summer. We also had more damage to some of the other characters, which I fixed and re-painted. We place our 52 inch TV in the front window to play our Disney movie with dancing figures and music. The music is piped outside. The wooden ornaments which I place on tree branches twirl in the wind, and our 1919 Model T Touring car and 1921 Model T pickup are there. On Christmas Eve, our son, Jim, also brings over his 1915 Model T. Also, Santa and Mrs. Claus are there to greet the children. We have a big fire in our outdoor stove to keep those who come warm. Our manger scene is in a shed made out of old barn lumber, which Dale built. We have shepherds, wisemen, Mary and Joseph, the baby Jesus, camels and sheep, which I made. We put fresh straw in every year. It makes a lovely atmosphere for the young and old to enjoy.

Dale is 74, and I am 72, and the work it takes is astronomical. We usually put up most everything ourselves, when we have an hour here or there, but we are going to have our children and grandchildren help us from now on. We love to do it, and the enjoyment we feel when the little children come through the yard cannot be put into words. I am just a kid at heart, and love to enjoy the trees and music myself.

Inside the house, we have 35 Christmas trees, including one in our attached playhouse, and one in our carport scene. We have a singing Santa, Mrs. Claus and a snowman there. Also, an antique child's sled, given to use by June Cross, and other toys. Inside the house, Dale hung up my antique Ingo bike on the second girl, and I always wished I could ride one. I found an antique dealer who managed to find one for me, and we have enjoyed using it.

We also have many teddy bears, Disney dolls, angels, Santa Claus toys that sing and play instruments, and candy ropes, adding to the festive atmosphere.

Two weeks ago, an agency called from New York and wanted to submit our scene to the Home and Garden TV Christmas show. They called us five times asking questions. However, it didn't work out, as they couldn't take pictures of our Disney characters, because it would be a copyright problem for them. They also informed me that they couldn't show our manger scene as it was too controversial.

We were very happy that they decided not to come. They set impossible deadlines, also, as everything has to be done to their convenience.

What is Christmas all about if it isn't the celebration of Jesus' birth. I trust you will have a blessed Christmas and will enjoy our scene this year.

PUBLIC ALERT

WARNING!

Medicaid Estate Recovery Could Threaten Your Home!

The State Legislature is currently debating Medicaid Estate Recovery (Senate Bill 820). This allows the government to "recover" Estates of Medicaid recipients who receive long-term care (e.g. nursing home and home care) after they are deceased.

Michigan citizens who have worked and paid taxes their entire lives to pay for a house to pass on to their children could lose everything if a long-term illness forces them to enroll in the Medicaid program. Such a law could also be devastating for family farms.

WHAT CAN YOU DO? Contact your State Representative and your State Senator and ask them to oppose efforts to enact Medicaid Estate Recovery in Michigan!

BASKETBALL

Basketball team to use speed to win games

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

Charlevoix High School basketball coach Keith Haske who is in his ninth year coaching the boys' team said his group will combat its lack of height with speed to tally wins this year.

"Our weakness is size. We don't have any really big kids. The teams with big kids will hurt us a little but hopefully we'll overcome that with our speed," he said.

He said teams like Traverse City

St. Francis and Grayling who both boast players over 6 feet 9 inches will be a challenge but the scrappy Rayder style of play should keep them at bay.

"We need to make sure the games are played at our pace. We want to play fast and our hope is to take the big guys out the game that way," he said.

Of the 14-member team, leading the Rayder charge are two seniors, Eddie Waldron who Haske said should be a leading scorer, and Michael DiMartino.

The starting five also includes three junior stand-outs.

He described Matt Kautz, a junior at the guard position, as a tough kid.

"He can really score from inside and outside and does a great job in our press," he said.

Under the basket in forward positions are junior Derek Friske who stands 6 feet 4 inches and junior Mitchell Crandall at 6 feet 2 inches.

Haske described Friske as "a key player." And Crandall as a "good shooter with strong rebounding skills."

"He does a good job going to the board," he added of Crandall.

The team is coming off of a winning season. They went 15-6 on the season last year, losing the first game in the district playoffs.

Haske said this year should be better all-around as the team includes several strong offensive players.

He said last year, the team relied heavily on senior Jared Hunt's ability to score and when he suffered an injury in the thirteenth game of the season things went downhill.

"Our strength is going to be overall, we have a lot of kids that can score. I don't think we'll be dependent on one guy," he said.

With extensive pre-season practice under their belts, Haske said his team is ready to play.

The team's next home game will take place at 6 p.m., this Friday, Dec. 16 when the Rayders will face the Rams of Harbor Springs.

"We have tremendously high expectations and a lot of skilled kids. Hopefully we'll use that to our advantage," Haske said.

Haske's fellow coaches are assistants Brett Erskine and Jim Gels.

Volleyball team looking strong this year

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

With the first week of practice complete Charlevoix High School varsity volleyball team coach Liz Grunch is confident her team will be successful in tournament and conference play this season.

Grunch said while she has a pretty young team — out of 12 players, six are juniors and one is a sophomore — the Rayders are coming off of a strong season last year. Last year, the girls' volleyball team won the Lake Michigan Conference championship and lost the district championship to semi-finalists Suttons Bay.

"Our returners have really stepped up. We are doing a great job keeping the intensity level at practice up. I'm pleased with our level of play early on," she said.

Grunch has five key players this year. First is junior setter Zita Anderson who was named to the Michigan all-region team last year.

Second is the team's only senior, Sally Haselschwardt who commands the right side of the court.

Third is middle front power player Bethany Pearson.

Fourth is Ashley Bradley, a junior who plays a high intensity game on the left side of the court.

Fifth is back row specialist Emily Heffling who will also fill the libero's role on the team.

Grunch explained that the libero player was introduced to high school level play this year and is a movement toward the collegiate format of volleyball.

She said this person is a floater who can substitute where needed.

"That will tremendously help our defense. She (Heffling) is a very strong back row player," Grunch said. "She won't be able to serve, but that's the only downfall."

Grunch said her team's strong defensive game is supported by its powerful hitting. She said these two strengths, coupled with the group's cohesion are a good formula for successful match-ups.

"They are a close group. In the long-run that will make our team successful," she said.

Areas of improvement Grunch pointed to that are needed in order to claim a championship title are the team's serve receive game and increasing offensive speed.

She said the teams that will challenge the Rayder volleyball unit are East Jordan, Kalkaska and Traverse City St. Francis.

"I want to win and I think we can win every game," she said.

The volleyball team's first competition will be a tournament to take place Dec. 10 in Pellston.

Charlevoix cheerleaders declare competitive status

"If cheerleading is to be recognized as a competitive sport, we can't pick and choose — we have to abide by the rules."

Erin Nickel.

Charlevoix High School cheerleading head coach

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

The six-member Charlevoix High School varsity winter cheerleading team will blaze a new path in the Lake Michigan Conference.

According to head coach Erin Nickel, the team is the first in the six school conference to declare competitive status with the Michigan High School Athletic Association — moving Charlevoix into a new realm of competition this year.

"We chose to take the bull by the horns and start a year early to work out the bumps that everyone else will be working out next year," she said. "At first I was incredibly apprehensive. But once I found out more information and did my research, I found the MHSAA (Michigan High School Athletic Association) is out there to regulate high school athletics. If we are high school athletics we have to abide by the rules. If cheerleading is to be recognized as a sport we can't pick and choose — we have to abide by the rules."

She explained that during the 2006-2007 school year the Michigan High School Athletic Association will require all cheerleading teams that wish to compete to become competition cheerleading teams. This differs from what Nickel referred to as sideline teams that don't compete.

In the past her group has competed in one to two events a season but this will provide more stringent competition parameters.

The competition includes three rounds of music-free cheerleading. The first is leadership where the girls perform a floor cheer void of stunts. In the second round, precision, their gymnastic skills are tested. The final round, creative, is a 2-and-a-half-minute round with stunts and tumbling included.

In past competitions Nickel said the team did fairly well but is not the strongest in the conference. She is hoping an extra season of competitive experience will give her girls the leg up they need to beat front runners East Jordan and Grayling.

Areas Nickel pointed to that need improvement are the girls' tumbling, flexibility and stunting skills.

She said new support safety material provided by the school will help facilitate the team's progress.

This new horizon is being pursued with leadership coming from cheerleaders Ashley Price, Rachel Barta and Maria Hall.

"These girls are doing a really good job heading up the team," Nickel said. "The team's overall strength is attitude. They really want to do this and are having a lot of fun with it."

Nickel is looking forward to the possibilities this new competitive program brings with it and said she has a new group of prospects climbing up the middle school ranks under the watchful eye of coach Kari Kauffman.

The team's first competition will take place Wednesday, Jan. 5 at the Houghton Lake Invitational in Houghton Lake.

Experienced skiers to face tough conference

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

Charlevoix ski team coach Sue Miller said her team will have to work hard to compete in a tough Lake Michigan Conference this year.

"We have a tough region and conference this year," she said. "Overall, I see our teams being really successful, we have a lot of skiers returning and a lot of experience."

The girls' team placed fifth in the state last year while the boys' took fourth in the region.

To follow-up this year with post season wins, Miller said her skiers will have to hit the slopes on their own time as well as attending practices.

"They've got to put the extra time in," she said.

The Charlevoix ski team is composed of students from Charlevoix High School and East Jordan High School.

The girls' team includes nine competitors six of which are returning from last year. Kristin Dupuis is the lone senior skier from Charlevoix High School. The other eight team members attend East Jordan High School.

Katherine Rowley, a sophomore at East Jordan High School is returning following her 2005 state championship showing in the giant slalom event.

The boys' team has 15 members 11 of which are returning from last year. The team includes nine Charlevoix High School students and six from East Jordan High School.

Seniors are Cameron Attee and Andrew Mallory from Charlevoix and Jason Palmrose from East Jordan.

Mac Brennan a sophomore attending East Jordan High School is back after a strong showing at the 2005 state finals.

While the two teams are carrying seven freshmen, Miller said she is confident the young brood will perform well as most came from middle school ski programs coached in Charlevoix by Erik Lundteigen and in East Jordan by Wendy Crick.

At the time of the interview for this story, the team had not practiced on the slopes yet. Pre-season training lead by Miller and assistant coach Steve Pirie has been focused on conditioning, agility and coordination drills.

The first meet of the season is scheduled to take place Jan. 5, 2006 at Boyne Mountain, the team's home venue.

High school races are made up of giant slalom and slalom events. Six racers compete in each event and the top four times are used in the final standings.

Wrestling team faces loss of experience to injury

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

Charlevoix wrestling coach Craig Golovich said his team will be successful on the mats this year.

"As a team they are doing great," he said.

The team of about 20 wrestlers has a long list of new blood this year with several freshman faces having made the cut. But as of last week the team had gone undefeated in its first three matches of the season.

The young team is following up a successful year. Last year, the wrestling team ended the season with a winning record and took Jeff Golovich to the state finals. At the finals he won one match and then tore his rotator cuff in the second match to a wrestler who took the tournament.

Golovich, a senior this year, jumped a weight class and is now wrestling at 189 pounds. Coach Golovich said his son is back in good health and is leading the team to another successful finish.

Coach Golovich said his other two seniors, Matt Novotny and Jed Daman are rounding out the leadership with junior Nick Gotshall who also suffered an injury last year when he tore ligaments in his knee.

Coach Golovich said Gotshall is wrestling strong this year.

He is hoping to go through the season without the major injuries that have plagued his team in the past.

Golovich, who has coached for about 11 years, this being his fourth at the varsity level, said the past two years have been terrible as far as injuries go.

This season, accomplished wrestler Chris Aepelbacher will have to sit out due to a displaced shoulder he suffered during the fall 2005 football season. And Nathaniel Sotuyo, who broke his elbow at the district meet two years ago, also won't be returning.

"They're not wrestling and that's a real loss to us," coach Golovich said. "If they were here, we would be solid and strong. We are wrestling freshman on varsity but they are doing well."

Challenges coach Golovich pointed to that the team will face include the Dec. 16 Bridge Brawl at Rudyard where five Upper Peninsula schools will compete against Charlevoix.

In their plight to take the conference Grayling will be their nemesis.

"Grayling is the toughest in the conference," coach Golovich said. The next home meet for the Charlevoix wrestlers is at 6 p.m., Monday, Dec. 19 when Charlevoix will face Grayling, Kalkaska and Traverse City St. Francis.

The popular Charlevoix Takedown tournament is at 10 a.m., Jan. 21. Golovich said what makes this tournament so popular is that only take downs are counted. The guy with the most take downs wins.

GOOD LUCK!

Construction schedule approved

Marina and East Park work to begin Aug. 13, 2006

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

The Charlevoix Municipal Marina and East Park renovation project is taking major strides toward becoming a reality.

Permits are in place, a construction schedule has been approved and on Dec. 13 the Michigan House of Representatives approved $5 million to be appropriated to the $8.1 million project. Senate approval is also required.

The city's Downtown Development Authority has agreed to fund the balance.

The House of Representatives' funding decision came after a Dec. 9 Waterways Commission meeting when the capital outlay was unanimously approved by the commission's seven members.

The Waterways fund program is not part of the state's general fund budget supported by state taxpayer money. Program funding is provided through Michigan hoater registration fees, which are restricted for use on boating-related projects only.

At a joint Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority and city council meeting Monday night, Dec. 19, a project plan was approved.

According to the preliminary project schedule, construction will begin with sea wall replacement preparation starting on July 23, 2006. Bids for this project will go out in March of 2006.

Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner said this will result in the late season loss of seven existing docks. On the flip side, he said the early start will allow for a cushion in the spring of 2007 which will allow contractors to lay sod in East Park in preparation for the grand opening of the completed project.

The final site review is expected to take place on May 27, 2007.

According to Wiesner, city harbor master Hal Evans has said the 2006 season loss of dock space is workable.

This was little comfort to first ward city councilman Bill Haggard who said he's concerned with construction disrupting business affairs in downtown Charlevoix at the tail end of the tourist season.

Local winter sports mecca opens its doors

Cold, snowy weather may be dreadful to some but for outdoor winter sports enthusiasts like Be Boss, manager at Charlevoix's Mt. McSaubia, it's just what the doctor ordered.

The local, city-owned recreation facility opened on Saturday, Dec. 17.

"The conditions are awesome, we are 100 percent open," Boss said. "This is the earliest that we've ever had everything open."

That means that the facility's four rope tows, six runs and miles of cross country skiing trails were covered in powder and groomed to the liking of snow boarders, bladders and skiers.

McSaubia staffers have worked around the clock since late November, making snow to make the winter wonderland a reality.

"We're tired but we have to take advantage of this cold weather," Boss said.

Their next stop will be the famed sledding hill where Boss said thrill seekers have already braved the winter weather to catch some speed. He said snow guns will likely be aimed at the sledding hill in about a week.

While the facility was open this past weekend it is closed this week

Waterways, House of Representatives pass $5 million for marina renovation

Wiesner said the bulkhead crew will be working from a barge in Round Lake and disruptions should be minimal.

Authority member and long-time retailer Jeannine Wallace said late summer is not a huge moneymaker for retailers.

"I think retailers will be more excited to see the project happening. The people aren't here then anyway," she said.

The marina project will include replacement of the sea wall, removal of the existing 17 docks which at the furthest point extend 75 feet into Round Lake and replacement of those docks with a 67-slip floating dock system that extends 220 feet into Round Lake at the furthest point.

Dock work is expected to take place from April 15, 2007 through May 27, 2007.

East Park changes include demolition of the existing Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce building and harbor master's headquarters and construction of a new harbor master's building and boater support facility at the foot of Clinton Street.

Construction on the harbor master facility is expected to begin Sept. 13, 2006 with completion in March of 2007.

A new performance venue will be built at the south end of East Park. Demolition of the existing bandshell has been slated for Nov. 5, 2006 with construction of the new facility starting a week later, on Nov. 12, 2006.

Bids for building construction will go out in June of 2006.

OPINIONS

Commissioners need to improve communication

We want to second the vote of confidence the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners gave to the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office.

The three attorneys in that office recently successfully prosecuted a first degree murder conviction of David Goldstick in the shooting death of Charlevoix resident Bill Brady. This was the first, first degree murder conviction to be handed down in Charlevoix County in years.

We have also watched as the attorneys in that office put away multiple criminal sexual conduct offenders, including sending a repeat sex offender from Boyne City back to prison who took advantage of a mentally incapacitated girl.

We want to commend the office staff for working with the U.S. District Attorney's Office for the Western District of Michigan to prosecute a case involving the overdose death of an East Jordan girl.

These successes support a pat on the back for county prosecutor John Jarema and his staff.

We hope the recommendation from the county's internal government committee to hire outside counsel for civil matters doesn't resurface without the county board of commissioners first approaching Jarema and his capable staff and asking the question, "Are you overloaded?"

EDITORIAL

The recommendation was considered at the commissioners' meeting Dec. 14.

In a previous interview, Jarema said this would cost the county at least $10,000 a year. Commissioners who supported the recommendation said the prosecutor's office was up to its ears in work.

The staff maintains they can hack it and we think before the board starts supporting throwing money around they should ask the man voters elected to do the job.

When we approached Jarema and asked that simple question, he said his support staff is overloaded with paper work and they could use a boost in manpower.

He told this to the commissioners as well and even proposed bringing on a person from a temp agency so the county would save on insurance and other costs associated with hiring a new county staffer.

He was told, "No," the money just isn't there.

So we ask where was the money going to come from to pay the thousands of dollars outside civil counsel would cost?

Winter solstice reminds us of our place in the grand scheme of life

Roger Knutson
'Ear to the ground'

Dec. 21 is designated on my calendar as the "first day of winter." I prefer to think of it as the last day when the sun has nearly faded from sight in the southern skies, and the first day of a dawning new solar year.

In any case, we probably ought to acknowledge that the whole earth is making its way around the sun again, and that while here above the northern 45th parallel the sun seems to have abandoned us, in those tiny bits of land an equal distance south of our earth's equator, the sun stands as high in the sky as it ever does and summer reigns.

There aren't many people along the southern 45th parallel to celebrate their summer solstice Dec. 21. That southern 45th parallel runs through the southern tip of South America and the extreme southern tip of New Zealand. There are a few oceanic islands at that latitude in the southern seas, but most of them are completely uninhabited by people and viewed as being too small or too harsh in climate to provide a livelihood. There are tiny bits of land at that southern extremity that belong to France, to South Africa and to Norway, and no one is disputing their ownership. That seems to suggest they aren't worth much. I still cannot understand why England fought a short war with Argentina in defense of the Falkland Islands in that part of the world. What could they possibly have been defending?

By contrast with the bleak situation and tiny populations basking in their summer solstice, the northern high latitudes house millions of people, even though many of us might be willing to acknowledge that the winter climate is really too harsh for successful survival. For as long as humans have occupied this forbidding place, we have joyfully recognized that around the end of December, the sun, which has been fading to the south, will now begin to warm us with progressively longer days. The sun is, of course, not moving, the earth is, but it remains difficult to avoid that human oriented view of the cosmos.

Maybe in these times of extremity, the winter and summer solstices, we could put in a few minutes to tell ourselves that all of us live things occupy the same earth. Biblically, we are told that the sun shines on both the evil and the good. And while the sun doesn't always shine at the same angle, the whole earth keeps on moving through space, occasionally reminding us that we, whether good or evil, are not the drivers, but only the passengers. A little perspective is not a bad idea, and a solstice can help us recall our place in the great scheme of things.

We all live on, and completely depend on, a single earth at a known and understood distance and angle from the sun. During the 364 days that are not our winter solstice let's remember that.

In the 1940s, a presidential candidate named Wendell Wilkie flew around the world and produced a book titled "One World." It is still a good thought for the season.

Sheriff Lasater's heroes
Editor:

I have a new set of heroes starting with the Boyne City EMS crew who responded so quickly and got me to the Northern Michigan Hospital emergency room just in time. Also for the Boyne City, city manager and city council to have the foresight of providing the citizens with "advanced life support" with their EMS crews.

The Northern Michigan Hospital Emergency Room doctors, nurses and technicians who saved my life, twice.

The cardiac surgeon and his surgical team that repaired my heart and gave me a second chance.

The nurses and technicians in the intensive care unit and the cardiac floor—they were the greatest.

The health department visiting nurse.

The staff of the cardiac rehabilitation unit at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Tim and Monica are the greatest.

My children and friends, who supported and took care of me.

I was so humbled by the support of citizens who sent cards, telephone calls, flowers and prayers. It's so great to live in a small community.

The staff of the sheriff's office made me very proud under the leadership of undersheriff W.D. Schneider. This proves the philosophy of surrounding yourself with a great staff and in your absence things will be ok.

In summary, I feel that the Lord gave me another chance to do some good things for the citizens of Charlevoix County.

that new day. Although we celebrate the holidays at the same time, we do it from different perspectives. This reminds me of the meaning of the feeling I have during the holidays. Whether we are celebrating the birth of Jesus, or remembering the night the oil lamp remained lit at Hanukkah, or just welcoming in the New Year, these celebrations have special meaning for each of us.

As we go to our parties and religious services this season think about the freedom we have to celebrate and sing our God's praises. As a Christian I love getting in touch with old friends at Christmas and gathering for a feast with family at Thanksgiving. The Rabbi talks about potato pancakes, and even an agnostic friend declared that he really likes the colored lights. Even my son Troy Drebenstedt who served in Iraq talked about how our brothers and sisters fighting for freedom in Iraq and Afghanistan will take special moments and celebrate with faith in God's love and purpose.

May I say a prayer for you and yours that God will speak to you during these days of celebration. I pray that you may hear and listen to the sounds and feel the joy and excitement that come to people of faith. May God be with you and may you truly feel God's love and grace in this holy season.

Merry Christmas

Exercise religious rights
Editor:
Each year the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) and its many like-minded allies deliberately bully individual citizens, schools, and government officials into removing any mention of Christ or Christianity from the public celebration of Christmas.

Christmas has historically been one of the most celebrated holidays of the American people. Misconceptions and controversy about the fictitious "separation of church and state" and the celebration of Christmas has led many public officials to "remove Christ from Christmas" in places such as schools, parks, libraries and government offices.

This was not the intent of the founding fathers. No court has ever ruled that the Constitution requires government officials to censor Christmas carols, eliminate all references to Christmas or silence those who celebrate Christ's birth.

In order to eliminate any confusion with regard to your right to publicly celebrate Christmas, the following will equip you to dispel the myths and excuses that are used to silence the public celebration of Christmas.

• Listed value of existing public library as of May 12, 2004 $595,000.
• Debt Interest on the $595,000 is $300,000.

• Renovation cost to convert it to an administrative central office $190,000.
• Lost private property taxes for 20 years at $18,000 per year are $360,000.
• Overall cost to taxpayers, $1,445,000.

With all the discussion about the (Charlevoix Public) library's future in the recent past, I am surprised that the school board and/or budget committee has not identified this unnecessary expenditure. I am recommending that the library be sold, put on the tax rolls and not be used for an upgraded administrative central office. For the benefit of the taxpayers, the school board should publicize their decision on this matter now so it may be scrutinized by the taxpaying public.

Publicize library matter
Editor:

In reading your Nov. 23 article about the public schools impending budget crisis, and search for proactive solutions, I have listed the following facts and recommendation.

• Listed value of existing public library as of May 12, 2004 $595,000.
• Debt Interest on the $595,000 is

Religious Christmas carols may be sung by individual students or by a group of students during school activities such as choir, Christmas programs and other events.

School officials may refer to the school break in December as a "Christmas holiday." The Supreme Court has acknowledged with approval that government has long recognized holidays with religious significance such as Christmas. Congress has proclaimed Christmas to be a legal public holiday.

School districts may not ban teachers or students from saying, "Merry Christmas." The Supreme Court has stated that teachers and students do not "Shed their constitutional rights, to freedom of speech or expression at the schoolhouse gate." In order to violate the Establishment Clause, a teacher would have to use his or her authority to promote religion to his or her students. The Supreme Court has stated that, "The Bible may constitutionally be used in an appropriate study of history, civilization, ethics, comparative religion or the like. The court explained that the, "study of the Bible or of religion, when presented objectively as part of a secular program of education," is constitutional under the First Amendment.

The Supreme Court has held that the Constitution "affirmatively mandates accommodation, not merely tolerance, of all religions, and forbids hostility toward any." First Amendment rights accompany each student throughout the school day both inside and outside the classroom. School officials must permit students to convey religious sentiments through their school assignments, selection of reading materials, and clothing that conveys a religious message through words or symbols.

Public school officials may display religious symbols such as a nativity scene if they have a clear educational reason for doing so. The Supreme Court has held that the display of a nativity scene is constitutional if it is displayed for legitimate secular purposes, such as to celebrate a holiday and to depict the origins of the holiday.

Public officials may display religious symbols such as a crèche or nativity scene. To determine the constitutionality of municipal religious displays, lower courts evaluate whether the religious display passes the Supreme Court's three-pronged test. Under the lemon test, courts will inquire, "whether the challenged law or conduct has a secular purpose, whether its principle or primary effect is to advance or inhibit religion, and whether it creates an excessive entanglement of government with religion." The Supreme Court has held that the display of a nativity scene is constitutional if it is displayed for legitimate secular purposes, such as to celebrate a holiday and to depict the origins of the holiday. Courts often look to the endorsement test or "The Three Reindeer Rule," which asks whether a reasonable observer would believe that the municipal display constitutes an endorsement of religion by the government. This rule requires a municipality to place a sufficient number of secular objects in close enough proximity to the crèche to render the overall display sufficiently secular.

The Constitution does not require government officials to eliminate all public religious expression of Christmas. The right of public school students and public officials to publicly celebrate the Christmas holiday is protected by the U.S. Constitution and the various court decisions. It's ok to say, "Merry Christmas," regardless of the legal threats from the American Civil Liberties Union and its allies. To support and encourage others in your community to exercise their right to say, "Merry Christmas," you'll be part of an important effort to protect and preserve the rights of people everywhere to practice and observe their beliefs. We must protect what we have, reclaim what we've lost and shape who we will become.

Performances will take place at 7 p.m. Dec. 28 and at 1 and 7 p.m. Dec. 29.

The colorful, full-scale musical production will feature "Toby" the rat, who makes his debut the opening night of the performance, along with both the adult and youth cast members who regularly perform with the company.

"We are excited about presenting 'A Little Princess' at the Castle where beauty and art so amply exist," said director Kathleen Whittaker. "We hope to create a wonderful memory-making experience for families — inviting them to soak in the rich atmosphere of the location, while being delightfully entertained and touched through our drama."

Tickets for the three performances can be purchased on-line at: www.RagamuffinTheatre.com, or reserved over the phone by calling (231) 237-9686.

A portion of the proceeds from this month's show will go to supporting the MLD Foundation in honor of a very special "little princess" who lived a brave and courageous short life among us, Maddie Trimper.

Those wanting more information on how they can help the Trimper family raise both awareness and funds for metachromatic leukodystrophy (MLD) go to their Web site, www.trimperchildren.org.

Embezzlement trial adjourned on mental illness

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Karla Lockman

The trial set for January of 2006 for Karla Lockman, who has been charged with embezzlement, was postponed for at least 120 days following a forensic evaluation which questions the status of her mental health.

Lockman was arraigned in Charlevoix County District Court June 23 on charges of embezzlement between January and May from Northern Preferred Title Company, LLC with whom she was a closing agent.

According to owner John Taylor, the embezzlement scandal forced Northern Preferred Title Company to severely curtail its activities and 14 employees at the company's three offices have been laid off.

According to Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema, Lockman is charged with two counts of embezzlement by an agent or trustee of $20,000 or more, punishable by up to 10 years in prison and/or a $15,000 fine or three times the amount embezzled.

Jarema maintains that she embezzled about $775,000.

A suit, which was filed in United States District Court Western District of Michigan on June 15, alleges Lockman may have embezzled as much as $975,023.64.

On Dec. 12 Charlevoix County Circuit Court administrators conducted a conference call along with Jarema and Lockman's defense attorney Fred Gibson.

The court was advised of a report from the Center for Forensic Psychiatry which stated, "It was the opinion of the forensic psychologist that defendant (Lockman) met the statutory criteria for mental illness and insanity; that based on the content of the forensic report defendant anticipates a trial as opposed to resolution via plea."

According to the report authored by Lockman's examining physician, Dr. Jeffrey Wendt of the Center for Forensic Psychiatry, Lockman meets the statutory criteria for legal insanity.

"To summarize, it is my considered opinion that Mrs. Lockman suffered from a substantial disorder of thought and mood, meeting the statutory criteria for mental illness at the time of the alleged offense. As a result of her mental illness, it is further my opinion that Mrs. Lockman did not appreciate the nature and quality of her conduct, the wrongfulness of her conduct and could not conform her conduct to the requirements of the law," Wendt stated in the report issued Dec. 7.

Gibson's brief in support of adjourning the trial also states that Lockman has a pregnancy delivery date of Jan. 8 which under state law is a reason for trial adjournment.

Jarema said he is going to pursue an independent exam.

When Lockman is referred to an independent examination, her defense will have 60 days to file a report in addition to a 30 day extension which may be filed.

Lockman remains free on a

$50,000 surety/bond

Jarema's office determined Lockman is a low flight risk and therefore will remain free on bond until her trial.

As a closing agent for Northern Preferred, a couple of Lockman's duties were to collect closing funds from purchasers and deposit them into the escrow account.

According to a press release from the Boyne City Police Department, a lengthy investigation determined a minimum of $670,000 was converted into Lockman's personal bank account and was used to purchase a new home and furnishings, new vehicles, horses, trailers and other personal possessions or expenses.

Lockman, who filed for bankruptcy in Grand Rapids on Aug. 2, 2004, said she received an inheritance to explain her sudden windfall, but her parents later refuted the claim.

Due to the nature of this case, Lockman is prohibited from transferring or selling any property she personally or jointly has an interest in.

A scheduling conference between Jarema and Gibson has been set for Dec. 30. At this conference a date will be set for Lockman's jury trial.

Attorney joins local branch of Running, Wise and Ford

By JULIE WITTHOFT
 Editor

A local branch of an established Traverse City law firm has welcomed a new attorney.

Boh Grzech, 46, recently transferred to the Charlevoix office of Running, Wise and Ford. He joins attorneys Mike Corcoran and Katrina Martin.

The three are the Charlevoix arm which opened Aug. 1 of the 60-year-old firm which includes 10 other attorneys based in Traverse City.

The office is located at 203 Mason Street in the former Joseph Corcoran, Telgenhof and Snyder, P.C. building. Joseph Corcoran, Telgenhof and Snyder, P.C. dissolved Aug. 1.

Grzech started with Running, Wise and Ford in 2003 after working with the firm Plunkett and Cooney in Gaylord. He also spent 10 years as prosecuting attorney for the City of Gaylord.

Grzech, a Detroit native who has been in northern Michigan for almost 18 years, moved to Charlevoix with his family in November.

"I've always liked Charlevoix. I'm happy to be here — it's a great place to raise kids," he said.

Corcoran described Running, Wise and Ford as a full-service law firm specializing in insurance defense work, municipal law, real property law and general practice representation.

Grzech said he has done some criminal defense work but his specialty is real property law. He has represented numerous title insurance agencies in the past.

"We're very busy, it's good to have Boh here," Corcoran said.

Corcoran, who has been an attorney in Charlevoix since 1992, said he anticipates three trained mediators with the Traverse City office of Running, Wise and Ford also working out of the local branch.

"It's wonderful to have the resources of a bigger firm. It's allowed me to really serve my clients better," he said.

The Charlevoix office of Running, Wise and Ford is open from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

For more information call (231) 547-8990.

Local photographer opens exhibit in Palestine

Charlevoix film maker/photographer, Rebecca Giotfelty, opened her photography exhibit, "What I'm Thinking: American Thoughts on the Middle East," at An Najah University in Nablus, Palestine.

The exhibit consists of 13 black and white portraits of Michiganders, accompanied by their feelings on events in the Middle East. The statements are printed in both Arabic and English. The purpose of the exhibit is to reveal the variety of American cultural and political views. Although the Palestinian students did not agree with some of the views expressed, they expressed their gratitude for the chance to discover, "What Americans are Thinking."

During the opening of the exhibit, Giotfelty videotaped student reactions to the exhibit. She will edit this into a short documentary also titled, "What I'm Thinking." She plans to debut the documentary at the upcoming art show and film festival, "From Women's Hands," to take place in Traverse City.

Giotfelty also presented her film, "Such a Normal Thing: A Simple Journey into the Israeli-Occupied West Bank," to nearly 150 university students. A lengthy discussion followed the showing.

Sheriff Lasater to release book on WWII vets

By BENJAMIN GOIIS
Staff writer

Following four years of work, a book highlighting the accomplishments and contributions of Charlevoix County veterans who served during World War II will soon be hot off the press.

According to author Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater, he finished the book titled, "Charlevoix County's Contribution to World War II," this summer. He said it's about the size of a Detroit telephone directory and full of many great stories and pictures.

"There is a total of 1,350 individuals with 435 photographs," Lasater said in an interview which took place in late October.

According to Lasater, 67, the book is his second literary work. His first was called, "The Lasater Family in the Civil War." His latest tome covers the individuals from Charlevoix County who served in World War II and what they did before, during and after the war.

"I've also included a segment on industry's contribution in Charlevoix County and about three civilians who had unusual contributions," he said. "We had representation in every battle you can think of in World War II — from the invasion of Normandy to Iwo Jima and Pearl Harbor to the Baton Death March and every battle in between. And, every job classification in the military you can think of, from infantry to fighter pilot, to frogmen to nurses to medic — we even had two from Charlevoix who were English Spitfire pilots."

Courtesy photo

Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater will release his book, "Charlevoix County's Contribution to World War II," in January.

In his research, Lasater found that Charlevoix County soldiers who served during World War II received a total of 290 bronze stars, 13 silver stars, one medal of honor and 139 purple hearts.

"We had one pilot killed and 36 KIAs (killed in action) countywide," he said.

One of Lasater's favorite stories is that of the crew of a B-24 shot in a mission over Germany.

"The Luftwaffe beat them up terribly. There were holes all over the plane. After they were out of harm's way it was the crew's responsibility to get down from their positions and pick up the loose shells," Lasater said. "And right behind the pilot's seat was a big auxiliary shell lodged under the gas tank."

Lasater said the Charlevoix soldier was on his hands and knees gathering shells when he noticed the 20 millimeter canon shell which had passed through the fuselage unexploded.

"The slightest jar could have set it off. He told the pilot and the pilot radioed ahead for priority landing," Lasater said. "Normally this particular pilot landed rough-bumpy landings, but this time he landed like they sat down a pillow and as soon as the aircraft stopped, everyone began hailing out."

He added, "A month later the crew got the report back on why the shell didn't explode. It was filled with sand and it was made by Polish slave laborers in a German munitions plant. The Poles had sabotaged the shell and some poor Polish slave laborer, who is probably dead, saved the lives of 10 crewman and a United States airplane."

Another event which touched Lasater's heart was the story of a grandmother from the Village of Walloon who lost both her grandson and his best friend on a B-17.

Lasater said the kids grew up together and were constantly around the grandmother's home.

"She was so devastated, when they put up a plaque memorial in the park, she had her wedding and engagement ring melted down to make gold stars to be placed by their names," Lasater said.

Lasater said there are so many wonderful stories which are dying as the veterans pass on.

"One of the great benefits for me was meeting a great deal of people who I never would have met — what a great, great generation this was," he said.

Lasater said the books will be ready in late January and all proceeds will go into a fund to help World War II veterans and their spouses.

"The citizens of Charlevoix have been good to me and this is my way of saying thanks," he said.

Veterans featured in the book and their families will have the opportunity to buy the book at cost.

Lasater is planning a book signing at the Bridge Street Book Shop at a later date.

Lasater, who has been sheriff for the past 29 years, suffered a heart attack Nov. 14 and underwent open heart surgery Nov. 17 at Northern Michigan Hospital.

County undersheriff Don Schneider, who stepped into the sheriff's position during Lasater's absence, issued a news release Dec. 12. In the release he states, "Sheriff Lasater continues to recover from his recent heart attack. The sheriff has been given the go ahead to spend a limited amount of time in the office each day of two hours. The sheriff is feeling a lot better and his improvement is exceeding his doctor's expectations."

According to the release, "The sheriff has been overwhelmed with the amount of cards, letters and calls which him well."

"I have been humbled by the concern and response of the community," Lasater stated in the release.

A Christmas Miracle

December 2005

Whether we believe in the Lord or some other special deity, some of us have been fortunate enough to find out the true meaning of Christmas, and that happened to one individual last week when he was walking his Collie dog.

At a farm next to the Blue Ridge Mountains in Culpepper, Virginia this man was walking down his cattle path on his farm when he heard a small boy yelling for help. The man tied his dog to his fence and ran over to where the boy was at the farm next door. The man jumped over the fence and saw that the boy's father had been cutting down a tree, and the tree had fallen across his body. The dad could not breathe. He was bleeding from his mouth and his ears and had broken every bone on the left side of his face. He also had a punctured lung and two broken legs. His wife told the man that her husband was dying and the only way to save him was to lift the tree off of his chest. The man from the next door farm told the lady that the tree was huge and weighed probably 300 to 400 lbs. and there was no way he could lift the tree off of her husband.

Her little boy and daughter kept crying that their Daddy was going to die. The mother took the man's hand along with the hands of the children and had them repeat the Lord's Prayer. She said, "After we pray the man will be able to lift the tree up from Daddy." After the prayer was said, the man went down on his knees and picked up the tree and moved it off of her dying husband. The color came back into his face and he regained consciousness. When the rescue helicopter came and landed in the dying man's field, they found the mother, the two children, and the neighbor gathered on the ground with the man holding his hands and praying together.

David Greene was taken to the intensive care unit of the Fairfax Hospital in Northern Virginia. He was in critical condition for one week and miraculously he has recovered enough to be home for Christmas with his family.

The evening after the accident, I went back with my dog to the tree I had moved off the man, and I could see the imprint of the man's body on the ground where the tree had landed on top of him. I walked over to the tree and bent down to see if I could pick it up again. I could not move it one inch from where it was. There is only one way to explain what took place the evening before, and it had to be a miracle. There is only one way to understand it, and that is, the good Lord gave me the strength to save David's life.

So this Christmas I know we all have people like David Green, who need help, your help. So like the saving of David, it is something we can all do in different ways for people who need the Lord's love.

I am in complete awe of what happened to David and me. It is truly God's Christmas gift to us both! Now, every time I walk down my trail, my farm lane, I am going to look over at the fallen tree and think how the Lord used me to do the impossible, and complete his good deed.

It was a miracle of miracles, and truly the meaning of Christmas!

Merry Christmas to all of you,

Bill Schudling

County commission gives Jarema vote of confidence

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The Charlevoix County Commission unanimously voted to retain Charlevoix County Prosecutor, John Jarema, as civil counsel at its Dec. 14 meeting.

"Now, my understanding is, we're back to where we were where civil stuff will come to me and if I can't handle it or my office can't handle it or if it's prudent to get outside counsel I will instruct the board," Jarema said.

Following discussion among the commission and audience members as to whether the board should farm out civil issues requiring legal representation, sixth district County Commissioner, Shirley Roloff, made a motion to give Jarema a "vote of confidence."

"We still have the right to go out for other things if he can't handle it," Roloff said. "I think this right here (draft of the resolution) should be thrown in the garbage. The way I look at it, it embarrasses me to be a part of it."

The discussion over whether to keep Jarema on as civil counsel stemmed from a resolution drafted weeks before the meeting which would have given the board the right to hire outside counsel to represent them in civil matters.

Roloff demanded to know who wrote the resolution.

Charlevoix County Clerk, Jane

Brannon said, her office drafted the resolution with input from the Personnel/Internal Government Committee, which consists of first district commissioner Josh Barnes, fourth district commissioner Vic Patrick and second district commissioner W. Randolph Frykberg.

Prior to the "vote of confidence," commissioners discussed concerns they have with Jarema and his department.

Frykberg mentioned the sharp increase in criminal cases and the importance of the prosecutor's office focusing on those cases.

"We've had several meetings where its come out about the rather sharp increases in the criminal case filings and the time for that — that's the critical nature of the position, that they have plenty of time to focus on those priorities and that's what's stated right here in this resolution," Frykberg said.

Jarema said he wants the taxpayers to know he can handle both the criminal and civil caseload.

Barnes expressed concerns over Jarema releasing information to the press about whether state law was violated in scheduling an election for his appointed seat, before releasing it to the board of commissioners.

But, Jarema said, "The board never asked me for an opinion on when this election should have been held. And with all of the election stuff that's going on (it) probably makes sense if it would have been held in May."

Commissioner Patrick said counsel may need to attend all county meetings since county resident Bob Taylor regularly attends and routinely questions the board on legal matters.

"He is stating laws which we are not familiar with and we are going to need some type of legal representation," Patrick said.

Jarema said, "If you want to pay to have a civil counsel sit in at these meetings because Mr. Taylor is taping them and asking questions, have at it, but I think it's a waste of money."

"I don't believe it's fiscally responsible to the taxpayers of this county," he added.

Jarema then asked the commission what he'd done wrong or if there was something he failed to do.

Frykberg responded that his question begs a discussion of performance which he has the right to talk over in closed session.

Jarema waived his right to a closed session meeting and Frykberg said Jarema sent an issue to a labor attorney which cost $400. Jarema countered that he was directed by Frykberg to send the issue to outside counsel.

According to Fifth District County Commissioner, Dennis Jason, he doesn't believe the proposed resolution was meant to relieve Jarema of all civil counsel duties.

"I'm sorry you're taking this as a slap in the face, because I don't think that's what the intent is," Jason said. "I think the intent is cases where there may be a (controversy) maybe internally in the county."

Jason said the commission needs the right and ability to hire outside counsel if they choose.

Nine applicants for chief of police move on

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

Dennis Halverson

Charlevoix City Council evaluated 29 applicants for the new city police chief position at its meeting Dec. 20, passing nine along for review by a professional committee.

At the meeting council members agreed that they are looking for a long-term working chief who is visible in the community.

Now, they plan to move into steps two and three of a three-step process they approved, to find the right match.

At a special meeting which took place Tuesday, Dec. 13 council discussed how they will fill the seat of former chief Dennis Halverson who announced his resignation in late September.

Halverson, the longest serving Charlevoix Chief of Police, accepted the "Safe Schools Coordinator" position with the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District. He started in this position in early November.

Deputy police chief Scott Hankins has filled the role of interim chief during the transition time. Council hopes to hand the reins over to the new chief soon.

"Let's get it done," second ward councilman Gabe Campbell said.

By the Nov. 11 application cutoff, Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner had received 29 applications at his office.

Council decided to review each of the applications using a matrix of qualifications and send the group of nine along to a professional committee for its review.

Wiesner suggested this group include city fire chief Paul Ivan, Traverse City Commissioner and former police chief Ralph Solfredine, as well as the current police chief in Mackinaw City.

Any local applicants bypassed council's original review and are included in the group of nine headed to the professional team.

Those the professional group feels have the skills to fill the chief's seat will be recommended to council for final review and hiring.

"What I really see the professional team doing is evaluating whether applicants have the skills and tools to perform the job and council picking the flavor," Wiesner said.

Campbell agreed to this hiring process but said he feels it shouldn't include the professional team.

"I think council can do the job. We shouldn't leave it to a team of people that don't live in this city. The council knows what they expect from a police officer," he said.

Mayor Norman Carlson disagrees with Campbell and said he supports applicant review by a professional team.

"There's no way you or I could tell what it takes to be a police chief. There's so much more than interaction with the community and who we like and who we think is good. There's a lot of administrative, technical aspects to the job," he said. "You are going to make the final hire. I don't think you could do it as well as someone who does that job every day."

The names of the applicants will be withheld pending a decision by council as to who the finalists will be. Once the group of finalists has been determined, their names will be released.

Carlson said he hopes to have the new chief hired by the second week in January.

The final deer harvest, which

The 2005 estimate is below the 2004 estimated harvest of 265,000. According to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, the state's record firearm season harvest occurred in

In addition to the amount of deer taken, the department also estimated that some 700,000 hunters took to the fields. Upper Peninsula hunters took an estimated 30,000 deer this fall, lower than last year's final harvest estimate of 34,000 deer.

The decrease is primarily in the Northern Lower Peninsula. It is estimated that about 20 percent of the total 2005 deer harvest is expected to be taken during the remaining deer season.

School financial steering committee brainstorm cuts

By BENJAMIN GOHIS
Staff writer

Determined to examine budget issues which face Charlevoix Public Schools, the Financial Steering Committee met for the second of four scheduled meetings, Thursday, Dec. 15 at Charlevoix Middle School.

Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education member, Dean Spenceley, said he believes the steering committee will produce positive results.

"I think we've got the majority of Charlevoix's brightest and I think they're going to come up with a lot of good ideas," he said.

Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools, Dr. John Sturock opened last week's meeting with a brief overview of monetary cuts which have been made to school budgets over the past couple years as well as the revenue which has been generated. He stressed to the committee that they are only making suggestions for the board to review.

"We're not asking you to make these cuts and you're not suggesting cuts. You are helping our board think through the process," Sturock said. The committee then broke into groups of five and spent about 30 minutes brainstorming potential expenditure cuts.

Some of the ideas produced during the session were to reduce bussing, offering pay-to-play sports programs and altering the early retirement incentive.

Committee member Bob Heath,

"Everything is a cost benefit analysis. Because, if you drive students away, you've defeated the purpose."

Bob Heath,
Charlevoix Public Schools, Financial Steering Committee said the board might consider a four-day school week because taking a day off of school saves roughly $2,000 for a total of just over $70,000 a school year in savings.

"Everything is a cost benefit analysis," Heath said. "Because, if you drive students away, you've defeated the purpose."

Heath also mentioned his group discussed a possible grass roots movement to "Restructure the funding formula. Not necessarily to raise taxes, but to let education get a bigger slice of the pie."

According to committee member Tom Barnes, early retirement could be detrimental in the long-run because paying medical benefits and salary in retirement to those who retire early means more money coming out of the school system for a longer period of time with no return of services from those teachers retiring at a younger age.

Barnes also mentioned his group wanted to look at possible cuts to the superintendent's office and wanted to know why the schools are losing money on the lunch program.

Committee member Cindy Whitley asked if the responsible thinking and classroom was necessary. She also expressed a desire for responsible utility management and possibly hiring cheaper custodial help during the summer months to cut costs.

Committee member Christine Cole said, perhaps the high school could go to stadium style seating with larger classes, sell the administrative building and incorporate the superintendent's office into the high school.

"Not only would we save money, but there would be no more operation costs," she said.

According to Cole, her group also discussed eliminating the hot lunch program, looking into the rates of coaches salaries for potential cuts and to see how Charlevoix schools compare with other schools to determine where improvements can be made.

Student committee member Chuck Mason, said one of the ideas his group had was perhaps the library could try working on monetary or materials donations for a couple years.

During the meeting the groups were also supposed to brainstorm a potential philosophy for prioritizing expenditure cuts, but due to time constraints, did not get to it.

Retail drift is costing your community millions of dollars

Retail drift is the technical term researchers use when dollars generated in a smaller community are spent in a large community or nearby city.

A recent major university study says: "Small town residents who leave their communities to shop in big-city malls are committing a form of economic suicide." The study concludes the retail drift is so severe that it could be the death knell for some communities.

Shopping at home is the only way to stop retail drift. Keeping your dollars at home helps keep your community strong and economically healthy.

It's simple logic. Your hometown businesses provide the same or equivalent goods and services at the same or better prices with less traveling time and expense.

Blasts at Big Rock soften the trademark sphere

Three individual and precisely controlled blasts were successfully completed on Dec. 8, 9 and 11 at Consumers Energy's Big Rock Point Restoration Project.

The work assists in the demolition of the large concrete monolith located inside the plant's former containment sphere.

The blasts were used to "soften" the concrete and steel rebar monolith that once housed Big Rock Point's reactor vessel, steam drum, spent fuel pool and other equipment. The explosives were designed, placed and detonated in order to fracture, but not drop, the structure which stands 75-feet tall at its apex.

The "softening" allows workers to more efficiently demolish the structure using standard demolition equipment — a 16,000-pound wrecking ball and ramming equipment.

The explosives were employed in response to the difficulty encountered in earlier demolition projects of similar structures at Big Rock Point and other nuclear sites across the country.

"Demolition of the turbine building earlier this year using the wrecking ball proved just how solidly the plant was constructed," said Ray Flowers, Big Rock Point demolition project manager. "It took us longer than expected to bring the turbine building down due to its superior structural integrity."

Controlled Demolition Inc. (CDI) was contracted by Consumers Energy to plan, engineer and execute the blasts.

"CDI was hired because it is the recognized worldwide leader in using explosives to assist in the demolition of unwanted buildings," said Kurt Haas, Big Rock Point site general manager. "In addition to successfully performing similar work at other nuclear sites, they have also brought down such recognizable structures as the containment building at the Maine Yankee nuclear site, Seattle's Kingdome, Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium and the J.L. Hudson Building in Detroit. For a job like this, it was important that we identify and hire the industry leader."

Preparation for the blasts began several months ago as the plant's trademark containment sphere was being dismantled. CDI personnel developed the blast plan, which details the amount and placement of explosives in the concrete, along with safety procedures and contingency plans.

Using powered machines and hand drills, CDI personnel drilled 271 horizontal and vertical two-inch diameter holes, compromising almost 4,000 linear feet into the concrete. CDI personnel then placed the exact amount of explosives into the predetermined holes for each individual blast.

The first blast occurred Dec. 8 and was located in the area where the reactor vessel was once located. The second blast occurred Dec. 9 and was located in the former spent fuel pool area. The third blast occurred Dec. 11 and in the former steam drum area. Approximately 500 pounds of explosives were used in the three blasts.

An extensive number of safety precautions were implemented for the work, including:

- Establishment of a 800-foot blast zone in which all personnel were required to vacate.
- A blast mat constructed of chain link fencing and fabric was laid over the individual blast zones to keep debris in place.
- A detailed countdown procedure and contingency plan was established and followed.
- Site security was increased and all non-essential personnel left the site during the blasts.
- Advance notification of appropriate authorities was made.

"The months of planning paid off — the structure remains standing as planned after the blasts and the concrete and rebar has been softened," Haas said.

The structure is now being brought down using the wrecking ball and other equipment. The approximately 23 million pounds of debris will be loaded into containers and shipped out of state for disposal.

The concrete monolith is the last large remaining structure at Big Rock Point. The majority of the site is scheduled to be returned to a green field status, free for unrestricted use, by fall of 2007.

Big Rock Point was the world's first, high power-density boiling water reactor and an important research site for the nuclear power industry. The plant was shut down on Aug. 29, 1997, after 35 years of service, making it the nation's longest running nuclear plant. Due to its many contributions to the nuclear and medical communities, Big Rock Point was named a Nuclear Historic Landmark by the American Nuclear Society.

Charlevoix homeowner named Waterways chairman

By JEFFE WITTHOEFT

Charlevoix's representation on the Michigan Waterways Commission remains strong.

Todd Wyett

At the Dec. 9 Waterways Commission meeting, real estate developer Todd Wyett was appointed commission chairman after 10 months as a commissioner.

Wyett, 40, calls Bloomfield Village his homestead but spends his free time at his home in Charlevoix.

With former commissioners John Winn of Charlevoix and Dave Griffin of Bay Harbor having left their positions this fall after their terms expired, representation from Charlevoix's immediate area was at a low.

Wyett said his first visit here was Dec. 24, 1993 when just after moving to Birmingham from New York City, N.Y. he came to the great white north for what he called the perfect holiday destination.

That night he watched snowflakes fall from the Weatherlane Restaurant

Public Notice?

Without it in your newspaper, you're left guessing what the government's doing in your community.

Public notice is the people's right to know the issues that affect them directly, and people know the place to find public and legal notices in the newspaper. What you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. Public notices have been posted here since the days of colonial America. In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Why guess? That is why you have, and read, your newspaper... where your right to know is already being served.

and was snowed in at his hotel.

"I fell in love right then and there," he said.

Soon after, he bought a home here and has returned every chance he gets.

In spite of Wyett's love for the lakes and boating, he said Charlevoix in the summer has nothing on its winter wonders.

"I still like Charlevoix better in the winter than in the summer," he said.

However, he said his summer boating experience will improve with the upcoming overhaul of the marina and East Park.

He explained that recent Waterways approval of a $5 million outlay of funds for the upcoming marina and East Park revamping was approved a few years ago when the commission gave the project the go ahead. But he said the recent vote was for the capital expenditure to be allocated in 2006.

"Once a project is approved, it gets funded," he said.

He said the floating dock system will improve the marina's safety and will also be more responsive to continually fluctuating water levels. And he said the finger pier system will limit boat stacking by giving captains greater dock space to work in.

One change he hopes to see statewide during his three-year tenure as chairman is a blanket in and out policy that regulates dock time and encourages transient use of space.

Wyett, a successful real estate developer, founder and president of Touchstone Corp., has also brought his business savvy to town. Three years ago, he purchased Captain's Corner Shopping Center and has also undertaken real estate endeavors in the surrounding area.

When asked how Wyett's Charlevoix roots would impact the upcoming project, he said he plans to stay out of the way and let the contractors do what needs to be done.

Rayder wrestlers take second at Bridge Brawl

The Rayder grapplers posted big wins throughout the week capturing decisive victories over Elk Rapids and Traverse City St. Francis and taking second place for the Lower Peninsula in the scrappy Bridge Brawl.

During the 63-18 win over Elk Rapids, senior Rayder Jed Daman marked his 100th career win.

The individual results for the Elk Rapids match were: Zeke Daman 7-1 decision; Woody Nitchman pin; Nate Golovich pin; Jed Daman pin; Matt Novotny pin; Jeff Golovich pin; Nathan Tripplehorn pin; Ray Jones pin.

They also saw success on the mats Dec. 13 when the team took Traverse City St. Francis 60-24.

The individual results for the Traverse City St. Francis match were: Zeke Daman pinned; Woody Nitchman pin; Joey Left pin; Jed Daman pin; Matt Novotny pin; Ray Jones fell by a pin.

On Friday, Dec. 16, the Rayders traveled to Rudyard for the Bridge Brawl. This four-year-old tournament lives up to its name because of the tough competition. Five Upper Peninsula teams wrestle five Lower Peninsula teams.

Winners are decided upon total team scoring. St. Ignace took first place for the Upper Peninsula. This year, Charlevoix missed taking first place in the Lower Peninsula division by only 20 points. Cheboygan took first place.

Charlevoix won against Norway 51-30, Negaunee 51-30, Rudyard 41-37 and Manistique 72-6. Charlevoix fell to St. Ignace 30-51.

Senior Jeff Golovich marked his 100th career win during this tournament. Jed Daman went undefeated during the day after pinning all his opponents.

The individual results for the Bridge Brawl tournament were: Zeke Daman

3-2 with two pins, one void; Matt Golovich 3-2 with one decision, two voids; Woody Nitchman 3-2 with one pin, two voids; Nie Mailloux 3-2 with three voids; Joey Left 3-1 with 3 voids; Nate Golovich 3-2 with one pin, two voids; Matt Novotny 3-2 with two pins, one void; Nate Tripplehorn 2-3 with one pin, one decision; and Ray Jones 2-3 with one pin, one decision.

Medalists for the Rayders were Spencer Hankins 4-1 with three pins, one void; Nick Gotshall 4-1 with three pins, one void; Jed Daman 5-0 with five pins; and Jeff Golovich 4-1 with four pins.

Coach Craig Golovich named senior Matt Novotny "Wrestler of the Week" because he "gutted out" two key pins to help the Rayders take a close second place in the Lower Peninsula division.

The Rayders have a current record of 13-2.

Charlevoix hosted Grayling, Kalkaska and Traverse City St. Francis on Monday, Dec. 19 and will travel to Cheboygan on Wednesday, Dec. 21. Results from these matches were not available by press time.

Rayder basketball team open the season 2-1

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders are off to a 2-1 start early in the basketball season. The Rayders opened their season with wins over Suttons Bay, 69-44 and Maple City Glen Lake, 65-46 before losing to Harbor Springs, 71-70.

Charlevoix has been short-handed thus far this season with six players, including three projected starters serving six game suspensions. As a result, against Suttons Bay, eight of the 10 Rayder players were seeing their first varsity action.

"I was real pleased with the guys playing their first varsity games (against Suttons Bay)," Charlevoix coach Keith Haske said. "They settled in and played real well."

The Rayders started tentative, as would be expected from such a young group, and trailed 14-8 after the first quarter. Charlevoix rallied to tie the game 33-33 at the half.

Early in the third period, the Norsemen pulled back ahead to a 40-35 advantage forcing a Haske time-out with 6:09 to play in the quarter. The Rayders responded, going on a 12-0 run to close the frame.

Mitch Crandall scored eight of the Rayders' 12 in that spurt, including two three-pointers.

The run continued into the fourth quarter as a Billy Roloff bucket and another Crandall three pushed the lead to 52-40. Suttons Bay was no closer than 10 the rest of the night.

Crandall led all scorers with 24, of that 17 came in the second half. Matt Kautz had 12 points, five assists and five steals. Austin Wilhelm added 11.

Corey Gotshall grabbed 10 rebounds, Cliff Jones contributed five steals and three assists.

"Our defensive effort in the second half was outstanding," Haske observed. "I thought outscoring them 36-11 like we did was due to real strong defense."

Mitch Crandall had a great game offensively and played a good second half defensively, he made a couple of good blocks," Haske noted. "I was also impressed with Matt Kautz's effort. He does a lot of things that don't show up in the box score that help the team win."

Against Glen Lake, it was a close game until the end of the third quarter when Charlevoix broke the game open. The Rayders led 13-9 after one quarter, 26-21 at the half and 40-34 after three periods.

Crandall again led the Rayder scorers with 14 points. Derek Friske had eight points and eight rebounds, Cliff Jones and Trevor Mays each had eight points. Kautz contributed six assists.

"We had a key run in the late third, early fourth quarter where Cliff and Kyle Jones made a couple of steals and Trevor Mays played real well," Haske observed.

Charlevoix made a valiant comeback effort against Harbor Springs only to fall one point short. The Rayders never led after starting out the game trailing 7-0. Charlevoix pulled to within four at 14-10 on a Gotshall jumper but the Rams scored the final five points of the period for a 19-10 advantage.

In the second quarter, the Rayders trailed between five and 10 points the entire way, heading off the court at the half losing 32-24.

The Rams went on an 11-0 run in about two-and-a-half minutes to pull to a commanding 52-33 lead with only 2:46 left in the third stanza.

"It was real disappointing to have about four minutes there in the third quarter where we just didn't compete at all," Haske said. "We just didn't work nearly as hard as we needed to."

Kautz took the game over almost single-handedly from that point on, scoring 24 points in the game's final nine-and-a-half minutes. He scored five straight points late in the third quarter to cut the lead to 14.

After the Rams extended the lead back to 18 early in the fourth, Kautz scored the next five Rayder points to cut the lead back to 15, at 60-45. Crandall later hit back-to-back threes to trim the advantage to 63-51 with five minutes to play.

Friske scored and Kautz drained two free throws to cut the lead to 63-55 with 3:05 left. Harbor then tried a slow down, forcing Charlevoix to foul. The Rams missed two straight front ends of one-and-ones but the Rayders failed to take advantage of either miss.

The Rams upped their lead to 67-55 before Kautz hit four straight threes for Charlevoix to pull the Rayders to within three with 15 seconds to go, at 70-67. Harbor hit one of two free throws with 11 seconds left to tie the win. Crandall hit a three at the buzzer to cut the final advantage to one.

"It was a nice comeback but it's unfortunate that we took so long to get going," Haske said. "We were 1 for 17 in three point shots in the first three quarters. We're just a better shooting team than that."

Charlevoix only committed eight turnovers but the poor shooting was too much to overcome.

Kautz finished with 33 points, 26 coming in the second half and 19 in the fourth quarter. He also dished out six assists and had five steals.

Crandall scored 11 points, Wilhelm tallied 10. Friske grabbed seven rebounds.

The Rayders (2-1 overall, 0-1 Lake Michigan Conference) traveled to Grayling on Tuesday, Dec. 20 for a tough conference match-up. Results will appear in next week's Courier.

Charlevoix's next game following the holidays will take place Tuesday, Jan. 3 at Cheboygan.

SEE-North offers annual Twelfth Night excursions Jan. 6 and 13

Folk legend maintains that on the twelfth night after Christmas, animals are given the gift of speech.

SEE-North's Twelfth Night events include hiking a candle-lit trail and talking with the forest animals.

This year, Twelfth Night will take place from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 6 and Jan. 13 at Bay View Inn/Bay View Woods in Petoskey.

Families will meet at Stafford's Bay View Inn, ride a horse-drawn sleigh to the trail head and venture into the forest to meet the animals.

Those with young children may bring a small sled. Everyone should come dressed for a hike outdoors.

SEE-North will provide snacks, hot beverages, face-painting and mask-making indoors.

Because of the popularity of the events, registration has changed from past years. Tickets are required.

Participants may call SEE-North at (231) 348-9700 to reserve a time slot. They must then purchase their tickets within one week of registering, either by mail or in person at SEE-North's office in downtown Petoskey. No refunds will be issued unless the event is canceled due to bad weather.

Tickets for Twelfth Night this year are $7 per person, which includes the sleigh ride. Children under 3 are admitted free.

For more information, call SEE-North at (231) 348-9700 or visit SEE-North's Web site at www.seenorth.org.

Charlevoix-Emmet ISD staff members won two state-wide awards for videos

The Communications Services staff at Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District recently won statewide awards for two videos.

The honors were received from the Michigan School Public Relations Association's (MSPRA) 2005 Communications Contest.

Dianne Litzzenburger, Director of Communication Services, and Randy Caleaterra, videographer, received a first place honor for a video featuring the Career and Technical Education classes offered throughout the Intermediate School District. Andy Hayes, President of Northern Lakes Economic Alliance, narrates and is host in the video. In bestowing the Distinguished Award, Michigan School Public Relations Association's highest honor for communications work, judges cited the creative editing and writing and called the video, "a quality piece of work."

Litzzenburger and Caleaterra received a second place, Commendable Award, for the video "Restore the Promise of Proposal A."

This video, created on behalf of the Char-Em School Boards' Association, helped explain school funding. In their comments about the award-winning production, judges noted the effective camera work, strong writing, and effectiveness of the video in explaining a complicated subject. "Obviously well planned...effective 'call to action' at the end. Bravo", one judge wrote.

The Michigan School Public Relations Association, an affiliate of the National School Public Relations Association, is committed to advancing education through responsible communications. The Michigan School Public Relations Association's contest is held annually.

Council names Peggy Brennan to the shade tree commission

At the Charlevoix City Council meeting, Monday, Dec. 19, the Shade Tree Commission nominated Charlevoix resident Peggy Brennan, to be a commissioner.

Peggy Brennan

Brennan will fill the position being vacated by Mary Adams at the end of the year.

At the meeting, commission members recognized and thanked Adams for her service and support over the past three years.

The Shade Tree Commission is a voluntary body that provides information, advice and assistance to various city departments and council members on matters related to trees on city properties.

Another commission function is to apply for state and national recognition as a Tree City USA community, from the National Arbor Day Foundation in cooperation with the National Association of State Foresters, USDA Forest Service and others organizations.

A special accomplishment of the Charlevoix Shade Tree Commission this past year was the determination that despite the local belief that the city is in agricultural zone 4, it is actually located in a pocket zone 5 with a mean low temperature of -12 degrees.

This finding has special significance in that it allows the commission to recommend for planting a wider selection of street-side trees.

Commission member, Kenneth J. Polakowski, a registered landscape architect, is in the process of selecting additional species of trees.

This expanded list of approved street-side trees will be presented in May during "Plant a Tree Week," the city's celebration of National Arbor Day.

Charlevoix has been recognized as a Tree City for 13 years and has applied for the fourteenth year.

City residents can apply to have street-side trees planted in front of their property by calling the city manager's office at (231) 547-3270.

Planting of street-side trees is a service provided by the city.

We tried to pick 85 reasons to celebrate our 85th anniversary.

BUT WE GOT CARRIED AWAY.

It's been 85 years since our hospital officially opened in a big frame house on Hurlbut Street.

In that time, we've cared for thousands of residents and resorters. Welcomed advances in medical technology, diagnostic tests, therapeutic drugs, and sophisticated treatment we never could have imagined.
Introduced new services and state-of-the-art equipment to meet the needs of our community.
Built a beautiful, modern facility. Added on, bumped out, and grown up.

But one important thing hasn't changed.

Our staff—always known for their dedication, expertise, gentle manner, and personal touch—continued to be the heart of our hospital. That's how it began 85 years ago, and how it will be well into the future.

It's good to know some things stay the same. As always, we're here when you need us. Ready to take good care of you.

"I feel very, deeply sorry about this tragedy. I am very deeply sorry about

"But you Mr. Goldstick, will leave a legacy as a selfish killer — so the sentence you receive will be just."

Judge Richard Pajtas,
Charlevoix County 33rd Circuit Court

everything that happened," he said. "I'm not trying to make excuses and even though my body doesn't show it, inside
I feel deeply sorry."

He added, "I don't express my feelings very good, that's all I can say."
According to Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney, John Jarema, he didn't have the honor of knowing Brady before his death.

"I have been told by numerous persons how caring and compassionate he was. He died because of his caring for the VFW," Jarema said. "He was married for over 50 years, raised four children, he survived the war, he survived being a Detroit police officer and he died in a makeshift VFW office."

Jarema added, "I take offense to the defendant's statements contained in the PSI. The defendant claims he was shocked and that the detective lied twice on the stand and that I knew it."

Jarema said neither he or the detective in question deserve such accusations.
"These accusations are unfounded, unfair and simply wrong," Jarema said.
"It is time that the defendant takes a good long look in the mirror to find the reason that he will be removed from society for the rest of his life."

He added, "It was his choice and his selfish act that our community doesn't have Bill Brady alive anymore. It was his selfish act that the Brady family doesn't have their husband, brother, father, grandfather and best friend anymore. It was his selfish act that caused Mrs. Goldstick (Rosalyn), who I do know and is a wonderful person and did not deserve to be put through this ordeal either."

Jarema said Goldstick has no one to blame but himself for the selfish choices he made.

"Mr. Goldstick wants justice — this court will impose a sentence of life without the possibility of parole and that is justice in this case," he added.

Judge Pajtas then told those in the courtroom that Brady was a giving person who will leave a legacy of helping others.

"But you, Mr. Goldstick, will leave a legacy as a selfish killer — so the sentence you receive will be just," Pajtas said.

Pajtas sentenced Goldstick to two years in a Michigan Department of Corrections correctional facility with credit for 247 days.

"Then you will serve a term of life in prison without the possibility of parole," he said.

Goldstick was also fined $180 and advised of his rights to appellate review before being led out of the courtroom.

Local woman celebrates 100th birthday

By JULIE WITTHOEFT

While Charlevoix residents and visitors rev up to ring in the new year, one of the town's newest residents prepares to become a centenarian.

Florence Mayhew, who moved to Charlevoix in June of 2005 from her home along the Crooked River in Alanson, turns 100 on Jan. 3.

"It's a very big deal," her daughter Ann Hall, said. "She's in great shape."

Mayhew lives with Ann and her husband John Hall in the Charlevoix Country Club but was on her own into her late 90s.

She said she doesn't necessary watch what she eats or exercise regularly and added that there's no real secret to her longevity.

Mayhew has genetics on her side, her mother, May Doud, lived to be 98 and her younger brother Lee Doud, 87, moved to Independence Village in Petoskey two weeks ago.

In spite of a recent loss of feeling in her hands Mayhew continues to paint. In her 100th year, she said she plans to complete two more of her signature landscape paintings for her grandchildren.

Ann and John are also planning a trip this winter with Mayhew to their home in Hilton Head, S.C.

To mark Mayhew reaching this birthday milestone, her family participated in a blowout celebration on Dec. 23 at the country club clubhouse and restaurant Mahogany's.
"Everyone is here for her," Ann
said.

The accomplished woman was born on Jan. 3, 1906 in Mt. Pleasant.

She graduated from Mt. Pleasant
High School in 1924 and went on to receive her art certificate in 1928 from Central State Teacher's College in Mt. Pleasant. This is the site of the current Central Michigan University.

She opted not to become a teacher and instead attended beauty school.
She worked at an on-campus salon while living nearby with her parents.

During her stint at the salon,

County resident killed in one-vehicle car accident

Deputies from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office responded to a one-vehicle crash in Bay Township which took place at 7:35 p.m. Dec. 23.

Passing motorists reported finding a vehicle crashed in a field along Camp Daggett Road just north of Camp Sherwood Road.

Investigation revealed that Robert C. McKerracher, 73, of Evangeline Township had been traveling south on Camp Daggett Road when his 1997 Buick failed to negotiate a curve. The car left the roadway striking several mailboxes before plowing through a 10 foot high snow bank and coming to rest in the field.

McKerracher was pronounced dead at the scene.

The vehicle suffered minimal damage.

The Sheriff's Office was assisted by the Boyne City Emergency Medical Service.

The incident remains under investigation by the Sheriff's office and Charlevoix County Medical Examiner's Office.

County Relay for Life event needs volunteers

Relay For Life coming to Charlevoix County this summer.

The American Cancer Society and citizens in the local community are currently rallying together to fight cancer by planning the 2006 Relay For Life event of Charlevoix County.

Relay For Life is the American Cancer Society's signature fundraising event, where teams of people camp out for 24 hours, walking laps on a track, socializing and participating in planned activities. Teams can be made up of family, friends, co-workers or community groups.

Volunteers are needed to help plan the 2006 event. A location for the Relay For Life of Charlevoix County has not yet been set. For more information on Relay or to volunteer, contact Lisa Haselton at (231) 947-0860 or lisahaselton@cancer.org.

This year, Relay For Life will be held in more than 4,200 communities across America and in up to 16 countries and is expected to raise more than $300 million in aid for the American Cancer Society's ongoing programs of research, education, advocacy and service. As the most successful not-for-profit event in America, Relay For Life provides a platform for raising cancer awareness and connecting communities to the programs and services of the American Cancer Society.

The American Cancer Society is dedicated to eliminating cancer as a major health problem by saving lives, diminishing suffering and preventing cancer through research, education, advocacy and service. Founded in 1913 and with national headquarters in Atlanta, Ga, the society has 13 regional divisions and local offices in 3,400 communities, involving millions of volunteers across the United States. Resolutions: The good, the bad and the ugly

Benjamin Gohs
'Staff writer'

I was going to lecture on the importance of hanging in there when it comes to self-improvement. Something my old mother calls stick-to-itiveness. Then I realized, a pudgy, former two-pack-a-day smoker with a checkbook in the red is the last person who should be preaching the virtues of being a better you.

Making positive life changes aren't easy. If they were, we would all resemble those toothpaste models with the frighteningly white smiles and $600 haircuts.

I'll never forget the year I vowed to lose weight on the cabbage soup diet. It was only slightly less disgusting than the headcheese diet. For those of you unfamiliar with this sulfurous sauce, cabbage soup is a metabolic food. From the Greek "metabolic" meaning, "tastes so bad we know you won't eat it."

After a few weeks of the putrid pottage I began to feel like Oliver Twist. I heard somewhere that more people are afraid of public speaking than death, obviously they never tried cabbage soup. Ditto goes for the cruel and unusual grapefruit diet which I hear was recently outlawed by the Geneva Convention.

Exercise more? To my chagrin, the Food and Drug Administration doesn't recognize lying on the couch as a physical fitness routine. Though the cardiovascular benefits of screaming at the TV are arguable, workout gurus advise you to get your heart rate up for 30 minutes, three times a week — you'll know you reached your target somewhere between, "I can't breathe" and "Oh my God, I'm going to die."

I knew I was out of shape when I pulled a hamstring stepping out of the shower. For those of you who thought I pulled it diving for the game winning touchdown at the family reunion last year, I was lying.

Giving up cigarettes is another big resolution people like to make. It took a month-long bout with double pneumonia back in the spring of 1999 to convince me to give up the smoky little darlings.

I wish I could say it was done for something noble like saving money or preventing cancer, but I simply couldn't breathe — $1,200 worth of x-rays and tests later — the doctor said I had the lung capacity of an asthmatic chipmunk.

Some people resolve to spend more time with family. Time with immediate family (extended family is completely different beast) is a grand idea. It takes about 10 sweaty-palmed, pulse pounding minutes in the presence of my gun-toting, ordained minister cousin or the great-aunt who married a convicted mass murderer (currently residing on death row, by the way) and I remember why I seldom leave town for the family farm. Don't get me wrong, I love them dearly, but they are best taken in small doses, from great distances.

Learning something new is a popular goal for many. I'm not saying humans have a finite capacity for attaining knowledge, but this particular resolution makes me nervous. I was 9 when I found my father in the garage hyperventilating over a tear soaked, half assembled bicycle. He called it holiday stress, but I know the truth. Upon reading the instruction manual, he forgot how to get back to the house. Now, I don't fancy myself a moron (another arguable notion) but I can't chance forgetting something integral like how to operate the microwave or program the VCR.

Getting organized is a great idea for the New Year. I envy folks with a special spot for everything — whose towels hang on racks and whose refrigerators don't resemble fight night at the International House of Condiments. Yes, the moldy applesauce on the third shelf is a biohazard. But, if I pull it out, then where would I be? I might as well grab that meat loaf leftover from the Carter administration and how about that margarine container of, well, I can't remember what it was, but should I really risk stinking up the house with some kind of a demented archeological dig?

Besides, I don't think my frail ego could take seeing just how empty the icebox is after a thorough cleaning. Perhaps it is simply better to let sleeping dogs lie, or in this case, to let the fuzzy casserole grow.

Resolutions are the cornerstones of self-improvement. But, no amount of cleaning, exercise, diet or thriftiness will ensure fame, fortune or immortality — only self-imposed neuroses.

Just find yourself a happy medium and stick with it. Hopefully you'll have better luck than I did.

Resolve to pick a resolution to improve your life

Gayle Gennett
'A look at life'

New Years resolutions — OK, who came up with this idea anyway?

I've yet to keep one though I try to come up with one every year. The reason for my coming up with some type of resolution is due to someone asking me what grand idea I've come up with to be resolute about. Feeling pressured that I don't have an answer, I usually make one up, "Save the world, eat healthier or pay my bills on time."

As a young child who loved being the center of attention and talked too much, my parents would casually suggest having me make the resolution to focus on listening more and talking less. Actually, I think it's my parents who came up with the game of "whoever can stay quiet the longest wins a prize."

One of our daughters reinstated this game when she would babysit. Not a bad idea really when you think of it. How many people do you know who really listen, give eye contact and respond with an appropriate comment that lets you know they really are paying attention to you. There's fast food, fast pace, lots to do in so little time. If you had an extra hour in the day how would you spend it? Now there's something to ponder. Would you stay an extra hour at work if you knew there'd be a tomorrow? Would you get that extra hour of sleep that your body is screaming for? Would you have fun playing with your kids or visiting a friend? Maybe you'd just put your feet up and "veg out" or learn to speak Portuguese.

Back to listening, it's an art. Paying attention and being able to recall all that was said can mean the world to the person sharing their story. When you listen are you busy thinking of your list of things to do? Are you hoping they can quickly tell their story so you can share yours? Or worst of all are you more interested in one upping their story so they feel what they are sharing is less important. Be honest, I know I've done this and you may have too.

So for 2006, I think all of us should concentrate on being better at listening and hold our tongues when it comes to talking too much. Conversation is wonderful and a good exchange of information is what keeps our minds brimming and brewing. But too much talking can get you into trouble too. Meet with any politician and they'll tell you that. Good conversation requires attentive listening as well.

Rumor has it that women like and need to converse, but I've met men who enjoy a good conversation over a cup of coffee or glass of wine now and again. As we increase our time spent on earth our hearing becomes less clear and we remember far less, big surprise for you young folk reading this. So when my husband says, "pass the ketchup please," and I respond with, "what do you mean the dog caught fleas," it will come to no one's surprise that we will all experience hearing loss as we age. So coupled with hearing loss I now need to focus more than ever on what someone is telling me.

Hint, always look at the person speaking to you. I'm getting better at reading lips so don't think I'm admiring your teeth or lipstick color or that there's a piece of food caught on your enamel. I am giving you a closer look so I can see and hear all you are saying with hopes of giving you the best response I can muster. It's an adventure getting older. I say that in the true sense as I feel each day I am finding a new way to survive my aches, pains and memory losses.

Maybe there should be a reality show entitled, "Senior Citizen Survivor Series." First assignment — open childproof bottles in record time. Or maybe — let's watch grandma find her car keys.

The moral of the story is if you pick a resolution to be resolute about, pick one you can possibly achieve and one that may improve your life in some small way.

St. Mary students' Hawaiian holiday

Column response

Editor:
Mr. Roger Knutson wrote in his column (Winter solstice reminds us of our place in the grand scheme of life) which appeared on page 4 of the Dec. 21 edition of the Charlevoix Courier, "I still cannot understand why England fought a short war with Argentina in defense of the Falkland Islands in that part of the world. What could they possibly have been defending?"

There were indications of large deposits of oil and gas. In 1998, Argentina and the United Kingdom began drilling operations.

Clarification

In last week's Charlevoix Courier there was an article in regards to Charlevoix Schools titled, "School financial steering committee brainstorm cuts." The Charlevoix Courier quoted me as saying that the responsible thinking classroom might not be necessary as well as hiring cheaper custodial help for the summer. I feel it is necessary for you to understand the background of this situation.

I volunteered to be on this committee to help in this time of financial crisis without affecting personnel. Last week at our meeting we were asked to break up into groups of five. During that time, each group was asked to generate a non-prioritized list of possible ways to save our school district money. At the end of that small group brainstorming, I was left to be the spokeswoman for our small group. That responsibility entailed repeating the ideas that were generated from our group, which were not necessarily my ideas.

A member of my group wondered if it was possible to hire an intern for the summer to do custodial work at a lower cost to the school. In my opinion, the custodians have been cut to the bone and further cuts would only hurt the school district. Another discussion was on the Responsible Thinking Classroom/Focus Classroom. Dr. Sturock informed us that funding for these programs comes from At Risk money, which is a state grant, not from the general fund. I did not ask if the responsible thinking classroom was necessary. In my opinion, I feel that classroom is very necessary in both schools, so children have a place to go if necessary to make a plan on making better choices in the classroom, chill out or even finish school work if needed.

Please understand that this is a tough situation to be in as a school employee. I chose to be a part of this committee to support our school district, employees and their jobs.

Readers react: Cheers and Jeers from 2005

Editor's note: The following are two submissions we received for the 2005 jeers and cheers section.

For more information on Charlevoix happenings in 2005 see the top stories of the year on page 9 of this week's edition of the Charlevoix Courier.

Inadequate representation

After reading the Courier for years, it seems that the city officials are always conducting some very expensive "study" on something, spending tons of money and coming up with no answers.

My jeer is that these officials get into office and all of a sudden the power goes to their heads and they make irrational decisions.

There is plenty of money coming into Charlevoix especially from big taxes that we have to pay because we have lakefront properties. Taxation without representation — it's not fair.

We are downstaters that own lakefront property. So we pay big taxes and we do not get to vote on anything.

Cheers to military

Cheers to all who are in the military, or have served in the past.

Jeers to those who one way or another choose not to serve, but now call those who served with honor, "unpatriotic" or "cowardly" for disagreeing with their lies.

Garden Club names student winners in a poster contest

Each year the National Garden Clubs along with the National Park Service sponsor a poster contest for students in Kindergarten through sixth grades.

The purpose of the contest is to enlighten children about our environment and to teach them the importance of preserving our natural resources.

The Youth Education Committee of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club works with art teachers, Mary Beth Morgan at Charlevoix Elementary School and Lori Bolt at St. Mary's School to instruct the students.

This year's themes are "Create a Beautiful Tapestry," "Smoky the Bear" and "Help Us Stay the Invaders."

In November, the committee judged all the posters. Judging is done using criteria set by the National Garden Clubs, Inc. In May of each year, the winners and their parents are invited to attend a tea and the winners are presented with certificates and a live tree.

This year's kindergarten student winners in the National Garden Clubs, Inc. "Create a Beautiful Tapestry" category are Raymond Cunningham, Camden Musilek and Lauren House. First grade winners are Grace Sutherland, Kelli Wakulat and Cameron Clark. Second grade winners are Jonathon Pischner, Quinsy Greene and Emily Zabawa. Looking back at 2005 Charlevoix happenings

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Here are a few of the top stories which occurred in Charlevoix in 2005.

Big Box

The Charlevoix Township big box issue, ordinance amendment 1.73, was passed by a vote of 340 to 215. Shortly after the vote it was brought to the attention of township board members that some of the language in the township zoning ordinance was misleading and incorrect. The township planning commission then recommended the two sections of language be stricken from the ordinance.

Arthur Kirk

Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office this summer on multiple counts of felony weapons charges and will face two trials to begin in mid-January.

Charlevoix turns 100

Charlevoix marked 100 years as a city this year. Commemorative flags were created to showcase the milestone as well as numerous displays by the Charlevoix Historical Society including a headlight from a 1907 Cadillac, the bell from the old bridge and a 1930s era drinking fountain.

Embezzlement

The trial of Karla Sue Lockman was postponed for 120 days after a doctor from the State Center for Forensic Psychiatry said Lockman met the statutory requirements for legal insanity. Lockman was charged with two counts of embezzlement by an agent or trustee of $20,000 or more, after it was discovered that at least $775,000 was embezzled from her former employer Northern Preferred Title Company with an office in Charlevoix.

AmeriCorps shake down

Convicted felon, Arthur Kirk, a former contract worker with AmeriCorps in 2000 and 2001 and an AmeriCorps volunteer at Charlevoix Middle School and volunteer counselor at Camp Daggett, was arrested by the Workplace smoking ban

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners passed the revised Public Health Clean Air Act of 2005, just before opting to exempt Charlevoix County from it. The board chose the exemption due to the possibility of costly lawsuits, the potential for needed revisions of the language of the regulation in the future and it allows Antrim, Emmet and Otsego counties, which fall under jurisdiction of the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, to make the choice on whether or not to adopt it for themselves.

County loses $1 million

Sandra Ward was awarded $552,068.74 and Jacqueline Rozema was awarded $505,713.65 in damages after filing suit against their former boss, previous Charlevoix County Prosecutor, Mary Beth Kur.

The women's claims against Kur started in 2002 when they testified against her in a Whistle Blowers Act case.

Chief retires

Dennis Halverson, the longest serving chief of Charlevoix Police, resigned his position of 19 years in late September and took a job as Safe Schools Coordinator with the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District.

City hall completion

The original $2.067 million renovation of Charlevoix's City Hall, a cost which climbed to about $2.3 million, was completed in early October. The project, which started in April 2003 was marked by a few snafus and a completion date that was missed by over a year.

CCMS debacle

The City of Charlevoix is pursuing reclamation of over $220,000 lost in a check mishap over a year ago. City officials claim the city should have been compensated by their insurer, United Fire and Casualty, for losses stemming from the check written in error on April 2, 2004 to CCMS and Associates, a contractor from Sault Ste. Marie hired in 2001 for road and sidewalk work. The check was supposed to be written to CCMS insurer, United Fire and Casualty. As a result, United sued the city and in December of 2004 the city agreed to pay United the over $220,000.

Motion to fire manager

In mid-September, city council members Gabe Campbell and Shirley Gibson said the $220,000 CCMS check debacle was grounds for Charlevoix City Manager of 21 years, Mike Wiesner's dismissal. First ward

Mike Wiesner

Park renovations approved

East Park renovations were approved at the Nov. 8 election. Demolition of the current chamber of commerce building and hand-shell will occur, Nov. 5, 2006, with construction of the new facility with amphitheater seating and restrooms slated for Nov. 12, 2006 at the south end of the park for an estimated cost of $1.5 million.

Library groundbreaking

All surface de-icers are not created equally

While most northern states have traditionally employed road salt as a primary chemical de-icer and sand as an abrasive for better traction, all de-icing agents are not created equal.

Although sodium chloride is an inexpensive and effective choice, concerns are frequently raised about its potential negative impacts, particularly from chloride, on human health, the environment, highway infrastructure and vehicles.

As part of its Comprehensive Monitoring Program, Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council monitors chloride concentrations, as well as a number of other factors affecting water quality in our region.

Almost all of the lakes monitored by the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council for over 10 years show increased chloride concentrations, with a particularly large increase between 2001 and 2004. While concentrations of the monitored bodies of water are currently below the toxic threshold, increased concentrations can stress aquatic ecosystems particularly in smaller streams and lakes where concentrations can be higher.

A major source of chlorides are road de-icers, the most prevalent being sodium chloride. Many of them also contain nutrients such as nitrogen and phosphorous, as well as minerals and heavy metals that can also have negative impacts on surface and ground water. Phosphorous, for example, is

Friends of the Library offer genealogy class series

A series of genealogy classes is being sponsored by the Charlevoix District Library Friends of the Library.

Carol Goodenough, a professional genealogist will be the instructor. All classes will take place from 7 to 9 p.m. in the lower level of the library. They will be held Jan. 18 and 25 and March 8 and 15.

The interview process and correspondence guidelines will be covered during the first class. How to use the U.S. and Michigan census records will be the topic of the second class. In March, the first class will feature finding land records, ship records and immigration records and the second class will be taking a research trip.

The fee for the four classes is $14 for Friends of the Library members and $20 for non-members. The fee can be paid upon registration at the library located off Clinton Street in downtown Charlevoix.

a significant pollutant in northern Michigan and can encourage excessive aquatic plant growth that is not only a nuisance for recreation, but can also deplete oxygen when it decomposes.

De-icers have a different combination of performance, cost and impacts, suggesting that different de-icers may be appropriate for different climates. While there are potentially many more "environmentally-friendly" products available, experts recommend using calcium chloride and calcium magnesium acetate, which are more costly than sodium chloride but may be less environmentally harmful to sensitive ecosystems.

"Take note of the label of contents and keep current on the de-icing products on the market," said Jennifer Gelb, restoration ecologist at Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council. "New and improved alternatives are continually being introduced. Look for a different de-icer that will perform as well or better than your current product, but without the negative impacts."

Gelb stresses the importance of avoiding over-application and encourages strictly following application guidelines.

"Where appropriate, apply sand or other abrasive along with a de-icing agent to help traction and reduce the amount of de-icer necessary. Additionally, keep de-icers, and other loose materials from inadvertently entering surface waters by using vegetation buffers. Also, clean up or redistribute piles of accumulated deicers, sand and kitty litters," she said. "Safer de-icing chemicals cost more than salt or sand, but instead of dwelling on spending more money, focus on what you're saving."

Housing development proposed for Hayes Township

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

A public hearing was held, Dec. 20 at the Hayes Township Hall to take public comment on a proposed planned unit development for a 24-and-a-half acre plot of land which abuts Old U.S. 31, Burgess and Upper Bay Shore roads.

Seven people attended the meeting including the developer, Joe Rivard, his engineer John Ferguson of Ferguson & Chamberlain Associates, Inc. and his lawyer, Maura Snabes.

Ferguson explained the highlights of the proposed development and offered a preliminary site plan to the township planning commission members and the audience.

Under Hayes Township zoning laws, a developer who maintains a certain number of acres of land in its "natural state," in this case 10 acres, is then allowed a bonus of the allowance of an additional home to be built on the property.

"If they agree with the site plan, then there would be six homes on the property," Rivard said.

According to Rivard, his hope is to create a condo site wherein all six homeowners would share ownership of the 24 plus acre property as opposed to selling off lots with each home separately.

Rivard currently resides in the only existing home on the site.

Following a few questions by audience members concerning the impact the project might have on the surrounding area, the issue was adjourned until an undetermined date in February to allow both the planning commission members and Rivard time to further prepare the preliminary plan.

County energy audit brings to light potential savings

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The results from examinations on energy use conducted in several Charlevoix County facilities are in.

The Charlevoix County Building, Charlevoix County Road Commission and Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department facilities underwent pollution prevention and energy efficiency investment grade audits this summer.

The audits, conducted by The Delta Institute, a nonprofit organization, found nearly $18,000 a year could be saved if certain changes were made to the facilities.

Charlevoix County Planning Department director, Larry Sullivan, said while the savings don't seem like much when compared to the county's overall budget, every tax dollar saved is a positive.

"It's another step in terms of the county minimizing costs while maximizing services," Sullivan said. "I think if we can reduce energy costs and maintain the level of services, it behooves us to do so."

According to Sullivan, the Northwest Michigan Council of Governments contacted The Delta Institute to start a few pilot programs, the county's energy audit being one of them, so this study was paid for entirely by grants from the U.S.

Environmental Protection Agency.

Sullivan said the three facilities which were examined were in better shape than the inspectors from The Delta Institute had anticipated.

"They were fairly impressed with the condition of the buildings," he said. "They saw some areas where improvements could be made, but not to the extent they thought."

He added, "They were very happy with the maintenance and gradual improvements made to the facilities over the years."

Most of the money saving recommendations Delta conveyed to Sullivan dealt with electrical costs.

"These buildings were built back in a time when people worked with pencils, pens and typewriters and they needed more light," he said. "But now we can remove some of the bulbs and install motion sensors in areas not heavily used."

Sullivan said all projected savings are based on last year's energy costs.

Sullivan said the initial cost to make the suggested improvements would be $48,000, but they would pay for themselves by the middle of the third year.

According to the report, "Overall, the three buildings are well maintained and the county has proactively implemented energy savings measures, such as the radiant heating at the road commission building and the computerized energy management system at the county building."

If the county were to capitalize on the energy saving measures recommended by The Delta Institute, a savings of approximately $17,800 could be seen annually. These savings are based on the 2004 usage and cost lists provided by the county.

In addition to saving money, authors of the study state that if Charlevoix County achieved the energy efficiencies for these projects, they could expect to achieve significant pollution reductions.

The authors said carbon dioxide would be reduced by 386,660 pounds; nitrogen oxides resulting from burnt fuel would be reduced by 770 pounds; sulfur dioxide which also results from burning fuel would be reduced by 1,600 pounds; mercury would be reduced by 0.01 pounds;

Several major county owned buildings underwent energy and pollution reduction audits this summer, including the Charlevoix County building shown here.

particulate matter consisting of soot, dust or other small particles would be reduced by 20.49 pounds; hazardous, volatile organic compounds often found in solvents and inks would be reduced by 5.89 pounds; and carbon monoxide would be reduced by 56.58 pounds.

Charlevoix Township planners recommend ordinance changes

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The Charlevoix Township Planning Commission voted unanimously on a recommendation, Wednesday, Dec. 21, that the township board strike language from two sections of their zoning ordinance.

This action followed the Nov. 8 referendum vote on zoning ordinance amendment 1.73, also known as the big box ordinance, which passed.

Some township residents have come forward and said according to requirements set forth in the existing zoning ordinance, the big box regulations were not passed.

The language in question is found in sections 12.3 on page 81 and 13G4 on page 84 of the Charlevoix Township zoning ordinance.

"After that referendum (vote on 1.73) it was brought to our attention that 13G4 stated that it required a majority of all of the people who are registered to vote in the township. State legislation does not require that," said Charlevoix-Township attorney, Richard Joseph. "It was suggested to us to completely delete that rather than try to make it right because it would be too difficult to write a statute that works in that instance."

He added, "It was suggested to us by MTA (Michigan Township Association) and by some other members of my firm that only do zoning work that we take that out because it is unnecessary and it is not correct. In all instances where our ordinance is stronger than state law our ordinance applies that's not correct. In some instances it is and in some instances it's not."

According to the state statute, even if only 10 people out of 1,000 registered voters were to vote and six of them were yes votes, then the vote would pass.

"That's what the state statute says and that's what happened on Nov. 8," Joseph said. "To make your ordinance different when it comes to election law than what the state legislature has enacted is improper and incorrect."

Section 12.3 which has been recommended to be deleted, states, "In the interpretation, application and enforcement of this ordinance, whenever any of the provisions or limitations imposed or required by the provisions of this ordinance are more stringent than any other law or ordinance, then the provisions of this ordinance shall govern. Whenever the provisions of any other law or ordinance impose more stringent requirements than is imposed or required by this ordinance, then the provisions of such other law or ordinance shall govern."

The portion of 13.4G recommended to be deleted, states, "The township clerk has determined that an adequate petition has been filed within 30 days of the effective date and has been approved by a majority of the registered electors residing in the township."

The board's decision was preceded by public comment on the issue.

Township resident Keith Bales said, "I am very, very concerned with where we currently stand in this process. We are here at a public hearing to remove a section of our law that has been recognized by our supervisor as being confusing and misleading. We as citizens followed the process, played by the Township resident Al Wojan said, "At the last board meeting I asked the question of Mr. Joseph if the board was acting properly in adjudicating their own laws. They seemed to have advocated their own law and then went on to say, we don't care about that section. We're just going to say that ordinance 1.73 is now law and that we're going to proceed."

Wojan added, "It's always been my understanding when there is the question of one law which is our ordinance 1.69 that these types of matters should be decided in front of a court — a judge, to be adjudicated by that person."

Township residents dispute validity of Nov. 8 big box vote

ORDINANCE

Bales expressed concern over a statement made by Township Supervisor, Dale Glass in an article that appeared on page 10 of the Dec. 14 edition of the Charlevoix Courier to the effect that the township had an opinion from the attorney general's office on this matter.

"Just so that it doesn't keep going forever and ever," Joseph said. "I think Dale (Glass) misunderstood me about case law and speaking with other attorneys. In researching this, and I think where Mr. Glass may have made his mistake, we called the Michigan Township Association because both my firm and this township pay extremely good money to use their legal resources and that's all they deal with and they both were awestruck that this was even an issue, number one."

He added, "And, number two, there were two people that I spoke with — attorneys — and they both said to me that there was absolutely no doubt that the state statute controls in this situation. You cannot enact a zoning ordinance that is contrary to state election law."

Bales said he asked Joseph at a prior meeting to list some of the case law which validate the township's actions.

"He could not give specifics," Bales said.

Joseph said whenever there are errors in the zoning ordinance it's incumbent upon us to fix it.

"So we're taking out the one section 13G4 because it's clearly contrary to state law. And we're taking out the other section because it just doesn't serve any purpose whatsoever," Joseph explained.

The planning commission's recommendation will go on to the Charlevoix County Planning Commission and then to the township board for final approval.

A Show Cause Hearing is scheduled for 10:00am-12:00pm, January 23, 2006 at at the Treasurer's Office, 301 State Street, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Any person with an interest in the property forfeited to the county treasurer may appear at the show cause hearing and redeem that property or show cause why absolute title to that property should not vest in the Foreclosing Governmental Unit.

A Judicial Foreclosure Hearing is scheduled for 2:00pm, February 3, 2006 at the 33rd Circuit Court, 301 State Street, Charlevoix, MI.

At this hearing the Foreclosing Governmental Unit shall ask that the court enter a judgment foreclosing the property as requested in the petition for foreclosure. A person claiming an interest in a parcel of property set forth in the petition for foreclosure, who desires to contest that petition, must file written objections with the clerk of the circuit court and serve those objections on the Charlevoix County Treasurer, the Foreclosing Governmental Unit. The docket number of the petition is 05834-20CZ..

If you are a person with an interest in property being foreclosed:

- You have the right to redeem this parcel from the foreclosure process by payment of all forfeited unpaid taxes, interest, penalties, and fees prior to the expiration of the redemption period. You should contact the Charlevoix County Treasurer for the amount required to redeem.
- You may lose your interest in the property as a result of the foreclosure proceeding.
- The title to the property shall vest absolutely in the Foreclosing Governmental Unit unless all forfeited unpaid delinquent taxes, interest, penalties, and fees are paid by March 31, 2006

PLEASE NOTE :

The following list represents parties that appear to have title, lien, or other apparent rights to the parcels being foreclosed by the Foreclosing Governmental Unit.

This notice is required to be given by law, even if the party no longer claims or desires an interest if it appears they hold any undischarged, apparent, or potential title or lien right to the property.

Listing of a party does NOT necessarily indicate that they are the owner of a parcel, or that they are liable for the property taxes.

This list is NOT an offering of property for sale. These parcels are NOT being sold, auctioned, or otherwise made available by virtue of this notice.

There is no procedure for purchasing these parcels from the Foreclosing Governmental Unit at this point in the foreclosure proceedings. Those parcels that are foreclosed and not redeemed may become available at public auction after July, of 2006. These parcels remain the property of their current owner until redemption rights have expired. No party should make any attempt to inspect or enter upon these parcels assuming them to be for sale. This may constitute trespassing and subject the offender to criminal prosecution. The street address of the parcels listed is based on local records and is not guaranteed to be the actual location of the property.

The amount due listed indicates the balance which was due as of forfeiture on March 1, 2005. The current amount required to redeem must be obtained from the Charlevoix County Treasurer, as additional penalties, fees, and interest have accrued since forfeiture.

Beaver Island residents band together to save Christmas

By PHYLLIS MOORE
Special to the Courier

We've all read or heard of the old story, "When Santa Missed the Boat to Beaver Island," by James Pooler. The Christmas of 2005 will probably have its very own story in a few years.

The generosity of the Islanders is legendary.

After two days of pea-soup fog and a combination of freezing rain and drizzle, Christmas on Beaver Island was looking mighty bleak for some families as folks were stranded both in Charlevoix and on the island who had intended to travel across to spend the holiday with mainland families.

There was no mail, no last minute holiday packages, no newspapers, no fresh produce, nothing, zip, zero, nada.

By Christmas Eve there were many upside down smiles on faces. It's mighty hard to keep up spirits when mothers, dads, brothers, sisters, sons, daughters and/or grandchildren are on one shore and you're on the other. The day before "the big day" was another of the same — gray, foggy and rainy. Islanders mumbled among themselves about how they wouldn't be able to be together since the ferry had stopped running and the planes couldn't fly.

Senior Beaver Island Boat Company Captain Kevin McDonough, general manager for Beaver Island Boat Company, Margo Marks and assistant manager Tim McQueer put their heads together. After checking with Barb Swartzfisher of the Beaver Island Transportation Authority, they were guaranteed the planes wouldn't be flying, so they decided to make a very special run with the Emerald Isle.

Island Airways called all those who were on stand-by, and hoping for clear weather, told them to head to the boat docks both on the island and in Charlevoix. In the meantime, Marks and McDonough, gathered up employees to man the docks and crew to operate the ferry. All these folks gave up spending Christmas Eve with their loved ones so that everyone would have a Merry Christmas.

At about noon on Christmas Eve the Emerald Isle left the island with 22 aboard bound for Charlevoix. Those 22 would not have been able to spend the holiday with their families without the special trip. Once in Charlevoix, folks lined up for the return trip with 47 as the final number as she set off for the island arriving about 6 p.m. to cheers and holiday music blasting from a boom-box set outside the office on a bench.

Car and truck lights lit up Whiskey Point and then the dock as the Emerald Isle glided into her berth. According to several passengers, Christmas carols were sung a good share of the way and probably with more feeling than ever before.

There is no doubt there have never been happier faces than those who stepped off the boat or happier tears than those shed by the greeters. Hugs and kisses abounded as families were reunited thanks to the selflessness of both the Beaver Island Boat Company and Island

Airways.

As passengers departed, many stopped to give the crew members hugs and kisses along with heartfelt thanks for saving Christmas.

BUSINESS

Global Business Funding offers new affiliate program

The cold may have set in, but Global Business Funding, Inc. is turning the heat up in Charlevoix.

Global Business Funding opened its doors in Charlevoix in August of 2005. Since then, the business has done over $100 million in business loans presented to their exclusive funders.

Now, the company is expanding again.

In September 2005, Richard Stotts was selected to be the Global Business Funding Regional Director for the southeast and he is located in Tampa, Fla. Their southeast office is working hand in hand with the Florida Minority Supplier Development Council, a national organization with a membership of over 3,500 corporations and 15,000 certified Minority Business Enterprise suppliers. The purpose of the council is to provide major corporations and government agencies with easy access to minority owned and operated businesses.

Devon Arlt, CEO of Global Business Funding, is particularly keen to work with businesses that are classed as a minority organizations.

"Being a female CEO of a corporation, I am also classed as a minority," Arlt said.

In January 2006, Global Business Funding is launching a brand new program. The Global Business Funding Affiliate Program can only be offered to those persons who are already in an allied financial service field such as: insurance, financial planning, real estate, CPA, accounting, law, banking, mortgage brokering, leasing agent or stock brokerage.

Pre-qualified affiliates shall receive an advanced formal training program covering all aspects of operating a business loan and lease brokerage company.

After completion of the training program, affiliates will be presented a certificate as a "Global Business Funding Accredited Affiliate."

Kirk Trammel, vice-president of Global Business Funding, said, "One of the most notable advantages of our program, which we believe places us head and shoulders above the competition, is the support system we provide. Each affiliate will be assigned their own 'Affiliate Program Director.'"

The program director will contact their approved funding sources on behalf of the affiliates with regard to the following types of financing: equipment leasing, business loans, small business administration loans, accounts receivable loans, commercial finance loans, factoring, real estate loans, hard money loans and business sale/acquisition loans.

Global will only be training a limited number of affiliates in their 2006 program. An on-line application and basic financial aptitude test can be found on their Web site at www.globalbusinessfunds.com.

For more information, please contact Kirk Trammel or Gary Reed at the Global Business Funding headquarters in Charlevoix at (231) 547-0155.

BUSINESS

Boyne Rehabilitation Center capital campaign

Charlevoix Area Hospital which has had a small clinic and rehabilitation center in Boyne City for years has committed to expansion plans.

The first project is to expand the highly successful rehabilitation center. The center brings over $1 million in payroll and other revenue to Boyne City which helps all of our business and the community. Also, the rehabilitation center serves a wide area with its Woman's Health Clinic.

The rehabilitation center currently provides over 25,000 treatments a year.

Pat O'Brien, the head of his own real estate company recently committed $5,000 to the campaign.

"I believe that expanded health care facilities are vital for Boyne City," he said.

Those steering the capital campaign hope O'Brien's generous gift will stimulate other business and individuals in Boyne City to fund the effort.

Once this project is complete Charlevoix Area Hospital has committed to look into expanded urgent care facilities in Boyne City.

Septage study reveals need for solution to waste disposal

Following two-and-a-half years of thorough study of the current status of septage disposal in its health district and community-wide discussions of possible septage treatment solutions, the Septage Committee organized by the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency has released "Septage Treatment Study: Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego Counties."

"Septage" is the waste pumped from septic tanks.

Gerald Chase, Health Officer for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, presented the report to the Board of Health at its December meeting.

"The members of the Septage Committee recognized early on the critical need for septage treatment. They considered several approaches, from continuing to spread septage on farmland, to transfer facilities, to constructing one or more septage treatment plants. They held two well-attended community-wide meetings with septage haulers and considered their concerns. Ultimately, they decided the best approach for our four counties are small-scale, privately-owned treatment facilities," Chase said. "We think private enterprise with government enforcement of regulations to ensure public health and a level playing field is the best solution. The committee's work has already provided impetus to the creation of one new privately operated processing plant and others are on the drawing boards."

The 19-member septage committee is composed of representatives from board of health/county boards of commissioners, septage haulers, municipalities, environmental groups and staff from the health department, with technical assistance provided by consultants from Goördie-Fraser, Inc.

The septage committee's study revealed several converging trends increasing the need for a long-term solution to septage waste. These include; increased growth and development, which is squeezing out land application sites and increasing the number of septic systems in the health district; new regulations from the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality which impact many aspects of septic hauler operations, including the times of year they can spread or spray septage; increased soil fertility testing, which may cause some haulers to find new sites for land application or alternatives to spreading or spraying septage; and the lack of municipal facilities able to accept septage waste.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department serving Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties. For more information, contact Scott Kendzierski, Director of Environmental Health, at (231) 547-6523 or visit www.nwhealth.org.

"The man who fails to advertise just because conditions are a little uncertain is on par with the farmer who refuses to feed his cows because the price of butter has gone down."

Safety tips for navigating the roads during New Years'

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) announced another year of the nationwide campaign against drinking and driving called You Drink & Drive, You Lose.

The program started in 1999 and combines $14 million in public service ads with highly visible law enforcement.

The administration's studies show that nearly 97 percent of Americans view drinking and driving by others as a threat to their families and themselves. Indeed, Americans support tougher enforcement and rank drunk driving ahead of health care, poverty, the environment and gun control as an important social issue.

Overall, the administration estimates that 17,400 people were killed in alcohol related crashes last year alone.

Dr. Jeffrey Runge, head of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), was quoted in an AP story as saying that, "Since the early 1990's, we haven't made any progress," regarding effectively reducing drunk driving in the United States.

Combining efforts to curb alcohol consumption and dangerous behavior, Narconon Arrowhead, one of the nation's largest and most successful drug and alcohol education and rehabilitation programs, teams with the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration to offer these reminders:

- Be responsible, don't drink and drive.
 - Report impaired drivers to law enforcement.
 - Always buckle up — it's your best defense against an impaired driver.
 - Get help for friends or family members that have a drug or alcohol problem.
- For more information about the Narconon program, facts about drug and alcohol addiction, a free assessment and referral or to get help for a loved one in need, call Narconon Arrowhead today at (800)468-6933 or visit www.stopaddiction.com.

Winter skin care from the Skin Cancer Foundation

If you are one of the 10 million skiers or snowboarders expected to hit the slopes this winter season, remember to pack your sunscreen.

It is easy to think that being in a cold environment does not put you at risk for sunburn, when in fact ultraviolet rays can be even more damaging on the slopes than on the beach.

Skiers and snowboarders may be unaware of the dangers they face from the sun while on the slopes.

For every 1,000 feet of elevation, ultraviolet exposure increases by about 8 to 10 percent. So, a skier with an average complexion, at 11,000 feet above sea level in Colorado, will burn at noon after six minutes of unprotected sun exposure, compared to 14 minutes in Orlando, Fla. In addition, snow reflects about 80 percent of the ultraviolet light from the sun, only compounding the problem and further increasing the risk for skin cancer.

"Statistics show that fewer than 20 percent of Americans wear sunscreen year-round," said Perry Robins, MD, president of the Skin Cancer Foundation. "That is not enough, considering the sun shines 12 months a year and UV rays are present year-round no matter what season, altitude, temperature or time of day."

To protect yourself this ski season use sunscreen whenever you spend time outdoors and follow these important sun protection tips.

Both snow and strong wind can reduce the effectiveness of sunscreen, so remember to:

- Use a broad-spectrum sunscreen with an SPF of 15 or higher.
- Apply sunscreen liberally and evenly to all exposed skin.
- Be sure to cover often-missed spots like lips, ears, around eyes, neck, scalp and hands.
- Reapply at least every 90 minutes, and more often after sweating or expo-

- Wear long-sleeved shirts and long pants. Tightly woven fabrics and dark colors offer more protection.
- UV-blocking sunglasses with wrap-around or large frames protect your eyelids and the sensitive skin around your eyes, common sites for skin cancer and sun-induced aging.
- Keep track of the time you spend in full sunlight.

- If you are on the slopes for most of the day, take a few breaks indoors to reapply sunscreen.
 - Drink plenty of water to avoid dehydration from the sun.
- To find out more about how to protect yourself from the sun visit www.skincancer.org, or call 1-800-SKIN-490.

A message

TIM PETROSKY
Big Rock Point Restoration Project
Public Affairs Director and Citizen
Advisory Board Member

THE DISAPPEARANCE of Big Rock Point — both physically and psychologically — is becoming more emotionally real every day.

Recently, several trailers were removed that once housed employees, and the computers, desks, chairs and tables that they used.

The mobile offices are no longer needed because a number of workers have left the project, their work now done. Some workers were on-site for only a short period of time. Others were long-time Big Rock Point workers — like Rick Baker, a Securitas security supervisor and 28-year veteran of the plant, or Mike Bourassa, Sue Amstutz, Nancy Postma and Ed Bradley — all Consumers Energy employees who worked more than 20 years at Big Rock Point.

The most dramatic evidence that the decommissioning project is coming to an end are the hoes cutting the blue-green containment sphere into pieces and simultaneously bringing down the symbol of Big Rock Point.

The Big Rock Point exhibit will be displayed in Charlevoix's historic train depot.

Sphere demolition is scheduled for completion in December. Soon, Big Rock Point will remain only in memories and photographs — and thankfully at the Charlevoix Historical Society (CHS).

Based on an agreement between Big Rock Point, the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the Michigan State Historic Preservation Office (SHPO) and CHS, the history of Big Rock Point will be saved and shared with others through a public exhibit.

Dave Miles, co-director of the CHS' Harsha House Museum, says the Big Rock Point project will be the largest exhibit ever developed by the society. "Pictures, artifacts and displays will fill the entire historic train depot in Charlevoix," said Miles.

Miles notes that the exhibit's development — from start to finish — will take about 14 months. He says the biggest challenge has been sorting through thousands of photographs depicting the construction, operation and decommissioning of the plant and deciding which to use.

It's comforting to know that while Big Rock Point will soon be gone, the legacy of the plant and the people who worked there — people who literally helped prove that this new "atomic" technology could be used safely and efficiently — will live on at the Charlevoix Historical Society.

Big Rock Point Restoration Project • December 2005

Dismantling the Dream

On Nov. 16, workers cut the containment sphere with the cap being removed. The sphere is approximately 500 feet in diameter and weighed 9,000 tons.

FOR MORE THAN 40 years, Big Rock Point, with its unique 11-story green dome, has been as familiar a part of the north-west Michigan landscape as cedar trees and sand.

Called "an outpost of the future" by Michigan Gov. George Romney at the 1963 dedication, the Big Rock Point nuclear plant ushered in a new era in the development of atomic energy for peacetime use.

Just the country's fifth commercial nuclear power facility to be built and the nation's longest-running and oldest-operating when it closed in 1997, Big Rock Point and its distinctive design will forever be etched in the minds of area residents and the nuclear community.

The huge, blue-green dome is being dismantled as workers complete the final chapter on the history of nuclear energy in Northern Michigan.

The containment sphere is being dismantled.

The containment sphere — or "big green ball" as it was called by the community for so many years — represents the last major structure to be removed as workers return the 560-acre site to a natural state.

A familiar landmark for boaters on Little Traverse Bay and a testament to the dawn of nuclear energy in our country, the insulated steel sphere sat sentry for 35 years of electrical generation.

The dome contained the world's first high-power density boiling water reactor and it generated enough electricity for a community of nearly 40,000 people (100,000 people when the plant first went on line).

For Bill Trublowicz, a Big Rock employee since 1976, the sphere was literally his world. The former auxiliary operator would make rounds every two hours to take readings and ensure everything was working properly.

"Only 12 people were allowed at any one time inside the containment sphere during operation to ensure the safety of the employees," said Trublowicz, now Big Rock Point decommissioning costs and projects manager. "The system helped ensure everyone was accounted for in case of any type of emergency. Thankfully, it was always business as usual, just as designed."

Dismantling the Dream

Trublowicz says the sphere was initially covered with a paint named "Spring Green" produced by Pittsburgh Paints. The sphere was freshly painted each of the first few years in an effort to eliminate reoccurring paint cracking and flaking. "Cascade Blue" colored paint covered the sphere briefly in the mid 1960s before a return to "Spring Green" became permanent.

He remembers the sphere being painted at least twice after 1976 for cosmetic and housekeeping purposes. "My operations manager, Russ Abel, would always say, 'If it doesn't look good from the road, people don't think you're doing a safe job.'"

Trublowicz couldn't say for certain whether a fresh coat of paint contributed directly to safety, but the plant's 100-plus employees at one point worked more than 25 years without a lost-time accident.

Most nuclear plants in the country were designed with a concrete containment structure many in a cylinder shape. Big Rock Point is among only a handful of sites that featured a sphere design. Two others were the Yankee Rowe nuclear power plant in Massachusetts, which shut down in 1991, and Dresden 1 in Illinois, which shut down in 1978.

Tim Petrosky, public affairs director at the Big Rock Point Restoration Project, said containment spheres were used in initial designs because that was the most efficient way to contain pressure.

In October, workers began using two large cranes to dismantle the dome from the top down. The three-quarter-inch-thick steel sphere is being cut into 90 large sections, some of which will weigh up to 20,000 pounds.

One crane carries two workers in a basket to cut the steel with a torch into sections of various sizes, some as large as 20 by 30 feet. Another crane then carefully lowers the sections to the ground.

The metal undergoes several verification surveys and is cut into smaller sections before being shipped for disposal. The job is expected to conclude by the middle of December.

Then, the sturdy sphere that stood guard for more than four decades will be gone forever, and the resulting void in the landscape soon filled by Mother Nature.

The concrete monolith shown inside containment will be "inflamed" with approximately 11 tonnes of molten metal.

Big Green Ball Numbers

- 130 feet tall
- 103 feet above grade
- 130 feet in diameter
- 3.4 inch thick steel
- 2.5 million pounds
- Cut into 90 pieces
- Took about 5 weeks to dismantle

Retiree Reunion

■ They helped establish a legacy of excellence at Big Rock Point. In fact, a few of them actually helped build our nation's fifth and Michigan's first commercial nuclear power plant.

In September, 49 Big Rock Point retirees and guests gathered at Big Rock Point. Old friends and colleagues enjoyed lunch, catching up with each other, and a decommissioning update and tour of the site. Five members attended from the 1962 original crew. Harold Black, Don Langschwager, Bob May, Ken Villerman and Frank Zednick.

During the visit, retirees were asked to help support the Charlevoix Historical Society's historical Big Rock Point exhibit scheduled to open in Charlevoix in mid 2006.

Retirees were asked to volunteer as exhibit tour guides and possibly speakers, loan plant artifacts and mementos to the effort, and share their memories of the plant and fellow employees in a video being developed that will document the beginning, operation and dismantlement of Big Rock Point.

On the Road to Green

■ The Big Rock Point Restoration Project is featured in the 2005 Consumers Energy Environmental Report. The story highlights efforts to return the former nuclear site to its natural splendor in 2006.

Says Tracy Goble, environmental services superintendent, "We're going beyond state and federal requirements to return the land to a condition that coexists with the beauty of Northern Michigan."

To view the story, and the entire report, please visit www.consumersenergy.com and type "environmental report 2005" in the search field.

United Way at Big Rock Point

■ Even as the physical structure of the plant steadily disappears, Consumers Energy employees continue their support of the United Way.

The plant and its greatly reduced staff recently wrapped up its United Way campaign with 15 employees contributing $4,266.

A corporate contribution recognizing and supporting employee donations will be made early next year.

Big Rock Point workers and Consumers Energy have contributed almost $310,000 to the United Way over the past 16 years.

Big Rock Point public affairs director Tim Petrosky is the current Chair in United Way president. He follows former Big Rock Point employees Pat Donnelly, Jeff Bakker, Greg Withrow, Ellen Zienert, Andy Lee and Moe Field who served either as United Way president or board members.
